PROP. E LOOKS LIKE HANDWRITING ON WALL

Gardena's Poker Kings Gloomy

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

A billboard at Rosecrans Boulevard and Vermont Avenue asks voters next month to "Vote for Home Rule—No on E."

No explanation is offered, no other issue is raised. The campaign against Proposition E, on the Los Angeles county ballot, is keyed to this simple assault.

Proposition E would outlaw poker parlors in the county. In the opinion of the county counsel it would bar even friendly games in private homes.

If it is passed, the free-swinging days of Gardena are done. Even in Gardena there is little optimism. One glum parlor operator says simply:

It's pretty hard to go out and campaign for millions of votes to save poker."

That operator, and the owners of the other fine card clubs in Gardena, remember some days when the city itself almost kicked out the clubs. In 1960, for example, a proposition to outlaw poker in Gardena was defeated by the thin margin of 4,564 to 3,755. That was the fourth time Gardena voters had saved the clubs. Last spring the clubs won another election, 5,905 to 3,619.

Those victories in Gardena do not make the poker palace operators very happy.

"If we couldn't do better than that in the city where we are paying taxes and salaries, we don't figure to do much in the whole county," one grumbles.

Just the same, they have gathered up a small campaign fund and are fighting the issue on the "home rule" basis.

Gardena is unique in Southern California. Under a state law providing for local option, it licenses clubs to operate draw-poker games. There are many kinds of poker—stud, for example, is a popular form—but the state legalizes only one, five-card draw.

There have been sporadic attempts to legalize draw poker elsewhere in this area. Some 10 years ago, Seal Beach briefly permitted the Airport Club to function. But Gardena has been a consistent haven, for 40 years, for gamblers.

The origins of public poker in Gardena go back almost to the days of the community's birth in the 1880s. Then it was largely an area of dairy ranches and farmlands. The cowpokes, milkers and farmers liked their poker and they played it openly.

By 1930, Gardena residents felt big enough to become a city. They incorporated that year, with a population of 3,000, and brought poker along with them.

The "home rule" issue was strong then. Los Angeles had already annexed Wilmington, San Pedro and other areas in the southeastern part of the county. Gardena residents felt they had to protect their interests—including poker.

Not until 1946, when the population had soared to 10,000, was there strong enough sentiment against poker in Gardena to force an election. It was a bitter, initiative affair, with 18 candidates in the council race, two tax levies and a ban on poker clubs on the ballot.

The card clubs squeaked through — 1,527 to 1,106. Three of the four incumbent councilmen were re-elected.

However narrow the defeat, the foes of legalized gambling in Gardena were too discouraged to try again until 1958. By then the population had soared to 32,500.

The poker clubs, mindful of the squeak 12 years earlier, worked hard in this campaign and scored their greatest popular victory—6,277 to 2,265. In 1960, the foes of poker got the issue on the ballot again, and were beaten again last spring.

Apparently convinced that Gardena's 40,000 residents were not of a mind to outlaw poker themselves, the gambling foes succeeded in putting the poker ban on the county ballot which voters will mark Nov. 6.

This maneuver is based upon a new state law that permits counties of more than 4,000,000 population to decide on a county-wide basis whether draw poker shall be permitted.

The law obviously applies only to Los Angeles County. Consequently it was challenged as discriminatory, but County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy delivered a 28-page opinion holding it legal, and a superior court backed him up.

In his opinion, Kennedy

29 TEETH GONE—OOPS! WRONG GIRL

LONDON (UPI) — A young woman went to her dentist for a routine six-month check-up and left minus her 29 teeth, the Medical Protection Association reported Saturday.

It all started with a mixup in names, and the dentist did not realize his mistake until the woman due for the extraction arrived in his office, the report said.

The two patients had appointments for the same hour, and when the first woman went into surgery, she answered the anesthetist's questions without comment.

Then they pulled her teeth.

Of California, By Californians, For California

DUE TO the importance of the California governorship, these newspapers have made an especially detailed study before making a recommendation.

Our usual policy is to support a proven public servant for the job in which he has experience.

We have considered the speeches and platforms of both candidates. We find that Gov. Brown's program is helpful to the needs of California, and that Mr. Nixon has talked mainly in generalities against crime, dope and communism. With the same material, he could just as easily be running for governor of Florida or President of the United States.

Gov. Brown, a church-going family man, certainly is not in favor of crime, dope or communism. With his background as Attorney General and Governor he does know how to handle these problems.

We feel Mr. Nixon's selection of such national subjects for theatrical campaign speeches only shows that he cannot successfully criticize the Governor's achievements and plans for state progress.

As just one example of proven state service, Gov. Brown has done much more to solve California's most important program, an effective water distribution system, than either of two able former governors, Govs. Goodwin Knight and Earl Warren, both Republicans and both men these newspapers supported.

Two of California's most honored senior newspapermen, whose years of public service and dedication to California's interests are beyond question, are James K. Guthrie of the San Bernardino Sun and Telegram and Thomas Storke of the Santa Barbara News-Press. One of these newspapers is generally Republican and the other usually Democratic. They have both endorsed Gov. Brown and said in part:

Mr. Storke's News-Press: We are supporting Brown not because he is a Democrat, but because he has been a good governor. We are opposing Richard Nixon, not because he is a Republican, but because we believe he is less qualified than Brown to administer the affairs of the state.

Mr. Guthrie's San Bernardino Telegram: As is well known to those who follow the political expressions of this newspaper, we do not attempt to argue with the partisan beliefs of either Republicans or Democrats. The two-party system is necessary. But it is important to good government that the independents of both parties or no party make their decisions on the individual records of the candidates and the issues of the day . . . .

Gov. Edmund G. Brown has turned in an impressive record as the head of California's government. He succeeded in putting the state water plan together in the face of vigorous opposition in certain sections of the state and in doing that which two able predecessors had not been able to accomplish.

Gov. Brown's accomplishment in this field should not be ignored. He created enemies by forcing the state-water plan. By the very nature of things, he is then entitled to rewards in those parts of the state which are to benefit from the state-water plan.

This election is not to choose a new envoy to some distant country or the winner of a television beauty contest.

IT IS AN ELECTION OF CALIFORNIA'S LEADER, BY CALIFORNIANS, FOR CALIFORNIA.

The Independent and Press-Telegram for years have been generally Republican in their recommendations. The publisher is a registered Republican. But how a candidate has done and will do a job is more important than a party label.

Because of the Governor's record of accomplishment, these newspapers endorse Edmund G. (Pat) Brown for reelection.

DESERT TOWN DIGS ORE FOR JAPAN

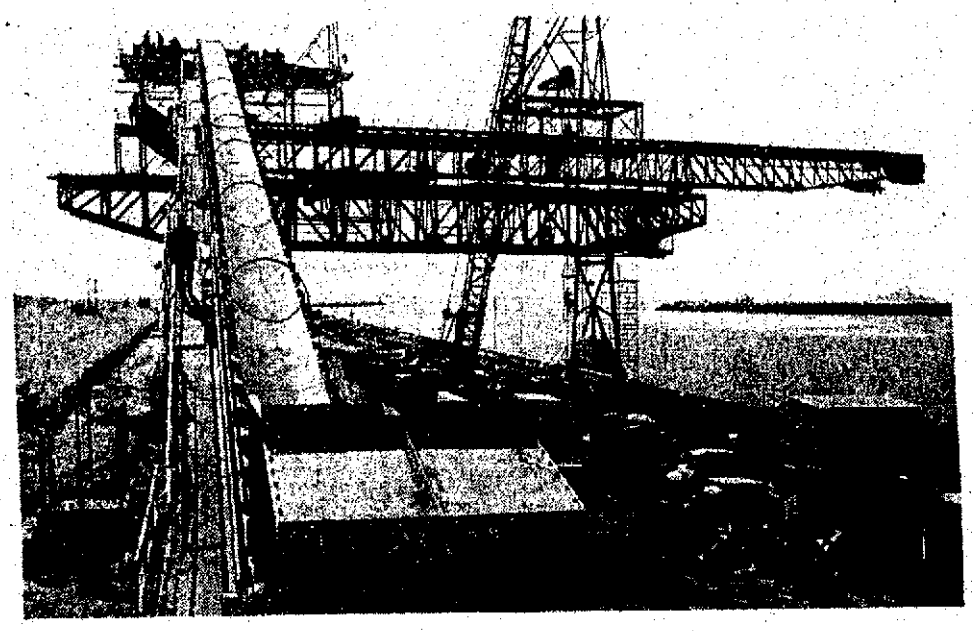

By LOU JOBST
Ind. P-T Marine Editor

EAGLE MOUNTAIN—This sunbaked Mojave desert mining town of 1,800, and Long Beach joined last week in one of the most ambitious export operations in West Coast history.

The undertaking involved shipment of 10 million tons of high-grade iron ore to Japan during the next decade.

The ore is to be dug out and processed on this 6,000-acre mineral claim owned and operated by the Kaiser Steel Corp. in this rubble-strewn highland 60 miles east of Indio.

It is to be carried to Long Beach Harbor at the rate of 1,000 ore cars a month for stockpiling and transpacific shipment from a new $4.5-million shiploading terminal being built on Pier G.

PIER G ORE-SHIPPING FACILITY WILL LOAD JAPANESE SHIPS

First ship in the new trade, MV Okitsu Maru, is scheduled to arrive in Long Beach Friday. The Okitsu Maru and an identical sister ship were built especially for the operation.

The red-black ore, which comes in two textures — fine grain-like sand and one-inch bits —is to be turned into steel at plants owned by the Mitsubishi Corp., Japan's largest industrial empire.

The construction men are working around the clock to complete the fully automated pier facility which includes a vast underground stockpile, conveyor system and bunkers.

At the peak operation about one-third of the ore taken from the open pits at Eagle Mountain will go to Japan; the remaining 3½-million tons a year will be consigned to Kaiser's Fontana Steel Mill, for which the mine was opened in 1948.

To achieve this production the 435 Kaiser workers here must blast and dig out 75,000 tons of ore-bearing rock daily.

The rough ore, which is below the 60 percent needed for blast furnaces, must be crushed and upgraded in two elaborate processes. The principal ores are hematite and magnetite.

Magnetite, as the name indicates, is magnetic. The ore concentrates are removed from the waste by passing it over magnetic drums.

Hematite is removed by dumping the ore into water tanks where the heavier mineral material sinks to the bottom and is removed. To accomplish this Kaiser has built a benefaction plant capable of circulating 18,000 gallons of water a minute.

The water, like that used to supply the town's 300 homes, shops, businesses, and 160 dormatories, is brought nine miles from deep wells sunk in the desert floor.

Since the ore is taken from open diggings, which are a series of 45-foot-high benches cut into the side of the

Bay Area Slides Kill 2 as Storm Havoc Soars

By Associated Press

Earthslides killed two children, wrecked hillside homes, and blocked main highways temporarily in the Oakland area Saturday in the wake of the heaviest rain in the San Francisco Bay area in half a century.

Diane Dobson, 5, was killed by a slide that destroyed her family's home in Oakland. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dobson.

Willam J. McCarthy, 10, was killed by a slide that buried him in the backyard of his home in Orinda, an Oakland suburb. He was the son of W. G. McCarthy, supervisor of elementary education in the University of California Department of Education.

Their deaths, and that of Robert Tyo, 34, Belmont plumber killed by electric shock while working in a flooded Hillsborough basement, raised the two-day storm toll in California to 17.

As the storm called the worst in Oregon's history, blew itself out Saturday over western Canada the federal government promised "all possible assistance" to western Oregon, where damage was estimated officially at $150 million.

In response to Oregon Gov. Mark Hatfield's request that President Kennedy declare his state a disaster area, Edward A. McDermott, director of the U. S. Office of Emergency Planning, telegraphed Hatfield that the President was deeply concerned and steps for assistance were under way.

Throughout the storm area, at least 43 lay dead.

The toll by states:

California 17.
Oregon 11.
Washington 9.
British Columbia 6.

Firemen ranged the east Oakland areas threatened by spreading earthslides urging families to evacuate.

Rock and earthslides closed the Western Pacific railroad's Feather River Canyon route east of Oroville.

The railroad rerouted its California Zephyr passenger trains over the Southern Pacific lines across the Sierra. But Friday's west-bound train arrived at Oakland nearly 24 hours late and the east-bound train to Salt Lake City ran

2,000 Negroes Riot in Florence, S.C.

FLORENCE, S. C. (AP) — Hundreds of Negroes were reported rioting in this city Saturday night in an incident touched off when a policeman attempted to arrest a Negro woman on a drunkenness charge.

Every available city and county officer, the highway patrol and city firemen were ordered to duty.

Police Chief Melvin Adams estimated that half of the city's 4,000 Negroes were involved. He said police broke up the first big fight that followed an attempt by officer Harold Tisdale, a Negro to arrest the woman in the city's Negro district.

He said that later, shortly before midnight, the rioters regrouped at an intersection on U.S. 301 north of the city and began pelting autos.

JFK Fights Hard for More Demos

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—President Kennedy, in the fierce fighting form of his 1960 campaign and striking back at critics of his Cuba policy, Saturday denounced "those self-appointed generals and admirals who want to send someone else's sons to war."

In a vigorous three-state campaign swing, he accused GOP Kentucky Sen. Thruston B. Morton of being ashamed of his own party and unleashed his bitterest attack at Indiana's Sen. Homer E. Capehart, one of the Senate's most outspoken advocates of militant action against Cuba.

"This is a time for men who talk softly and carry a big stick," Kennedy said in a paraphrase of Theodore Roosevelt. "This is no time for rash and irresponsible talk which strengthens the claims of our adversaries."

* * * *

KENNEDY'S Pennsylvania-Indiana-Kentucky campaign swing hit its high point at an airport rally in Indianapolis where he leveled his sights on Capehart, an advocate of naval blockade or even invasion of Cuba, and said:

"This is no time for confused and intemperate remarks on the part of those who have neither the facts nor the ultimate responsibility."

In Louisville, before a peppy partisan throng of some 10,000 at Freedom Hall on the state fairgrounds Saturday night, Kennedy said sarcastically he wanted to put in a word of defense of Morton.

Discordant Congress Closes Shop

Lawmakers Quit As House Passes Waterways Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 87th Congress limped to bickering adjournment Saturday, ending a nine-month session marked by persistent Senate-House feuding over prestige and appropriations.

It was these recurring interchamber ruptures that were instrumental in making the final regular session of this Congress the longest since the Korean-war year of 1951 when adjournment came on Oct. 20.

And the strained atmosphere surrounding the much-delayed adjournment gave little indication that the interchamber tensions will be much eased when the 88th Congress meets on Jan. 9, 1963.

* * * *

THE HOUSE opened the way for adjournment Saturday by rallying a majority of 236 members. Hopes for Friday adjournment were killed when the House was unable to produce a quorum of 218 members.

It then gave voice passage to the $5-billion appropriations bill to finance waterways projects—flood-control, navigation and power-dam undertakings often described as "pork-barrel" projects.

The House laid aside a $500-million catch-all supplemental appropriations bill but only after lifting from it several Senate-approved items and adding them to the big public works appropriation measure.

BEFORE considering these two House actions, the Senate passed by voice vote a $2.4-million "pork-barrel" au-

2 Couples Killed in Accidents

Two Long Beach couples were killed in separate car accidents, authorities reported Saturday.

Dead are:

William Marshall, 41, and his wife, Eleanor, 33, of 1471 Linden Ave.

Morris S. Golden, 55, and his wife, Elizabeth, 46, of 3375 Falcon Ave.

* * * *

THE INYO County Coroner's office said the Marshalls were killed instantly when their car plunged off the road 25 miles north of Bridgeport in the Walker River Canyon Friday.

The California Highway Patrol said the Goldens were killed when he attempted to pass another car on a narrow bridge. He crashed head-on into another car driven by an Arizona college student. Two youths in the other car were injured.

L.A.C. Says:

Will We Pay Ransom for Cuban Debacle?

Will the United States government take part in paying Castro ransom for the release of Cuban invasion prisoners? This question was asked of the administration as Congress adjourned. It was rumored that our government would help by supplying some $13 million of food and medicines to make up for the ransom being demanded by Castro.

When we go back to April 1961 when the Cuban invasion force was betrayed by the U. S. it would seem we owe a great debt to the 1,400 men who landed there expecting to be covered by air forces from the U. S. At the last minute President Kennedy cancelled the coverage. The result was the invasion force was left to the mercy of overwhelming odds.

On the Sunday evening of April 16 the Cuban invasion force—trained in the U.S.—was at sea on its way to the invasion. A few hours earlier President Kennedy had given "final" approval to the plan. On the day before a surprise attack by B-26 bombing planes—belonging to the invaders—had knocked out all but seven planes of Cuba's tiny air force.

This resume of events given by U. S. News says a second attack was scheduled for Monday morning to coincide with the landing of the invaders. It was supposed to finish the job of wiping out Castro's planes and provide support for the invaders. Secure in this assurance the invaders went ashore in the early morning darkness. This landing was successful. Some 1,400 men landed safely in a place called the "Bay of Pigs."

Confidently this little group caused severe losses for Castro. But the air coverage never came—Castro's tanks moved in without bombing opposition from the air coverage. At the last minute the President cancelled authority for the invaders' planes to take off. This was the end of the invasion force as a combat unit. They then became prisoners.

The President admitted it was his responsibility. The reasons for changing his mind have never been given. But the tragic result is now apparent. No longer is Castro as helpless. He now has Russian soldiers, Russian aircraft and ships. If we are now to stop a Communist military base from growing only 70 miles from our shores, we will have a far more dangerous situation than we would have had if we had carried out our agreement with the Cuban invasion force we abandoned.

While we were in Europe in June of 1961 the newspapers were filled with reports of racial riots in Alabama. We expected to be asked about these racial problems. But the questions asked us by the people we talked to was "Why did you not go through with plans to invade Cuba? Why did you leave the invasion force without support?" It is a question asked all over South America. There is no logical answer to the question that lowered our prestige far more than it was when Mr. Kennedy made it a major issue. We would have been respected had we followed through. We lost world respect because of our failing to carry out a plan we had fostered—then as a last-minute decision destroyed.

It would seem we owe a debt to these prisoners whom we left stranded. They would hardly have made the effort without assurance of reinforcements the government had encouraged. It was a fateful decision for them. It was also fateful for thousands of United States young men who may be called upon to fight and die against a menace that might have been destroyed had we carried out what was promised for April 17, 1961. It may be the most costly decision of weakness ever made by a United States President.

Pair Arrested After Fatal Auto Pileup

COMPTON (UNS)—The intensive search for two youths reportedly responsible for a seven-car accident that took the lives of two men, one a police officer, ended Saturday night with their arrest.

Charles Ray Tweedy, 19, and Dennis Wayne Zimmerman, also 19, both of Gardena, were taken into custody at their homes.

Lt. William W. Church, watch commander at the Compton police station, said both youths admitted they were in the speeding auto pursued by a Compton police car that was rammed broadside by another vehicle late Friday night, triggering the seven-car accident.

D. K. Phipps, 37, a Compton policeman and father of four children, and Kermit W. Bodine, 33, were killed.

thorization bill approved Friday by the House.

This measure — which provides no money — was one on which the Senate conferees largely surrendered to the House in the final conference committee slowdown.

The House had approved 108 projects to cost about $2.25 billion and the Senate upped this by about 50 projects, pushing the authorizations to about $4 billion.

BUT A three-day backstage struggle largely between Chairman Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., of the Senate Public Works Committee and Chairman Howard W. Smith, D-Va., of the House Rules Committee, was won by the Virginian and nearly all the Senate additions were shelved.

The Senate tacitly acceded to the House dropping of the supplemental appropriations bill until next year.

Then it wound up the legislative proceedings which began last Jan. 10 by giving voice-vote passage to the $5-billion waterways projects appropriation measure.

Formal notifications were sent to the House and to the President announcing that the Senate had concluded its business and would adjourn sine die if the Chief Executive had no further business for it. The House had sent similar notices earlier.

Both chambers then adjourned.

This congress will meet again only if summoned into special session between now and next January.

THE FINAL Senate-House compromises — largely forced by election-year pressures on members to get along with their campaigning—obviously satisfied no one completely, although the House yielded far less ground than the Senate in the eleventh-hour adjustments.

JFK Wins Seven of 10 Major Bills

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy broke better than even on what the administration tagged its "big ten" bills during the two sessions of the 87th Congress.

Here's the outcome:

ENACTED:

Extension and broadening of the reciprocal trade program.

Aid for depressed areas.

Manpower retraining program.

Increased minimum wages and broadening of coverage.

Tax revision, without President's proposal for withholding on dividends and interest.

Foreign aid program, continued and financed.

Postal rate increases and government employe pay raises.

DEFEATED:

Federal aid for primary and secondary schools.

Health insurance for elderly persons financed by social security.

Creation of new department of urban affairs and housing.

This intramural barkering came with Democrats holding the leadership in both branches by virtue of heavy majorities.

Should Republicans win control of the House in the November elections—as their leaders insist they will—the split between the chambers could become even more marked and bitter. The Democrats can not lose Senate control because only about a third of the seats are to be filled and many of these are in the one-party South.

HOPES for Friday adjournment were blasted late Tuesday night when the House could produce only 204 members—14 under a majority—for a roll-call vote on the $5- billion appropriations bill ing into the supplemental money bill a $295,000 item manded by Rep. Clarence sticken by House conferees Cannon, D-Mo., who was from the public works bill.

mountain, most of the work is done by heavy equipment and conveyor machines.

The Kaiser rolling stock includes some of the biggest construction machinery ever made, including steam shovels capable of taking 25-tons in a single bite, and trucks with $1,500 tires and load capacities of 100-tons. These machines have a healthy appetite—gulping down 10,000 gallons of diesel fuel a day.

Neither the miners nor the town resemble the popular notion of hard-rock mining.

"YOU COULDN'T call these people pick-and-shovel miners. They are highly skilled technicians and specialists," said Martin J. Hughes, mine manager and an engineer who has dug up minerals on three continents.

The town is no dingy dust-covered collection of mining shacks, either. It is a green oasis of wide streets, modern homes and every convenience you would expect of suburban living.

It has a shopping center, parks and a swimming pool, schools and churches. A high school with an enrollment of 80 and a new post office were opened just last month.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH it has no city government, it has its own law. A deputy San Bernardino County sheriff, whose beat covers a vast stretch of desert land between the colorful named communities of Cactus City and Hell, lives here.

Although Kaiser owns virtually everything in the town, Hughes says he has no authority over the people off the job. However, he is a sort of unofficial mayor, as was illustrated recently when he closed the town's only beer parlor because it was too rowdy.

MARTIN HUGHES
Mine Manager

Summer temperatures range up to 140 degrees, and winter nights dip to freezing, but isolation, not the weather, is Eagle Mountain's most depressing feature.

* * * *

TO OVERCOME this the town has developed a social life around the schools and a large number of social and fraternal clubs. Television with five channels, has been piped in. Many of the inhabitants are outdoor enthusiasts who build sand-buggies for desert exploration, and keep small craft for water recreation on the Colorado River and the Salton Sea.

The most attractive inducement to workers is the low rent of $45 to $80 a month.

Many of the town's people are lured into the desert to study the wild life, and—as some claim—to look for gold.

* * * *

IT WAS GOLD fever that first brought man into this desolate country. The iron deposits were discovered before the turn of the century by prospectors looking for the percious metal.

The deposits, believed the largest in the western United States were not touched — except for a brief period in World War II when they were mined for ship ballast at Los Angeles-Long Beach Harbors — until Kaiser moved here and bought up the claims in 1947.

Before that there was no need for the ore or the technology necessary to upgrade it for the blast furnace, said Hughes.

* * * *

HUGHES, who claims "The ore is not likely to run out in the foreseeable future," says the range is producing iron of about the same quality as the great Mesabi Range in Minnesota.

Flash flooods, which have ripped out big sections of the 52-mile railroad track Kaiser had to lay to the nearest Southern Pacific line, are the biggest single natural problem in the operation.

Maintenance of the equipment, which also includes five diesel locomotives and 650 ore cars leased from SP, is the largest single mechanical headache.

Douglas Center to Be Dedicated

U. S. Sen. Clair Engle will be the principal speaker. Scientists and administrators of the aerospace industry, government and civic leaders, ranking officers of the Air Force, Army and Navy, and officials of commercial airlines throughout the world will attend the event.

* * * *

THE CEREMONIES will be open to badge-wearing employes of Douglas Aircraft Division and their families. Following the dedication ceremonies, an open house will start at 1 p.m. in the new building.

The center, comprising the recently - occupied 305,000-square - foot engineering building and an integrated laboratory structure about the same size, will become the "nerve center" of Douglas' entire aircraft division.

Groundbreaking ceremonies took place a year ago. The principal building in the center is the new nine-story administration building.

Word is 'Go' for Nuclear Test in Sky

HONOLULU (AP) — The United States was set Saturday night to explode its second high-altitude nuclear shot in five attempts Sunday night above Johnston Island.

Radio reports from Johnston said the count-down was underway with generally favorable weather conditions predicted for blast time.

A cold front which threatened to delay the test stopped about 300 miles north of Hawaii, raising hopes Pacific skies will be clear when the rocket-borne nuclear device is detonated.

* * * *

SCIENTISTS at Johnston Island insist on good weather for visual observation of the test.

The device is scheduled to be lifted by a Thor missile between 30 to 40 miles above Johnston and exploded between 9:30 p.m. HST Sunday and 2:30 a.m. Monday.

The blast will be in the sub-megaton range—less than one million tons of TNT.

Who's Cookin'? Big Dog Sniffs, Alarms Family

BLANEY, S. C. (UPI) — A mysterious "beast" which had been seen peering into the kitchen window of a rural family's home near here turned out Saturday to be a Great Dane named Richard.

Its owner, Ben Rotureau, said Richard meant no harm.

F. L. Pack, into whose home the animal had peered earlier this week, had police searching for what he said was a large, cat-like animal with a roar loud enough to rattle windows.

The animal was seen outside Pack's house Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Investigation by officers and neighbors showed the "beast" was actually Rotureau's Great Daane, which weighs 115 pounds. Rotureau usually keeps Richard penned up in his yard, but the canine apparently slipped out long enough to frighten Pack and his family.

TRAPPED BY MUD
Rescuers work to free Mrs. Peter Gordon of Castro Valley, near Oakland. She was in her garden when a retaining wall broke under the weight of a mud slide. Wall and mud pinned her against her house. Her injuries were minor.

FLOODING of lowland areas near Oroville and Plumas was expected Sunday with the State Department of Water Resources predicting a Feather River flow six feet above flood stage.

Hundreds of basements were flooded in low-lying Sacramento areas Saturday with south Sacramento-area roads under two feet of water. Picnic tables floated away in Del Paso Park.

A slide hit the Oakland home of Mrs. Jeanne Stewart and she was trapped for a time with her children, Michael 15 and Paula 11. The slide jammed all the home's doors. Michael finally managed to force the front door open.

DAMAGE SOARED into the multimillions in Oregon. It was "probably the greatest disaster that Oregon ever had," said Gov. Mark Hatfield.

He declared a state of emergency Friday night and called out National Guard units to patrol the streets of hardest-hit cities.

Oregon took the hardest punch of this hurricane, along a 1,000-mile path 125 miles wide there were shattered buildings, uprooted and broken trees, felled power and telephone lines, ashes from a night of fires—and the dead.

WIND GAUGES blew away at many points at 80 miles an hour and more. Some clocked forces of 100 miles and more. It was 121 at Mt. Tamalpais, north of San Francisco, and an almost unbelievable 170 miles an hour at the north Oregon coast's Mt. Hebo radar station.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A spokesman for Southern California Edison Co. said 35 linemen left Saturday for Portland, Ore., to help restore electrical power to the storm-swept Northwest.

The linemen took off from International Airport aboard an Air Force plane. The move followed an appeal for help from Pacific Power & Light Co. in Portland.

Promises to Spend Assailed by Nixon

ANAHEIM—Richard Nixon, battling for the governorship, refused Saturday to "outpromise" his opponent in an effort to gain votes in the November election.

Speaking before the members of the League of County Employees Associations, the former vice president said that too often today the successful candidate is the one who promises to spend the most money.

"WE SHOULD try to achieve the most efficient type of government, not the most costly. And often, the costliest is not the most efficient," Nixon told the 300 delegates.

"The trend in government should be towards more state and county control and away from control in Washington," Nixon said.

"But you cannot have a right without responsibility," Nixon continued. "In the past there has been an erosion of responsibility.

"State and local officials haven't done the job that must be done and can best be done on local levels."

THE REPUBLICAN candidate paid tribute to the county employes by telling them that by doing their jobs they were fulfilling a life of public service.

Following his noon luncheon speech, Nixon spoke briefly at Knott's Berry Farm Japanese-American luncheon and appeared at the Balboa Bay Club. Saturday night he spoke at a Republican rally in Costa Mesa.

Gardena Poker Palaces Gloomy as Poll Nears

wryly recalled, in answering the "home rule" proponents, that Chapter 215, page 319, of the California statutes of 1873-4 is entitled:

"An act to prevent hogs and goats running at large in the town of Fiddleton, Amador County."

Kennedy's opinion added some philosophy to the literature (if any) of gambling. It says:

"It is possible to play draw poker without any element of gambling whatever, just as many other card games are played . . . to prohibit such an innocent pastime, so it is claimed, would be unreasonable.

"On the other hand, draw poker is essentially a gambling game. Without gambling, few people would play it."

OBVIOUSLY, Gardena's card clubs are the target of Proposition E. The penal code that will apply, however, if Proposition E is carried, says:

"Every person who deals, plays, or carries on, opens or causes to be opened, or who conducts, either as an owner or employee, whether for hire or not, any game of poker, including lowball poker, is guilty of a misdemeanor."

Counsel Kennedy's opinion is that this law makes even "friendly" poker games in homes illegal.

THEIR BUSINESS BOOMS

Quiet Revolution in How to Get Man Into the Air

Signs to tell the world about products and places of business are getting bigger and going up higher and the man who is in part responsible for this is Claude Garland, now retired, of Palos Verdes Estates.

Garland, inventor, teamed up with Carl Frye, a local sign manufacturer, in 1947 to introduce the first three-tubed telescopic crane.

From a two-man business, Garland crane, now headed by Frye, of 455 E. Roosevelt Road, has grown to employ 24 persons and does in excess of $600,000 in sales yearly out of its 18,000 square foot plant at 1770 Creston Ave., Signal Hill.

The company builds about 100 cranes a year—and the sales and service staff travels the entire U.S.

IN THE 1940s the only telescopic cranes used by sign companies were two-tube affairs that reached less than 50 feet into the air. They required a mass of outside cables, guys and trusses, and possessed little in the way of compactness and maneuverability.

The Garland patented crane was of radically new design. It was compact, easy to transport and could lift relatively heavy loads to greater heights than previously attainable. Signs got bigger and were put up higher as the new crane made maintenance easier and safer through use of baskets and remote controls.

Vertical reaches in excess of 100 feet are possible with the new cranes, and new uses are found for the machines.

TREE TRIMMERS, pre-fab home builders, industry and the military use the cranes. Garland customers include Douglas Aircraft, North American Aviation, Northrop Aircraft, General Dynamics—Convair and Astronautics, Hughes Aircraft, the Martin Co., Edwards Air Force Base (to set up material and service equipment). Pratt and Whitney Aircraft near Cape Canaveral, Fla., use two 60-foot Garland cranes of advanced design in and around tanks of liquid oxygen.

MOTOR HOTEL TO OCCUPY ART-CENTER SITE

Once-Famed Wayside Colony Bows to Progress

By VERA WILLIAMS

An 80-unit TraveLodge is to go up on the quarter-block at the southeast corner of First Street and Atlantic Avenue.

It's progress, of course, but an oldtimer—anyone who lived here before World War II is an oldtimer—can't help but feel a nostalgic tug at the heartstrings.

Hang it, that's the location of the Wayside Colony, the dream of Jim Savery for an arts and crafts center for Southern California.

He built it with love and a good deal more money than he could afford back in the 1920s.

* * * *

JIM SAVERY, dramatist, musician, patron of the arts, believed two things strongly.

1. Useful things should be beautiful. And conversely, beautiful things should be useful.

2. Human beings are the happiest when they work creatively with their hands.

Jim took an old building and some vacant lots, and he built a place that attracted national and international attention.

* * * *

IN OLD WORLD atmosphere, he provided a series of shops and studios where artists and craftsmen could work in congenial surroundings, at prices they could afford to pay. They could sell their wares, and people who wanted to could come and buy the things already created, or order art objects fashioned to their individual liking.

—Staff Photo

This Log Cabin Used to House the Colony's Bookshop.

There were quaint restaurants where one ate Continental food at tables spread with red-checkered cloths, to the light of candles that dripped wax over bottles.

There was a "sky-roofed" theater, where the Players Guild, which became the Community Players, was born. The Art Association held its exhibitions and meetings, rent free, in an upper gallery.

* * * *

A LOG CABIN housed books, new and old. Yesterday's Room, lighted by ship's lanterns, was furnished with things that came around the Horn or were brought West in covered wagons. There were wheels, too, that dropped from wagons on the western trek.

On the Avenue of Shops were bearded woodcarvers who would have been at home on the Brittany coast or on Cape Cod, weavers working with soft colors in Colonial patterns, glass blowers, portrait painters.

There was a Children's Theater, child-size, where children were encouraged to put on their own plays and puppet shows. The walls were lined with children's books.

* * * *

ARTISTS and writers met in the courtyard to show their pictures and hash over plots for their stories and novels.

Visitors reveled in old furniture, pewter, early glass, rare amethyst jewelry in the antique shops.

In Jim Savery's time, Wayside Colony did all right. There was some question about whether it paid its way. But its fame spread. Musicians, artists, writers who came here went first to Wayside Colony.

* * * *

ROGER NOBLE BURNHAM, sculptor, summed it up well when he said "Wayside Colony reflects the friendliness of art."

But in 1931 Jim Savery died after a tragic, short illness.

After that, the atmosphere changed. Wayside Colony became commercial in spots, decrepit in spots. Only some of its old serene charm remained.

Now it is no more.

* * * *

ALL THE buildings, the shops, the studios have been vacated. Fireplaces have been dismantled, plumbing fixtures pulled out.

There isn't a person, a sound on the premises. When, in memory of Jim Savery and the artists and craftsmen he befriended, one treads up and down the rickety stairs or moves through the empty corridors, there isn't a sound except the echo of one's own footsteps.

One of the days, a bulldozer will move in and level the buildings and tear out the great old trees. It won't have much trouble with the buildings; they are about to fall down, anyway.

* * * *

CONSTRUCTION of the 80-unit motel, covering the quarter-block, will begin in November, says Harry Deardorff, San Diego structural engineer, and it will be finished by spring, in time for the tourist season.

A three-story concrete-block structure with a swimming pool is planned, announces Robert Lutes of San Diego, vice president of TraveLodge Corp.

Undoubtedly it will be a fine, handsome building to which the new Long Beach can point with pride.

But, goodby Jim Savery and Wayside Colony.

'Annie Get Your Gun' Wins High Plaudits

By RACHEL MORTON

It speaks well for the recently organized Community Music Theater of Long Beach that in spite of the Ringling Brothers circus packing them into the Arena right next door, Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium was near-capacity-full for "Annie Get Your Gun" Friday night.

And from the success of the opening night I am sure there will be capacity audiences for the rest of the performances, tonight and Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

James Brittain, director, Gerald Daniel, orchestra conductor, and Albert Ruiz, choreographer, have outdone themselves this time. "Annie Get Your Gun" was a professional performance from the tiniest tot, Diane Runolfson, who "wouldn't go away," to the handsome hero, Byron Palmer, as Frank Butler. Betty Tesman melted into the role of Annie, and won all hearts, including Frank's.

THEIR SCENES together were delectable and convincing. Palmer's rich baritone voice made much of the lovely song, "They Say It's Wonderful," and "The Girl That I Marry." While the "Moonshine Lullaby," as sung by Miss Tesman to the children, and "Sun in the Morning," were really moving. These two fine artists seemed made for one another.

James Jay was an imposing Buffalo Bill in stunning leather costumes and with a remarkable makeup. The gentility of his character impersonation was in sharp contrast to the circus people around him.

Very fine was the portrayal of Chief Sitting Bull as played by Paul Teschke, and he looked every inch an Indian chief.

ONE HAS COME to expect good things of Joan Strickland, and she did not disappoint as the meddlesome Dolly Tate. Joan is a character actress par excellence.

The roles of Tommy Keeler and Winnie Tate were cleverly sung and danced by two charming, talented young artists, Ron McGlynn and Karen Bateman. George Berkeley as Charlie Davenport supplied plenty of good comedy. The typical small-town innkeeper, Mac, was in the capable hands of Hal McCune.

Too much praise cannot be given the wonderful performance by the little children. They were artists in embryo.

A TRIO of men's voices, with Clay Patterson, Dan Brown and Robert Vaught, was most effective, as was the singing of a male ensemble with Franklin Butler "My Defenses Are Down."

Prop. 9 Called Aid to Accounting

By JIM McCAULEY
U. P-T Sacramento Bureau
(Thirteenth of a series)

SACRAMENTO — Proponents of Proposition No. 9 say it would help streamline the state's bond fund accounting.

It authorizes the legislature to create a general obligation bond proceeds fund. Into it would go money from the sale of general obligation bonds authorized by any or all existing or future bond acts.

Assemblymen Jesse M. Unruh, Charles J. Conrad and Milton Marks filed arguments in favor of the proposition, saying:

"A yes vote will help bring businesslike accounting procedures . . . while at the same time assuring the continuance of present safeguards on bond issues."

No negative arguments were filed officially.

However, some critics say little is accomplished by the change. And some criticism has been leveled at legislators for cluttering up the long ballot with trivial changes.

Sales Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — Montgomery Ward & Co. reported sales of $115,279,440 for the four weeks ended Oct. 3, compared with $101,620,589 in the like period of 1961

For the first eight months of this year the mail order and retail chain had sales of $900,031,586 against $818,816,423 a year earlier.

Grass Fire Starts Near Fontana

FONTANA (AP) — A wind-whipped grass fire broke out Saturday in the Jurupa Hills south of Fontana and within a few hours it had blackened 110 acres.

Because of unusually high winds—part of a storm front moving in from the north—the California Division of Forestry was forced to cancel borate bomber activity after a few forays.

Hosmer Backer Retorts to Johovich

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Congressman Craig Hosmer's citizens' committee chairman, C. L. Fowler, Saturday charged Hosmer's Democratic opponent, Joseph J. Johovich, with making false charges and challenged him to "end his campaign of deception and innuendoes."

Fowler, noting Hosmer seeks his sixth term representing the Long Beach district (32nd), took exception to Johovich's statement that Hosmer "is serving a selfish minority in the district."

FOWLER

"Who does this candidate include in this so-called 'selfish minority'?" Fowler asked. "Is it the hundreds of persons here in all walks of life; widows, veterans, servicemen and wives, businessmen and the many others that Congressman Hosmer has assisted in every way possible with their problems and projects?

"Could it be the naval shipyard employes whose jobs Hosmer helped assure by his past in the fight against subsidence, or the west side homes the congressman helped to save from storm damage through flood control projects; or the area's servicemen and dependents who will benefit by the new Navy hospital for which Hosmer has devoted unceasing efforts and leadership to make it a certainty?

"Perhaps this reckless, inexperienced novice and challenger means by 'selfish minority' every man, woman and child in Southern California whose rights to lifegiving Colorado River water our experienced congressman has consistently protected," Fowler said.

On Johovich's "vague charge" that Hosmer had engendered the hostility of other Southland congressmen, Fowler said the charge is "both untrue and a low blow in campaigning."

"Does this uninformed aspirant for this important office refer to Rep. Clyde Doyle, who works with Hosmer on local military and other matters? Or Rep. Cecil King, who joined with Hosmer to support legislation for our naval shipyard and our new Navy hospital? Or is he referring to Rep. Chet Holifield, with whom Congressman Hosmer has led successful efforts for laws to advance atoms-for-peace?"

Governor Brown Here Thursday

Gov. Brown will join pension leader George McLain at a county-wide rally of senior citizens at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in Morgan Hall, 835 Locust Ave., it was announced by Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick.

Sponsored by the California League of Senior Citizens, the rally is open to the general public.

Johovich at LBCC Forum

Joseph J. Johovich, Democratic nominee for Congress, 32nd District, will address the Long Beach City College Student Forum at 11 a.m. Wednesday on "Campaign Issues of 1962" in the college auditorium on the Liberal Arts campus, 4901 E. Carson St.

Speaking on the same topic Oct. 31 will be the Republican nominee, incumbent Congressman Craig Hosmer. In charge of both programs will be Student Forum President Gerald Anderson and moderator Joe Hodge.

GOP Colleague Endorses Kennick

Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick, Democrat, West Long Beach-Lakewood 44th District, who will be honored at a "Lakewood and Dominguez Salutes" dinner Monday in Lakewood Country Club, announced Saturday that he has received an expression of support from a Republican colleague, Assemblyman James L. Holmes, R-Santa Barbara, along with congratulations to Kennick on "the tremendous job you have done as chairman of the Committee on Manufacturing, Oil and Mining Industry."

Hosmer Sets Appearances

Among campaign appearances scheduled for Congressman Craig Hosmer,

Maid of Cotton Judge Selected

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—A California fashion expert was named Saturday as chairman of the judging panel which will select the 1963 Maid of Cotton here Dec. 27-28.

Miss Marjorie Carne, fashion director of California Fashion Creators, will serve with six members of the cotton industry and related organizations, according to the national cotton council. The other judges have not been named.

Dairy Valley Auto Crash Hurts Seven

Seven persons, including five from one family, were injured in a two-car crash Saturday in Dairy Valley, according to Lakewood sheriff's deputies.

Most seriously injured is Maria Martinez, 35, of 16919 Pioneer Blvd., who was treated at Pioneer General Hospital for deep face cuts, a wrist sprain and leg and body bruises. Doctors feared she may also lose her unborn child.

Her husband, Salvadore Martinez Marino, 36, who was driving their vehicle, and their three children, Louis, 13, George, 10, and Salvadore Jr., 8, were treated for head and body cuts and bruises.

Shirley Anne Johnson, 17, of 10342 Victoria St., Whittier, the driver of the other car, and her mother, Anna Johnson, 60, were thrown from their vehicle in the accident at Valley View Boulevard and Artesia Street shortly before 6 p.m. Except for deep cuts and abrasions neither suffered any serious injuries, deputies said. They were treated by their own doctor.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Kennedy Holds to Brazil Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Officials said Saturday that President Kennedy has decided to go ahead with his scheduled mid-November visit to Brazil, despite increasing concern here over Berlin and Cuban developments.

They said a White House advance party would leave Monday for Rio de Janeiro and Brasilia to prepare for the three-day visit beginning Nov. 12. Kennedy will confer with President Joao Goulart and other Brazilian leaders.

Campaign Plan Change

LOS ANGELES (AP)—President Kennedy will begin his two-day campaign tour of Southern California on Thursday, Oct. 25, instead of Friday as previously planned. The change in plans was announced today by Eugene L. Wyman, Democratic State Central Committee chairman.

Ranier Defies France

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI)—Prince Ranier III hurled defiance at President Charles de Gaulle in a Monaco-wide radio speech Saturday night. He said tiny Monaco would not bow to France in their squabble over taxes.

RAINIER

The prince spoke over Radio Monte Carlo to his 30,000 or so subjects and explained the tax crisis that has gripped this 368-acre country on the blue Mediterranean. His wife, Princess Grace, and their two children were in Paris but preparing to fly to his side.

"What menace can we constitute to the economy of the great friendly nation, France?" he asked. "What we want is to live in peace with France."

Even as Ranier spoke, French "troops"—all three of them—were massed at the frontier. The three, members of a French security troop, lounged lazily at the border.

Pope Greets Non-Catholics

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Shunning his elevated throne, Pope John XXIII mixed warmly with Protestant and Orthodox church leaders Saturday night and promised them his utmost efforts to hasten the hour of Christian unity.

"If you could read my heart, you would perhaps understand more than words could say," Pope John told 39 non-Catholic observers to the Vatican Ecumenical Council who gathered in the Vatican Palace Hall of Consistories for the special hour-long audience.

Never before had a pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church met with such a wide representation of other Christians. The confrontation was of an intimate nature unprecedented in the 400 years since the Protestant Reformation.

Underworld Figure Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Rodger K. Leonard, onetime associate of ex-gambler Mickey Cohen and a figure in the slaying of Jack (the Enforcer) Whalen, died Friday night at UCLA medical center.

Leonard, 45, underwent surgery for a brain tumor Friday.

Leonard was convicted by a jury Sept. 27 on three counts of perjury in connection with the shooting of Whalen in December, 1959. He faced sentence in federal court C[illegible] was chairman of the Republicans National Committee." Kennedy said. "But I ask you, if you were a candidate for office in 1962, would you put the word 'Republican' in your signs?"

Kennedy Fights Hard for More Democrats

That touched off a mild uproar. And Kennedy got another loud cheer earlier from some 15,000 people at an airport rally in Indianapolis when he hammered back at Capehart's campaign charges on Cuba.

The President had kind words for only one Republican—and this added up to a unique and forceful plug for Kentucky's other Republican senator, John Sherman Cooper. Kennedy called Cooper, a close friend of his, a "great senator."

• • • •

BUT HE SAID Morton, through blind and negative "opposition" to the New Frontier, had cancelled out the votes Cooper frequently cast for Democratic proposals.

Kennedy was in Kentucky to boost the Democratic candidacies of Lt. Gov. Wilson W. Wyatt, running against Morton for the Senate, and Rep. Frank W. Burke, who is running for re-election to Congress from this district.

Today, Kennedy will fly to Buffalo, N.Y., to take part in Pulaski Day ceremonies and, incidentally, try again to rub some of his prestige among Polish-American and other voters onto Democratic candidates in New York, including Robert M. Morgenthau, who is trying to unseat GOP Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

THE PRESIDENT began his weekend of campaigning in New York City Friday, traveling then to Newark, N.J., and western Pennsylvania before heading on to Indianapolis and Louisville Saturday.

Sherman Adams to Lecture at Wooster College

LINCOLN, N. H. (UPI)—Sherman Adams who quit under fire as assistant to President Eisenhower in 1958, has accepted an assignment to be guest lecturer at the college of Wooster in Wooster, Ohio, beginning Oct. 22.

What the college describes as a unique three-weeks "dialogues in politics" program will feature Adams, Dr. Earl Latham, chairman of the department of political science at Amherst, and Dr. Ralph K. Huitt, professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin.

Hoppers Harm Crops in Five States

BEAUTY QUEEN CONTESTS . . . They hold them for everything, best crawler to best looking ankles.

HER MAJESTY, THE BEAUTY QUEEN

There's a Crown for All Shapes and Sizes

By Patricia McCormack

NEW YORK, N.Y. (UPI) —Most every little American girl dreams of wearing a crown someday.

Thanks to the beauty-go-round—contests involving expenses or more than $1 million a year—hopefuls so disposed can try for one of an estimated 5,000 crowns when they reach young ladyhood.

At the top, there's the Miss America contest — and the estimated $85,000 in earnings and prizes earned in the year following coronation.

The Miss America pageant headquarters in Atlantic City spends $350,000 a year.

At the other extreme, there's the Miss Smiling Ankles contest. The National Shoe Institute gives the winner the title plus a chance to earn up to about $1,000 in $50 an hour photographic assignments during her reign. The pictures are keyed to shoe promotions.

* * * *

IN BETWEEN are the college queen contests paying off in whistles and psychic income; the Miss Sweet Potato competition, paying off in some fame. Ditto the Miss Lumber contest — and the hundreds of miss you-name-the product contest.

Most every product, it seems, must have a queen once it gets to the big time — or at least a queen to promote it.

In the stampede to cash in on the little girl's dream, the promoters have been outdone only by the French — who are ahead by a nose, you might say.

The French have a Garlic Queen. She wins her weight in garlic.

* * * *

WHAT THE contests make, however, is some confusion in the minds of plain folks who can't tell one queen from another without a scorecard once you get past the big ones —Miss America, Miss Universe, Miss Rheingold.

The latter seems the most democratic. The brewery's queen is selected by popular election—and the turnout is second only to the national presidential elections.

Last year more than 20 million votes were cast in the Miss Rheingold election. The young lady with this title makes appearances in Puerto Rico and Europe, in addition to going about the United States.

In Europe, she is acclaimed as an outstanding example of American charm and femininity. The brewery's queen wins a contract worth $50,000.

* * * *

MISS UNIVERSE last year earned about $30,000, including a gift of a $3,500 mink coat.

After the big three, the confusion starts — there's a Miss Teenage America contest, a Miss American Teenager, a Miss International Beauty Congress (set up in Long Beach, Calif., when the Miss Universe contest moved to Miami).

* * * *

Also: the America's Junior Miss Pageant in Mobile, Ala.; the Mrs. America Contest; the Miss Young America (limited to girls four to eight years of age); the Grandma America — and so it goes?

* * * *

THOSE WANTING to get an early start on contesting can enter the Diaper Derby sponsored by a New Jersey Amusement Park. The judges score only on crawling.

The America's Junior Miss Pageant, typical of the contests far from the big-time budgets of the Miss America and Miss Universe, gives a top prize of $6,000, plus a wardrobe.

The winner travels until the beginning of her fall semester, promoting products for the most part.

* * * *

THE MOBILE contest, like many, has the backing and blessing of the Mobile Junior Chamber of Commerce, the City of Mobile, the County of Mobile and the State of Alabama. As much as selecting a queen, the contest activity helps to put Alabama on the map — and draws tourists.

Nationally, sponsors of the Junior Miss Pageant include a soft drink company, a film and camera company and a manufacturer of clothes for those with junior miss figures.

Many of the contests, taking more than a page from the Miss America pageant book, handle contestants with great care.

Ben Bella, Dr. King Talk Race Problems

NEW YORK (UPI) — Algerian Premier Ahmed ben Bella conferred for an hour Saturday with Negro integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King on the effect the U.S. racial problem has on emerging African nations.

An aide to the leftist Algerian strongman said during the meeting Ben Bella invited King to visit Algeria. King accepted, the aide said, and will go there "as soon as possible."

"It was a very friendly, constructive meeting," the aide said. "They talked mostly about the relation between the American racial problem and colonialism. They also discussed whether violence or non-violence was the best way to win.

"We think," the aide added, "that Dr. King's policy of non-violence is a good solution in the United States. We agree with him."

The meeting between King and Ben Bella raised eyebrows in some diplomatic quarters here. Fears were expressed that it might be seen as an intrusion into U.S. internal affairs.

The King-Ben Bella meeting came as the Algerian leader ended a round of meetings here before leaving today for Washington where he will be greeted by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and a party of high government officials.

Ben Bella has said that after his meetings in Washington he planned to visit with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in Havana.

Vodka Route Not So Rocky, But Blurry

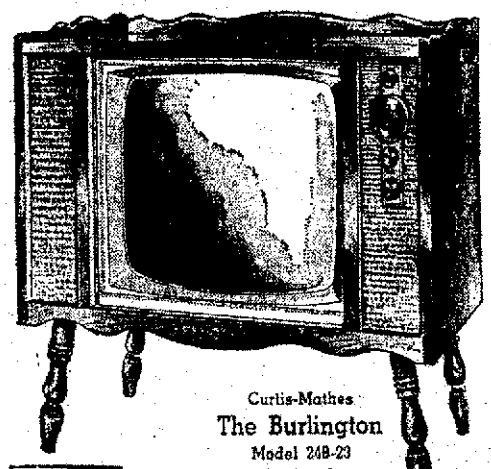

MOSCOW (AP) —The oficial labor newspaper Trud Saturday expressed suspicion that the road the vodka trucks travel isn't as rocky as the drivers claim.

It said drivers can report two bottles broken on every trip and this they do-even though none is broken. Citing the case of a vodka factory in Sterlitamak which has four drivers, the newspaper said: "it appears they steal more than 700 bottles a month."

WORLD WAR II--TWENTY YEARS LATER

Yank Officers in German-Held Rome

Editor's Note: This is another in the series of articles recalling people and places, campaign victories and catastrophes in World War II. Other articles will appear at intervals of approximately two weeks.

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

In peacetime, Palmero is a warm-water port on the north side of Sicily where the moon beams softly across the blue Tyrrhenian Sea. And Sicily was at peace, at last, on the night of Sept. 6, 1943.

The noise of the motors in a British P-T boat disturbed her quiet harbor.

At dockside two coated figures waited patiently. Midnight passed, and the waiting men chatted idly. An officer from the boat reported to them, they talked with him a while.

Then, at 2 a.m., a messenger came to the docks. The two men boarded the P-T boat and, running at an easy harbor speed, it pulled away and headed to sea.

* * * *

BRIG. GEN. Maxwell Taylor and Col. William Tudor Gardiner were setting out on one of the strangest missions of World War II. They were heading for Rome, the capitol of German-held Italy.

The war around Europe had reached a turning point. The fall of Africa and Sicily had disheartened the Italians. Within 24 hours they would surrender.

But surrender held no hope of removing the Germans from the Italian peninsula—more than 20 of Hitler's toughest divisions were entrenched on that mountainous land.

The Americans' task—to springboard Allied armies into Italy at strategic points, and to gain the foreful cooperation of the surrendered Italians.

* * * *

OUT OF THE harbor the seas were rough. The P-T boat cruised off Sicily until dawn, finally sighting an Italian corvette at 6:45 a.m.

Aboard this once-enemy ship Gen. Taylor and Col. Gardiner met an admiral who graciously invited them to lunch as his ship turned back for Italy. But he knew nothing of the mission (or at least said nothing about it.)

The corvette made the port of Gaeta, about 75 miles south of Rome, at 5:30 p.m. The two Americans were taken ashore in a closed boat. From the dock they walked boldly to an Italian navy staff car and driven through town.

* * * *

ON ALL sides they saw German soldiers, some of whom gave them curious glances. But nobody moved to intercept the Americans, who were scarcely disguised. The colonel, for example, was wearing a British officer's cape.

At the outskirts of the port, the Americans were transferred to an Italian ambulance, and started the journey to Rome. Frequently they were halted by German roadblocks and the accompanying Italian admiral finally advised them to "look sorry, like you are prisoners of war."

Looking as disconsolate as two prospective conquerors can, the two Americans peered continually through the slot windows of the ambulance. About all they saw was a great number of Germans.

The Germans weren't interested.

* * * *

AT 8:30 A.M. the ambulance arrived in the heart of Rome, at the Palazzo Capra-ra, where they were met by Italian officers who outdid themselves in their tirades against fascism.

Not until 10:15 did the patient Americans wade through these campaigns of self-salesmanship and get to the heart of their problem. Then they were closeted with Gen. Carboni, chief of the army corps assigned to the defense of Rome.

* * * *

GEN. CARBONI, well aware of the surrender of his nation, was a fountain of information. He sketched out the German positions, their numbers and their arms. If the Americans were surprised or alarmed, they didn't show it.

The Americans learned, however, that a frontal attack on Rome might precipitate a disaster.

The Eternal City was ringed by 48,000 well-equipped German troops. Prior to the surrender, the Germans had cut off all the Italians' gasoline supplies, reduced their ammunition to 20 rounds per firing piece.

Carboni reported the Italian armored forces didn't have gas enough to move 30 miles. The infantry couldn't last half an hour in battle.

* * * *

THE INFORMATION came as a blow to the Americans. During surrender negotiations they had been assured that the Italian army, once invasion began, would fight by the side of the Allies against the Germans.

On the planning boards in Sicily were designs for transporting an American army, by land, air and sea, to Rome to units with the Italians. An invasion move at Salerno, south of Rome, was already under way.

The Allies had thought these moves might quickly break German resistance.

* * * *

GEN. TAYLOR now faced a delicate problem. For its solution he insisted on seeing Marshall Pietro Badoglio, who had recently ousted Mussolini as factual head of the state.

At midnight Gen. Taylor and Col. Gardiner were ushered into Badoglio's mansion—and then kept waiting while Carboni and other generals huddled with their chief.

Reluctantly, the Americans were faced with the hard fact that the surrendering Italians were not living up to their promises, for whatever reason. Reluctantly, they coded a message to Gen. Eisenhower, suggesting that the front assault on Rome be cancelled.

* * * *

THE ITALIANS, Gen. Taylor reported, could not even guarantee to hold the airports of Rome for the necessary time to land American and Allied troops.

Gen. Taylor's attitude caused some consternation on the Italian staff, which went back to its maps and books. By noon of the next day the Italians were prepared to "guarantee" an invasion of Corsica.

To the Americans the capture of Napoleon's birthplace seemed something less than strategic. They rejected the Italian offer. Back in Sicily, the Allied forces were already aboard for the bloody battle of Salerno.

* * * *

THE GENERAL and the colonel now returned to their ambulance. Their trip from the coast to Rome had been so successful that they decided to go bodly from Rome.

This time they ordered the ambulance to an airfield, and the Italians placed a Savoia-Marchetti tri-motored transport and its crew at their disposal.

Coolly, the Italian pilot talked to his control tower. Calmly he filed a false flight plan.

As the plane taxied down the runway, it went past the noses of hundreds of German warplanes, all unaware of the prize before them.

* * * *

THE TRIP TO Sicily was uneventful. While it was under way, the bloody Battle of Italy had begun at Salerno.

The strange mission of the general and the colonel, hopefully planned to shorten the war, failed of its original purpose. But it did succeed in two other points.

It brought to the Allies a first-hand report on German men and equipment on the Italian peninsula (a discouraging report, later borne out by the facts of battle).

More than that, it averted what might have been a bloody fisaco, and the slaughter of thousands of Allied troops in a frontal assault on Rome. Later Rome fell without resistance, after being accepted by the retreating Germans as an "open city."

Grads Honor Williams

John T. Williams, city manager of Seal Beach, was honored Saturday as Long Beach State College "Alumnus-of-the-Year."

The award was made by Robert Hoting, Alumni Association president, in ceremonies which were part of the Long Beach State Homecoming program.

Hoting said that Williams, a 1959 graduate, was chosen for his record in civic affairs since graduation.

* * * *

THE MUNICIPAL official was the second to receive the college's highest alumni honor. James Boren, now with the U.S. Economic Mission in Bolivia, was the first recipient.

Alumni merit awards for achievement were presented Don Gould, past president of the alumni association and head of the math and science department at Downey High School; Francis J. Flynn, dean of development at the college who has aided the association for many years; and to the college as a member of the physical education staff.

AT 40 YEARS OF AGE

Boy Achieves Ambition, Becomes Clown in Circus

By BUD WORSHAM

A 40-year-old Long Beach man who has yearned for the life of a circus performer since he was a youngster saw his dream come true this weekend.

Paul Alford of 412 E. 16th St. made his circus debut Saturday with the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus at Long Beach Arena.

For Alford, a bachelor, this chance to perform with "the greatest show on earth" was as satisfying as an astronaut reaching the moon.

* * * *

"UNK," AS he is known to some 40 nieces and nephews, is no newcomer to the entertainment field. As a Shriner he has made hundreds of youngsters laugh in his visits to crippled childrens' hospitals.

Seeing how his clowning gave these kids some happy moments, Paul decided to make it a career.

A finish carpenter by trade, he sought the same perfection as a clown. He spent hours studying the history of the circus and the techniques used by the Big Top's famous masters of mirth.

* * * *

BORN IN Liverpool, Ohio, Alford's father brought him and his five sisters and four brothers to the Signal Hill oilfields in 1927. He remembers how going to the circus was the highlight of family fun. The thrill never left him.

After graduating from Poly High School and serving three years in the Marine Corps, Paul still was fascinated by the circus. But his deep-seated yearning was tempered by the necessity of learning a trade.

Ever so often the urge to perform would lead him backstage, where he made props for the L.B. Civic Light Opera.

PAUL ALFORD . . . Not a Newcomer

ONE NIGHT he was hurriedly swept into a chorus of swordsmen during the staging of "The Mikado." The feel of greasepaint on his face, and the excitement of the audience, convinced him that his place was on a stage.

Through the encouragement of two of his closest friends, Dick Christiansen and the late Sam Leddel, Alford has applied himself steadfastly to the art of becoming a clown.

There's no mistaking his identity as a clown when he's decked out: red, checked trousers and coat with tails, an exaggerated wing collar, a twirly tie that rotates at will, flowers that pop out of his tiny top hat and 17-inch shoes.

Alford has perfected a quirky, smiling mouth that never becomes sad, and he has designed a number of eye-catching costumes and routines. And he has taken voice lessons.

India Says China Violates Border

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Indian sources charged Saturday that Chinese Communist planes, operating from newly-built Tibetan airstrips guarded by Korean war veterans, have been repeatedly violating Indian airspace in the disputed northeast frontier territory.

(A Communist New China news agency dispatch charged that Indian paratroopers have been dropped in the Changdo district in preparation for large-scale attacks on Red frontier posts. A broadcast, monitored in Tokyo, said "aggressive Indian troops" have intruded into the entire Kechilang River Valley north of the so-called McMahon Boundary Line, which the Reds do not recognize.)

* * * *

INDIA formerly rejected as "completely groundless and deliberately mischievous" a Chinese Communist charge that Indian aircraft flew over the Tibetan capital of Lhasa.

Reliable sources here said Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru had been informed that Chinese Red aircraft flew over Indian-claimed territory at least 20 times in the past two weeks. The sources said the Indian air force had been instructed not to shoot down the offending planes but that these orders were likely to be rescinded if the alleged intrusions continued.

THE RED PLANES, these sources said, were taking off from two new airstrips built only 40 miles north of the McMahon line which India claims as the border with Red China. The new airfields are able to handle jet fighters and big transport planes, according to Indian sources.

The source said that Chinese Communists troops who were veterans of the Korean fighting had been stationed along the Tibetan border and were guarding the new airstrips.

Indian frontier commanders, meanwhile, were reported to have told Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon that Wednesday's sharp battle with Chinese Communist troops in the Dhola area opposite Tibet had been a "hands-down" victory for India.

Reliable sources said Krishna Menon was given a description of the battle, in which the Indians claim to have inflicted 100 casualties in Red troops, during an army staff conference Friday.

British Help to Develop U.S. Skybolt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The British have agreed to pay more than $20 million toward development of the U.S. Skybolt missile and to conduct their own full-scale test program on American soil, it was learned Saturday.

The 40-foot, two-stage Skybolt, an intercontinental missile in every respect that will travel the first leg of its journey by plane, is to be "married" to the U.S. B52 and British Vulcan bombers.

* * * *

SEVERAL of the white, delta-winged Vulcans will be flown next February to Elgin Air Force Base near Valparaiso, Fla., for launching experiments that may continue for nearly two years on the Cape Canaveral range.

At Eglin, the British already have begun setting up a testing colony that will include 300 pilots and mechanics and about 700 dependents. A planeload of 80 British wives, Skybolt officials for the United and children is scheduled to Kingdom to pay only that part arrive there Tuesday. of the cost which would be

The British-U.S. agreement unnecessary for American for joint development of the purposes.

Negro Opera Star to Sing in Miss.

NEW YORK (AP) — Leontyne Price, Negro soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, said Saturday she will give a benefit concert next January before a non-segreated audience in her home town of Laurel, Miss.

Laurel is about 185 miles south of Oxford, Miss., where rioting recently occured over the admission of a Negro student to the University of Mississippi.

The concert is scheduled for Jan. 27 in the auditorium of a Negro high school in Laurel. It will benefit St. Paul's Methodist Church, the Negro church where she sang in the choir and played piano in Sunday School.

The event will take place on the second anniversary of Miss Price's debut at the Metropolitan Opera in "Il Trovatore." Last October, she became the first Negro star to open a season at the Met, singing the title role in "Girl of the Golden West."

During opening week of the Met, which begins Monday, she will sing two performances of Aida.

WIND BLOWS TREE DOWN, UP AGAIN

MILL VALLEY (AP) — A strong gust of wind blew a 25-foot pussy willow tree across a driveway on Evergreen Avenue.

A housewife got busy in the rain and cut off many branches so she could get her car out of the garage to meet her husband.

An hour later another strong gust blew the tree upright again.

West German Market Falls to New Low

By WALTER T. RIDDER
L. A.-P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Disconcerting economic news came out of Western Europe this past week when stocks on the West German stock exchange tumbled to new post-war lows. Heavy selling on Wednesday and Thursday cut over-all stock prices to less than one-half of their 1960 record highs.

Germany's blue chip stocks, in which some American mutual funds had substantial interests, slumped badly. These included Daimler-Benz, Volkswagen, some key chemical companies, and steel. Many individual stocks have dropped even more than the over-all 50 per cent figure.

The news that the German decline was not greeted happily by international financiers here. The German market has been declining steadily throughout this year, but last week's virtual collapse brought worried frowns to Western world economists.

* * * *

SEVERAL reasons were given for the German Market's plunge. The increasingly tense Berlin situation was given as one factor, although it was pointed out that the German market had not dived so dramatically during previous Berlin tensions. Some economists thought German stocks had been over-valued in relation to dividends and potentialities, much as were American stocks before the sharp dive of late spring.

The most serious question the market's fall posed was this—is the unprecedented European post-war economic boom coming to an end? Impetus was given to the thought that perhaps it is by German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's somewhat gloomy economic report to his parliament during the week. European stock exchanges in general have been on a downward trend recently and the German stock plunge has raised fears that the skid may become accelerated.

With the United States economy moving ahead only sluggishly, the almost fantastic business booms of Western Europe, notably in West Germany, Italy and France, were considered the bulwarks of the Western Alliance's economic posture.

* * * *

FOR the past few months there have been signs that the European economy was levelling off, just as did the U.S. economy following its post-war burst. In Germany, for instance, the post-war industrial empire of Willy Schlieker, "Wunderkind" of German industry, blew up during the summer and one of its essential parts, the German ship-building industry, is hanging on the economic ropes. The German market's slump has caused apprehension that confidence in the ability of Germany to maintain her post-war pace has vanished.

The continuing drop of European stocks comes at a time when a controversy is swirling both in and out of Great Britain about her entry into the Common Market. Prime Minister MacMillan's government is pressing hard for entry. It is being bitterly opposed by many British interests, as well as a number of people on the continent. As long as the European economy held up and was booming, the thought of entering the Common Market singled out as one of the more important factors in Europe's prosperity, was enticing. Should Europe's business slow down or undergo reverses, the prospect of entering the Common Market may well become considerably less attractive.

Which is why for the moment the eyes of diplomats as well as international financiers will be watching nervously this coming week the performances of all the European stock exchanges.

Court Wades Deeper Into Prayer Issue

By LARRY OSIUS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, which won some plaudits and more criticism by striking down a New York State School prayer, is wading deeper into the emotional waters of church-state relations.

The court agreed this week to hear appeals on two more prayer cases, having many of the same elements, which resulted in opposing decisions in lower courts.

In Pennsylvania a three-judge federal court held unconstitutional a state law requiring the daily reading of 10 verses of the Bible. Officials of the state and of Abington Township appealed the decision, originally sought by Edward L. Schempp, a Unitarian living in a Philadelphia suburb.

* * * *

IN MARYLAND the state supreme court upheld a Baltimore School Board regulation requiring that school be opened each day with the reading of one chapter from the Bible or a recital of the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Madelyn E. Murray appealed. She said the school board ruling was offensive to her and her 11th grade son William J. Murray. Both say they are atheists.

In both states children may be excused from participating.

The Supreme Court moved into the prayer situation in a 6-1 decision last June which brought sharp reaction on both sides of the question.

The court held that a prayer prescribed by New York State officials for use in public schools violated the Constitution.

* * * *

MANY CRITICS contended the court was banning all prayers in school and public functions. So sharp was the outcry that recently Justice Tom C. Clark departed from the custom of not commenting on a decision to express surprise at the criticism.

All the court had decided, Clark said, was that government can not take part in establishing religion under the Constitution.

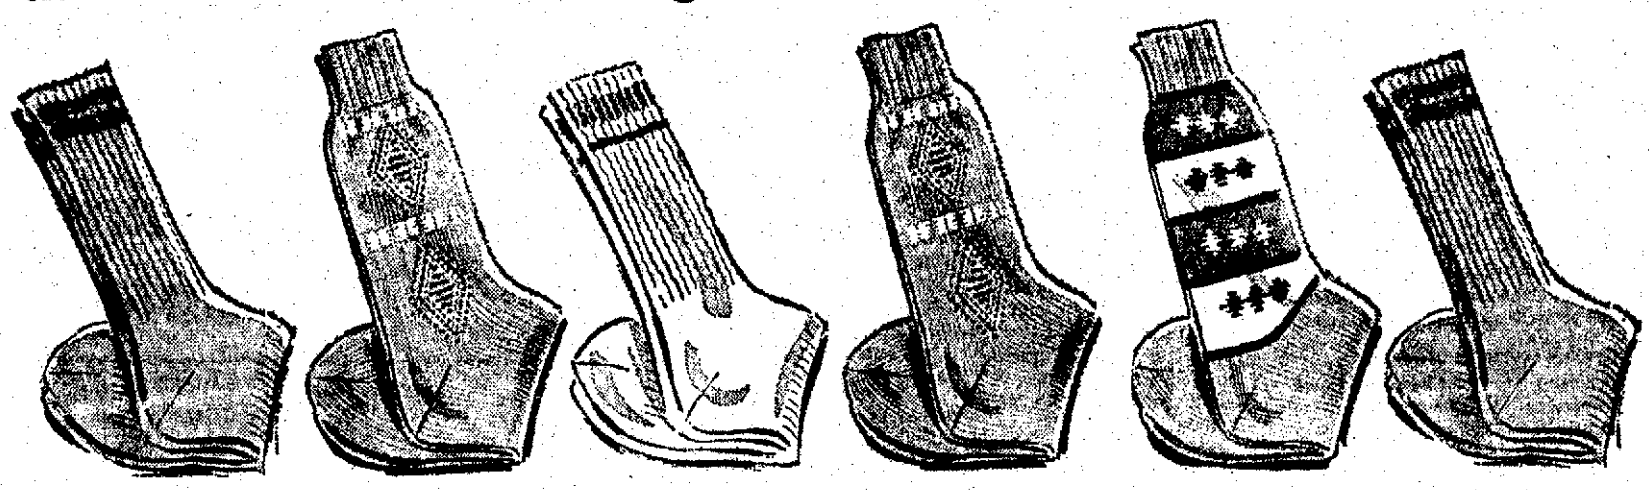

Rulings on the two cases accepted by the court this week could help clarify the situation. But the problem of church-state relationships has been furrowing justices' brows for decades and any ruling on these cases won't be the final answer.

Warranties Extended on 1963 Autos

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT (AP) — If you bought a 1960 model domestic car, you paid your money, got a pat on the back from the dealer and some obscure fine print from the manufacturer assuring you the car would last at least 90 days provided you didn't drive more than 4,000 miles in that time.

If you bought a 1961 or 1962 model, this warranty from the manufacturer was set in a little larger type and it said the car would be free from defects for 12 months or 12,000 miles.

And if you buy a 1963 model you will find the manufacturers almost overpowering you with claims of quality. In nice black type four of the five companies tell you their cars will prove defect-free for 24 months, or 24,000 miles. The fifth company says the power train of its cars — engine through rear axle — will last five years, or 50,000 miles, without trouble if given reasonable care.

* * * *

DOES THIS mean cars suddenly are six to eight times better than they were in 1960? No, and nobody makes such a claim.

Then is the warranty just another sales gimmick?

Absolutely not, insist the manufacturers, who say the cars are better.

General Motors was the first to apply the 24-month warranty to its entire line of cars. Ford, which went to 24 months for its Lincoln Continental two years ago, quickly followed the GM move. So did American Motors and Studebaker.

Chrysler has chosen the long-term plan on the power train, sticking with the 12-month policy on the rest of the car.

CHRYSLER announced an outline of its new plan in August, saying it believed other companies might try to beat it to the punch. Other companies said they were considering it, but nobody followed.

General Motors held off until the week the first of its 1963 models went on sale. It had informal arrangements with dealers covering such items as transmissions and air conditioning units for up to 24 months even though the published warranty was only

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Auto Industry Brightest Spot in Economy of U.S.

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The automobile industry was the brightest spot in the economy this week.

Most other segments of business rocked along at a good but far from startling pace.

The stock market wallowed in the slowest trading in many months. The Jewish religious holiday, the Columbus Day semi-holiday and the World Series distracted interest.

Results in the automobile industry are being eyed as the key to general business conditions in the fourth quarter. If sales of new models are high it is anticipated that the spending will bulge over into other retail areas.

So far, car makers report an enthusiastic public response to the newly introduced 1963s.

* * * *

THEY STEPPED up production this week to an estimated 156,000 passenger cars, the second highest weekly output of this year. All major companies worked overtime, and Chrysler recalled 600 idle workers to its Jefferson plant in Detroit.

Maintenance of the current production rate would make October the top month of the year with 705,000 cars.

Plans call for building 1.7 million to 1.8 million cars in the balance of this year, making a 1962 total of 6.8 million.

The University of Michigan Survey Research Center said a poll of consumers indicated that prospects for automobile sales this quarter are good.

* * * *

THE STEEL industry was depending on the high automobile production to bite into inventories of steel and bring new orders.

Steel orders have been climbing the last two or three weeks but so far there has been no big gain from the car makers. Steel industry leaders predicted a modest increase in production next month. Output last week dipped 1.1 per cent from the previous week to 1,746,000 tons.

In the first 40 weeks of this year output totaled 76,528,000 tons, up 5.5 per cent from the 72,551,000 tons in the like period of last year.

* * * *

University of Michigan's survey indicated the outlook for consumer spending in the near future is optimistic. But it found that longer range trends "are far from comforting."

* * * *

"THE CONSUMER sector will not contribute to a recession during the next six months," the surveyors reported. They added that "consumer sentiment and consumer demand have not been greatly influenced by the developments that have taken place during the late spring and summer," including the stock market slump.

"Most Americans do not see a close connection between what happens in the stock market and what happens to the economy," according to the survey. "They do not accept the notion that the stock market decline is a signal for an economic recession."

As for the more extended outlook, the survey found that most people do not expect the unemployment problem to be solved soon and feel that international tensions will have an adverse effect on business.

* * * *

THE FEDERAL Reserve Board reported that department store sales last week were unchanged from the like week last year. However, for the four weeks ended Oct. 6 sales were three per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1961.

Heavy construction awards in the week ended Monday rose to $04.7 million, from $353.9 million the previous week and $338.9 million a year ago.

F. W. Dodge Corp., which gathers construction statistics, predicted that contract awards for new construction next year will increase to a record $43.4 billion, a gain of about five per cent over this year's anticipated total of $41.3 billion.

The company expects the boost to be inspired by income tax cuts and greater government spending.

* * * *

ON THE PRICE front, the wholesale cost of coffee was cut up to five cents a pound by major roasters. Food chains indicated at least some of the reductions will be passed on to consumers.

The Justice Department filed a civil antitrust suit against three big oil companies, Cities Service, Sinclair and Richfield, and asked a U.S. district court in Los Angeles to order them to quit it charges distributors for allocation of markets. The copper water tube and copper drainage and vent tubing companies denied the accusations.

Celebrezze Tells School Aid Stand

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Anthony J. Celebrezze, the new secretary of health, education and Welfare, is prepared to fight for federal aid to public schools. But he can see no constitutional way to include parochial schools in the program.

The former mayor of Cleveland, in an interview with United Press International, spelled out for the first time his stand on the controversial issue of aid to parochial schools, which has brought President Kennedy into sharp conflict with Roman Catholic bishops.

* * * *

CELEBREZZE, like Kennedy, a member of the Catholic Church, said that he is convinced, after a close study of the whole question, that "the Supreme Court has spoken quite clearly."

"Aid to private elementary and high schools is unconstitutional," he said.

But he said the Supreme Court has not ruled out the use of tax funds to aid private institutions of higher education, and there are many long-standing federal programs which provide a precedent for such aid.

* * * *

AFTER three months in the H-E-W Department, Celebrezze has become a strong advocate of "Medicare" as Abraham Ribicoff the man he succeeded.

"I'm for the Social Security approach," he said, "because I think it's good fiscal policy for people to provide for their health care in old age while they're able to work.

"The Administration plan is based on the same concept as insurance. People would pay Social Security taxes during their earning years, and would be covered with health insurance after they retire.

"That is much sounder — much more conservative, in my opinion — than proposals for the government to finance health care for the aged out of general tax funds. I don't think we can afford to do that on anything like an adequate scale."

Q. Opponents charge that the Medicare plan would lead to "socialized medicine" . . .

A. That nonsense. The government wouldn't have a thing to say about the patient's choice of a physician or hospital, or about the course of treatment.

Q. Why can't private health insurance do the job?

A. Because the insurance rates aren't fixed. The older a person gets, the more he needs the insurance, and the less he may be able to pay for it. But that's just when the premiums become the highest. And they can cancel the policy on him after his benefits run out—just at the time he needs coverage the most.

Professor Urges Slow Learners Be Given Help

LIBERTY, N. Y. (AP)— One-third of American students — the slow learners — are being ignored by educators, says a Michigan State University professor.

Dr. Ernest O. Melby told the second annual convention of the New York State Association of School District Administrators that more attention by teachers is needed to keep these slow learners from being relegated to a "scrap-heap."

Melby said that unless these children are trained to handle jobs in our highly automated society they will end up by joining the ranks of the unemployed.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Mass of Laws Will Affect Most U.S.

By HARRY SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Democratic-controlled 87st Congress finally shut its doors last week, leaving in its wake a mass of laws affecting almost every American.

Among bills signed by President Kennedy, for example, was one raising postal rates on first class letters, airmail and post cards one cent beginning Jan. 7. Most other classes of mail also will be raised gradually. By 1965 the annual tab will be $605 million. The long-sought objective is to get the post office out of the red and on a pay-as-we-go basis.

* * * *

THE SAME BILL carried a $1 billion pay raise fur 1.6 million federal workers. But the President directed all government agencies to try and offset this by weeding out deadwood and exacting more efficiency generally.

Also signed into law was a foreign trade bill which invited new tirades of resentment from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. It gave the President unprecented power to cut U.S. tarrifs so the United States, the six-nation European Common Market which Khrushchev has bitterly denounced, and other free world countries can cooperate in removing trade barriers.

DONOVAN

When the chief executive asked for it, he said it would enable the Western world to launch an economic offensive which should effectively sidetrack Soviet Bloc trade penetration. No American President has ever had such tariff-cutting power.

* * * *

OTHER MEASURES signed include a $3.9 billion foreign aid program, well under what Kennedy had requested; a tax-deductible pension system for the self-employed such as doctors, lawyers and farmers, and tighter control over the testing and sale of drugs. This last bill grew out of the thalidomide tragedy in which malformed babies were born to hundreds of European mothers who took the sleeping potion. Until then Congress had backed away from drug legislation.

The election-conscious Congress had been reduced to bare quorums when the legislators got away. Many already had departed, some resentful over delays that kept them from beginning their campaigns in September. But they left with high praise from the President who congratulated them on a good record in the face of big political obstacles.

Kennedy himself hit the campaign trail again with forays in Maryland, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Kentucky. Still ahead were invasions of Missouri, Illinois, Washington State and California. Most of the states are battlegrounds in Kennedy's drive to get more New Frontier Democrats elected to the 88th Congress.

* * * *

IN THE Republican camp, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower carried the GOP banner into California where he proclaimed Kennedy was seeking "a one-party government." Also in California, GOP gubernatorial candidate Richard M. Nixon pledged anew that he would not be a candidate for the presidency in 1964. The former vice president is in a nip-and-tuck race with the Democratic incumbent, Gov. Edmund (Pat) Brown.

In another hot political area, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman declared the new farm law just enacted would give farmers the best break they have had in 30 years. The Kennedy administration has been under sharp GOP attack for its farm policies. Freeman said Congress finally had recognized that rural community as well as commodity problems warrant consideration.

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro finally told Cubans that Russian "military technicians" are stationed in their country. He reiterated the familiar charge that the United States was preparing for an invasion and said the technicians, plus Soviet weapons, were needed for defense. Meantime the bearded revolutionary broke off negotiations with New York lawyer James B. Donovan for the release of 1,113 Pigs Bay invasion prisoners. Castro's price for their liberty is $62 million. Donovan claims he is operating in a private capacity, not for the U.S. government. Some congressmen doubted this. It was Donovan who won freedom from Russia for U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers.

British ship owners decided unanimously to oppose President Kennedy's impending move to curb trade with Cuba. They said his threat to ban from U.S. ports all vessels carrying Russian arms or goods to Cuba added up to "sanctions." Britain has never broken relations with Castro. A few other governments have pledged the President their cooperation.

* * * *

THE SUPREME Court refused to review a lower court order which forced the admission of Negro student James H. Meredith to the University of Mississippi. Meredith was enrolled two weeks ago after troops called out by Kennedy put down a bloody riot. At one time 31,000 soldiers were concentrated within a 100-mile radius of the campus at Oxford. Most of these were withdrawn this week when student disturbances were reduced to a minimum.

Meredith himself aroused considerable Army ire by complaining that troops guarding him had been segregated. The Army offered proof to the contrary. The Justice Department named seven students who took part in the rioting.

Also on the racial front a federal judge at Alexandria, Va., directed that Prince Edward County, Va., schools may not stay closed to avoid integration while other tax-supported Virginia schools remained open.

* * * *

THE COUNTY switched to a private tuition system in 1959 and closed its public schools to avoid integration. Since then Negro children have been without schooling.

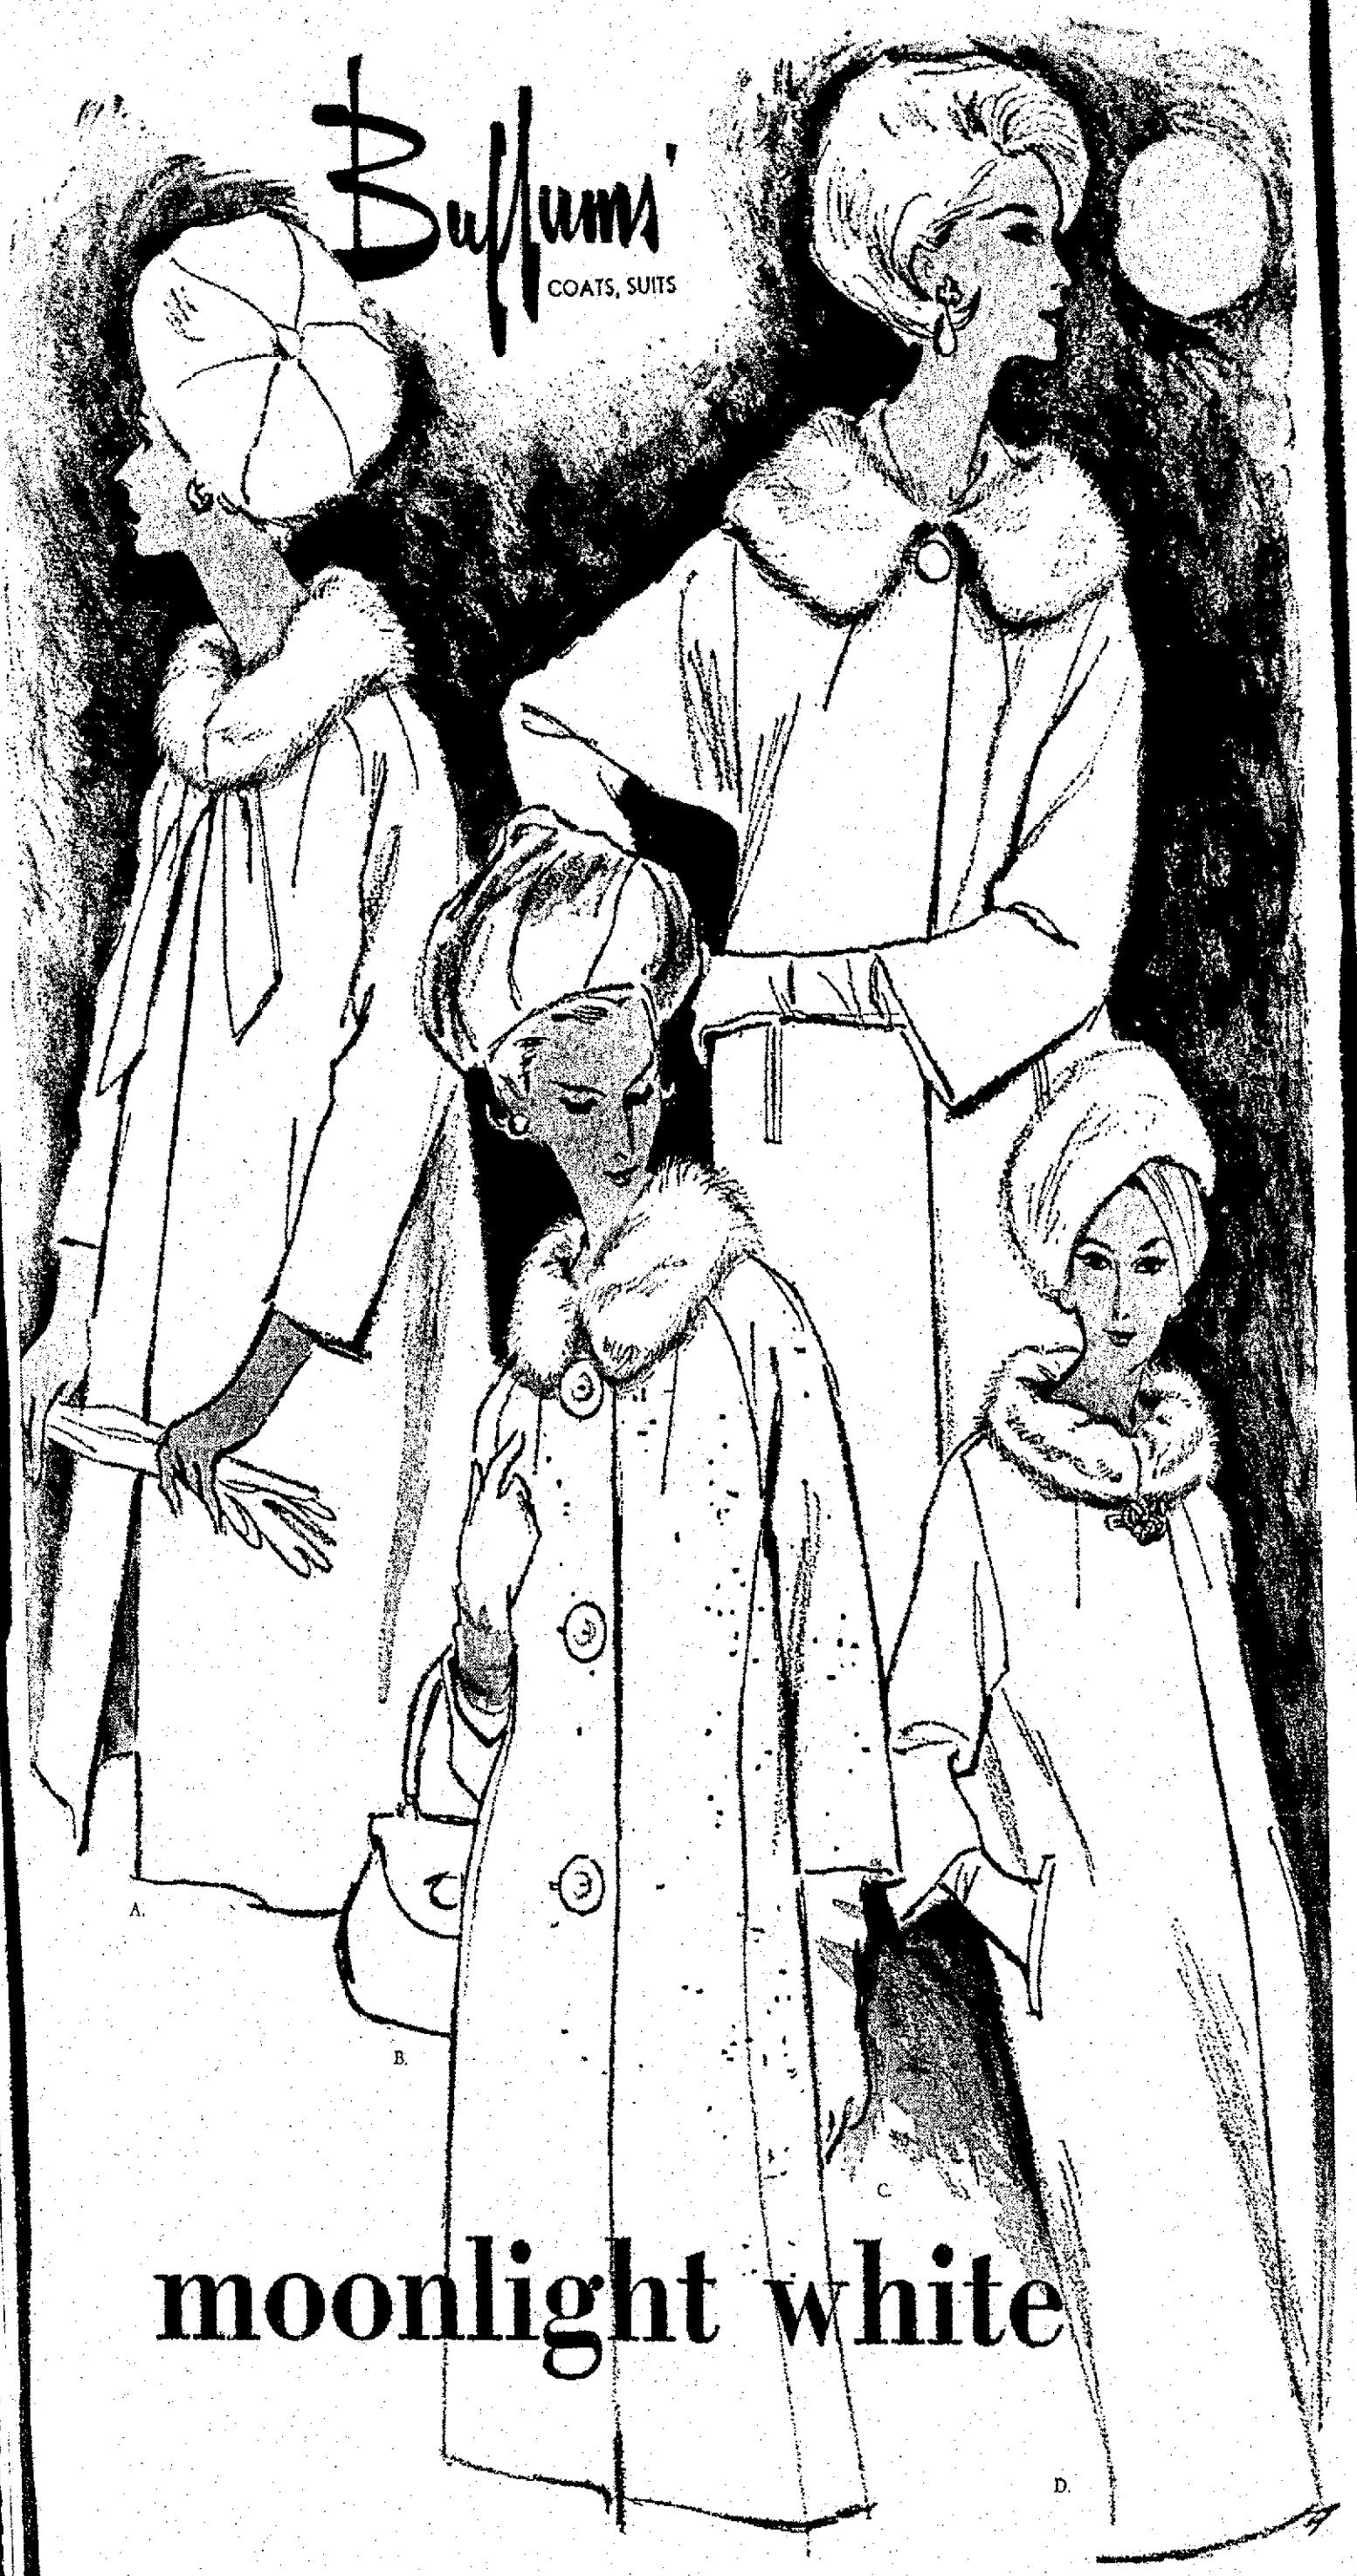

The Supreme Court struck down racial barriers in bus and railroad terminals in Louisiana and Georgia as an outgrowth of the "freedom rider" campaign last November.

Council to Get Redistricting Ordinance

NEW COUNCILMANIC DISTRICTS ordinance slated to get first reading Tuesday by city councilmen are outlined above. The nine districts are represented by the following councilmen: 1—Raymond C. Kealer; 2—Bert B. Bond (vice mayor); 3—Lewis D. Reese; 4—Andrew H. Baird; 5—Edwin W. Wade (mayor); 6—Emmet M. Sullivan; 7—Robert F. Crow; 8—William A. Graham and 9—Virgil H. Spongberg. The redistricting, first since 1955, is required by the City Charter.

May 14 Election Boundaries Mulled

By GEORGE WEEKS

Battle lines for the Long Beach City Council primary election next May 14 will become official within the next few weeks, even though the candidacies won't develop until later.

New boundaries for the nine councilmanic districts, in each of which a separate contest will be fought simultaneously, will be incorporated in an ordinance for first reading Tuesday by the Council. Under normal procedure, the ordinance will become law some 40 days thereafter.

Councilmen agreed on the new boundaries last Tuesday after more than a month of more or less amiable discussion off the record. The net effect will be to equalize, within a range of slightly more than 1,000 persons, the population in all districts.

* * * *

AVERAGE population for each district, excluding 17,522 persons listed by the Census Bureau as crews of vessels reporting Long Beach as their home port, is 36,900.

Under the old districts, the population ranged from 30,300 in District 7 on the West Side to 46,700 in District 4, Los Altos and neighboring areas.

The compromise agreed on by the council spares all incumbents the embarrassment of running against another council member. Each remains in his own old district, although their constituents are radically changed.

* * * *

THE REDISTRICTING, first since 1955, carries out belatedly a charter requirement that districts be realigned at five-year intervals beginning in 1955 if there is a substantial inequality of population.

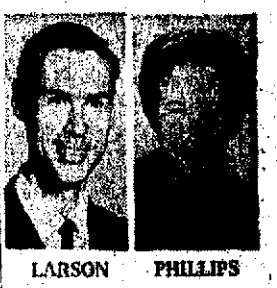

City Planning Department estimates of the population in the old and new districts follows:

District	Old	New
1	32,700	37,350
2	39,900	37,100
3	37,400	36,600
4	46,700	36,700
5	36,700	38,400
6	31,600	37,450
7	30,300	37,200
8	35,000	36,900
9	41,900	36,500

GAD Sets Two New Lectures

Two new lectures are scheduled this week by the Long Beach City College General Adult Division.

Sander L. Larson will open an illustrated series on "Northway, Land of Vikings and Fjords" at 7:30 p.m. Monday in room 202 of Polytechnic High School, 16th and Atlantic Ave.

LARSON PHILLIPS

Anne G. Phillips, member of the American Institute of Decorators governing board, will be the first of four speakers on "Current Trends in Interior Decoration" at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Hill Junior High School auditorium, 1100 Iroquois Ave. Her topic is "The Impact of Foreign Design."

BEACH COMBING

by MALCOLM EPLEY

ON the wall of a public room in the Los Altos Center some one has scrawled:

SURFERS!
Today the beach,
tomorrow the world!

OCCASIONALLY one encounters shocking evidence of a lack of understanding of the voting procedures in our state.

Like the other day, when a usually well-informed business man said to me:

"I've been having quite a time convincing my wife, who is a registered Democrat, that she can write in the name of any Republican candidate she likes at next month's election."

It was embarrassing to explain to him that at this, and any general election, all voters get identical ballots and the names of all candidates will be on each ballot.

Every voter will have the privilege and the right of marking the ballot for any candidate he likes, regardless the candidate's or the voter's party affiliation.

RECENT discussion here of the idiocy of California's long ballot brought a note from a veteran election board worker indicating a way in which some reform action could be forced.

Her idea was that election board workers should lead the way in demanding that something be done.

In her own case, she said she will simply not work on the board if long ballots persist. Now I'm definitely not advocating what amounts to a strike, but I do believe that these people could help a lot in bringing about a sensible change in this situation.

SIGNS on the freeways have been frequently discussed here. Now Reader E. Wozny brings up another subject: Signs off the freeways, indicating where they are. I agree that there is a lot that could be done in this field, although recently I've observed considerable effort in that direction.

Bro. Wozny makes note of a specific situation right here in Long Beach. He writes:

"There's a need for a large sign on West Ocean Blvd. indicating the approach to the freeway. There's a huge overhead sign showing that the harbor is straight ahead, but the only freeway direction is a small green sign on the right that can't be seen until you're already making the turn.

"It doesn't matter to those of us who know just where to look for the turn onto the freeway. We've managed, from experience, to get into the right lane. But it can be mighty confusing to others unfamiliar with the area. In fact, out-of-towners have commented on the need for a decent sign. Do you agree?"

Agreed.

SPEAKING of confusion, have you noticed how the name Richards and Richardson are all over the ballot in the coming voting.

Dr. Ralph Richardson is running for school superintendent and Wilbur Richardson is running for Assemblyman on L.B.'s west side. They should be getting some advantage out of each other's advertising.

And for U.S. Senate, there's a candidate who is not only named Richards but has the full name of Richard Richards.

That brings up an old experience elsewhere. A friend of mine named Mahoney was ruled off the ballot but ran a write-in campaign for mayor. He told his followers they wouldn't find his name.

But a man named Maloney was running for state treasurer. In our town he got an abnormally large number of votes and some of Mahoney's friends told him, after the election, that he was all wrong. They found his name right there on the ballot.

2,500 Volunteers to Man 42 Sabin Oral Polio Vaccine Clinics Sunday

By BOB SANDERS

More than 2,500 volunteer workers, including doctors, nurses and pharmacists, will be manning 42 Long Beach area clinics next Sunday and the following Sunday to administer the new Sabin oral polio vaccine.

Goal for the Long Beach district is the inoculation of as many of the 550,000 residents of the area as possible with Type I of the Sabin series. Clinics for Types II and III are scheduled later.

"This mass immunization program with Sabin oral vaccine is one of the most important medical projects undertaken anywhere," said Dr. Sam Woolington, Long Beach pediatrician who is serving as chairman of the district.

* * * *

THE LONG BEACH district includes all of the city plus Signal Hill, Wilmington, Lakewood, Catalina Island, Artesia, Torrance and Dominguez.

It is part of the drive by Los Angeles County Medical Association to inoculate 6 million persons in the county.

The clinics will be set up in 33 area schools, Memorial, Pacific, St. Mary's and Community Hospitals and five other locations. A complete list was printed in Thursday's Independent, Press-Telegram. Hours are from 11 a. m. until 6 p. m.

* * * *

IN AN effort to eliminate waiting time at the clinics, the Independent, Press-Telegram will publish a pre-registration form in next Sunday's paper. By clipping the form from the paper and filling it out before going to the clinic families may eliminate time consumed in registering at the clinic.

Although a minimum donation of 25 cents is expected to cover the cost of the vaccine, Dr. Woolington said that no one will be turned away for lack of funds.

Every one in the community three months old or older is urged to take the Sabin vaccine, even though they may already have taken the Salk vaccine.

* * * *

SABIN VACCINE, which has been approved by the U. S. Department of Health is the only one that destroys polio virus and thereby eliminates the possibility of a person being a carrier of the disease.

Dr. I. D. Litwak, Long Beach city health officer, has pointed out the dramatic effect of Sabin vaccine on an outbreak of polio in Pasadena in August.

"Seven cases occurred in quick succession in one area of the city," Dr. Litwak said. "Crews rushed into the area and administered 10,000 doses of Sabin vaccine. Not another case was reported.

* * * *

THERE ARE many advantages of the Sabin vaccine over the Salk. First, because it is given on a lump of sugar taken orally it eliminates the needle. Also it gives longer protection and prevents a person from being a carrier.

"If this drive is successful," Dr. Woolington said, "and the people really turn out for it, it may be possible to eliminate paralytic polio from Southern California forever."

Newspaper Week Is Library Exhibit Topic

Award-winning and noteworthy news stories and photographs from the Independent, Press-Telegram will be among the exhibits in the Main Public Library during National Newspaper Week, through Saturday.

The exhibits, illustrating the theme for the week—"Newspapers Make a Big Difference in People's Lives"—will include two of I, P-T Chief Photographer Roger Coar's award-winning photographs and Independent Assistant City Editor William Jones' series on a diploma mill. Coar's photographs are of sleepy Long Beach State College seniors at a graduation ceremony and a reminder of drought conditions.

"The Public Library is proud to participate in the observance of National Newspaper Week," said City Librarian Blanche Collins.

She also called attention to collections of books currently on display in the Main Library Departments — books on freedom of the press, growth of newspapers, on journalism and printing.

SPACE 'TINKER-TOY'
Douglas scientists envision a "spaceball" complex, doubling as a space station or planetary transport, which would be formed in outer space by units joining together after they were fired into orbit. The complex, resembling a child's "Tinker-Toy" plaything, could supply a space vehicle with powered stages for inter-planetary excursions.

'Tinker Toy' Space Base Devised by Douglas Aid

By LEE CRAIG
Military-Aviation Editor

A "tinker toy" space station has been devised by a Douglas Aircraft Co. space engineer which may provide the key to outer space explorations.

The "Spaceballs" comprising the station could be lofted into orbit by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's advanced Saturn C-5 vehicle, which is expected to become operational in this decade, according to Douglas expert T. J. Gordon.

The spherical spaceball, with its astronaut passengers would remain attached to the Douglas-built S-IVB, its terminal stage, whose empty cavernous fuel tanks would provide added living quarters.

As resupply vehicles would be shuttled to the space station, their expended S-IVB terminal stages could be attached to the "spaceball" complex. Additional spaceballs could be orbited and also linked to the complex.

More spaceballs could be orbited and joined, with their expended stages also connected with the growing station, which eventually would resemble a colossal model of a molecule.

The space vehicle would be provided with sufficient thrust for planetary excursions by additional S-IVB stages, fully fueled, which would be orbited and attached to the spaceball complex.

A Demonstration of Ineptitude

NINE OF THE 10 members of the State Board of Education have taken an action which, though not illegal, is an unprecedented demonstration of ineptitude and ill will.

These members have endorsed one of the candidates for State Superintendent of Public Instruction and rebuked the other in stinging language.

Nobody denies that these officials have the right as citizens to endorse, singly or in a group, any proposition or any candidate. But is it proper or sensible for them to do so in the case of the superintendency?

When they endorse Dr. Ralph Richardson and denounce Dr. Max Rafferty, they set the stage for what could be a bitter and destructive relationship.

DR. RAFFERTY HAS AN excellent chance of winning election as State Superintendent. If Dr. Rafferty is elected, he will be a part of the Board of Education and the only member on the board, incidentally, who will have been chosen by the voters of the State of California. The need for a cordial relationship is obvious.

The burden of that cordiality is now upon Dr. Rafferty, for these nine members have made it clear that they don't intend to carry any of it.

The arrogance and sheer unfriendliness of their action is reflected by the answer given by Board President Thomas W. Braden when asked whether the board would cooperate with Dr. Rafferty should he be elected:

"If he is elected, the burden would be on him to cooperate with us. He is responsible to us under state law."

IT IS TRUE THAT the Superintendent of Public Instruction is the secretary and executive officer of the Board, and that he executes, under the direction of the Board, the policies decided upon by the Board. This does make him responsible to the Board.

But we hope that Mr. Braden and his eight associates will not forget that the Superintendent is an elected officer, responsible also to the voters of this state.

UNDER CALIFORNIA LAW, the office of Superintendent is non-partisan. But Dr. Rafferty considers the action of the nine board members "a brazen partisan political activity," a political conspiracy among appointees of the Governor to give an advantage to the candidate affiliated with the Governor's political party. Dr. Rafferty also comments that his own campaign successes have thrown his opposition into a "fit of desperation."

The character and language of the Board members' action suggest that his analysis is correct on both counts.

In any event, what they have done is unworthy of men appointed to the high and responsible job of determining educational policy for the State of California.

PROPOSITION 23

State Senators Close Ranks to Fight Senate Expansion

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — California's state senators are taking virtually a unanimous stand against Proposition No. 23, the measure that would add 10 new state senators from big-city areas.

The united front to keep the Senate as it is transcends north-south geography, party faith and population size of home districts.

Senators have closed ranks so firmly that campaigners for Proposition No. 23 cannot name one senator who has endorsed the reapportionment initiative.

Most have been extremely active against it. The campaign has been led by a blue-ribbon bloc of leadership — includes Sen. Hugh M. Burns, majority leader; Sen. John F. McCarthy, minority leader; Assemblyman Jerome R. Waldie, Assembly majority leader, and Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell, Assembly minority leader.

* * * *

WHY THE TOGETHERNESS in a 40-member Senate that has been marked by in-fighting on other issues?

Senators feel that adding five new Senators in Los Angeles County and one each in Orange, Santa Clara, Alameda, San Francisco and San Diego Counties—as proposed in Proposition No. 23—will upset the present balance between urban and rural areas.

Opponents say there is no real indication of a need for reapportionment. They say the Senate has been responsive to big-city needs on freeways, smog control, social-welfare problems, water and all other major urban issues.

The classical argument of senators hinges on a comparison of the California Senate with the federal Senate. They say California should keep the federal system of having one house based on population and the other based on geographical districts.

"If both houses of Congress were based on population, it is likely that eastern big-city interests would have delayed the development of the West considerably . . . and the same thing could happen to underdeveloped areas of California if selfish big-city interests run both the Assembly and Senate," argues one spokesman for the senators.

Specifically, reapportionment critics forecast that natural resources, farmlands and resort areas will suffer if Proposition No. 23 passes.

* * * *

LOS ANGELES, ORANGE, San Diego, San Francisco, Alameda and Santa Clara Counties already elect 52 of the 80 assemblymen. No. 23 foes argue that California needs a balanced legislature like Congress to prevent the majority from ignoring the minority.

Sen. George Miller said a predominance of senators from rural areas exerts a good conservative influence on the Senate. "They are less likely to panic and less subject to pressure influences," he added.

Miller declared it would be easier for Los Angeles interests to bottle up a bill or appropriation favorable to Long Beach if Proposition No. 23 passes. He predicted only one of the county's six new senators would be from Long Beach area and that Los Angeles could put tremendous pressure on the other five.

"Long Beach is better off with one state senator who is sensitive to its interests," he concluded.

Miller maintained there is more than meets the eye to the claims of some Southlanders that they are short-changed when state gas tax money is divided.

He said there would be no real statewide highway system if all the gas tax money were returned to the county that collected it. "All you would have would be county road systems, and some of the smaller counties would not have adequate highways for a statewide system," he added.

Again comparing the situation to the relationships of states to the federal government, Miller pointed to Nevada and smaller Western states. Nevada would not have adequate cross-country roads if it weren't for federal highway grants, he said.

"My Contra Costa County doesn't get back all the gas tax money that is collected in it . . . but I still favor the present system because it preserves our state highway system," he concluded.

* * * *

ANOTHER KEY REASON Senators oppose Proposition No. 23: it would set in motion a chain of future reapportionment battles in California.

The proposition calls for a reshuffling of Senate seats again in 1971 and every 10 years thereafter—but doesn't spell out what happens if legislators cannot agree on a reapportionment formula every decade. Some fear that the upshot will be that the U. S. Supreme Court may intervene to tell California how to reapportion if the Legislature deadlocks.

"A deadlock is a certainty," one senator forecast gloomily.

Senators haven't talked much about it. But the cost of enlarging the Senate is likely to be substantial.

The Office of the Legislative Analyst estimates it would cost $324,500 a year to add 10 senators—plus an additional outlay of $300,000 the first year for new office space. If the electorate votes lawmakers a raise in pay, costs would be higher.

One Capitol Building informant, asked why no one had raised the issue of cost, said he doubts if voters pay much attention to the spending of a few hundred thousand dollars extra when the state has a $2.88 billion budget.

If voters decide to enlarge the Senate from 40 to 50 members, these are the annual additional costs to taxpayers: salaries, $60,000; per diem, travel and staff assistants, $193,000; equivalent space rental cost for office space, $31,500; related legislative services, $40,000.

BOB HOUSER

Glendale Physician Carries Last Hope of Third Party

The American (Prohibition) Party is a hair away from oblivion. California's highest voter registration in history shows 4,824 Prohibitionists of a total registration of 7,531,211. To stay alive the party must keep a registration of at least one-fifteenth of one per cent; or one of its statewide candidates must poll at least 2 per cent of the entire state turnout.

In state convention last August, the Prohibition State Central Committee took resuscitative action in resolving to take steps to change its name to the American Party, because "the party is not for prohibition as the word is commonly understood."

HOUSER

Party substitutes for the all-out prohibition image are ultra-conservative platform planks and a fault-finding that other party positions "have been ones of consistent compromise and fluidity."

Despite its .066 per cent registration, the American Party claims it deserves more newspaper space, equal TV network time with the two major party nominees. Dr. Robert L. Wyckoff, of Glendale, the party candidate for governor, says the press is tending to bypass the opportunity to present views of all candidates in favor of the "glare and bigness of the Republican and Democrat campaigns."

* * * *

IN OUR own 32nd Congressional District, where the party has 179 registered members, the cause is being carried principally by G. E. Rucker, 4555 Falcon Ave., who identifies himself as Wyckoff's campaign manager for the Long Beach area. He wants help, including an office, telephones and a couple of women for office work. Those interested in the third party and good government, Rucker says, may call him after 4:30 p.m. at GA 7-0012.

Rucker also solicits campaign contributions which he says may be mailed to Dr. Wyckoff at 1530 E. Chevy Chase, Glendale 6. He says the third party "is very much alive and has every intention of winning the election. Parties have changed; remember the Whigs and the Federalists. Good shall always win out over the bad. This is a natural law and if good does not win out there is chaos."

Rucker further promises that the party will be "pulling a very real surprise on Mr. Nixon and Mr. Brown. We mean a truly ethical surprise."

* * * *

PLATFORM planks include belief in constitutional government and private enterprise. The party opposes the graduated income tax and says all income should be taxed at the same rate for so long as an income tax remains necessary. It favors right to work laws, opposes any form of coercion of union membership while, at the same time recognizing the merit of collective bargaining.

* * * *

DR. WYCKOFF stresses his party's dedication to returning government from Sacramento to local communities and charges the other two party platforms have no provision to curb this "tendency to centralization of power." He opposes Proposition 1-A for educational building and speaks in favor of charging students tuition in keeping with value received. He opposes State Senate reapportionment and favors Prop. 24, the Francis amendment.

JFK Political Trip May Boomerang

By the I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The President's enthusiastic campaign tour on behalf of Democrats—any Democrat—may have a built-in boomerang.

His scattered Congressional successes, for example, have been based on bi-partisan support. Some of his worst times have been supplied by his own party. Without the help of Sen. Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.), the minority leader, and Sen. Thomas Kuchel (R., Calif.), the Republican whip, there might have been something approaching a shambles. Yet he has dedicated himself to the defeat of both, though not with the vigor the Democratic candidates would have liked.

He traveled to Minnesota last weekend on another quest, the defeat of veteran Congressman Walter Judd, a Republican his administration has depended on with such subjects as the foreign aid program and passage of the U. N. bond legislation.

Judd's value to the State Department can be summed up simply. As he votes on such things as foreign aid, so vote 50 or so Republicans, enough to overcome the opposition which exists in both parties.

LONG-TIME observers here say they have never seen anything quite as rough and dirty as the path Congress traveled toward adjournment. The way was strewn with ambuscades. The air has been bitter. There never have been more naked displays of political blackjackings.

Many Democratic members of the Congress are extremely bitter, for example, about the childish display of power put on by Rep. Mike Kirwin (D., Ohio) in his successful quest for a $10 million aquarium. Few, however, are willing to take him on.

As chairman of an Interior Appropriations subcommittee he proved his might by killing an Oregon project desired by Sen. Wayne Morse, a fellow Democrat, who had ridiculed the aquarium on the Senate floor.

Rep. James Utt, Southern California Republican, was reminded of his vote against the $900 million emergency public works bill when he testified in behalf of a needed beach erosion project.

Goldberg and JFK Rib British Laborite on Common Market

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy was entertaining Hugh Gaitskell, head of the British Labor party at an intimate White House luncheon, when a very interesting, off-the-record debate took place.

Present were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Vice President Lyndon Johnson, and Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg.

PEARSON

Goldberg, now on the Supreme Court, came up through the ranks of labor and has intimate knowledge of the trade union movement in England and elsewhere.

"What I can't understand about the British Labor party," he shot at the head of that party, "is your opposition to the Common Market."

The Secretary of State, who has to promote harmonious relations with our British allies, winced a bit. But Goldberg kept on ribbing the possible next Prime Minister of England. President Kennedy joined in the good-natured banter.

They both argued that the Common Market had already brought better relations between the countries of Western Europe and would probably lead to a close-knit governmental system for Western Europe.

"This is what the trade union movement has always favored," argued Goldberg. "You want better understanding. Why then your opposition?"

Gaitskell wouldn't admit it, of course, but those around the White House table suspected he figured the Common Market was a good political issue on which to force an election and try to defeat Premier Macmillan's Conservative government. If so, it's believed British Labor would be just as strong for the Common Market as the Conservatives are today.

ONE OF Speaker Sam Rayburn's last acts before his fatal illness was to persuade his close friend, Rep. Francis (Tad) Walter D-Pa.), not to retire from Congress.

Walter has now served 30 years in the House of Representatives and has the rating of elder statesman. Outside Washington, the Pennsylvania solon is best known for his chairmanship of the un-American Activities Committee, a job in which he has sometimes stirred up fierce animosities.

But to those who know him in the cloakroom of Congress, Walter is kindly, considerate, and has the courage to stand up against unpopular measures. When Rep. Glenn Cunningham (R-Neb.), darling of the Texas oil tycoons and the right-wingers, introduced his amendment to ban Communist literature from the mails, Walter was one of the few with the courage to stand up and oppose it. Though not in favor of spreading Communist propaganda, he saw the danger of political censorship of the mails. Once established, he knew the principle could be used against Republican literature or Democratic literature.

In the end, only two congressmen had the courage to vote against the Cunningham amendment.

Mind Should Open Before Mouth

EDITOR:

It is the solemn duty of every American before he opens his mouth to criticize our government policies and programs that he also open his mind.

A few hours a week sitting quietly and contemplating our constitution, its amendments, our foreign policies and the friends and enemies outside our borders, might be worth all the defense buildup we could muster in the next hundred years.

Fellow Americans spend just a little time thinking instead of spouting off and we might see peace in our time.

Instead of so much "free time" lets spend some more study time starting in elementary school maybe then we won't have so many uninformed or half informed citizens shooting off their mouths hollering for a "shootin' war." You know the old saying, "I'll fight for freedom with every drop of YOUR blood!"

JFK Promises Sound Hollow

EDITOR:

In the light of developments of the past 20 months, there is a hollow sound to JFK's glowing promises about Cuba. Here are a few quotations he made when he was seeking the Presidency in 1960:

"I want people to wake up all over the world in the next years and wonder not what Mr. Khrushchev is doing or what Mr. Castro is doing, I want them to wonder what the United States is doing."—Candidate JFK, Queens, N. Y., October 27, 1960.

"We must let Mr. Castro know that we do not intend to be pushed around any longer and in particular do not intend to be pushed out of our naval base at Guantanamo or denied fair compensation for American property he has seized."—Candidate JFK, Johnstown, Pa., October 15, 1960.

"I am not satisfied to have the hand of the Communists move 3,000 miles from East Berlin to our former good neighbor in Cuba, only 90 miles from the coast of Florida, only eight minutes by jet."—Candidate JFK, Washington, D.C., September 20, 1960.

* * * *

MR. J.F.K., many Americans are wondering what the United States is doing? And why you haven't done anything to stop any of the things you promised the American people you would do, if they elected you President.

The United States is getting in deeper trouble. I believe the people will choose a man in 1964 that will do the job.

Deplores Early Yule Activity

EDITOR:

Last month I saw a Santa Claus doll in a department store, and already many stores have specials on Christmas cards and gift wrappings. It's a wonder we haven't heard Christmas carols yet.

With almost three months of Christmas shopping ahead, it will be a wonder if our budgets and spirits survive. By the time Christmas does arrive, the majority of the people will be financially exhausted, emotionally upset, and will have lost the true spirit of Christmas.

To many people, Christmas just means exchanging gifts and pleasing the children with toys from Santa Claus. Let's slow down just a bit and remember that this is the day the Saviour was born, a day for rejoicing. If we put more time into remembering what Christmas really is, we will be ahead both financially and spiritually.

One of the usual ways of greeting in China may have to be modified as a result of the widespread food shortages under the Red regime. The greeting is: Chih kwo fan la ma?, meaning "Have you eaten your rice yet?", and it is often said just as we say "Good morning!"

With the present shortages, however, the plausible answer Han mei chih—"Still have not eaten," might be considered counter-revolutionary, while a disenchanted Gung chan tang dee-sha, shwei neng chih?—"Under Communism, who can eat?", might well place the observer in a position where his eating days would be permanently over.

A copy of the Berlitz "Diner's Dictionary" will be mailed to anyone submitting a question used in "Languages in the News."

MIRROR OF BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

MARTIN A. NISHKIAN
Heads Outstanding Engineering Firm

Engineering Achievements Made By M. A. Nishkian Are Outstanding

Martin A. Nishkian, prominent consulting Engineer, designer and constructor of Long Beach, has a record of progress that is an enviable one.

Although primarily known for his engineering achievements he is also an accomplished violinist. He is an ardent fly fisherman, and is the proud owner of two fine quarter horses, Tiny Chick and Thunder Chick. Previously he owned a string of thoroughbreds.

Nishkian was born in Fresno, and graduated from San Francisco Poly High School, and the University of California. He also did post graduate work at the University of California and Stanford.

Several Expansions

The company which bears his name, is located at 3754 Long Beach Blvd., Long Beach. This two-story structure was designed and built by Nishkian in 1953, at which time he occupied only the second floor.

In 1956, the building was extended 40 feet to take care of the growth of the Nishkian operations.

In 1962, the organization was still suffering from growing pains, and it was necessary to take over complete occupancy of the building.

Nishkian heads three other organizations — Manco Construction Co., Constructors Nishkian S. A. of Mexico City, and the Nish-Paul Oil Company.

He is a member of the Petroleum Club, Optimist Club, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, Pacific Coast Club, San Diego Club, and last year was named Citizen of the Year by the Exchange Club.

Wide Range of Work

Nishkian designed, engineered and constructed projects in recent years cover a wide range and in various states.

He was retained by the Atomic Energy Commission to prepare plans for additions to the material reactor site at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Nishkian was the designer for a $3,502,500 heading and air-conditioning plant to serve nine new buildings in the Los Angeles Civic Center; the Star Kist Tuna plant in Fish Harbor on Terminal Island; the Cooperative Steam plant on Terminal Island.

Varied Other Projects

He engineered an ultra-modern heating project for Camp Pendleton Marine Corps Base; designed jet fuel storage underground tanks and a 20,000 foot distribution system for the Naval Air Station in San Diego; the $12 million gas compressor station in Needles, Calif., for Southern Counties Gas Co., was another of his projects.

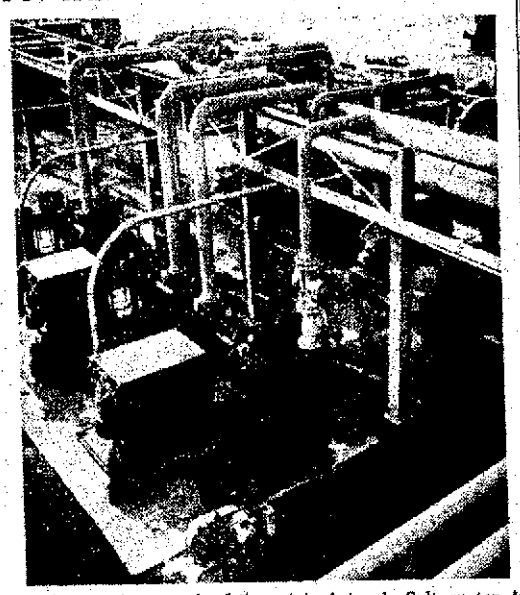

Gas Compressor A Nishkian Project In L.B.

The progress in major civic improvements made by the City of Long Beach in the past few years is well illustrated by the Municipal Gas Department Compressor Plant No. 6. This $2,700,000 ultra-modern facility was engineered and designed by M. A. Nishkian & Co.

The 174-foot gasholder, which is equivalent to a 17-story building, and the adjoining compressor plant supplies some 5 million cubic feet of gas to customers in the northeasterly portion of Long Beach.

The plant design is unique, featuring a sphere 10 feet in diameter in the center of an octagon for gas suction, and a doughnut type header encircling the sphere for the gas discharge. This modern facility also features a central recording and indicating instrument panel which automatically controls the entire plant. The main building is constructed of rigid frame with porcelainized aluminum exterior panels and curtain-wall, and houses four 550 horsepower gas engine driven reciprocating compressor units and related equipment.

Nishkian Designed Plants To Halt Harbor Subsidence

This is a photograph of the plant located on Terminal Island, immediately north of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard. This plant and its distribution system, together with the Mainland water injection and distribution system is a portion of the subsidence control water injection program which M. A. Nishkian & Co. performed for the Long Beach Harbor Department.

The plants were designed for the purpose of halting land subsidence that threatened one of the Nation's largest ports.

The removal of large quantities of oil over the years was one of the reasons for the land subsidence, and it has been reported that at the center of the Wilmington Oil Field, sinkage had reached a depth of 23 feet below the original level. Salt water is now being pumped at high pressures into the subsiding areas, and the results are most favorable.

The two plants consist of high pressure, electric-driven pumping units, designed to supply water to injection wells at 1500 psig; 1250 psig. and 1000 psig, for the various underground oil zones at a total rate of 15,000 gpm. The distribution system consists of approximately 20 miles of high pressure steel piping and approximately 3 miles of low pressure salt water piping.

M. A. Nishkian & Co. is presently completing the design and drawings for the injection of an additional 2,150 gpm. at the existing Long Beach Harbor Department's Plant Z.

Reagan Seeks Cranston Job

(This is another in a series of articles on major election candidates.)

By JIM McCAWLEY

SACRAMENTO—Financial management has been the most oft-mentioned issue in the race for state controller.

State Controller Alan Cranston, the Democratic incumbent, proudly has put his and the Democratic Administration's record on money matters on the line.

Cranston contends he and his Democratic colleagues have proved it is possible to be humanitarian and fiscally responsible at the same time.

* * * *

ASSEMBLYMAN Bruce V. Reagan, Republican nominee, has criticized Cranston's financial management. And he has blasted Cranston for being the founding president of the California Democratic Council.

Cranston, 48, first Democratic state controller in seven decades, credits his office with "saving the state hundreds of thousands of dollars by implementing new methods and equipment."

* * * *

A CRANSTON campaign statement declared:

"During the fiscal year just ended the state raised more than $73 million from sources other than taxes and fees. The State Lands Commission (under the chairmanship of Cranston) accounted for $16.6 million, the bulk of it from state-owned oil tidelands.

"The investment of money not needed for immediate expenditures raised another $19 million for the general fund."

* * * *

CRANSTON, chairman of the Franchise Tax Board, said that board had simplified income tax forms, speeded service, streamlined its methods and instituted new depreciation write-off rules which will result in a $15 million saving to California business.

Cranston, a former Stanford University track star, operated a real estate, investment, and property management business in Northern California prior to his election in 1958.

As a journalist in the 1930's, Cranston was sent to Europe to cover the rise to power of Hitler and Mussolini. Cranston authored the 1945 book, "Killing of the Peace," an account of the United States Senate fight over the League of Nations which was ranked as one of the top 10 books of the year by the New York Times.

* * * *

REAGAN, an Assemblyman from Pasadena, has let fly with some barbs at the journalistic backgrounrs of Cranston and Finance Director Hale Champion, an ex-reporter.

Of Cranston's claim of a $15 million saving for business on fast write-off rules, Reagan replied:

"This is just one more example of the fiscal folly so characteristic of the inexperienced press agents who run the state's finances under Gov. Brown.

* * * *

"WHAT REALLY happened is that the Brown-Champion-Cranston budget builders padded the state's budget by over $21 million—more than then could possibly spend and give away last year. Now, calling the excess a 'savings,' they proposed to declare a dividend on money they never should have collected in the first place."

Reagan, now serving his third term in the Assembly, said he favors more careful audits, more modern methods, crackdowns on welfare frauds checks and balances to restore the level of the unemployment insurance fund and replacement of present politically-appointed tax appraisers. Reagan charged that the appointees are "incompetent."

* * * *

REAGAN said: "California's fiscal program now is in the hands of a liberal, free-spending bureaucrat with no experience in money handling."

Reagan, 60, is president of Atlas Federal Savings & Loan Assn. Since 1921, he has been in business as a banker, stock broker and savings excutive. He is a native of Winnebago, Minn.

Also on the ballot for state controller will be The Rev. Frank G. H. Stevens, a Pasadena clergyman who is the Prohibitionist nominee.

Senate Passes Bill to Admit 23,000 Aliens

WASHINGTON (AP) —Senate passage by voice vote sent to the President Saturday a bill to permit the immigration on a non-quota basis of an estimated 23,000 aliens.

About 7,000 of these would be highly skilled persons, and whose entry was requested by U. S. employers in applications filed with the attorney general prior to April 1, 1962.

The attorny general would have to report to Congress on each petition he approves for the addmission of these persons, or for allowing them to stay in the country with immigrant status if they already are here.

New Caltech Device Detects Atom Blasts

By RALPH DIGHTON

PASADENA (AP)—A device which could be a forerunner of a worldwide network of nuclear blast detectors was announced today by the California Institute of Technology.

The new instrument, a cross between an earthquake-recording seismograph and a computer, was built for the Air Force as a part of the Advanced Research Projects Agency's Vela, which is concerned with the detection of nuclear explosions.

Called a digital seismograph, the device distinguishes automatically between earth movements caused by earthquakes and those caused by nuclear blasts.

This automatic analysis is expected to speed up detection of nuclear explosions at great distances. Installation of a network of such devices has been proposed as a way of policing nuclear blasts if an international agreement to ban tests is reached.

A spokesman for the institute said the instrument is believed to be the first of its kind in the world.

WASHINGTON (AP)— Farm employment during the September harvest season was down 4 per cent from last year and the lowest for the month in more than 35 years.

The Agriculture Department reported employes in the last week of the month numbered 8,471,000, compared with 8,796,000 last year. September usually is agriculture's peak employment month.

Factors in the decline included a smaller crop acreage and increased use of machinery and other labor-saving equipment. The average wage rate on Oct. 1 was reported at 86.8 cents an hour, compared with 84.3 a year ago.

CAR THEFT CASE

Rare Blood, Rare Excuse

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Given three days off for good behavior, Charles Dexter Young walked out of jail.

After serving 87 days for auto theft, he was broke and in a hurry.

Police said Young hopped into a parked car and drove away. The car belonged to Police Lt. Ben Newton. Officers quickly caught Young.

Young, 21, explained his actions this way:

"I got a rare blood type, see? And it sells for $10 a pint. I needed transportation to the blood bank."

Over Million Use Birth Control Pills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than one million American women are now using birth control pills, according to the Planned Parenthood Federation.

A Federation spokesman said the new oral contraceptive is marketed in this country by the G. D. Searle Co. under the trade name "Enovid."

The pills are available only by a physician's prescription. Taken on a rigid schedule of 20 days a month, they prevent conception by suspending ovulation.

The current retail cost is about $3.50 a month. Thousands of low-income families are receiving the pills free through Planned Parenthood Centers and other birth control clinics.

The U.S. Food & Drug Administration cleared Enovid for commercial sale in May, 1960, after extensive tests in the United States, Puerto Rico and other countries indicated the pills were safe and compared favorably in effectiveness with standard contraceptive appliances.

NO FOOLING, YOU'RE FOULING

SANTA BARBARA'S Alan Reynolds tackles Long Beach State's Don Montgomery, jarring ball loose. Referee ruled that Reynolds interfered on pass play, giving 49ers first down. Santa Barbara scored a 7-6 victory.

Late 49er Bid Falls Shy, 7-6

By AL LARSON

Long Beach State blew two golden scoring opportunities in the last three minutes of play and UC Santa Barbara squeezed out a stunning 7-6 CCAA victory Saturday night at Veterans Stadium.

After spotting the 49ers a touchdown in the second period, the Gauchos got the most mileage out of their only drive of the night late in the third quarter. Barreling 45 yards in 10 plays, quarterback Austin Dias dived into the end zone from one-foot out to climax the march.

Roger Hembree split the uprights with 4:15 remaining to give the Gauchos a 7-6 lead which held up to the end.

* * * *

LONG BEACH'S loss can best be attributed to the loss of kicking star Tom Turrill early in the second period. "The Toe" suffered a slight concussion and was sidelined for the rest of the game.

He was unable to convert after Long Beach's first score, forcing the 49ers to gamble on a two-point conversion pass which fizzled, and then was the most disappointed man on the sidelines when the 49ers had the chance to pull victory out with 2:40 remaining.

The 49ers had to call on the untested Tom Cunningham for a field goal attempt on Santa Barbara's 20 but his kick sailed straight up in the air and the Gauchos seemingly had the game "clocked" up.

* * * *

BUT THREE plays later Tony Pallante fumbled and the 49ers came up with the big recovery on the UCSB 22. Now it was a race with time. There were 90 seconds left.

On the first play Curt Bennett was foiled attempting to pass and lost 10 yards. Hank Edney made up five of these on a screen pass from Bennett. Now there were 45 seconds left.

On the next play Bennett was trapped but got off a desperation pass which sailed out of the end zone. Confronted with a fourth and 15 situation on Santa Barbara's 27, Curt's all-important pass to Dee Andrews fell incomplete in the left flat and the Gauchos had locked up their second successive conference victory in three starts.

The 49ers, who had hoped to ride out of the basement, instead suffered their second CCAA setback in a row and as the season reached the midway point, see their record at 1 and 4. All defeats have occurred at home—the last coming before a homecoming crowd of 4,004.

* * * *

EARLIER in the final period the 49ers put together a sustained drive of 50 yards which wound up 10 yards short of paydirt when Edney was stopped inches away from a first down.

Santa Barbara couldn't move and Jim Fisher barely got off his punt which bounced out on UCSB's 27. This set up Long Beach's field goal opportunity which sputtered—which is the story of Long Beach's season to date.

Andrews again was Long Beach's leading ground-gainer, packing the ball 18 times for 62 yards net. The game, which had been built up as a possible passing duel between Dias and Charlie Anderson, failed to materialize. Dias completed only three of seven attempts for 40 yards while Anderson was one-for-five for 21. Bennett clicked on one-of-four attempts for four yards.

* * * *

LONG BEACH got its offense rolling in high gear late in the first half and carried a 6-0 lead into the locker room at intermission.

Penalties kept the 49ers spinning their wheels throughout the first quarter and much of the second until Andrews and Anderson combined to engineer a 59-yard touchdown drive.

Andrews flashed his true form for the first time this year when he exploded for 39 yards on five carries to set up Anderson's key fourth-and-nine pass to Rex Burrell which put the 49ers one yard from paydirt.

* * * *

WITH 1:55 remaining in the half, Jim White dived over right guard for the score.

Anderson elected to go for two points on the conversion but was dropped before he could get his pass in the air.

During the nine-play advance, Andrews carried four successive plays and reeled off one 19-yard gain—his longest this year.

In the first period, Anderson was confronted with a fourth-and-17 situation on Santa Barbara's 27-yard line but he fired incomplete to Don Montgomery and the Gauchos were out of trouble.

* * * *

ACTUALLY the drive was short-circuited by an offsides penalty which killed a 14-yard ramble by Wayne Mickaelian which would have given the 49ers first and goal on the three. Instead they wound up on the 22 and on the next play Andrews was trapped for a five-yard loss.

Instead of going for the field goal, Anderson tried two successive passes and failed on both. This occurred before it was known Turrill was out for the game.

Long Beach was stalled by five rule infractions, while an additional three were refused during the first 30 minutes of play.

* * * *

SANTA BARBARA, which picked up only two first downs in the first half and never got out of its own backyard, made good on its only threat in the third period.

Dias cashed in the 45-yard drive when he executed a perfect swan dive into the end zone with 4:15 remaining in the quarter.

Hembree split the uprights to give the Gauchos their 7-6 margin.

NO JOY NOR BASEBALL IN MUDVILLE

Another Water Show at S.F.

By GEORGE LEDERER
I. P-T Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — There still is no joy in Mudville. Nor baseball. The mighty monsoon refuses to strike out.

The World Series goes into its 11th day today and the program calls for more aquatics.

The third successive rain postponement in San Francisco, and fourth of the Series, is a 10 per cent possibility, according to the weatherman. But who can trust him? He hasn't played ball, either.

Rain probability was 80 per cent Saturday, which meant that the weatherman was 20 per cent wrong. Even the seagulls sent out an SOS from Candlestick Park, where the outfield is under an inch and one-half of water.

Fearless Ford Frick, Commissioner of Baseball and Water Safety, issued his latest bulletin from a row boat: "Don't give up the ship," he said. "If you do, you better be an expert swimmer."

Few persons, least of all the commissioner, would hazard a guess as to when the Series might be resumed. Its principals, the Yankees and Giants, still were in town Saturday, but both considered evacuation.

"I don't see how we can play Sunday," said Admiral Alvin Dark of the Giants. I don't care about batting practice, but our pitchers, particularly (Jack) Sanford, have to do some throwing."

The Yankees, led by amphibious major Ralph Houk, considered fleeing to Modesto, 80 miles to the south. The only thing stopping them is an 80 per cent chance of rain in Modesto.

The Giants may work in the Cow Palace today. The only thing stopping them is the ice hockey floor, but that shouldn't be much of a hindrance. Trailing in the series, 3-2, they're already skating on thin ice.

* * * *

WHENEVER the sixth game is played, Whitey Ford and Billy Pierce will be the opposing pitchers with the Yankees 6½-5 favorites.

"Pierce will have to get beat one time at home before I don't start him," said Dark. There had been speculation that Dark would move up Sanford, winner of the second game and tough-luck loser of the fifth. Sanford has a 23-2 record in two seasons at Candlestick. Pierce's record there is 12-0.

Candlestick Park groundskeeper Matty Schwab held to his opinion that "it might take two days to dry the field after the rain stops." The infield was not protected during the off-day Thursday, the day the rains came.

"I'm afraid that when I lift the tarp," said Schwab, "there may be no grass left."

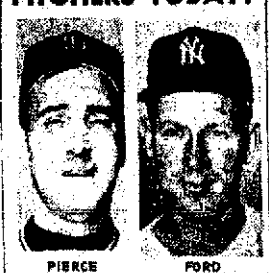

* * * *

SCHWAB SAID the drainage system is so slow that he usually waters the outfield at 4 a.m. in preparation for a night game. Watering of the infield takes place much later, as Dodger fans know. This time Schwab has no problems in holding down the dust.

As the fellow said aboard the Titanic, "I know I ordered ice, but this is ridiculous."

Stanford Mistakes Aid Cougars, 21-6

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — A blocked quick kick, a 92-yard kickoff return and a short pass gave Washington State University a 21-6 win over Stanford Saturday in the Cougars' first Big Six football game.

Washington State junior end Clete Baltes tied a school record for pass interceptions in a single game as he picked off three Stanford aerials, one of which set up the Cougars' final scoring drive.

After a see-saw first period WSU backed Stanford into a corner on junior halfback Kenny Graham's punt to the Indian seven. On the first play of the second period Stanford halfback Stan Lindskog tried a quick kick.

* * * *

WSU SOPHOMORE guard Jim Paton, who weighs 210, broke through the giant Stanford line and blocked the kick. Linebacker Gery Gehrmann followed the ball into the end zone and fell on it for a touchdown.

The Cougars scored again as the second half opened when Graham took the kickoff on his own eight, faked a hand-off to junior halfback John Browne, squirted through the defenders and out-raced both blockers and pursuers for the touchdown.

Baltes' third pass interception set up WSU's final score when he took Stanford quarterback Steve Thurlow's pass on the Stanford 24. Six plays later, with the ball on the 11, quarterback Dave Mathieson passed to sophomore end Jerry Shaw in the end zone.

* * * *

STANFORD managed to get onto the scoreboard on the second play of the fourth period when senior fullback Ed Cummings plunged over from the one, capping a 46-yard drive of eight plays.

The win, Washington State's sixth in a row over Stanford, gave the Cougars their best early season record in 26 years. The 1936 season opened with six consecutive wins. Only a tie with Arizona State mars WSU's four-game record thus far.

The Cougar's record-setting pass catcher, Hugh Campbell, covered by two Stanford defenders and three photographers for a national magazine, failed to garner a single reception.

In the statistics, it was Stanford's game all the way with the Indians chalking up 238 yards to WSU's 84 and eight first downs to Washington State's three. But Stanford fumbled four times and lost three of them while WSU lost only one fumble and had no passes intercepted.

Blades Fall in Overtime

CALGARY — Lou Jankowski swooped in front of the Blades net to beat Jack McCartan with the winning goal at 7:23 of sudden-death overtime before 1,832 fans Saturday night as Calgary scored its second consecutive Western Hockey League victory, 2-1.

Jankowski circled the defense after John Kosiancic and Norm Johnson fed him a pass inside the blue line at the right point. He gave McCartan no chance and ended a splendid goaltending duel between McCartan and Stampeder Roy Edwards.

LAST-SECOND PENALTY KOs SAN JOSE WIN

SAN JOSE (AP) — An illegal procedure penalty on the final play of the game wiped out a San Jose State touchdown and left the winless Spartans with a 12-12 tie against Idaho Saturday.

A sparse crowd of 2,500, braving a steady drizzle, saw San Jose State's hopes of breaking a five-game losing streak erased when officials flagged down an eight-yard pass from Rand Carter to Walt Roberts in the Idaho end zone.

Soph Fullback Paces Duke to 21-7 Victory Over Bears

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Soph fullback Mike Curtis scored twice as once-beaten Duke built up a 14-0 halftime lead and rolled to a 21-7 victory over California's Bears here Saturday.

A shirt-sleeved crowd of 31,000 saw the Blue Devils score in each of the first three quarters. The stingy Duke line, which had been leaky all season, yielded the Golden Bears only 12 net yards rushing during the entire game and halted several threats.

Trailing by two touchdowns, California took the second half kickoff and slammed 64 yards in 11 plays. Quarterback Larry Balliett, who sparked the drive, flipped to halfback Allen Nelson for the touchdown.

Duke took the next kickoff and showed more fireworks by going 74 yards for a touchdown, with Curtis scoring from the 14. Bill Reynolds kicked his third extra point and the score was 21-7.

California moved to the Duke five late in the fourth period after recovering a fumble, but the big blue line held.

Duke got its first touchdown midway in the first quarter when halfback Mark Leggett slashed over left tackle from the six to cap a 58-yard march.

The Blue Devils got another touchdown in the second period when Curtis went over from the three to climax a drive that started on the California 45.

California halfback Tom Blanchfield attempted a field goal from the Duke 27 in the first period, but Duke center Ken Williams rushed in to block it at the line of scrimmage.

California's ground game could do nothing against the hard-charging Duke line. But the Bears rolled up 203 yards passing by hitting on 15 of 28 attempts.

Dilday Death Is Sports Loss

Long Beach athletics lost one of its biggest benefactors—indeed, probably its BIGGEST benefactor over a span of years—with the passing a few days ago of Jack Dilday.

Dilday's contributions to sports in the City of Long Beach never could be correctly estimated because he aided so many people that even a certified public accountant couldn't keep an accurate record.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

But two of Jack's major accomplishments will live long after the rest of us are gone. His first was spearheading a drive some years ago to construct a decent football stadium. His second was being a founder and charter member of the now-nationally recognized Long Beach Century Club.

Dilday stood on the corner of Pine Avenue many afternoons securing signatures for a bond issue to erect Veterans Stadium. He labored incessantly to encourage voters that a city the size of Long Beach was remiss in not boasting a respectable stadium.

Veterans Stadium stands as quiet testimony today that Jack Dilday succeeded.

When the Century Club was founded almost seven years ago, Dilday was one of a handful of sports boosters who believed such an organization could be a success in Long Beach. No need to chronicle the club's success here. Seven years later, the hundreds of activities and hundreds of athletes aided by the Century Club are again quiet testimony that Jack Dilday succeeded.

A leukemia victim, Jack knew two months ago that his time on this earth was running out. As late as 48 hours before his death, however, he insisted he was on the upgrade and wondered to what new sports project he might lend assistance.

"Let's do something to get stands built on the other side of the stadium," he suggested. "The place still doesn't look right the way it is."

Maybe, some day, something will be done to fulfill one of Jack Dilday's last wishes to eliminate the present half-vast stadium.

At any rate, today at 2 p.m. at Dilday Mortuary hundreds of people from every walk of life will pay final respects to Jack Dilday, husband, father, sportsman and genuine friend. Jack has gone, but he will never be forgotten.

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

. . . The rain-scarred World Series is ruining nerves of the Dodger family. Promised word on the 1963 managerial situation right after completion of the World Series, the family now is concerned that the Series won't be over 'til Thanksgiving . . . and nobody will be able to eat his turkey dinner without indigestion.

. . . P.S. Keep your money on Walter Alston, with Chuck Dressen for the place spot and Pete Reiser third. Leo Durocher has all but been scratched. He came up lame.

. . . 'Tis hoped here that the concession snafu at Long Beach Arena is cleared up soon. Complaints have been growing about long lines, poor help and general apathy in service. The groans reached a peak Friday and Saturday with sellout crowds at the circus there. With a big schedule of winter basketball, hockey and ice shows, there's no room for any further concession collapse.

. . . Victims of another snafu were the Millikan High football players. The sporting goods store that promised the Rams their new uniforms three weeks before the season, delivered them three weeks AFTER the season commenced. Thus, Carl Berneker's kids played their opening games in horrid, old practice uniforms.

CLAUDE JENNINGS, the court reporter, umpire and sportsman-about-town, hopes he's never called upon to be a first base umpire in a World Series involving Bill Skowron and Willie McCovey. "They both pull their foot off the bag too soon," moaned Jennings, an oldtime first baseman in the classic Chuck Stevens tradition himself. "Especially that Skowron. If I was the umpire there, I'd rule that runner safe every time the foot comes off. And that would be almost every play."

. . . Speaking of umpires, the colorful PCL arbiter Emmett Ashford is being considered as a referee in the American Basketball League. Racial prejudice has kept Ashford from the major leagues, but the ABL could take a big step forward by inking flamboyant Emmett.

. . . Long Beach's ABL Chiefs, who'll radio all their home games, will play their final five "home" games in Hawaii next March because Arena dates are unavailable. They'll still play 22 contests here, which should be enough basketball season for anybody.

SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TD

Huskies Surge Back for 14-13 Win

PORTLAND (UPI) — Charlie Mitchell scored a now-you-see-it, now-you-don't touchdown with less than three minutes to play to bring Washington a 14-13 football victory over Oregon State Saturday.

Mitchell climaxed a 60-yard drive by the Huskies after Lee Bernhardi recovered an Oregon State fumble on his own 40.

Washington drove to the Beavers' two-yard line where Mitchell took a handoff and slanted into the line. He was knocked down at the line of scrimage but reached into the end zone and touched the ball to the turf for the tying touchdown.

Then he jerked the ball back under him before the onrushing Beavers could snatch it away. Jim Norton's conversion decided the game.

The nation's leading passing combination of quarterback Terry Baker and end Vern Burke, until then, had Oregon State in a 13-7 lead.

A crowd of 30,030, held below the estimated 35,000 by the tail of typhoon Frieda which struck Oregon Friday night, saw the Huskies escape with their third win of the season. They have tied one.

The storm smashed Western Oregon with winds up to 80 miles-per-hour in the Portland area and threatened cancellation of the game because of damage to the roof of Multnomah Stadium. But engineers pronounced the structure safe.

Baker completed seven passes to Burke for 103 yards and Oregon State's two touchdowns in the second period.

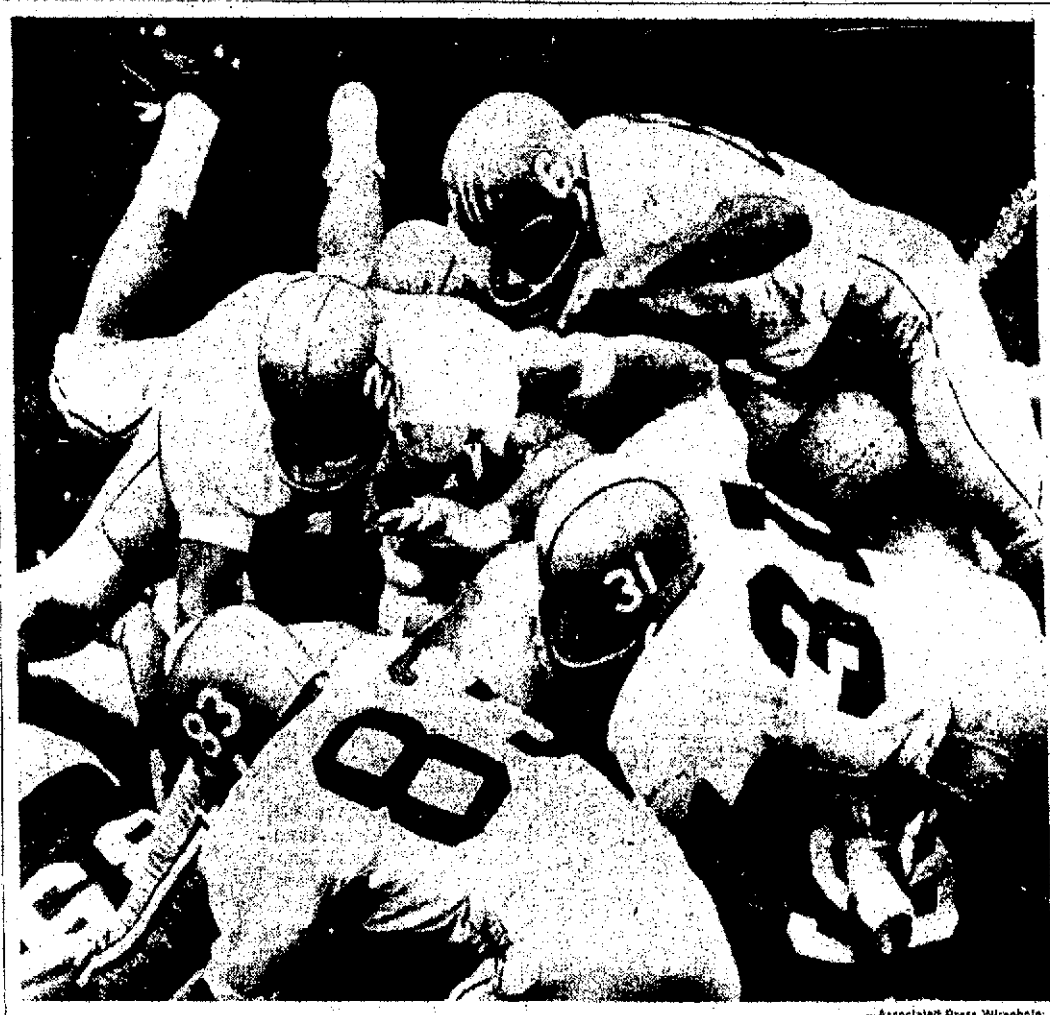

The imperturbable senior quarterback took Oregon State 80 yards in eight plays for the first score. Three passes to Burke accounted for 55 of those yards. The touchdown came on a six-yard toss to his favorite receiver and Steve Clark kicked the extra point.

The Huskies, protecting a No. 6 ranking in the United Press International coaches' poll, stormed back 56 yards in three plays. Sophomore fullback Junior Coffey ran 43 yards for the score and Norton kicked the extra point for a 7-7 tie.

Baker and Oregon State moved 90 yards in the last 90 seconds of the half. Burke struck paydirt on a 10-yard toss from Baker with 25 seconds to play. Clark missed what might have been the tying extra point.

Baker added another 229 yards to his total offense record. He completed 10 of 23 passes for 144 yards and gained 85 rushing. Burke, who led the nation in catches before the game, now has 32 in four games.

Spartans Breeze Past Wolverines

By JERRY WYNN
I. P-T Staff Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. — In this country of Paul Bunyan and football giants, Michigan State strides haughtily. Before a homecoming crowd of 77,501, the mighty Spartans crushed arch rival Michigan, 28-0, Saturday in a game which boils the blood of every Michigander.

Michigan State, which couldn't beat Stanford in what may eventually rank as the upset of the season, had far too many hungry workhorses and fleet ponies for its sister school from Ann Arbor. Clad in green and white, they rambled for 459 yards through a maze of amazed maize and blue Wolverines.

Fullback George Saimes, 190 pounds of probably the best double-duty player in the nation, tore through the Michigan line for 99 yards in 16 carries as well as sparkling on defense.

Halfback Dewey Lincoln accumulated 139 yards in seven flights with the ball, and fellow speedster Sherman Lewis scored three of the four MSU touchdowns and caught a pass for a two-point conversion to account for 20 points.

Against this array of talent, Michigan could counter with little. Star halfback Dave Raimey was snowed under repeatedly by the massive Spartan line and the Wolverines' four quarterbacks hit on only 7 of 22 passes.

* * * *

MICHIGAN STATE scored twice in the first quarter and once each in the third and fourth quarters, and might have sent the score higher if not for seven fumbles, five of which were recovered by Michigan.

Michigan State tallied its first touchdown on a faked field goal attempt. Smith, the apparent holder, passed instead to Lewis for a 12-yard score to complete a 43-yard, nine-play drive.

Michigan fumbled the ball back to MSU moments later and the Spartans moved 34 yards in five plays to score on an 18-yard pass from quarterback Charlie Migyanka to halfback Lonnie Sanders.

* * * *

MICHIGAN had one chance to get back into contention after recovering a fumble by Lincoln on the MSU 39. But the bid was quelled on the 18. That was the Wolverines' deepest penetration of the game.

Michigan State scored on its first thrust of the third quarter. After Saimes intercepted a pass on the Michigan 33, the Spartans ran the ball to the 3 from where Lewis bolted into the end zone. He then snared a pass from Smith for the two-point conversion.

The final end zone excursion by the Spartans and Lewis came early in the fourth quarter. The 154-pound dart tallied on a five-yard run to climax a 54-yard, 11-play drive.

Buckeyes Break Rush Record, Trample Illini

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Ohio State's bruising backs bolted through Illinois for 517 yards Saturday, a new Big Ten single game rushing record, on their way to a 51-15 victory.

The Buckeyes, a 33-point favorite for this mismatch—the largest point spread margin ever set up for a Big Ten game — made the gamblers look good with their smashing ground attack.

Though Illinois fought from behind to earn a 7-7 deadlock in the first period, Ohio State opened up and ran the gap to 51-7 before the Illini tallied again on a 90-yard pass play from Mike Taliaferro to Mike Yavorski with 10 seconds left in the game.

Illinois, suffering its 13th consecutive loss, showed strength only in the opening period. The Illini started from their 28 and managed to score on a 10-yard pass from Taliaferro to Rich Callaghan on the second play of the second period.

The Buckeyes, pre-season favorite for the national championship but upset by UCLA, 9-7, last week, had all the incentive to win. They were ragged in the first period, but scored each of the three times they had the ball in the second period.

At the half Ohio State had rung up 259 yards on the ground and had a 24-7 edge. In the second 30 minutes the Buckeyes had the ball six times and scored four times, running up 258 yards rushing.

The previous Big Ten rushing record for a single game was 465 yards by the Buckeyes against Indiana in 1956. The Buckeyes also hit on two of seven passes Saturday for nine yards and a total offense figure of 526 yards, short of the Big Ten record of 572.

Northwestern Passing Attack Shocks Gophers

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Northwestern's explosive passing attack, with Tom Myers coming up with the big play, broke a 22-22 tie with a 65-yard aerial to halfback Willie Stinson with 3:56 left and went on to upend Minnesota, 34-22, in a Big Ten football battle Saturday.

The Gophers had just scored on a 52-yard burst up the middle by fullback Jay Sharp and reserve quarterback Bob Sadek passed to end Ray Zitzloff for the conversion to knot it 22-22.

On the first play after the ensuing kickoff, Myers passed to Stinson in the right flat and the elusive 170-pound speedster shook off a tackle at midfield and outsprinted the Gopher defenders to score standing up.

Minnesota gambled on fourth down in its home territory after that and the Wildcats got the ball on downs at the Minnesota 25. Northwestern drove in from there for the clincher two minutes from the end with Myers passing three yards to Paul Flatley for the score.

Myers fired four touchdown passes to obliterate Minnesota's record of not having yielded a point in two previous games. The magnificent sophomore quarterback tossed a 10-yard scoring aerial to Gary Crum to cap an 80-yard Wildcat drive in the first quarter. He later threw nine yards to fullback Steve Murphy for another score before the final two strikes that broke it up.

Soph Sub Sparkles in 14-10 Iowa Win

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Young Bobby Wallace, a virtually untried sophomore quarterback, took over for ailing star Matt Szykowny Saturday and led favored Iowa to a 14-10 Big Ten football victory over stubborn Indiana in 80-degree weather.

The 19-year-old upstart from Alliance, O., scored the winning touchdown in the second period and operated Jerry Burns' T-formation almost flawlessly.

For Indiana it was the 16th consecutive loss in Big Ten warfare and eighth in a row at the hands of Iowa.

Wallace, guiding Iowa's offense the entire game, completed six of 10 passes for 68 yards and capped the Hawkeyes' winning touchdown drive, a 77-yard march, by crashing over from the 1-foot line on a quarterback sneak. Jay Roberts booted his second conversion and that was enough for the winning margin.

INDIANA had led briefly when Luke George kicked a 43-yard field goal.

Coach Phil Dickens' underdogs, who haven't won a Big Ten game since they licked Michigan nearly three years ago, stunned Iowa by scoring in six plays as the game opened, shifty Marv Woodson breaking into the clear for a 54-yard gallop.

Undefeated Kansas Rips Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Kansas, undefeated in the Big Eight, overpowered Iowa State, 29-8, for the Jayhawks' second conference victory Saturday.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Jayhawks scored on drives of 40, 56, 70 and 49 yards with halfback Tony Leiker scoring on runs of 7 and 15 yards. Ken Coleman scored on a one-yard plunge and Gale Sayers ran 8 yards for the final Kansas touchdown.

Iowa State's homecoming day crowd of 22,500 had only one opportunity for elation when the Cyclones narrowed Kansas' 14-0 lead with a fourth-quarter score on a one-yard run by Dave Hoppmann with 11 minutes to play.

After Tom Vaughn ran for the two-point conversion to trim the margin to 14-8, Kansas drove 70 yards in 11 plays to assure its fifth victory in a row over Iowa State, and Sayers' late touchdown widened the gap.

Man to Man

MEADOR

By JERRY WYNN

DETROIT—A favorite son of Downey will try to brake the skid of the Rams today by throttling the custom-special Detroit Lions in the Motor City.

He is compact-sized Ed Meador, the outstanding defensive corner back of the Rams. Usually drawing the most difficult receivers to cover, the baby-faced 5-11, 193-pound four-year veteran has been the sparkplug of the Ram secondary.

In Washington last Sunday, Meador put handcuffs on Redskin star Bobby Mitchell for the first time this season, blocked one field goal attempt, and had a part in another blocked kick.

How do you go about blocking a kick, Ed?

"The whole idea is to have no one block you. In the Redskin game, I saw that their flanker back was concentrating on our inside rush. So I told our linebackers to rush harder inside to give me more room on the outside."

What was your secret to stopping Mitchell?

"I was just lucky. We played quite a bit of zone defense, and he happened to be on my side. He's a good receiver and one of the fastest men in the league."

Who are the toughest receivers for you to cover?

"Every one of them. Every team has got a good one today. Johnny Morris of the Bears always gives me a lot of trouble. It's funny because we are friends and were in the Army together. Frank Clarke of Dallas gave me a pretty rough time and Boyd Dowler of the Packers is so big, I need a ladder to get up to him."

Has there been an improvement in the Rams secondary this season?

"No, as far as pass interceptions go. We've only gotten two in four games. But we have the makings of a real good unit. So much of pass defending depends on a good pass rush. It's hard to evaluate."

Who do you consider the top defensive halfbacks?

"Night Train Lane of the Lions is one of the best, so is Jess Whittenton of Green Bay. There's Yale Lary of the Lions and Jim Patton of the Giants and a lot of other good ones."

Who are the toughest runners for you to tackle?

"As far as power runners, the toughest for me is Nick Pietrosante of the Lions. That rascal's so big, I can't get my arms around him. Jim Taylor and Jimmy Brown are both strong and tough."

Has defense in pro football caught up with the offense?

"I won't say it has caught up, but defense has become a lot more complex even in my four years. That is the reason the offenses are pressed to change their strategy so often now. Every team uses a spread at times to foul up the defense."

Do you get kidded about your size by other players?

"No, I'm as big as Arnett and Bass. Nobody kids me on the field, but in my business (Ducommun Metals and Supply Co.) I have been stopped many times on a sales call by people wanting to know if I'm really a pro football player. All they think of is the John LoVeteres."

What is wrong with the Rams this season.

"I don't know what to say, Jerry. We just wish we knew the answer. One thing is that we've made too many mistakes that cost us. Without them, we could have won three of the four games we lost."

How are the players reacting to losing each week?

"I can only speak for myself. And I know that losing makes me angry. I try to work harder to play better. I think the rest of the players feel the same way. We've had some of our best practices this week."

Do the Rams have a chance to beat the Lions today?

"Sure we do. We respect them. They have the best line to come along in a long time. But we don't fear them. We can beat them."

What has been your greatest thrill as a player?

"I've had a lot of them in pro football. I think the top one was being selected to play in the Pro Bowl in 1960. It sure would be a tremendous thrill to win some games this year."

METS BUY N. SHERRY, DICK SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI) —The New York Mets announced Saturday night that they have purchased catcher Norm Sherry and outfielder Dick Smith from the Dodgers in "a straight cash transaction."

Sherry, 31-year-old brother of Dodger 1959 World Series hero Larry Sherry, played in only 35 games this year and batted .182 with three homers and 16 runs batted in. In two previous seasons with the Dodgers he compiled a .271 batting average.

Smith, 23 and right-handed all the way, batted .265 for Omaha in the American Association this season. He hit 19 homers, drove in 79 runs and stole 30 bases.

Miami Shocks Purdue

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Quarterback Ernie Kellerman and end Bob Jencks teamed up Saturday as Miami of Ohio upset butterfingered Purdue, the nation's ninth ranked team, 10-7.

Kellerman passed 88 yards to Jencks for the Miami touchdown in the second period while Jencks booted the extra point and kicked a 31-yard field goal, missing on another 39-yard try for a three-pointer.

Purdue threatened five times in addition to Ron DiGravio's 49-yard scoring pass to Forest Farmer which gave the Boilermakers a brief 7-3 lead. Fumbles halted two of the threats, two others ended in unsuccessful field goal attempts by Skip Ohl and the Miami defense halted the final threat on its own three-yard line late in the game.

A fumble by Miami's Scott Tyler on his own 18 early in the third period set up another Boilermaker threat but a penalty and a 14-yard loss when DiGravio was trapped trying to pass halted the drive and Ohl's field goal attempt was short.

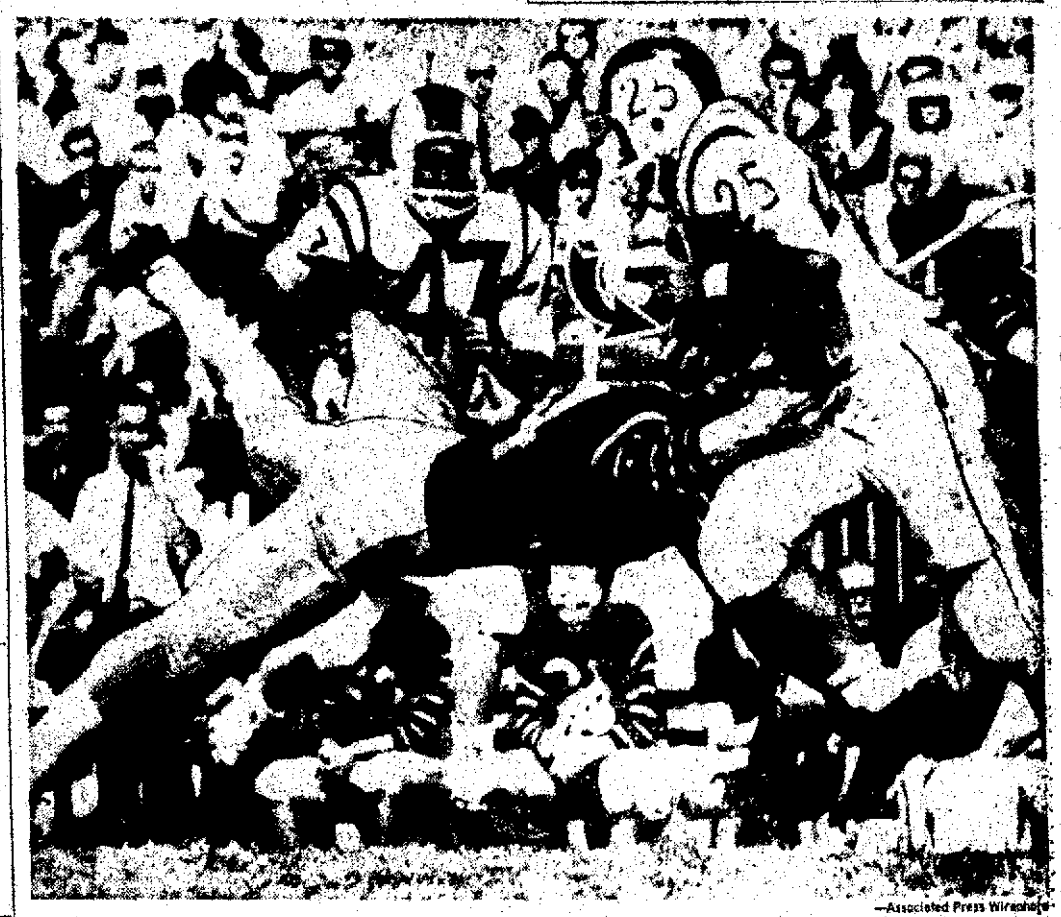

Fumbles by Tom Yakubowski on the Miami 19 and Terry Marcoline on the 24 stopped two other third-period Purdue threats.

Badgers Score First Win in 34 Years Over N. Dame

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Wisconsin unveiled a bruising defensive game to go with its powerful offense Saturday to beat Notre Dame, 17-8, for its third consecutive win this year and first win over the Irish since 1928.

Quarterback Ron VanderKelen took care of the offense, scoring the clinching touchdown in the third quarter on a one-yard plunge and passing 25 yards to all-American end Pat Richter for the Badgers' other score.

But the big story was Wisconsin's defense, relatively untested in easy wins over Indiana and New Mexico State.

Several times the Badgers gave Notre Dame scoring chances, but each time the defense proved up to the crisis. Four Wisconsin passes were intercepted, three by Tommy MacDonald, and four fumbles were lost, with two of the recoveries coming in Wisconsin territory. Once when Ed Hoerster recovered on the Wisconsin 24, the Badgers forced the Irish back one yard in four plays.

* * * *

THE ONLY Notre Dame score came in the final three minutes following a 68-yard march. Don Hogan capped the drive with a three-yard run and Denis Szot passed to Jack Snow for the two-point conversion. Snow set up the TD with a fine reception.

Szot engineered the drive, the only one of a long afternoon for Notre Dame, now 1-2 for the season.

Wisconsin moved to a 10-0 lead in the first quarter with Gary Kroner booting a 34-yard field goal and VanderKelen hitting Richter at the end of a 64-yard drive for the other score. Kroner converted the first of his two PAT's for the day.

It was Richter's seventh consecutive scoring game and he increased his school record for touchdowns on pass receptions.

Wisconsin's second touchdown came in the third period following a recovered fumble by Dion Kempthorne on the Notre Dame five. Merritt Norvell carried the ball to the one-foot line and VanderKelen went over for the touchdown.

* * * *

THE BADGERS threatened twice in the second period, with Gerry Gray intercepting in the end zone to stop one drive and MacDonald intercepting on the last play of the half to halt another. MacDonald also intercepted a pass in the end zone in the third quarter.

VanderKelen, who entered the game with 12 completed passes in 18 throws, completely ripped Notre Dame defenses apart in the first half by completing his first eight passes. He ended with throws for 122 yards.

Nebraska Rallies to Nip Wolfpack

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Halfback Dennis Stuewe raced 13 yards for a touchdown with just over a minute remaining to carry the undefeated Nebraska Cornhuskers to a 19-14 football win over North Carolina State Saturday.

North Carolina State scored the first time it got the ball, with quarterback Jim Rossi carrying it over from three yards out.

Joe Scarpati almost broke the hearts of the 38,000 fans in the third quarter when he returned a kickoff 91 yards for a score after Nebraska had taken a 7-6 lead.

It looked for a while like a two-point conversion the Wolfpack got and one Nebraska didn't would make the difference.

North Carolina State went ahead 14-7 on a two-point conversion following Scarpati's long run.

After the Huskers scored their second touchdown in the fourth quarter on a one-yard plunge by Stuewe, a pass for two extra points fell incomplete and left them a point behind. Dennis Claridge threw one pass for 35 yards and another for 16 yards in the 80-yard drive.

The final drive for the winning touchdown went 68 yards with Claridge passes again the chief factor.

Colorado Drops Another, 36-16

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Slow starting Oklahoma State came alive in the second quarter Saturday and raced past Colorado, 36-16, in a Big Eight football game.

The Cowboys, sluggish and erring in the first quarter, breathed new life after Don Karns took a short pass from quarterback Mike Miller behind the line and zig-zagged 60 yards through a maze of Colorado defenders for the touchdown that put OSU ahead to stay.

From that point the deeper Cowboys simply wore down the scrappy Buffalos who had gone ahead early in the second quarter when end Ken Blair stole an OSU pass and rambled 37 yards to a touchdown. When Larry Ethridge hit Blair with a 2-point conversion pass, Colorado led 8-3—but not for long.

Karns coupled with Dave Hanna's 23-yard first quarter field goal put OSU back in the lead nine plays later.

Then when Colorado failed to move the ball on its next possession, halfback Don Derrick began a personal crusade against the tiring Buffs.

Derrick returned Blair's punt 18 yards to the Colorado 47, then ripped off 26 yards to take it to the Buff 20. He added eight more before Miller ran it over from the one.

Missouri Blasts Kansas State, 32-0

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)— Unbeaten Missouri overpowered Kansas State 32-0 in its Big Eight Conference opener Saturday, with halfback Bill Tobin and Johnny Roland operating smoothly behind a big, tough line.

Tobin, a 193-pound senior, caught two touchdown passes, one from Roland, and set up another touchdown with a 21-yard burst. Roland, a fleet and clever 191-pound sophomore, scored twice besides his 9-yard touchdown flick to Tobin.

Coach Dan Devine then inserted Keith Weber, the talented sophomore quarterback and Weber directed a crew of third-stringers to the fifth Missouri touchdown. Halfback Dave Harvey took a pitchout from Weber and passed five yards to sophomore halfback Vince Tobin in the end zone.

The undermanned Wildcats, who have yet to score in four games this season, moved into Missouri territory only twice and never passed the Tiger 45.

Chargers Trampled by Bills

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Powered by Warren Rabb, Cookie Gilchrist and a savage defense, the long-suffering Buffalo Bills trampled the San Diego Chargers, 35-10, Saturday night for their first American Football League victory of the season.

The victory-starved crowd of 20,074 roared its approval of the smashing triumph, which ended a six-game losing streak for the Bills. It was icing on the cake as Lou Saban celebrated his 41st birthday with his first win as Buffalo coach.

The Bills had lost five in a row this season as well as the final game of the 1961 campaign. Ironically, San Diego started the Buffalo losing streak last December.

Rabb, the lanky signal-caller from LSU, tossed three touchdown passes, two of spectacular variety, and the 243-pound Gilchrist scored twice while piling up valuable yardage.

Rabb hit speedy flanker back Albert Dubenion for a 19-yard scoring pass in the first period, Glenn Bass for a sensational 76-yard TD in the second and found Gilchrist on a seven-yard pitch in the third quarter. Cookie flashed over from the one-yard line 33 seconds before intermission to give the Bills a 21-3 bulge.

Rookie Carl Charon of Buffalo made a leaping interception of a Dick Wood pass early in the fourth period and ran 51 yards to set up Wayne Crow's two-yard touchdown plunge.

World's Top Drivers in Rich Riverside Prix

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Roger Penske, in the pole position, and other American drivers will try to fend off highly touted foreign entrants today in the $32,000 Riverside Grand Prix for sports cars.

Penske of Gladwyne, Pa., driving a Zerez-Duralite Climax, set the pace for the twisting 2.6-mile course with an average speed of 96.5 miles an hour in Friday's qualifications.

Doug Hooper of La Crescenta, Calif., driving a 1963 Chevrolet Corvette Stingray, won the invitational three-hour Enduro Saturday, in a prelude to today's action. More than 10,000 fans viewed the race under sunny skies.

Hooper was clocked at an average speed of 84.06 miles an hour for 262.2 miles as the new Stingray was put into competition for the first time.

Billy Krause, 1960 Grand Prix winner, led the Enduro for the first half-hour in another new car—his Ford AC Cobra—until the car's rear axle broke. Krause of Long Beach, Calif., has been plagued by car trouble and notified officials that he would not attempt to qualify in the consolation race today.

Sharing the front position with Penske will be Bruce McLaren Surrey, England, No. 1 man for the Cooper driving team, and Walt Hansgen, Westfield, N. J., driving a Cooper Buick.

Jim Hall of Midland, Tex., and oilman who has his own racing track at home, will start his Chaparral-Chevy from the fourth position.

The Americans face a formidable array of experienced European grand prix drivers including the current world championship point leader Graham Hill of England. Bespectacled Masten Gregory, an American living abroad, Sweden's Joakim Bonnier, Australia's Jack Brabham and England's Innes Ireland were among the top 15 qualifiers.

Wismer Plans 'New' Football Season

The battle for the entertainment dollar throughout the country is becoming more bitter all the time and it is leading to some radical thinking about schedule changes . . . especially in pro football.

Baseball and pro football now overlap for a period of two and one-half months, but that isn't all of it.

The pro basketball teams started their exhibition games three weeks ago and will open their regular schedule shortly, and ice hockey already has completed its pre-season card and started its championship race.

HARRY WISMER
No TV Competition

So, there has been some serious discussion by various groups in recent months to map out a solution for their respective problems.

The American Football League in particular has found the opposition to its product quite oppressive as it continues to fight desperately for survival.

One of the most controversial figures in sports, Harry Wismer, major domo of the AFL's New York Titans, believes he has hit upon a plan that would give his league a tremendous boost.

It's a simple solution, he points out, "We should start our championship race late in October after the World Series and continue through February . . . two months after the rival NFL closes down," he says.

Wismer says the plan to change seasons will be put before the league owners next January when they meet in New Orleans. "In January and February we can command more national TV money while being exposed to a larger viewing audience," he points out.

"THE SPONSORS ARE EAGER to give it a try . . . especially because there will be no competition on national TV beginning next year since the national telecasts of the NBA have been canceled," Harry explains.

Wismer is the one who arranged for the excellent TV schedule that ultimately could put the AFL on solid footing if it can hold out . . . especially if he can sell everyone on the new "season."

There is no denying that the league would have folded after its first year if it hadn't been for the TV contract, which will have given the eight clubs a total of $4,200,000 by the end of this season — the loop's third.

Each club got $185,000 the first season, $115,000 last year and a high of $225,000 this trip.

BY THE END OF THE CURRENT campaign, the AFL will have suffered losses totaling around $7 million. Thus, you can see what the "blood bath" would have been without TV.

By comparison, the NFL is working on the first year of its new television contract under which each club gets about $325,000.

Wismer was questioned about the weather problems that are sure to pop up under his new plan. "Yes, it would prove troublesome at times . . . but no more so than it does now in late November and early December. We naturally would have to schedule as many games as possible in our 'warm-weather' cities during January and February."

Despite the league's heavy losses, Wismer insists it will continue operation. He says the league will vote in New Orleans for next season and "there will be other changes that will strengthen the league."

MEANWHILE, SOME OWNERS in the NFL are looking for ways to boost profits even more . . . while producing a better schedule.

Art Modell, the young president of the Cleveland Browns, would like to see the present schedule of 14 games boosted to 16.

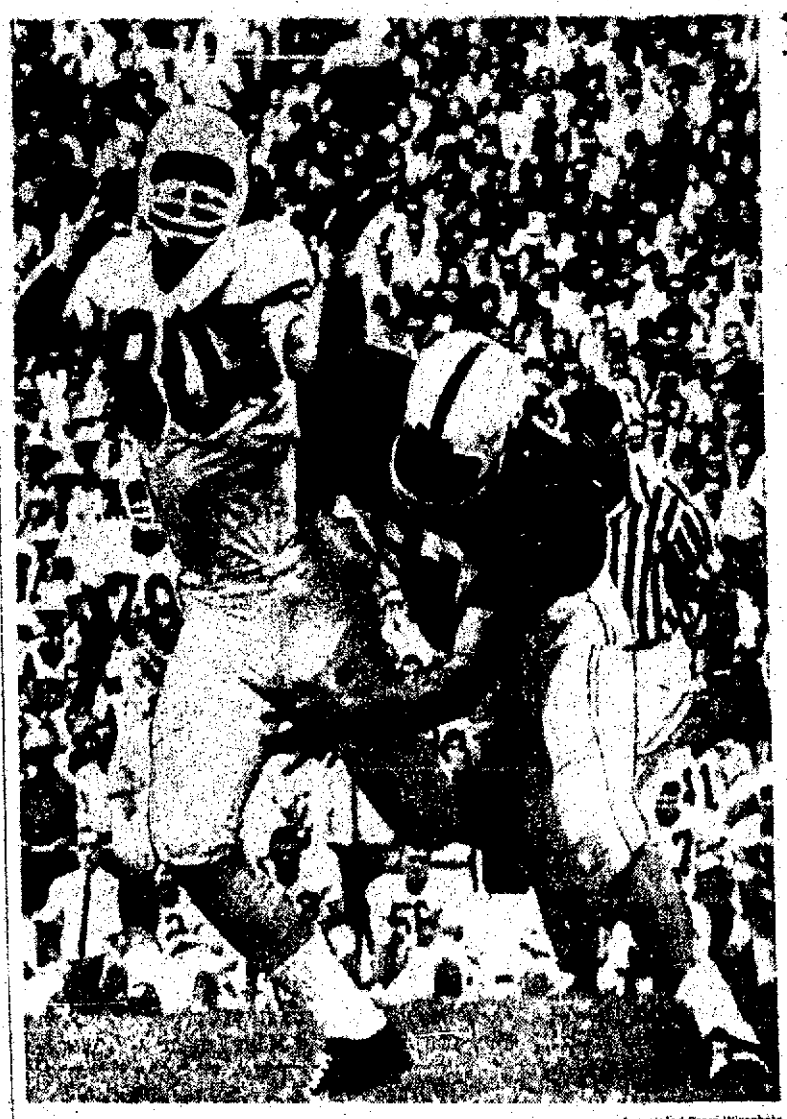

It could be done be merely switching two games from exhibition status to championship rating without raising the present overall total of 19 games.

Others agree that this might be a good idea for two reasons: (1) the original theory of pre-season games no longer is followed closely, and (2) the two extra games would boost the take from television.

Exhibitions once were played primarily to test new talent. The results were not important.

Now, however, many clubs find the exhibition schedule a great source of revenue and as a result the outcome of the games is much more important. Coaches no longer can experiment as freely in many instances as in the past.

And as long as they have to play it to the hilt, why not turn the exhibitions into games that count in the standings.

Oklahoma Fumbles Give Longhorns 9-6 Victory

DALLAS (UPI) — Shoeless Tony Crosby's 26-yard second quarter field goal provided No. 1 ranked Texas with a fist-swinging, 9-6, intersectional victory over arch-rival Oklahoma Saturday.

Crosby's three-point punch and the recovery of an Oklahoma fumble in the Sooners' end zone by center Perry McWilliams was all that kept the Southwest Conference co-champions in the ball game against an Oklahoma team that defeated itself with fumbles and penalties.

The game erupted into a free-swinging gang fight with four seconds left on the clock after an Oklahoma player piled on Texas quarterback Johnny Genung as Texas ran out the clock. The fight lasted about one minute without any apparent major casualties despite the fact players from both benches joined in the fray.

Oklahoma stayed in the temper-frayed contest with a pair of specially-designed desperation passes just as the first half ended. Both were long throws from sophomore halfback Ronnie Fletcher to sophomore halfback Lance Rentzel. The first covered 39 yards and the touchdown throw was a 34-yarder that found Rentzel alone in the end zone.

Otherwise, the two great lines fought each other to a standstill and offensive thrills were rare as Texas won its fourth game of the season without defeat and the fifth in a row against Oklahoma in the 57-game series between the two clubs.

Oklahoma's linebackers kept Texas' talented running attack sputtering much of the humid afternoon despite the fact the Longhorns gained 198 yards rushing to only 66 for Oklahoma.

Texas' longest sustained drive was a 36-yard affair at the end of the game while running out the clock.

Both teams lost the ball twice on fumbles, but the two the Longhorns recovered meant the ball game. McWilliams got one of them for the touchdown and reserve quarterback Duke Carlisle got the other to pave the way for Crosby's field goal.

Oregon's Renfro Runs Rice Ragged

HOUSTON (UPI) — Oregon's marvelous Mel Renfro scored one touchdown, and set up three others with runs of 45, 20, and 30 yards Saturday night as the Ducks defeated Rice 31-12.

Renfro's one yard scoring plunge, Buck Corey's 27-yard field goal and Ron Veres' 17-yard touchdown pass to end Paul Burleson piled up a 17-0 halftime lead for Oregon.

Rice came back with two third-quarter touchdowns on a three-yard sneak by quarterback Walter McReynolds and a five-yard end sweep by halfback Gene Fleming. Both extra point attempts from placement failed.

Oregon's sophomore quarterback Bob Berry added third and fourth quarter touchdowns on runs of one and eleven yards. Corey kicked all four extra points for the Ducks.

The explosive Renfro rambled for 141 yard rushing, including gainers of 30, 18, 45, and 20 yards in addition to a 65-yard pass interception runback that set up a touchdown.

Renfro snatched off a desperation pass from Rice's McReynolds and weaved to the Owl 17-yard line before going out of bounds with one second left in the first half.

Veres came off the bench, rolled out on the next play and hit Burleson with the scoring strike in the end zone from which Rice never recovered.

The Webfoot's offense worked so well Oregon did not have to punt anytime in the game. However, fumbles and interceptions stopped several Duck drives.

LSU Topples Miami, 17-3

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Louisiana State's Tigers toppled Miami from the unbeaten ranks Saturday night, 17-3, despite a brilliant passing exhibition by Hurricane quarterback George Mira.

Mira, a 6-foot, 175-pound junior, completed 14 of 33 passes for 169 yards but for the first time this year failed to throw a touchdown pass in a game.

Miami grabbed a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on Bobby Wilson's 20-yard field goal, but LSU shot ahead 10-3 in the second quarter on a 30-yard field goal by Lynn Amedee and a 26-yard touchdown run by Jerry Stovall.

The defeat was the first for Miami in four games and left LSU with a 3-0-1 record.

Miami controlled the ball throughout most of the first quarter and marched from its own 12 to the LSU 3 before bogging down. Then Wilson kicked the field goal that put the Hurricanes ahead briefly.

LSU fullback Preston Ward recovered a Miami fumble on the Hurricane 20 to set up the Tigers' field goal. Three plays carried to the 13, and Amedee's field goal tied the score at 3-3.

LSU marched 80 yards for its go-ahead touchdown, with Amedee throwing key passes of 19 and 15 yards to Charles Cranford.

Stovall streaked up the middle from the 26 to score.

LSU DROVE 54 yards in 10 plays for its second touchdown, with LeBlanc, Bo Campbell and Ward alternating as ball-carriers. LeBlanc got his touchdown on a power run that carried two would-be tacklers with him.

Alabama Defense Throttles Houston

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Defensive specialist Lee Roy Jordan scored the winning touchdown and bulwarked an awesome Alabama defense Saturday as the Crimson Tide whipped Houston 14-3 in a blistering intersectional football game.

The stingy Tide threw Houston backs for a minus-49 rushing yardage. The Cougars managed to pick up 45 yards passing but still wound up with a four-yard deficit overall.

A brilliant pass interception and runback by Houston halfback Gene Ritch set up a 30-yard Cougar field goal by Bill McMillan late in the first period.

But the top-ranked Alabamans erased the deficit and went ahead early in the second quarter when the Houston center passed the ball over the head of fullback Bobby Brenzina as he went back to punt. Brenzina grabbed the ball in the end zone, but 'Bama end Charles Stephens shook the ball loose and Jordan grabbed it.

The Tide scored again midway in the third period, marching 65 yards in 12 plays. During the drive 'Bama coach Paul Bryant pulled his sophomore quarterback Joe Namath in favor of Jack Hurlbut. The 6-foot-1 Texan took the Tide in for the touchdown with halfback Cotton Clark going the final three yards.

Alabama has now run its unbeaten string to 22.

Arkansas Scared, but Wins

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The undefeated Arkansas Razorbacks, with quarterback Billy Moore the key man both in the air and on the ground, turned back Baylor 28-21 Saturday but only after experiencing a frightening second half.

The Razorbacks piled up a 28-7 lead in the first half only to have Baylor come back after intermission with its own passing attack behind quarterback Don Trull and terrorize them with a 29-yard touchdown aerial followed quickly by another score on the ground.

The victory was Arkansas' fourth and its second in Southwest Conference play where it is shooting for its fourth straight year as champion or co-champion.

Trull rocked the Razorbacks with the help of great receiving by Claude Pearson, James Ingram and Ronnie Goodwin. Goodwin speared the 29-yard touchdown toss in the third period. He also scored soon afterwards on a four-yard run.

Some 27,000 fans watched as Falcon quarterback Terry Isaacon and sophomore Dave Backus picked Arizona's line to shreads with their pass-run option plays to hand the Wildcats their third straight loss against one victory.

Isaacson passed 27 yards to senior end Dick Brown for the game's opening touchdown in the fourth minute of play.

Lothridge's Heroics Too Much for Vols

ATLANTA (AP) — Brilliant Billy Lothridge, Georgia Tech's triple-threat quarterback, ran, passed and kicked the powerful Yellow Jackets to a 17-0 triumph Saturday over Southeastern Conference football rival Tennessee.

A record Grant Field crowd of 52,223 shirtsleeved fans saw the 184-pound junior run for Tech's first touchdown, pass to his high school buddy, Billy Martin, for the second and kick a 26-yard field goal to cap another scoring drive.

Tech, bidding for a return to the national rankings, has scored 67 points while posting a 3-1 season record, and Lothridge has had a hand or a foot in every point. Tennessee is 0-3 for the year.

Will 'Radical Changes' Put Punch in Rams' Offense?

By JERRY WYNN
L-P-T Staff Writer

DETROIT — Shaken by four successive defeats, the Rams may shake up their lineup against the powerful Detroit Lions today.

Although coach Bob Waterfield has indicated he intends to field his regular lineup for the opening kickoff at Tiger Stadium, there is a good chance it will be altered radically early in the game.

The changes should see rookie Ron Miller replace Zeke Bratkowski at quarterback, Jon Arnett return to action at left halfback, Les Richter move from middle linebacker to offensive center and two other key defensive players take over the offensive guard positions.

The shakeup, if carried out, is intended to put more punch in an offense which has been limited to four touchdowns in its last two games, and one that has flopped all season.

The Rams will need every weapon at their disposal if they hope to puncture the steel-fabricated defensive fortress of the Lions, the strongest in football.

How good is the Detroit defense?

"Any team that can hold the Packers without touchdown is pretty good, wouldn't you say?" Waterfield answered one question with another.

The Ram coach was referring to Detroit's 9-7 loss to Green Bay last week, the Lions' first defeat after three impressive victories. Now paired against the winless Rams, Detroit is rated a substantial 15-point favorite.

But Lion coach George Wilson isn't taking the Rams lightly.

"They are just too good a football team to be winless in four games," was the message he delivered to his players this week . . . one being heard all around the league.

The Rams know from experience in past years of the sturdy Detroit defensive posture, but will be encountering for the first time the new-look explosive Lion offense.

With Milt Plum at quarterback, Detroit ran up 45, 45 and 29 points against the Steelers, 49ers and Colts in its first three games. Plum's passing to Terry Barr, Gail Cogdill and Jim Gibbons has been the big factor while the hard running of Nick Pietrosante and Danny Lewis has kept rival defenses honest.

The major question for the Rams is how well will Miller, the inexperienced rookie, respond against the pressure the Lion defense will exert upon him. It should be an interesting afternoon for Bucky Badger.

Beman's 66 Helps U.S. Retain Cup

KAWANA, Japan, (UPI)—Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., shot a record-equalling 66 Saturday to help the United States retain the world amateur golf team championship.

The U.S., up against an unrelenting foe in Canada, produced a fine team effort on the final round of the four-day tournament to edge the Canadians by eight strokes in the team score. The Yanks, who won the Eisenhower Cup, emblematic of world amateur golf supremacy by 42 strokes two years ago, led by only two shots going into the round.

RACE ROUNDUP

Season $$ Mark Falls to Adios

By ERNIE MASON

Given a confident drive by Stanley Dancer, brilliant Henry T. Adios established an all-time money-winning mark for a single season by winning the $20,000 Fall Maturity Pace Saturday before a crowd of 18,541 at Hollywood Park.

Henry T. Adios, the top 4-year-old pacer in the country, earned $10,000 for his winning end of the purse to boost his earnings for 1962 to $218,774, which tops the mark of $212,433 set by Bye Bye Byrd in 1959.

The son of Adios won by a length and a quarter over Mighty Tide, with Sharydale Monitor finishing another three and a half lengths back for third.

The winning time for the race was 1:58 4/5, which is the fastest clocking of the meeting and the third 2:00 mile established during the first seven days of racing.

NEW YORK (AP) —It was no contest as jockey Manuel Ycaza opened the throttle wide at the top of the stretch and Never Bend raced to an eight-length victory over Master Dennis in New York's $189,675 champagne stakes at Belmont Park.

Never Bend returned $2.90, $2.50 and $2.10. Master Dennis paid $5.70 and $3.20 while Outing Class was $2.70 to show.

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP) — Meadow Stable's Cicada won the $27,775 Jersey Belle Stakes by five and a half lengths under Ismael Valenzuela Saturday at Garden State Park.

Cicada paid $2.60, $2.60 and $2.20. Rare Stamp returned $4.60 and $2.20.

CHICAGO (AP) — Tumblewood Stable's Tumble Turbie charged from behind Saturday and won the $29,100 Chicago Handicap at Hawthorne.

ALBANY (AP) — After a slow start, Top Performance closed strongly and won the $10,000 Richmond Handicap Saturday at Golden Gate Field.

LION IN ARMY TRAP
Penn State all-America candidate Roger Kochman is stopped for no gain by Army's Ray Paske (37) and John Ellerson (87) in first quarter of Michie Stadium battle Saturday. Cadets upset Nittany Lions, 9-6.

Melee as Army's Bandits Steal Ball, Stun Penn State

THE EAST

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP)—Army pounced on a fourth quarter fumble and scored on a 15-yard pass from quarterback Cammy Lewis to Dick Peterson Saturday for a 9-6 upset victory over Penn State, ranked third nationally.

The fiercely played game ended in utter confusion. Twice the excited gray-uniformed cadet corps rushed out on the field prematurely and had to be removed before the last play could be run off. Army and Penn State players exchanged blows in a wild melee that brought both coaches off the bench just before the final gun.

The previously unbeaten Nittany Lions were leading 6-3 on field goals of 32 and 24-yards by Ron Coates when Tom Kerns, center on Army's brazen Chinese bandits, grabbed a ball on the Penn State 18 which had slipped from the hands of Junior Powell.

After two running plays had picked up only three yards and a pass had gone incomplete, Lewis hit Peterson with a scoring pass in the end zone. A pass attempt for the extra point failed.

ARMY'S other score in the bitterly waged battle before a record homecoming crowd of 31,000 at Michie Stadium came on a 35-yard field goal in the fading seconds of the opening period by Dick Heydt.

Army's surprise victory thwarted Penn State's bid for a "grand slam sweep" of the service academies. The powerful Penn Staters previously had beaten both Navy and the Air Force, and last week had won over Rice in Houston.

It was primarily a victory for the Chinese bandits, who stymied Penn State to four first downs and a total of 38 yards rushing and 13 passing.

Pittsburgh Surprised

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tom Woodeshick's 49-yard romp took West Virginia out of a hole in the fourth quarter Saturday, and the Mountaineers—engineered by quarterback Jerry Yost — proceeded to score a 15-8 upset football victory over Pitt.

Woodeshick's run up the left sideline from his own nine to Pitt's 42 gave Yost a chance to direct the Mountaineers to their fourth consecutive victory, three of them shutouts. Left halfback Tom Yeater scored the winning touchdown on a four-yard dash with 5:34 left in the game.

THE Panthers, now 2-2, had spoiled West Virginia's unscored-on streak 10 minutes before on Paul Martha's dazzling 34-yard run and Jim Traficant's two-point conversion pass to Gene Sobolewski. That came with 34 seconds left in the third quarter.

Navy Routs Cornell, 41-0

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Navy's reorganized football team — studded with sophomores and juniors including quarterback Roger Staubach — exploded Saturday for a 41-0 rout of Cornell before a crowd of 23,358, largest in Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium history.

Navy coach Wayne Hardin, disappointed in his "veteran" players, by-passed most of them in favor of sophs and juniors and the strategy paid off in the Midshipmens' second victory of the season in four starts.

Staubach, a sophomore from Cincinnati, O., set up Navy's first TD, scored the second and third on "keeper" plays and added a fourth score late in the game on a 10-yard pass to end Ed Merino of Long Beach, Calif.

Orange Hands B.C. First Loss

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI)—Quarterback Wally Mahle, playing his first varsity game, scored Syracuse's only two touchdowns of the season Saturday to help defeat previously unbeaten Boston College, 12-0.

The six-foot-three, 180-pound sophomore from Erie, Pa., engineered a 74-yard drive in 16 plays in the opening series of the game and then drove over from the 10-yard line for the first score.

Mahle thrilled the crowd of 31,000 by scooting over from the 20-yard line with seven seconds remaining in the game for his second touchdown of the afternoon that capped an 86-yard drive.

Casper, Lema Share Bakersfield Lead

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — Amiable Billy Casper Jr. and handsome Tony Lema deadlocked Saturday at 205 for a two-shot lead going into today's final round of the $40,000 Bakersfield Open golf tournament—richest event of the fall tour.

Casper, fourth-ranked money winner, from Apple Valley, Calif., fired a seven-under par 65, while Lema, San Leandro, Calif., shotmaker who won the recent Sahara Invitational, came in with a 68.

Billy's hot round was overshadowed by a course-record tying 64, earlier by big George Bayer, who trailed the leaders by five shots.

"It was my best putting round of the year," said Casper, "I dug up an old putter at home and tried it again. It has a little loft and worked fine, but I don't think I could have gone another hole."

Casper, bidding for his fourth tourney victory this year, had nines of 31-34, including eight birdies and a bogey. His sub-par putts ranged from 4 to 18 feet.

"I'm playing better than I ever have," said Lema. "My mental attitude is good and I'm not getting upset over a poor shot. It has taken me three years to get this way at least part of the time."

Bayer had 31-33, with an eagle, seven birds and a bogey. His previous rounds were a scrambling 77 and a 69.

Basketball Drills Begin Monday at L. B. State

Twenty - one candidates will be on hand as basketball drills begin Monday at Long Beach State.

Coach Dick Perry will welcome back seven men from last year's club which finished third in CCAA play with a 7-5 mark and 14-12 over-all. These include starters Lyn Hodge, center, and guards Bobby Holland and Stan Andersen. The latter has only a half season of eligibility remaining.

The first roster also has eight newcomers and six players up from last year's frosh-JV team.

Perry is high on transfers Johnnie Johnson, 6-6; Al Windfeldt, 6-5; Phil Herman, 6-4; Lonnie Moore, 6-3, and Jim Payne, 6-2½.

Best of the ex-JV crop seems to be 6-5 center Bob Roeland, 6-0 guard Bill Brummel and 6-5 forward Ken Ammann.

Main problem facing Perry before his club opens the season at Gonzaga Nov. 30 is replacing his first four forwards: Bill Florentine, Dave Jones and Ron Batson, who have graduated, and Ken Knapp who is not in school.

CANDIDATES

Returnees—Stan Andersen, Jack Bogdanovich, Tom Dortch, Gary Ernst, Lyn Hodge, Bob Holland, Dick Montgomery.

Transfers — Phil Herman, Tony Garofalo, Art Green, Johnnie Johnson, Lonnie Moore, Jim Payne, Eric Pitts, Al Windfeldt.

Up from Frosh-JV—Ken Ammann, Bob Roeland, Dave Stockham, Duane Tanner, Bill Brummel, Fred Kibala.

Two-Percent Boat Tax Proposed

A meeting of vital concern to all boat owners has been called for Tuesday in the New State Building in Los Angeles. At that time the California Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Revenue and Taxation will delve into the in lieu tax proposal for all boats in this state.

Briefly, should the tax be imposed, it would replace present city and county methods of taxation. It would be similar to the automobile fee and would mean a two-percent tax per year up the market value of a boat.

Sen. George Miller Jr., chairman of the Senate committee, points out that recreational boating has become one of the state's greatest activities with 275,000 boats registered this year. But, says Miller, needed facilities and protective and regulative service in the public as well as in the boaters' interest has lagged mainly because of inadequate financing.

Miller promises that all interested parties will be given a chance to present their side of the story at the Tuesday hearing. Anybody interested may call MAdison 0-3030 Monday for the hour and room where the hearing will be held. Inasmuch as state offices were closed Friday and Saturday, it was impossible at this writing to get that information.

THE LOWER DRAINAGE AREA of the Sisquoc River in Santa Barbara County always has presented a problem to fisheries experts who strive to keep it as a trout stream, but who are hopelessly swamped by a population of rough fish (chubs).

In order to help that situation, the Department of Fish and Game has planted 1,300 Coosa bass (commonly called redeye bass) from Tennessee. Already the redeyes have gone to work and virtually eliminated the chubs in the lower pools of the river.

The fish never gets much larger than 10 inches, but it has a voracious appetite and is a good fighter when taken on light tackle. It likes lures in fast water, but prefers grasshoppers and crickets in the pools. The fish thrives in marginal water too warm for trout and too small for other species of bass.

If this experiment is successful, DFG men point out, fishable populations of the redeye bass should be available within two or three years.

Also, if the bass clean out the chubs, it may give the DFG a chance to plant more trout in upper parts of the river and thereby provide a new rainbow fishery for the anglers of Southern California.

AN INITIAL LOAD OF CATFISH fingerlings is being planted today in the Indian Reservation section of the Colorado River below Parker Dam. Work is being done by the U. S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife as a part of the cooperative program with the states of California and Arizona to replenish and augment the population of catfish in the river.

When the bureau finally finishes its job, 500,000 catfish fingerlings will have been planted, and many of those fingerlings will be kingsize cats by 1964 or 1965.

That section of the Colorado River has gradually lost its fish life because of the diversion of much water through the Palo Verde Dam and low water has interfered with the migration of channel catfish upstream.

Resort owners have prodded the Department of Fish and Game. DFG officials, in turn, pointed out that the problem was one that affected both California and Arizona and that some agency would have to work out the solution. Needless to say, resort owners haven't been very happy about the situation. Some have turned to water skiers and have forgotten fishing entirely. This present plan may restore a fishery that was practically lost. It attracted hundreds of Long Beach-area residents.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — Doubleday & Company, Inc., continuing its Natural History Library in the paperback series, has released the following five books: "Cells: Their Structure and Function," by E. H. Mercer; "Adventures With a Texas Naturalist," by Roy Bedichek; "The Forest People; A Study of the Pygmies of the Congo," by Colin M. Turnbull; "The Navaho," by Clyde Kluckholm and Dorothea Leighton, and "The Yosemite," by John Muir.

Doubleday has now printed about three dozen books of this series. The books are available at book stores or from Doubleday, 575 Madison Ave., New York 22, N.Y. They range between $.95 and $1.45.

Good news for the southpaws: Ithaca Gun Co., Inc., of Ithaca, N.Y., has just put out its Model 37 featherlite repeater with a bottom-ejection chamber which keeps the shells out of the face of the handicapped left-handed shooter.

It also is equipped with a reverse safety. Ithaca says that it was the first gun company to take note of left-handers' problems.

That bottom-ejection idea sounds like it might be good for right-handers, too. Certainly, the shell casings wouldn't be flying into the face of another shooter in a small blind.

— OPEN LETTER —

From John D. Cotter
Cotter's Used Cars
Station Wagon Lot
2223 L. B. Blvd.

I want to bring before the public what we have worked for during the past 20 years, that has resulted in 20 years of fair dealing in clean cars.

We, at Cotter's Used Cars, took pride in ourselves and our company over these years of selling the cleanest cars in Southern California. We do not deal in so-called "price cars" or "gimmick" financing.

We continue to sell the cleanest cars in this area, at a fair price, with fair dealings to all our customers. Our warranty is not hard for us to back up, because all of our cars are checked out before sale.

Come see us for the cleanest cars in Southern California, at fair prices, and for fair dealing.

Sincerely,
John D. Cotter

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Wrightson Blasts at Phony Voice Teachers

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Earl Wrightson, the bearded baritone, enjoys saying, "I'm lucky that when I came to New York, I ran into Robert Weede instead of some phony voice teacher."

Frequently when he makes such a remark, a voice student inquires, "Does Mr. Weede have you begin each day with the fundamental animal grunt?"

"WHAT!" shouts Wrightson. "That's what I mean! Hell," he adds, "there are some great teachers, but, so many voice teachers can't afford to be honest because there aren't that many people with talent walking into their studios. They can't make a living being honest.

"ANYWAY," Wrightson growls, "it's also the pupils' fault. They want some magic formula, such as lying on the floor with books piled on your stomach.

"Walk through Carnegie or Steinway Hall and listen to what comes through those doors and you'll hear what I mean. Voices mashed up, voices that shouldn't even be allowed out of the bathroom! I've talked to teachers who've said, 'Yes, but if I don't take their money, somebody down the hall will.'"

* * * *

Weede he now calls "Pop" because that's what he's been to Wrightson.

"Weede won't take on anybody who can't sing," Wrightson says. "A voice teacher can only clean out the junk and make you sing naturally. Weede made me sit down and read the newspapers alould and open up my mouth. It's drudgery. It's nothing magic."

* * * *

WRIGHTSON, now 37, is constantly on TV now and also appears in supper clubs and theaters with Lois Hunt . . . but his Van Dyke-like beard has occasionally caused some difficulty for TV.

He refused to work for a couple of sponsors who wanted him to shave it off.

"Why do I insist on it?" he said. "Well, I have a forgettable face without it. And after all, you don't go into this business to be anonymous. And besides — I like it!"

VICTOR BORGE . . . With Comedy Package

Borge's Drolleries of '62 at L.B. Auditorium Oct. 22

Victor Borge, two concert grand pianos and a "long lost piano student" will appear at Municipal Auditorium at 8:30 p.m., Oct. 22.

Borge's drolleries are entitled, "Comedy in Music."

The "long lost piano student" is Leonid Hambro, on leave from his post as regular pianist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra to make the present tour with Borge.

The two take their seats sedately at the two pianos.

That is the last sedate thing about the program, which offers comedy, fine music and fun with music.

Overhead Brings Down the Profit

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Success in Hollywood is costly.

Rita Moreno, after some tough years, won an Oscar for "West Side Story."

She figured that since the Oscar it has cost her more to answer fan mail than she made in the year preceding the Oscar winning movie.

The one-night showing of the Pulitzer prize drama, will be presented by the Freeway Circuit touring stock company which recently presented the work at UCLA. The showing here is sponsored by the Long Beach Jewish Community Center's cultural program, Center Presents.

NO SAVING

Tax Bills Wait Heflin's Return

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Van Heflin, who makes pictures all over the world, says: "everybody thinks I do it to save taxes."

But he says he doesn't.

"I live in airplanes more than I do in our house in Brentwood but I always go back there after every picture job in Europe or wherever—and those tax bills are always waiting in the mailbox."

DANNY KAYE . . . Tells Why He Does It

'Dr. Kaye' Tells Motivating Push

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Why, a reporter asked, did Danny Kaye work eight hours a day in films and then turn out occasionally to play to live audiences?

Does it fill some psychological need? the reporter asked.

KAYE ECHOED the question, "psychological need?" Then he went into a hammy routine—with gestures:

"I do this because I need the love (here he places his hand over heart) that the audience gives me. I do it because I feel rejected if I don't get the roars of applause" and, his voice dropping back to normal, he concluded, "that's a lot of horse manure."

"I DO IT because I like it" and "because it makes me a very wealthy man."

(Kaye makes between $500,000 and $750,000 a year, but could make more. He doesn't want to work any more than he does, prefers travelling to being a full time movie actor, won't do a regular TV show).

Phenomenal Growth in Year Reported by Harvill Corp.

SOUTHLAND PROGRESS
★ BUSINESS-REAL ESTATE-INDUSTRY ★
THE NEWS-INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM, OCT. 16, 1962

Harvill Corp.'s New Home, Just Northwest of Long Beach on Susana Road

Business Doubled for Harvill Corp.

COMPTON—Stories of growth in California companies are not unique, but when a metal-working firm drifts along for 20 years at the same pace and then suddenly doubles its sales in 12 months—that's unusual business news.

Harvill Corp., a die cating company which, a few months ago was low on any broker's list of growth stocks, has (1) plunged into the defense business; (2) moved here into a new plant; (3) jumped its sales from $3,000,000 to $6,000,000, all within the past year.

What happened?

Says a recent financial report: "New leadership, new abilities, new facilities and new products."

But President James W. Tuthill adds another ingredient—"a little bit o' luck."

* * * *

"DESPITE all our careful planning and hard work, if we hadn't been lucky we still might be fighting that $3,000,000 sales barrier," he admits.

Founded in 1929, Harvill sales exceeded $2,000,000 for the first time in 1942 and in the ensuing years had never topped $3,700,000 until now.

Tuthill and board chairman Murray S. Gelber, both of whom formerly held executive positions at Garrett Corp., joined Harvill in April, 1960. They immediately decided that the firm's military sales backlog of $189,000 was "a piddlin' amount."

"With important defense contractors in this area who often went outside of California for expert die casting, it would have been short-changing the stockholders not to go after more military work," Tuthill says.

* * * *

"AFTER NINE months we were still scrabbling for this work when two prime manufacturers received contracts which required precision castings—in large volume and in a hurry. We received the subcontracts. This was our lucky break."

One of these was for rocket fins on a new Army chemical missile for ground forces.

The other was for components of two different weapons, both of which were classified "secret."

About the same time the company, which had been located for 25 years at Century and Sepulveda Boulevards, had drawn plans to build a $1,300,000 plant at 19201 Susana Road in the Ranchos San Pedro industrial area, just northwest of Long Beach.

And, in January, 1961, Femco Co., of Redondo Beach, a small but vital part of aircraft manufacturing with its custom-made hinges, was acquired for cash.

* * * *

"THINGS DIDN'T look too bad," says Tuthill. "We were still supplying old commercial customers like Bendix, Collins Radio, IBM, Ampex, Motorola and Sperry-Rand with die castings.

"We believed we would be occupying our new 101,000 sq. ft. facility in September, in time to swing into heavy production on military orders. And we contracted for a new 30,000 sq. ft. plant for our Femco division, which would be located one-half block from us.

"We also bought a small company which made molded plastic fibreglass products."

Then, in ensuing months, the luck turned sour.

For various reasons, construction of the new plant was not completed on time and Harvill was forced to remain in its old plant—and operate assembly lines which became known as "nightmare alleys"—during four months of peak military production.

* * * *

AISLES WERE JAMMED with three times the former number of employes, and carts, trucks and skip loaders.

Operations were conducted on a 24-hour, seven-day-a-week basis in wartime-like confusion.

Despite these problems the job was done. Hundreds of thousands of close-tolerance components were produced and delivered on schedule. They later were assembled into weapons about which the company still cannot speak.

Since February of this year Harvill has been producing castings for its military and commercial customers in its new plant which Tuthill calls "physically one of the finest die casting facilities in the nation."

* * * *

SALES FOR the fiscal year ending Oct. 31 will amount to $6,000,000, more than double any year's volume since 1952, during the Korean War.

Management, riding hard after more business, expects fiscal 1963 to jump into the $8-9,000,000 category.

"We believe our equipment and employes' skills merit the increased business," says Tuthill, "but a little luck will be most welcome, too."

Real Fire Water From Their Well

The water comes from a 116-foot well drilled in 1948. Flames dance above it when a lighted match is held near it.

One suggestion is that natural gas from an underground pocket may somehow be mixing with the water. The Doll family has been using the water for nearly 15 years with no apparent ill effects.

A DEVELOPMENT OF GEORGE M. HOLSTEIN & SONS

Anaheim Apartments Providing New Concept of Leisure Life

"We sincerely believe that hours spent at home should be enjoyable, relaxing and care-free," says Rodin. "The modern family seldom has an opportunity to really sit back and take life easy. When they should be able to relax and enjoy each other and their home . . . there's the lawn to be mowed, a screen to be fixed, the pool to be cleaned. As one of our new tenants expressed it the other day . . . 'This is what I call living. I had my own pool at home, but do you know . . . I never had a chance to enjoy it . . . too many chores.'"

• • • •

"WE DECIDED," Gottuso explained, "while Villa Desta was still in the planning stages, that ont only would we build an apartment that was easy to care for and live in . . . we'd carry it several steps further. We'd provide all the care and maintenance, offer complete laundry facilities, everything we could think of to make life easier and more enjoyable. To top it off we provided a place to spend those extra leisure hours . . . a real recreation area with a huge heated pool, a cabana and bath house, comfortable poolside furniture and a putting green."

Although Villa Desta is just a few blocks from the freeway and from the famous Harbor Strip, Rodin and Gottuso through design and planning have managed to create an aura of peaceful seclusion. Palm and olive trees, curving stone fences, expertly planned landscaping . . . all add up to a relaxed feeling seldom enjoyed by apartment dwellers.

Adult Community Adds More Homes

BIG ROOMS PROVIDED

The spaciousness of the rooms in the homes at Bay Cliff Village, San Clemente, is seen in this view of the living room and kitchen as seen from the dining area.

Construction has begun on an additional 29 Garden Cottage homes at Bay Cliff Village in San Clemente, it was announced by John C. Douglass Jr., of the Douglass Construction Co., developers of the adult community.

Of the 58 Garden Cottages already constructed, almost all have been sold. The Village, dedicated to the premise that adult living can be accomplished with a difference, has enjoyed tremendous success since it opened. The Villagers live in close enough proximity with each other to experience neighborhood-type activities yet enjoy peaceful privacy and unregimented activities.

• • • •

A MODERN clubhouse designed for the exclusive use and comfort of Bay Cliff residents was recently opened. The clubhouse features a fully-equipped kitchen, television, comfortable seating arrangements and card tables and chairs.

The village, which is located high on the San Clemente bluffs overlooking the ocean, gives its residents a view of the Pacific on one side and rolling hills on the other. "This view also has been a fine asset," commented Douglass. "Another important factor is the climate of San Clemente, considered by many to have the most perfect year-round temperature range in the country."

The homes have one and two bedrooms, one and two baths and all homes have separate dining areas, fireplaces, redwood-fenced patios and all-electric kitchens.

The homes are priced from $17,900. Construction features include wide overhang roofs, genuine lath and plaster walls, large bathrooms with tile showers, custom-designed fittings, dressing mirrors and vinyl floors.

Bay Cliff Village is located half-way between Los Angeles and San Diego. From Long Beach and Orange County take the Santa Ana Freeway south to the Estrella turnoff, then right to Camino Capistrano and left to Bay Cliff Village.

Beachwood in Tustin Appeal

Beachwood Estates homebuyers have expressed their preference for the exclusive Tustin residential location of the homes and their many custom features at a moderate price, according to Candlewood Realty sales agents. Mrs. Helen Taylor of Candlewood said: "Everyone visiting the houses has commented on the remarkable value offered by Beachwood Estates . . . the "original" styling of the homes, the many luxury appointments included and the gracious suburban neighborhood."

Beachwod homes offer four bedroom, 1600-square-foot plans with two baths and family rooms, priced from $22,450. A choice of styling is offered, with "swimming pool" sized lots in keeping with the estate zoning of the area. The development is privately walled for maximum quiet and security.

• • • •

THE MANY luxury extras offered include 100% wool carpeting, fireplaces with log lighters, heavy shake roofs, patios, ceramic tile baths, and marble topped ullmans. Kitchens feature O'Keefe & Merritt built-in range with rotisserie oven, electric dishwashers, disposals and handy breakfast bars with natural wood cabinets and patterned vinyl flooring.

Interiors of Beachwood Estates homes truly reflect a taste of elegance. Professional decorators have carefully color-coordinated the interiors, with individually planned fireplaces and attractive room dividers. Exteriors are similarly planned for distinction.

A decorator furnished model home is open daily for inspection at Beachwood Estates, Red Hill Ave. and Mitchell, in Tustin.

L.B. Design Firm's Show Draws Many

The annual fall and Christmas "Design Session" for professional designers and florists sponsored by the Benson Co., importers, processors and wholesale shippers of preserved natural foliages, coral, shells and supplies, recently was held at their place of business, 202-228 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. It attracted 206 professionals from San Diego to San Francisco and as far east as Denver.

The session was under the direction of internationally known designer Clark Kennedy with guest designer Morri Molho.

A total of 27 individual designs was made up. Fresh flowers were used in some, combined with preserved foliage, coral and shells. A very unusual and beautiful wedding bouquet was made with 13 "skeletonized" opuntia cactus pads combined with white orchids. After the cactus was skeletonized it was treated with white velvet flock and glitter—no greenery was used.

• • • •

THE COMMERCIAL window trimmer was also taken into consideration. Several outstanding backgrounds were made up by Kennedy and Molho. Two were in the sunburst theme using hand curled Sabal palm leaves, miniature silver and silver thatch palms with pods and cones for fall. The same was then adapted for Christmas with the aid of velvet flock and glitter.

There was the eight-foot bamboo pole, snaked about with heavy rope loops, studded with the large natural Cecropia which are most beautiful with their natural white on one side and brown on the other. The Cecropia comes from the Benson Co. farm at Lake Worth, Fla.

Wall decor for the home as well as the store was shown. Pressed cork panels were used for some pieces. This product lends itself to easy application of foliages in similar manner to styrafoam only it is much more decorative and does not need a camouflage. Sea shells and coral came in for their bit too. Some of the table centerpieces carried out the sea motif.

Large cut coconuts were demonstrated most effectively as containers for table and TV arrangements.

This is an annual event with the Benson Co., owned and operated by Howard F. Benson and son Frank Benson. They not only ship these materials from Long Beach to every state in the United States, including Hawaii and Alaska, but do a thriving business in Canada.

In Long Beach 17 years the Benson Co. moved from their garage to a small warehouse on Freeman Ave. Now, for the past 7 years they have occupied most of the block on Pacific Coast Highway between Long Beach Blvd. and Locust Ave.

SHOW NEWEST IN DECOR

Explaining methods for various designs for professional decorators are Morri Molho, guest designer, and Clark Kennedy, director of the annual "Design Session" held here by Benson Co., importers and suppliers.

DESTA DEVELOPMENT COMPANY

Displays Aid to Home Buyers

ATTRACTIVE DISPLAYS

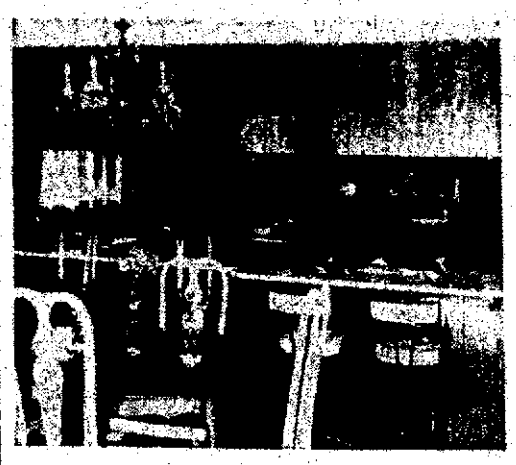

Discussing features of unique new illuminated renderings of Lake Park Homes are Clyde McKinley (left), of Merchandising Design, Fullerton, originators of the new rendering concept; and Max Tipton, vice president of Coleman-Paar, advertising agency for the Larwin Co. The display has brought much favorable comment from home-buyers visiting the Lake Park sales office where 16 design elevations and floor plans are shown with the back-lit process for convenient selection.

One of the most revolutionary merchandising methods used to date in the real estate development field is the new illuminated architectural rendering display at Lake Park, the Larwin Co.'s community just opened near Lakewood. The display is an innovation in the rendering field developed by Merchandising Design of Fullerton, and is one of nine different techniques offered to the building industry by the company.

Homebuyers and sales agents have been enthusiastic in their praise of the Lake Park sales office display as a new and convenient way for customers to select the floorplan and outside elevation they prefer. Max Tipton, vice-president of Coleman-Parr, advertising agency for the Larwin Co., commented: "We are extremely proud of the sales office here at Lake Park, and I feel this outstanding display of graphic art by Merchandising Design adds the final touch of distinction. Their unique architectural renderings are not only attractive, but an effective sales aid."

The Lake Park homes shown by this "back-lit transparency" method include four individual floor plans available in four different elevations.

This view in a Tiara Estate Home shows the chandelier and food-serving bar, part of the glitter and glamour provided in these Anaheim homes.

Tiara Estates, Diamond Series Homes, are completed and ready for immediate occupancy.

The finest wall-to-wall carpeting has been used throughout. Color coordination and decorating was done by Margaret Hargreaves, nationally known color consultant.

Priced from $29,900, these homes offer such glittering extras as decorator planned kitchens with built-in range, oven, dishwasher, Nutone food center, Radiocall AM-FM clock-controlled intercom, and modern mixing valves.

Financing is extraordinary with a down payment of just $1,900 which is less than 10 per cent of the sales price. They are the easiest luxury homes to buy in all of Orange County.

Close-in Location for Sun Ray Homes

Home buyers who place location high on the list of features they desire in a new home, have found the answer at Sun Ray Homes, a spokesman says.

One of the last economy new home developments that can be truly classed as "close-in," Sun Ray Homes is located just off Pacific Coast Hwy., mid-way between the newly completed Long Beach and Harbor Freeways. Now, all major work areas are within 25 minutes actual driving time with beaches and marinas a mere 15 minutes away.

According to Reed Clark, sales manager of the development, 105 families are already in and the final unit is moving rapidly.

* * * *

HOWEVER, THERE is a wide selection of floor plans yet available. All offer three bedrooms, two baths, and completely separate family rooms. Among the luxury extras, almost unheard of in homes in the $18,000 to $20,000 price range, are five speaker AM-FM intercoms throughout each home, a choice of electric or gas built-in kitchens, oak parquet flooring in the family rooms, wall-to-wall carpeting through the other rooms (including closets) and fully landscaped front yards.

Standard features include forced air heating, sliding glass windows and doors, tile showers, and guilt-in TV antenna. Street lights, sidewalks and sewers are in and paid for. No extra assessments. Furnished Model Homes are open daily until 6:30 p.m.

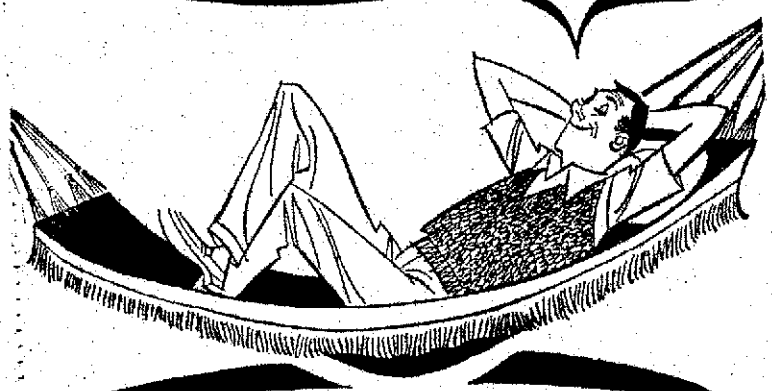

Flexible financing has been a major sales factor. All models are available to veterans with no down payment and lowest costs and impounds. Immediate occupancy as qualified. Conventional financing is available to non-veterans. Clark states, "no more homes can be built on this the last of our close-in sites. Sun Ray is the final opportunity to buy an economy home in a prime location."

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Writer and director Arthur Dreifuss has purchased the screen rights to the best selling novel, "The Master Forger."

Mr. D. N. Pender and Mr. H. M. Ferguson, developers, Ondulando Highlands Corporation, Ventura County

"WE BUILD ALL KINDS, BUT WE PREFER MEDALLION HOMES"

"I've seen the trend to electric living steadily increasing every year," says Mr. Pender. "But it wasn't until I built a Medallion Home for myself that I fully realized the many wonderful benefits you get from electricity."

"As a builder, I was impressed by the quality of the wiring; and my wife says cooking is a pleasure in the cleanliness and coolness of our electric kitchen—especially in the summer months."

"The next home I build for myself will definitely be a Medallion Home," declares Mr. Ferguson.

The confidence of these veteran builders shouldn't be ignored. If you are in the market for a new home now, make sure it bears the Medallion Home Award.

Only one new home in four earns this distinction. These are the qualifications:

1. A flameless electric kitchen—cool, clean, modern. It comes equipped with major electric appliances, including automatic flameless electric range and oven.

2. Full "Housepower" wiring—only a home built to rigid Medallion Home standards has the overall electrical capacity necessary for truly modern living.

3. Abundant lighting—planned for comfort, convenience and beauty throughout the home.

A total electric Gold Medallion Home gives you all these benefits plus:

4. Flameless electric home and water heating.

FHA Terms Offered on Lake Park Homes

A LAKE PARK MODEL

Pictured is one of four model homes at Lake Park, new 2,000-home community near Lakewood which has drawn more than 3,000 visitors during two special preview weekends. VA and FHA financing terms are offered.

More than 3000 people have visited Orange County's newest residential community, 2,000-home, $40-million Lake Park, near Lakewood, during the development's two special preview weekends, Don Hermanson, sales manager, announced.

"The unprecedented acceptance of Lake Park homes—and the resultant exceptional sales—have forced us to begin work on our second unit of homes 30 days ahead of schedule," Mermanson said.

The sales manager added he expected more than 1800 people to visit Lake Park this week end.

* * * *

THIS IS THE NEWEST planned community of Larwin Co., affiliate of Larwin Group companies, nation's largest builders and developers of homes and shopping centers.

Hermanson said the record crowds and sales at Lake Park have been stimulated by the community's location — near Lakewood—and inclusion of FHA financing.

"Many people have been unable to purchase homes this close-in due to lack of FHA financing at developments," Hermanson said, "At Lake Park, FHA terms, with low down payments and low monthly payments, are available, as is VA financing of $1 total move-in cost.

The development is on Lincoln Blvd. near Moody, just east of Lakewood, less than 20 minutes from major employment centers in southeastern Los Angeles County including Long Beach, Compton, Gardena and Torrance.

FOUR MODELS are on display, Hermanson added, and 20 elevations are available in California ranch, contemporary, traditional and Far East stylings. Many have decorative stone and masonry work.

The Lake Park homes have three and four bedrooms, family room, two baths and each has a separate central entry hall.

Kitchens, he said, are highlighted with hardwood natural finish raised panel cabinets, ceramic tile counters and built-in range and oven.

Baths contain marble-grained Pullmans with oval basins and oversized Mr. and Mrs. medicine cabinets.

* * * *

OTHER FEATURES are forced-air heat, built-in TV antennas, vinyl asbestos floor tile, double sinks, spacious bedroom wardrobes, custom lighting fixtures, termite-proof foundations, acoustical-type ceilings, hardwood doors, weatherstripping and 100-amp. wall room dividers, custom electrical service.

To reach Lake Park from Long Beach, drive east on Carson (which becomes Lincoln) to the model home area east of Moody.

Charm in Garden Park Estates

HOMES SELLING RAPIDLY

In reporting that "traffic" through the beautifully furnished models in the all-new unit at Garden Park Estates, Knott Avenue and Garden Grove Freway, had reached an all-time high, officials said that, while the magnificent two-story luxury homes with their two fireplaces (one in the living room and the other in the second-floor master bedroom) were the focal point of much attention, the luxurious one-story homes were also selling rapidly.

With the record throngs each weekend at Garden Park Estates and the greatly increased number of visitors and home buyers on week days, "traffic" through the beautifully furnished models has reached an all-time high, officials say.

While there is no doubt that the all-new unit's magnificent, prize-winning two-story residences are not only in great demand, but have captured the lion's share of attention, these homes are actually receiving a great deal of competition from the handsome, one-story luxury residences.

Both the one-story and two-story elevations are designed by noted Southland architects, and the spacious three, four and five-bedroom plans are keyed to the requirements of discriminating families of almost every size.

* * * *

AMONG THE MOST attractive of the two-story homes many custom-type features is the inclusion of a second handsome fireplace in the second floor master bedroom. The other is in the large living room which faces the garden area at the rear of the house.

Highly important from the home buyers' view point is the flexible fianancing which, coupled with the moderate prices, makes Garden Park Estates' residences "easy to own," officials pointed out. Veterans buying on VA loans have terms of nothing down, and terms for "everyone" afford choice of 30 or 35-year FHA loans. Buyers also have choice of Cal-Vet as well as excellent conventional loans. Full prices are from $17,800.

Furnished model display, open daily, is reached from Long Beach, by driving east on 7th St. past Long Beach State College, straight to Garden Park Estates at Knott Ave.

Artesia Wonderland Homes Closing Out

IN ARTESIA WONDERLAND

Buyer's close-out, announced for this weekend at Artesia Wonderland, offers an excellent opportunity for choice selection of the moderately-priced residences. Full prices are from just $11,750 for the house and lot; there is a total "move-in" of $295 and monthly payments, officials say, from $78 include principal and interest which makes them "less-than-rent."

This weekend marks the special builder's close-out at Artesia Wonderland, offering a final opportunity to purchase one of this close-in community's attractive, modestly priced residences on residences on less-than-rent financing terms, according to Koblentz & DeLancy, sales agents.

"Easy to own", Koblentz said, Artesia Wonderland's residences are available on good conventional loans with a total "move-in" of $295 that includes all costs. Full prices for the house and the lot are from $11,750, he explained, and monthly payments from $78 include principal and interest.

AMONG THE CHOICE remaining homes are two homes from the model display; one of them furnished.

Artesia Wonderland homes have hardwood "stretchwood" floors and the floor coverings in kitchens and baths are sturdy vinyl. Kitchens all have double sinks with sink-installed disposers, lots of kitchen cabinets, range hood with exhaust fan and light, and counters topped with ceramic tile.

Artesia Wonderland is reached from Long Beach by East on Seventh St. to Los Alamitos Ave., turn north on Los Alamitos which becomes Norwalk Blvd., and then turn left on 166th St. to the development.

WHICH ONE WILL LAST FOREVER?

Not the appliances. Not the boat. Not the furniture. Not the car. Not any of these. Only the land they're on will last forever. That's why land is called "real" property—it's real, immovable, indestructible. That's also why the buying and selling of real estate is at the heart of our free enterprise system.

Many people are engaged in real estate transactions. Real estate brokers, loan specialists and escrow officers make property easier to sell or buy. And the people at Title Insurance and Trust Company make it safer. The low-cost title policy they issue is your best assurance that the property you buy is really yours.

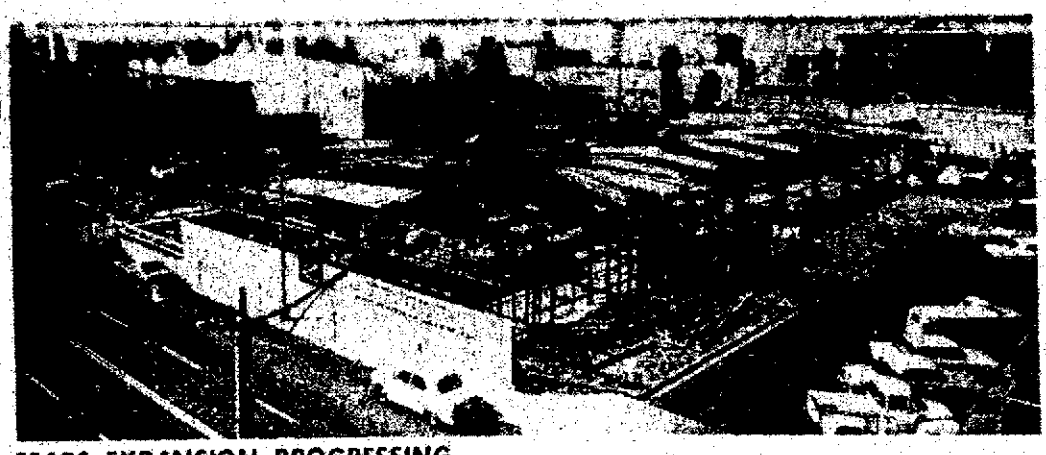

So when you purchase something that lasts forever, insist on a title policy from T.I.—the company with America's largest staff of title experts and California's most complete title plants.

Sales in Huntington Village Soar as Terms, Price Appeal

IN HUNTINGTON VILLAGE HOME

Huntington Village homes are ready for immediate occupancy. The three and four-bedroom, two-bath, family room homes of Huntington Village's Unit No. 10 are priced from $17,150, and from $395 down.

"One of the fastest-selling" home developments in the fastest-growing city in California is the 1,000-home community of Huntington Village," according to Dan Mytinger, sales manager for the development firm of Doyle and Shields.

"Huntington Village's three and four-bedroom, two-bath, family-room homes are priced within the reach of almost every family in Southern California," Mytinger pointed out, "from $395 down, plus costs, for non-vets, including deed and title insurance, with full prices starting at $17,775. And there are no due dates or balloon payments."

* * * *

THIS IS Huntington Village's 10th unit," the executive continued, "and this unit has proved to be our most popular with many new features such as modern slate entrays, interior planters, RCA Whirlpool dishwashers, new exteriors. All of these in addition to color-coordinated wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, hallways, and master bedroom, RCA Whirlpool built-in range and oven, central forced-air heating and woodburning fireplace with gas log lighter."

Huntington Village is ideally located: five minutes from the Southland's finest small boat harbors and beaches, across the street from the Meadowlark Country Club, a mile from the site of Douglas' $78 million Space and Missile plant, one mile from the soon-to-be-started Broadway-Hale shopping center, and less than a mile from the San Diego Freeway, now under construction.

Furnished models are open daily from 9 a.m. to dark. From the Long Beach area, drive east on Seventh Street to Golden West Street, turn south to Edinger, then right to Springdale, then left a short distance to Huntington Village.

Ideal Palos Verdes Homesites Offered

OCEAN VIEW SITES

The natural contour of Palos Verdes is retained in the ocean-view homesites offered for sale in MonteVerde, a development which is previewing today.

Preview showing of what is perhaps the choicest remaining property on the Palos Verdes Peninsula will take place this weekend.

Called MonteVerde, the development is situated on the sunny southern slopes of the Palos Verdes Peninsula overlooking the Los Verdes Golf Course site. In the heart of the once prized Spanish land grant, Rancho Palos Verdes, MonteVerde offers prestige homesites with panoramic views that stretch from Catalina Island to the Malibu coast.

Palos Verdes Properties, the developers, state that meticulous attention has been given to every detail in the development of MonteVerde. In all cases the "natural contour" of the land has been maintained. Telephone, Edison and television lines are piped underground to each site and all other improvements, including sewers, are in and paid for. Homesites average 15,000 sq. ft. and start at $15,000.

Another DC8 Is Delivered

The fourth DC8 jetliner delivered to Iberia Air Lines of Spain landed in Madrid after a 6,000-mile, 10-hour nonstop flight from Long Beach's Douglas plant last week.

Aboard the big jet were about 35 officials of both firms, including Donald Douglas Jr., company president, and Lt. Gen. Julian Rubio, president of the air line.

Special Close-Out Price on New Home

BOLSA PARK HOME

A massive fireplace highlights the living room of this Bolsa Park Home where special closing-out prices now prevail.

Special close-out terms, $1000 below market prices, are being offered this weekend on the few remaining homes in the second unit of Bolsa Park, the new community in Huntington Beach.

Among the homes are four models which are fully equipped with carpeting, drapes, landscaping, and sprinklers. Each of the other houses includes at least one of these feautres, of ten two or more. Sales director Ernie Merrill expalined, "We are making these special terms in an effort to complete sales on this unit before our third unit is officially opened."

Available in three, four, and 5-bedroom plans, Bolsa Park homes may be purchased with VA no-down-payment terms, 35-year FHA financing with 5¼% interest, and 6% conventional financing.

* * * *

DESCRIBING THE MANY features of the homes, Merrill continued, "Bolsa Park offers genuine lath and plaster construction, plus a lavish use of ceramic tile." A ceramic tile kitchen with breakfast bar, full ceramic tile bath with shower over tub, and a separate seramic tile shower with special decorator tiles.

From Long Beach, the homes may be visited via seventh Street (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) east of Bolsa Chica, turning right and continuing south two miles to models.

Many features are found in the homes, normally not found in moderately priced homes. These include family rooms, kitchen nooks, double hall plans, master bedroom suites, snack bars, ceramic tile counter tops and a protective block wall surrounding the entire development.

Moore School Will Open

Golden opportunities for real estate salesmen to capitalize on Southern California's population boom will be outlined Wednesday when E. Tennyson Moore's second Fall session of his "Real Estate License School" gets underway.

An orientation program, free to the public, will kick off the four-week course. Entitled "How to Make Money Selling Real Estate," the program will commence at 7:30 p.m. in the main Moore Co. office at 4151 E. Carson Blvd. Lakewood. A color film will be shown through the courtesy of the Title Insurance and Trust Co.

* * * *

MOORE, whose combined Los Angeles-Orange County operation has grown to become one of the biggest in the Southland, has lined up real estate authority Ray Westcott as guest lecturer and consultant.

Westcott is a former assistant real estate commissioner of the State of California and the author of "Real Estate Primer."

Regular instructors for the Monday and Wednesday classes will be Jack B. Krueger, Moore Realty general sales manager and former owner and teacher of the Real Estate School of Los Angeles, and Bob Allen, manager of two Moore Realty offices.

Among the topics to be explained during the course is the recent action by the Federal Savings and Loan League to aassist agencies in trade-in sales.

* * * *

MOORE WAS ONE of 20 realty and savings and loan exeutives from across the nation to attend a recent conference in Chicago designed to acquaint the public with the new ruling. The veteran realtor, whose firm in September set a new company monthly record for sales and dollar volume, was the only Californian at the conference.

Under the plan, a person wishing to trade in one house to buy another may have the first house taken off his hands immediately. The broker may borrow up to 80 per ent of the appraised value of the home from a savings and loan institution, sonsequently not tieing up his own funds.

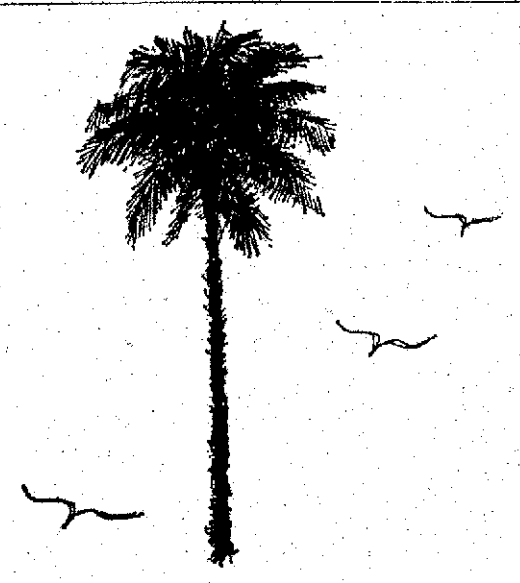

Previous regulations had not permitted lending institutions to loan more than 65 per cent of the appraised values.

Other subjects on the curriculum include fundamental real estate law, property ownership, financial real estate, methods of taxation, land description, and real estate practices.

The course will prepare students for the state examination required to obtain a real estate salesman's license.

YOU'RE INVITED TO ATTEND THE INTERIOR DECORATOR SHOW

SOPHISTICATION in fabric . . . contemporary draperies in bold design and bright color are shown by decorators Heinz Fischer and Aurora Fournier.

By Mary Neth

Elegance is in for fall—and for some time to come.

In home decor, it's an elegance that snaps with excitement: color explodes, furniture curves to sophistication.

Translating this trend toward lively luxury, 12 prominent Long Beach interior decorators will exhibit in a 1962 "Living in Elegance" Decorator Show here next week.

The show, a Long Beach first, will be open to the public Oct. 23 and 24 in Grand Ballroom, Lafayette Hotel, under sponsorship of Children's Benefit League.

HOW IS the trend being captured in color, fabric and furnishings?

Each decorator has a highly individual interpretation.

One underlines the new look with the liberal use of vibrant colors (cerise, yellow lime, orange) against neutral wall tones. He places emphasis on Mediterranean furnishings (graceful wrought iron, filigree detailing). He sees as smart the use of mirrors, small scatter rugs for color accent), also mixture of modern and antique.

Another decorator, who works primarily with contemporary furnishings, finds elegance in clean line and bold, true color. He believes Oriental will gain in popularity, that traditional styling is on the wane.

IT PAYS to be bold. The new look in elegance has a far from rigid framework.

But, many a homemaker may find herself wondering if her attempt at originality does what it purports to do in the best possible way.

Is her choice of color practical? Are her room accessories fitting, arranged to advantage?

The Interior Decorator Show is the place to answer such questions—the place to capture new courage, fresh ideas.

THE EXHIBITING decorator-dozen, their stores and themes, are: Aurora Fournier, Lloyd's, "Simpatico;" Charlotte Centoz, Davis Furniture Co., "Country Elegance;" and Dale Fahrney, Carl's Furniture, "Continental Contemporary."

Lewis F. deMourer, Aaron Schultz, "Tempora;" Heinz Fischer, Frank Bros., "Terrace Room;" Joe Neiggemann, The Acorn, "Checkmate," Dorothy Hall, "Sleeping Beauty;" and Jenne Williams, Jenne Interiors "Hacienda De Felicidad."

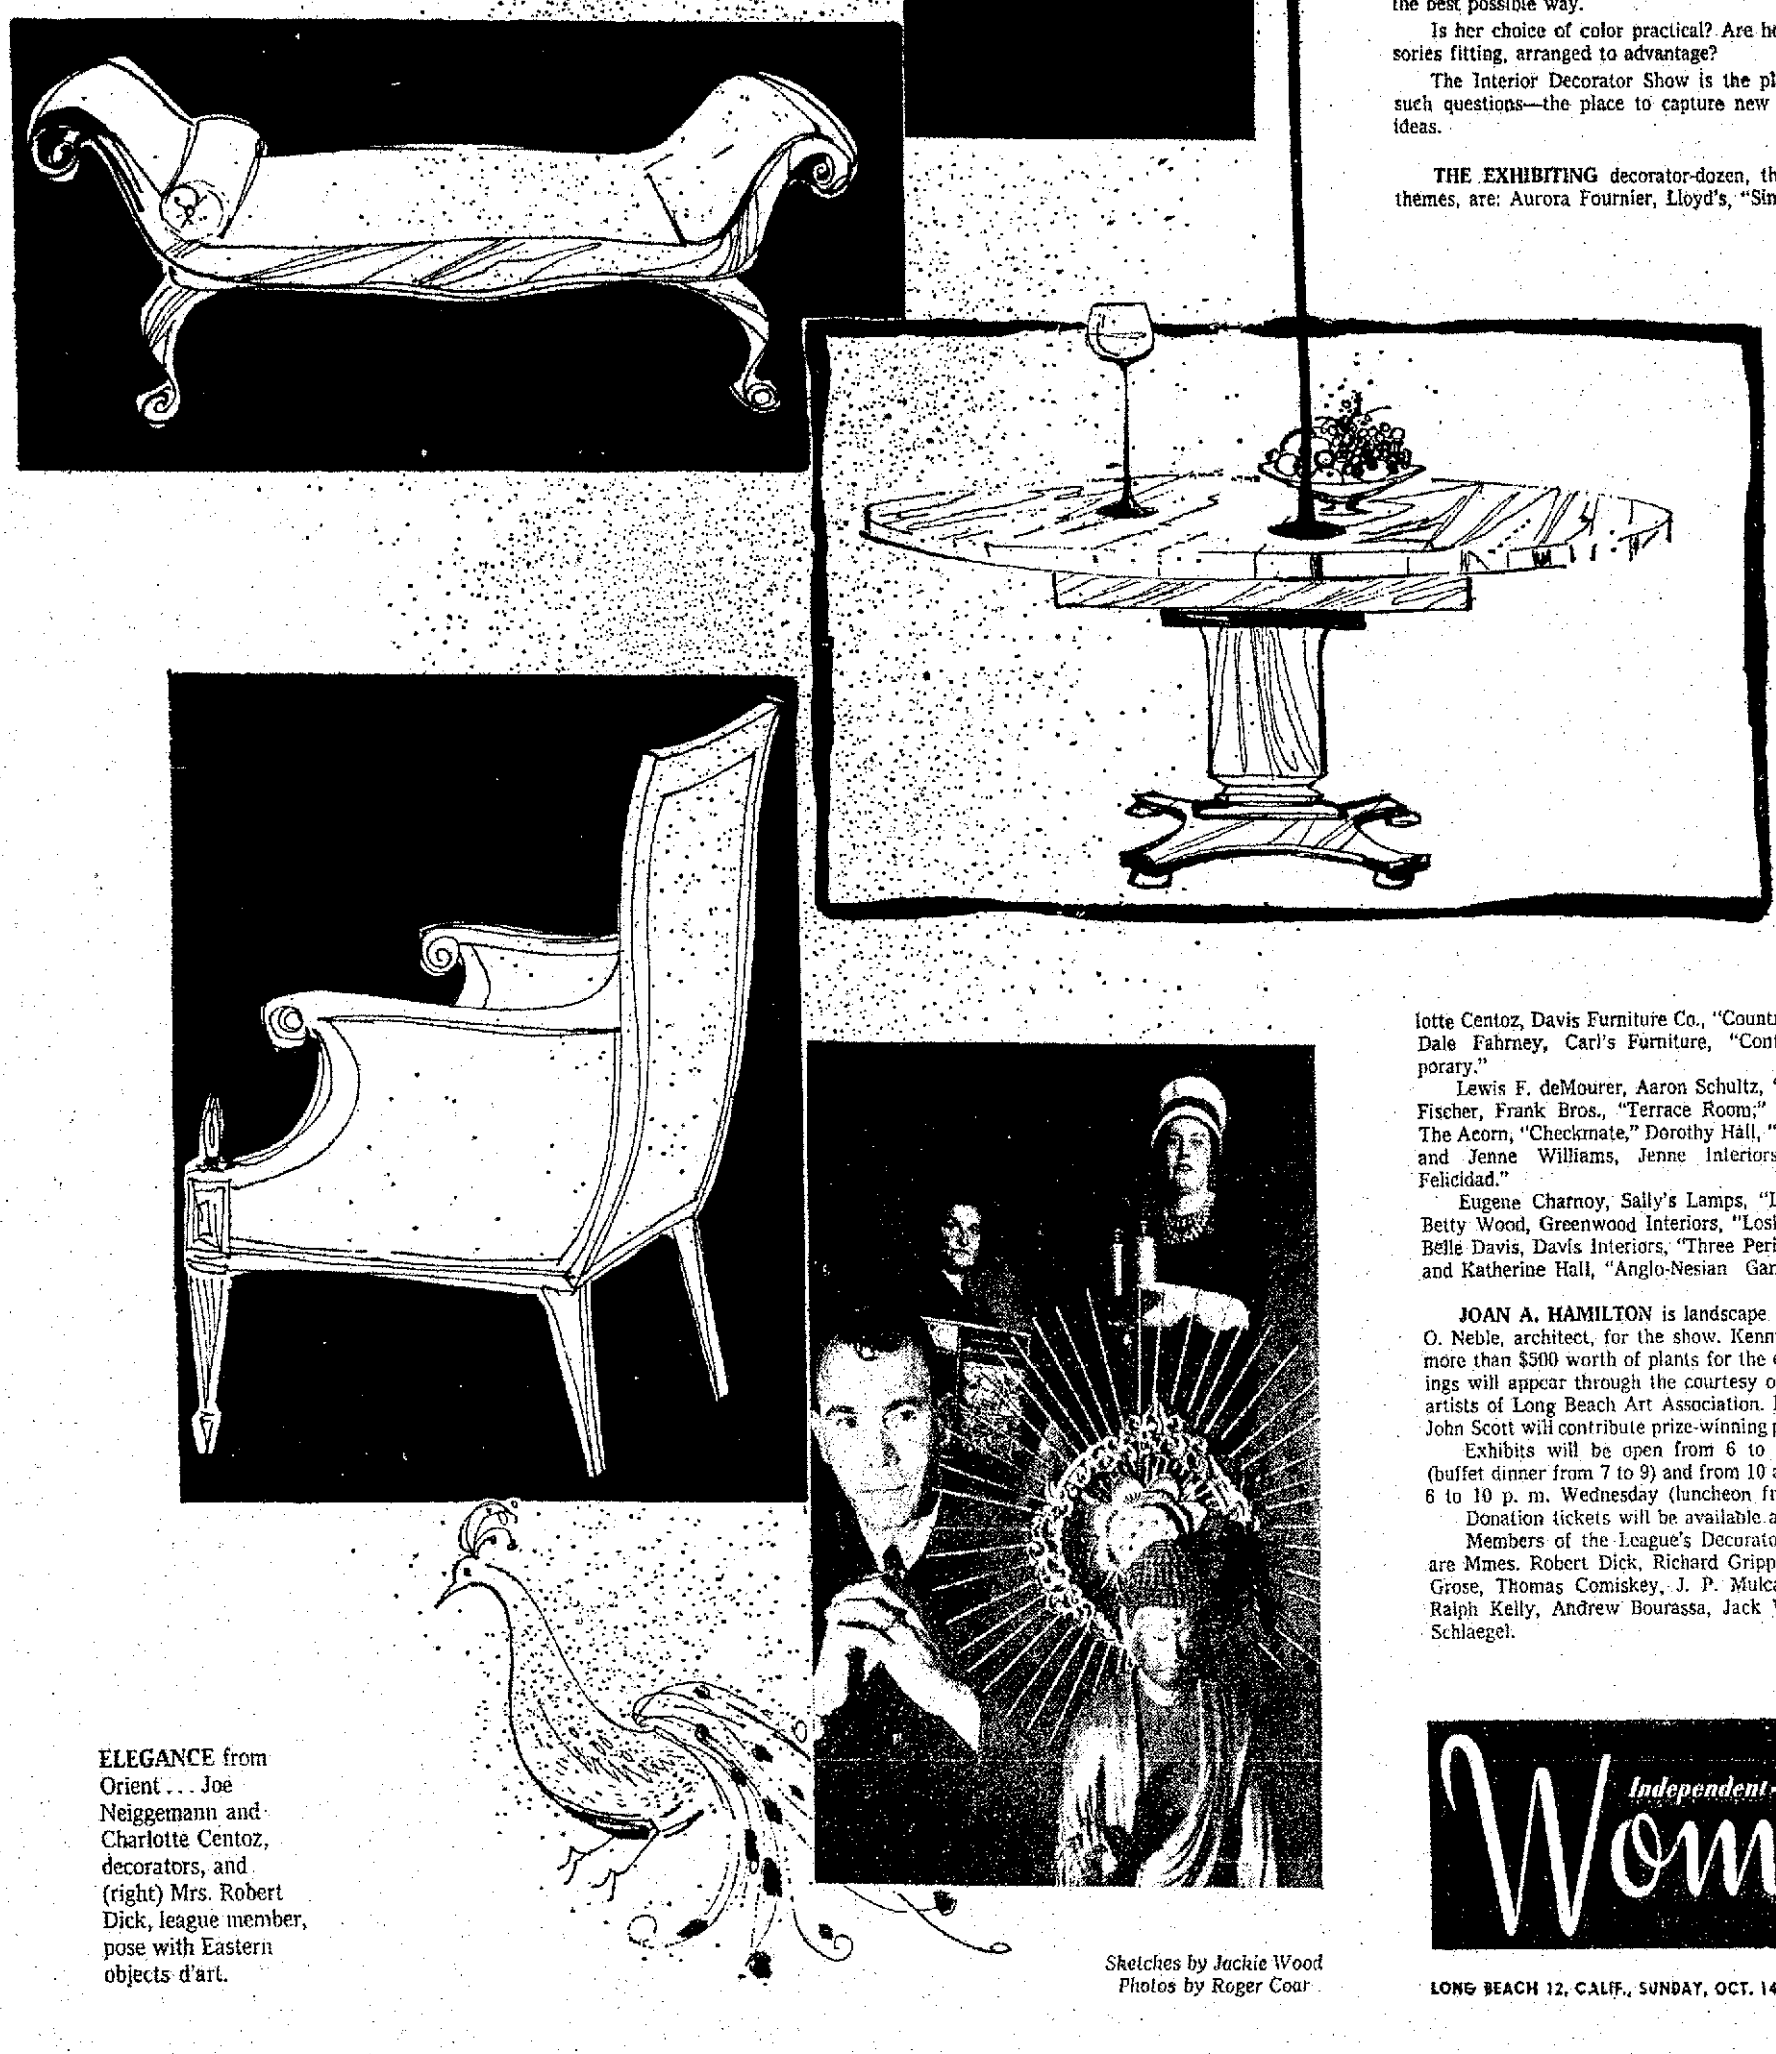

Eugene Charnoy, Sally's Lamps, "Lighting Galaxy;" Betty Wood, Greenwood Interiors, "Losir Chez Soi;" Mae Belle Davis, Davis Interiors, "Three Periods Used Today;" and Katherine Hall, "Anglo-Nesian Game Room."

JOAN A. HAMILTON is landscape designer and Paul O. Neble, architect, for the show. Kenny Yueda will loan more than $500 worth of plants for the exhibits and paintings will appear through the courtesy of selected member artists of Long Beach Art Association. Ron Rainsford and John Scott will contribute prize-winning pieces of sculpture.

Exhibits will be open from 6 to 10 p. m. Tuesday (buffet dinner from 7 to 9) and from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and 6 to 10 p. m. Wednesday (luncheon from noon to 2:30).

Donation tickets will be available at the hotel.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson • I, P-T Women's Editor

MANY A freezer in College Park Estates is feeling more comfortably today since Gloria and Max Negri removed the gallon homemade tamales served during their delightfully planned Mexican fiesta last night.

Invitations to some 100 friends went out several weeks ago in Spanish, causing consternation to some until they could latch onto a translator.

Waiter's Going Ollie

But, oh yes, they got the idea, duly prepared and came decked out in serapes, ponchos, sombreros, rebozos, glittering sequinned skirts and embroidered shirts to mingle in the garden as a band of mariachis sent stirring and sentimental music through the evening air.

Day before the fiesta a beef went into a pit, laboriously dug by Max and played in by the little Negris prior to the party, and barbecued slowly all day to brown, juicy perfection.

A gay and wild piñata swung overhead until he was shattered in approved Mexican tradition. Favors were miniature cocktail napkins.

Scott was a feisty magician, and the reason the Negris had it in October was because the "Night of October" theme was taken from one of their favorite Mexican songs, "Moon of October."

THEY'RE STONED. Tot [illegible] straight, [illegible] rocks abounding under discussion, and it's a family affair for gem and mineral enthusiasts Edith and Lew Hindley, with Norton, Kirk and Frosty, plus the families of Kay and Elmer Lenz, and Dorothy and Rollie Urbanek. They're in Trona this weekend with other members of their club happily chipping and digging on some salt flats for onyx and halite. If results are successful, there may be more handsomely turned out jewelry for Christmas gifts.

The Hindleys were swept into rock hunting four years ago when Kirk was a Scout and are now embedded so deeply in the hobby that on their 6,000 mile vacation trip this summer they joined a couple of expeditions, one in Utah, another in Wyoming.

"WHERE'S DICK?"

"What's Dick doing now?"

Yeda and Fred Riedman have been badgered with questions about their son, causing us to wonder just how faithful a letter writer Dick has been with his local buddies in recent years. Well friends, Dick, along with Ann Louise and sons Richard and Tom, just happens to be living in San Diego. Dick received his Ph.D. from Pittsburgh University, and is now on the faculty at San Diego State College teaching audiology.

LOTS OF BRATS will be on hand. With that kind of warning most people would carefully ignore the invitation. But it's all a matter of pronunciation. Friends of Shirley and Roger Slater say it to rhyme with tots, and two dozen of them beat it to their Rossmoor manse midweek for another of the Slater's informal fresco barbecue parties featuring bratwurst from the Midwest.

ALL THIS MODESTY! Here we just heard about Elaine Kirschke's and Jane Boyd's sailing prowess in a recent sailboat race to Catalina where the gals, sans Jack and Walt, came in among the first over the line out of 65 boats. Not bad for those two, for they competed against some big boats. Well, sure the "Vaquero" had a good crew in teenagers Doug Kirschke and Steve Boyd, but by barnacles, Elaine and Jane were the only female skippers. Decorative adornment was Karen Lagerwerf, a native of Holland until three years ago, who had never been on a sailboat before Doug asked her to join the race.

He's in Air Force; She Flies High, Too

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My father travels a lot but he can't help it—he's in the Air Force.

My mother gets lonely when he's gone and she goes out with men. I'm 14 years old and when she goes out (every night) I have to stay home and baby-sit.

Mama works on the base and meets lots of men there. But she promised me a long time ago I could go out with boys when I was 14. Well, I am 14 and you see what I mean.

I have three smaller sisters and Mother is not paying any attention to any of us. Couldn't she mind them for once and let me go out? I have a friend here on the base who wants to take me out. Is she being fair to keep me in like this?—NANCY

DEAR NANCY:

I don't think 14 is old enough to go out, I really don't. But I certainly think your mom is being unfair all the same. She has so much more to occupy her at home than running around everywhere with men. You and your sisters, all by yourselves, could keep her from being lonely.

Why don't you sit her down and tell her how very much you miss her night after night?—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

You gave me very good advice when I asked you about my baby. As a result, I'm not going to marry the boy but now my problem concerns what to do with the child when it arrives. Is it wise to keep the baby in the family?

My brother and his wife want to adopt it. They have two boys and she doesn't want to have another child herself but she would like to have mine.

My mother wants me to go to school so I can make something of myself. I want to do this, too. I would like to have fun and go places again after the baby comes. But I know I shouldn't think of fun when my thoughts and heart should go to the baby.

My questions are: Is it fair to the child? Will I want it back when I get older? Have any of your readers adopted their children out to relatives and has it been a satisfactory situation? — TRULY YOURS

DEAR TRULY YOURS:

The usual advice when considering adopting a child out is to have the adoption handled by a proper agency which will match the child with someone you do not know and cannot get in touch with. Many emotional hazards are offset this way.

I would advise you to do this. For this is a matter you will not want to remember or be reminded of as you make a new and better life ahead.—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What is your opinion of a sponger? This man is married and still sponges off his mother.

He goes home to her to dinner. She is satisfied to prepare a snack for herself and the widowed aunt she supports, but when he appears out come complete dinner plans.

His mother is a widow with a job that is underpaid. The aunt is old and food costs like crazy. But do you think he'd think of this? He never offers a penny, and half the time on week ends he leaves his brat with her.

I think having a dinner with Mother is fine once in a while, but every day and every Sunday is sponging, don't you agree? — ANOTHER AUNT

DEAR ANOTHER AUNT:

I do, I do! In fact, sponging is too soft a word. He ought to be taking his mother and the aunt out to dinner. In fact, I think he ought to include you, too.—M.M.

The game was rubber bridge. The late Ely Culbertson sat South, the late P. Hal Sims North and I was West. East also was a well known player, but I will withhold his name for reasons that will soon become apparent.

* * * *

THE TIME was the early thirties but the bidding might well go the same way today. Hal and Ely were just about the best of the early contract experts.

I realized that our only chance to beat the hand would be with two club tricks. It also seemed certain that Sims would hold the king of clubs. Otherwise he would have let the hand play at five spades.

I dropped the three of clubs on the table as soon as the bidding was over.

Ely played the four from dummy just as quickly and my partner had a problem. After a lot of thought he solved it the wrong way. He played the eight whereupon Ely took his jack and promptly ran off 13 tricks.

TEACHER INSPIRED STUDENTS' GRATITUDE

By RACHEL MORTON

And so began my lessons with Jean de Reszke. Does one, of the years of bitterness of the [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] and the disappearing goddess dream of the many phrases begun so many times and never never finished, of the handkerchiefs torn to bits in an agony of trying to do what the Master wanted of Koko's screeching when the lessons were bad—Koko, that green monster of a parrot who loved only the Master and the Master's ape who sat upon his shoulder as he came down the staircase every morning at nine, and went back up again when the long teaching day ended?

No—one remembers only the miracles along the way: the days when a bit of blue showed through the darkness of unfolding understanding, the rapturous joy of the Master when the tone was right and the phrase artistically rendered: the rare "bravos" and the smile of pleasure when he was satisfied.

* * * *

DE RESZKE sang like a god in those last three years of his life, when I knew him. He sang with the basses, with the contraltos, with the sopranos, and, of course, with the tenors. There was no phrase too difficult, no cadenza too florid for his limpid tone. He sang high C's all day long and could spin them from a fortissimo to a pianissimo in a way that was uncanny. He allowed no falsettos with the tenor, adhering strictly to a natural, manly head quality. His singing was so beautiful, so controlled, so refined, so effortless, that one did not dare to defile the air with a vocal attempt afterwards. Often, after listening to him, I could not sing: I could only weep.

They had said to me: "You will worship the Master."

But I had replied, "We Americans do not worship."

* * * *

AH, I HAD NOT known de Reszke! How many times I found myself kissing his beloved hand, and my tears must have told him what my tongue could not. Jean de Reszke did not like sentimentality—he did not like tears of fawnings. He liked work well done, difficulties overcome, souls aflame with inspiration.

The first Christmas in Nice promised to be a lonely one. Far from home and friends, living in a small room without heat or comforts, it had been a pleasant diversion to look at furnished apartments from time to time. One in particular, on the Promenade Des Anglais looked out over the blue ocean, and its tiny kitchen, its balcony and the salon with piano, seemed a dream of happiness.

I had told the Master of it at one of those precious tea-times at the Villa, when Madame de Reszke came down in all her fragile, cameo-like beauty; when Chou, her pet dachshund, lay curled on the sofa before the fire; when the Master sipped his tea and chuckled over some event of the day, or discussed topics dear to his heart. Then one came close to the lovable personality of de Reszke, and the singing teacher was forgotten.

* * * *

THE PUPILS who were privileged to have a lesson just before tea-time were often invited to stay, and a "comfy," happy time it was. French was generally spoken, but if there were some present who knew no French, then English was spoken, although the Master was disinclined to speak English.

So the Master knew of my longing for a little home, with cooking privileges. On the day before Christmas I was summoned for an extra lesson. I remember it well. It was from "Faust" and I had made the Master laugh uproariously when I sang instead of "Le vent murmure," which means the wind murmurs, "Le ventre murmure," which means "the stomach murmurs."

* * * *

AT THE END OF the lesson, he pushed me to the door after wishing me "joyeux Noel" and in my hand he left something. In the hall I opened my hand and found three one thousand franc notes. I rushed back into the studio exclaiming, "Master, what does this mean?"

"It is for your Christmas," he said.

"Allez-vous-en! Rent that apartment you liked so well." And he would hear no more from me, but went slowly back into the twilight to the piano. I rushed to the apartment, praying it would still be for rent. It was, and I moved in, and for many months it was my home. It was the last place in which I saw my father alive.

The college's first exhibit of the season will continue through Nov. 9 in the art gallery, Faculty Avenue and Harvey Way. Hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays; 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Fridays; 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Also on display will be a pinhole camera made from a coffee can, and one of the first rapid sequence box cameras. Hours are noon to 9 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays; closed Fridays; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays.

MASTER WORK of the month at Long Beach Museum of Art is a small black cat which is attracting attention from cat lovers and art patrons.

The feline comes from Egypt, the 26th dynasty, dating back to 500 B.C., and is probably a representation of the goddess, Bast, who was then highly regarded. Made of bronze, it is believed to have served as a mummy case for a treasured cat. The sculpture was borrowed from the J. Paul Getty Museum in Malibu, and may be seen through Nov. 11.

"PEACE" has been chosen as theme of the next art exhibition at Westside Jewish Community Center, 5870 W. Olympic Blvd., Los Angeles. It will open Oct. 23 at 7:30 p.m., with more than 50 outstanding artists of Southern California presenting works in varied media depicting "Art — A Force for Peace."

The exhibit will open at 7:30 p.m. At 8 o'clock Dr. Martin Grotjahn of Beverly Hills will speak on "Art and Peace."

Extraordinary Talent Marks '6 of Us' Show

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

A bold, original affirmation of individuality by some extraordinary talents makes "6 of Us" an exciting, challenging show. At Atelier 7, 3316 E. Seventh St., the exhibiting artists are Long Beach State College students, many of them graduates, whose works can be seen through this month.

Most immediately impressive are the large carpentered constructions by Robert Wilson along with his polychromed (in neon hues) papier-mache sculptures, a crucifix and a "rock." Commentary on patriotic themes recurs in Wilson's work. Another construction ("a chair, of course") by David Isakson and Mike Pierce is made of parts washed up on the beach.

In contrast are the exquisitely fine and tiny drawings by Glenda Wittington. While some of the sentiments written thereon are classically those of youth protesting against materialism, the approach and techniques are sophisticated, elegant, and unique.

* * * *

CARRIE VAN DEMAN'S paintings on muslin, a combination of paraffin and analine dye which she developed herself, are already collectors' items. Like Bonnie Gottlieb, her pencil hovers around and caresses contours to produce monumental portrait drawings. Gottlieb also works in the batik method, but finds her best expression in huge oils of grand simplicity and subtle color nuances.

Isakson and Pierce have numerous small drawings in the show. However, Isakson's most arresting works are small collages built of photo cutouts. Pierce has a ceramic piece, "The Fall of Icarus," which is marvelous, as well as jewelry and carved chessmen in the exhibit.

* * * *

THE MORE than 100 works glow with talent which has led these artists to experiment in forms and media beyond academic discipline. While the overall effect is impious, close examination of the works reveals a wealth of cerebral activity and poignant sincerity. It is a provocative insight into a generation so often accused of security-seeking and conformity. There is, I believe, every reason to expect from this group great accomplishment which will enhance the already-respected reputation of the art department of our local college.

Auditions Chairman Is Named

Diana Steiner has been appointed auditions chairman for Southern District, California Federation of Music Clubs, announced Evelyn Paddock Smith, vice president, this week.

Auditions will be conducted by Miss Steiner next February in Founders Hall, University of Southern California.

Awards are offered in piano, organ, voice, violin, violincello and orchestral winds (flute, oboe, basson and French horn).

A national award of $200 is offered in each classification, making a total of seven prizes. Winners are heard first in the local district, then the state and finally on the national level.

National winners are invited to appear on the Youth Day Program at the 32nd Biennial Convention next April in Pittsburgh, Pa.

* * * *

SUPPLEMENTARY awards to be given on the national level include the annual Eastman School of Music scholarship and scholarships at Manhattan School of Music, Millikin University, The New School of Music, The Peabody Conservatory and the Shreveport Symphony - Centenary College Scholarship.

Entrants must be 16 (and not older than 24) by March 15, 1963.

Requirements bulletins and applications may be obtained from Miss Steiner, 223 South Bundy Drive, Los Angeles 49. Applicants must be members of the California Federation of Music clubs, either by group affiliation or individual membership. Deadline for application is Feb. 15, 1963.

Rapsodia Romina

Long Beach Community Concert Association will present "Rapsodia Romina," a company of 50 from Bucharest, Monday at 8:15 p.m. in the Convention Hall of Municipal Auditorium.

The 100-piece Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra will play a series of five concerts. On opening night the orchestra's new music director, Zubin Mehta, will conduct.

Tickets are on sale at the Orange County Philharmonic office, 201 West Coast Highway, Newport Beach.

Mehta will direct three concerts, with guest conductors Janos Ferencsik and Henry Lewis completing the series. Guest soloists will be Daniel Barenboim, Alfred Brendel and Byron Janis, all young, exciting and famous pianists.

Symphony Days Underway, Prelude to Concert Season

The legend of a Long Beach that doesn't understand or like the fine arts died suddenly last summer on July 24 when Long Beach Symphony played its first summer concert in Bixby Park.

Any doubts that might have remained were removed by the vast crowd at the second concert on August 21st. Thousands of people, young and old, stood enthralled as operatic arias and exquisite phrases of a Tschaikowsky Symphony filled the evening air. Crowded bleachers, park benches, lawns and nearby parked cars were filled with attentive listeners, some of whom were hearing live symphonic music for the first time and finding that great music well-performed is beautiful, exciting and enjoyable.

Perhaps for many of them the great discovery was that Long Beach has an orchestra — its own community orchestra — capable of presenting concerts with style and artistic success. For the first time many met Lauris Jones, energetic conductor of the orchestra, who has brought his group of ninety musicians to a high pitch of musical excellence.

* * * *

SUCCESS of all summer concerts, past and in the future, depends entirely on the success of the regular concert season, which this years begins on Oct. 27 at Long Beach City College Auditorium. For the next two weeks, in preparation for the new season, the City of Long Beach will share in Long Beach Symphony Days. On Oct. 5 Mayor Edwin Wade proclaimed the interest of the City Council and the people of this community in the orchestra's welfare.

The public is urged to support their Symphony by buying tickets for the concert series, by becoming contributing members of the Symphony Association, and by offering their services to help the orchestra. During Symphony Days the public is invited to stop in at the rehearsal hall, Municipal Recreation Center, 350 E. Ocean Blvd., Monday, October 22 at 8 p.m., to watch the orchestra at work.

* * * *

THE MOST important innovation in the new season is a series of concerts specially planned for families to enjoy together. There are four concerts in the series. Three of them are on Saturday evenings — Oct. 27, Dec. 15, Jan. 26. One is on Sunday evening, May 19. The most unusual feature of the concerts is that Lauris Jones, conductor, will introduce the audience to the music to be played through program notes which he will give from the podium.

Guest artists to be presented as soloists include Frederick Seykora, cellist, who will be featured on the first concert and Chris Lachona, tenor, who will sing on Jan. 26. The Christmas concert Dec. 15 will be a gala holiday event, including the presentation by a professional cast of Elizabeth Caldwell's Christmas opera "A Gift of Song."

THE FESTIVAL concert is the major event of the Symphony season and will be presented in Municipal Auditorium. It will include a performance of one of Aaron Copland's ballets, possibly "Rodeo."

Tickets for the series of four concerts are priced very inexpensively with a special price for full time students. Seats are unreserved. Season tickets represent a saving of 30 per cent and may be obtained by calling the Long Beach Symphony Association or Mrs. Charles A. Mason, 214 6th St., Seal Beach.

* * * *

TODAY, teachers and representatives of Parent Teacher Associations are invited to meet at 3 p.m. in the choral room of Long Beach State College to discuss the series of Youth Concerts to be presented during the season and to meet Elizabeth Caldwell, composer of "A Gift of Song."

A few tickets are still available for the regular series of five concerts that will be given Sunday evenings — Nov. 18, Jan. 27, Feb. 24, March 31 and May 19. All seats for this series are reserved. Artists to be presented include Malcolm Frager, pianist; Chris Lachona, tenor; the winner of the annual Young Artists Competition; and Margaret Main, violist and soloist for the all-orchestra concert performance of Berlioz "Harold in Italy." The Festival Concert concludes this series.

LONG BEACH SYMPHONY Orchestra will play 18 to 20 concerts during the 1962-63 season. When Lauris Jones, conductor, raises his baton Oct. 27 for the first Family Concert at City College Auditorium he will share the spotlight with a beautiful, blonde violinist seated at his left, Edwina Smith. She has just been appointed to serve as concertmaster for the season.

Bergman's 'Secrets' on Film Series

The mood will be early-Bergman when "Secrets of Women" is shown at 5 and 7:30 p.m. today in Long Beach State College Little Theater.

The film, third in Long Beach Film Society's fall series, is a 1952 work of the Swedish master when he was in a "light-hearted mood" with a "modesty of intention."

"Secrets of Women," although different from Bergman's more recent analytical productions, still has many of his trademarks: his favorite cameraman, Gunner Fischer; his "beautiful people;" his mixture of method and manner; and his flashbacks.

The latter serves to unroll the plot as four sisters-in-law reveal their confidences.

Unusual short subjects will proceed both showings of the feature film.

Theaters Receive Aid From Ford Foundation

NEW YORK — A major step to strengthen repertory theater in the United States has been announced by the Ford Foundation with grants totaling $6.1 million to nine theater companies in several regions of the country.

The grants also mark the opening of a new phase of the foundation's support to the arts, namely, to help select professional groups to reach and maintain new levels of artistic achievement and financial stability.

Participating theaters and the amounts of their grants are:

Actors Studio, New York, $250,000.

Actor's Workshop, San Francisco, $197,000.

Alley Theatre, Houston, $2,100,000.

American Shakespeare Festival Theatre and Academy, Stratford, Conn., $503,000.

Arena Stage, Washington, D. C., $863,000.

Fred Miller Theatre, Milwaukee, $100,000.

Mummers Theatre, Oklahoma City, $1,250,000.

Theatre Group, University of California Extension, Los Angeles, $500,000.

Tyrone Guthrie Theatre, Minneapolis, $337,000.

* * * *

The LARGER sums were granted to theaters that the Foundation believes are now in a position to reach significant new levels in their development, but require enlarged seating capacity to maintain them.

"Since its initial venture into the arts in 1957," said Henry T. Heald, president of the foundation, "the foundation's assistance has been limited to talented individual artists and to experiments and demonstrations seeking new avenues and standards.

"We are now carrying our program to a new dimension. In preparing for this, the foundation has made efforts to identify professional groups capable first of steady artistic development and second of achieving a sustaining level of income from other sources within a reasonable period.

"Meanwhile, we shall continue to assist selected individual artists, experiments and demonstrations.

Pins — for That Sharp Touch

...wear them in your hair — or anywhere

By MARY ELLIS
I, P-T Fashion Editor

Costume jewelry designer Robert (with the French "Robair" pronounciation, please) is sharp of the tongue when it comes to pins and pearls.

The standard, and safe, jewel accessory of two or three-strand pearls he finds "dull, most boring. If you're going to wear jewelry, wear jewelry."

He was in town, appearing at Buffums' the past week, to encourage Long Beach women to do just that.

And he had a few things to say about how it's worn.

TAKE PINS, for instance.

"As clothes become more simple, the big splash comes via the excitement of dazzling pins—frankly fake, boldly placed," he said.

"Wear them dead center, lavaliere length . . . let them peek halfway from under a suit lapel . . . place them importantly on a sleeve, a pocket or dangle them to the back on a chain as important accessory for a low-cut evening dress."

ROBERT'S NECKLACES, bold and different, have one thing in common:

Huge clasps, three-dimensional and decorative, appear to be pins embeded in the necklace.

Worn to the side, they're added glamor for evening . . . worn to the back, they go daytime with suits and dresses.

Of French-Russian extraction, Robert is also a talented violinist, sculptor and painter (in earlier years he had street showings in Greenwich Village).

He gained his background in metalwork while a student at Cooper Union Art in New York City.

His first big chance came when he was commissioned to do jewelry for the Broadway hit, "Panama Hattie," starring Ethel Merman.

Since then, he's done other Mroadway shows, has fashioned jewelry for such stars as Marilyn Monroe and has designed match-the-costume jewelry for such couturiers as Ceil Chapman.

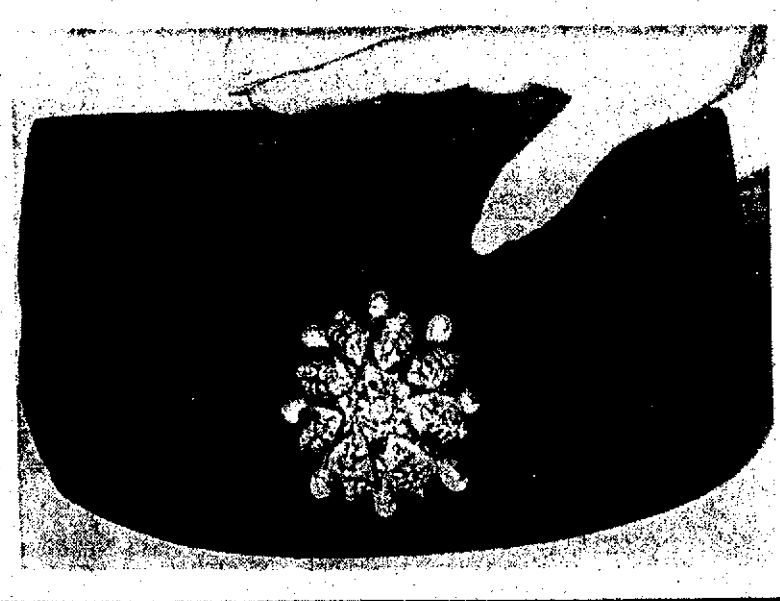

Now, he's so busy turning out jewelry for leading department stores across the nation, he has little time for custom work.

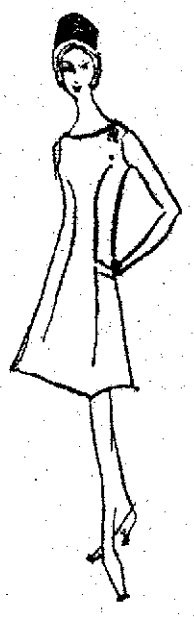

CLASP GIVES DAZZLE to Robert Original necklace, a four strand design combining olive and fuschia beads with simulated pearls. Clasp can be worn forward for added glamor after-five, or to back with suits, daytime dresses.

New Needs to Meet

The tragedy of Thalidomide, the drug which has caused deformities in thousands of newborn infants, emphasized the need for public support of the March of Dimes fight against birth defects, according to Mrs. John T. Bohan, chapter chairman and Mrs. Mark Day Miner, campaign director.

They have just returned from a pre-campaign meeting of volunteer leaders in Sacramento planning this January's 25th Anniversary March of Dimes.

Mrs. Miner and Mrs. Bohan said Dr. Herbert T. Wagner, medical consultant for the National Foundation March of Dimes and a principal speaker at the meeting, reported that headquarters and local chapters are now supporting more than 50 treatment centers for birth defects, arthritis and polio in various sections of the country. The program involves about half the nation's medical schools as affiliates.

"This means," said Mrs. Bohan, "that more and more children with these crippling diseases can now receive complete medical care right in their home communities. I'm sure the American people will help us expand this vital program by supporting the March of Dimes in January."

In each center, Mrs. Miner explained, teams of medical and other specialists provide comprehensive medical care and treatment to correct or limit crippling and disability caused by birth defects, arthritis and polio.

* * * *

HIGHLIGHING the Sacramento meeting they said were illustrated lectures showing improvement of children treated at March of Dimes financed headquarter centers.

Mrs. Miner said that, in addition to providing medical care, contributions to the 25th anniversary March of Dimes will also support the National Foundation research program to find the causes and preventives for birth defects and arthritis. She said the slogan for the January campaign is "Give for the Life of a Child."

AWS TURNS TO POETRY TO PROMOTE EVENTS

Some of the finest writing we have even seen at Long Beach State is in the current issue of the "AWS Spectator," newsletter of Associated Women Students, Louise Holf, editor. Here are a few excerpts:

BEFORE HARVEST

Yonder a maid and her wight
Come whispering by . . .
Murmuring . . .
Of the football games
As they rush on To the AWS
After Game Dance
October 27.

WOMEN OF THE WORLD . . . UNITE!

They are the hollow men . . .
They are the stuffed men . . .
It is up to us to see
That justice is done.
Do your part; use your rights
To vote the 17th.

MARVELS TOO NUMEROUS TO MENTION

Burnt sugar icings dripping over spumfy cakes,
Crystals of sugar glistening on warm, crunchy cookies.
And a variety of temptuous delights

OUR SPY in Delta Delta Delta tells us that (1) Tri-Delt alums will honor actives at the annual party Monday night at the sorority house; (2) the gals will host the LBSC football team at a coffee hour, Oct. 22; and (3) the group has its own built-in musical appreciation course with recent serenades by Tau Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Pi, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternities.

If there is any one person at State who is directly concerned with the fortunes of all the 13,000-plus students, it is Dean of Admissions Clarence Bergland so we are sure that our readers will be interested in knowing he was honored last week as radio KLFM's Citizen-of-the-Week.

Dean Bergland recently added to the long list of organizations of which he is a busy member by taking over the chairmanship of all Circle-K clubs in the California - Nevada - Hawaii area and being named one of the three members on the Alcoa Scholarship Committee.

* * * *

AND THIS news from Delta Zeta: Monday night in the cafeteria, its the traditional all-pledge dance . . . DZs are making plans for their Oct. 24 Founders Day fete at Virginia Country Club . . . 22 pledges have brought Delta Zeta rosters up to full strength . . . also on the sorority's futures list is a Nov. 3 fashion show for the alums and a Daughter - Dad night at the Nov. 16 football game.

And a word to the wise: Tonight's foreign films at 5 and 7:30 in the Little Theater is Ingmar Bergman's "Secrets of Women." Better come early: the first two films had turn-away crowds.

Counter Action

Drugstores carry everything these days — even drugs. So, if you're looking for a saucepan or a baby's bib or a lipstick or a tiki lamp, try one of these neon-lit emporiums.

We did and found the following:

UNDER $1

Fastidious fix-all. Now there's a greaseless grease for libricating draw drapes that won't draw; desk drawers that stick; tricycles that squeak. In powder form, it puffs-on for quick fix-ups. All but colorless (chalk white) and quite odorless, it's neat item to add to household handyman shelf.

* * * *

Metal mender. New plastic aluminum fills-in holes in kitchen pots and pans—puts them back on the fire in good-as-new shape. Air dries to metal hardness, stands up to 600 degrees fahrenheit and adheres to metal, good or glass. Also practical for mending plumbing leaks or damaged auto mufflers.

* * * *

For that toothy grin. New liquid dental stain remover keeps smiles bright, teeth white. Removes food and nicotine stains between trips to dentist's office. Advertised as safe to use.

UNDER $2

A head of the rest. New shower head of delrin is self cleaning, won't rust or corrode or tarnish. Fits all ½-inch shower arms; swivels any direction; eliminates leaky faucet drip.

* * * *

Hose saver. That snagged, ripped, torn or frayed garden hose can be put back into watering order. Clamp type (no threads) re-usable mender does trick. Cut out leaky section; square ends; clamp together. Fits any 7/16 plastic or rubber garden hose. Is leaf proof, pull proof.

UNDER $5

Bright blinker. Imported emergency lantern is a must for motorist in trouble. Serves double duty switching from flashlight to flashing red SOS signal in a minute. Compact, sturdy, it operates on four batteries. Stands on its own for middle of the freeway traffic warnings.

UNDER $6

Hand-driven toothbrushes are out—well almost. New automatic toothbrushes are gaining in popularity. Latest, especially good for small-fry use, is battery operated — completely safe. Entire unit can be immersed in water without danger of shock. All parts are sealed in plastic. Makes daily chore of brushing teeth fun for junior. Encourages him to brush regularly and correctly with up-and down motion dentists recommend. Other models up to $20.

UNDER $15

A toast to ingenuity—and golden-brown toast. New automatic reflector toaster comes with selector dial to permit choice of several shades Bread, English muffins, open-face cheese sandwiches or frozen waffles can be placed flat on toaster shelf, and when start bar is operated, reflected heat toasts both sides at one time. Of chrome-plated steel with heat-resistant plastic end panels and feet, new toaster has crumb tray that swings down for easy cleaning and automatic shut-off to guarantee no burnt offerings for kitchen disposal.

PARENTS' CORNER

Flaunted Immorality Leads to Confusion

By RICHMOND BARBOUR

Sex comes naturally. The reproductive drive is one of the strongest drives we have. Unless we teach our children to live according to a strict moral code they'll become promiscuous. We simpy can't let them carry out their biological urges. That's obvious, isn't it?

Then why do we throw sex in their faces all the time? Why do we glamorize immorality? Why do we make sin and depravity seem attractive.

Have you seen any of the "modern movies? They glorify prostitutes and poke fun at decent people. They describe horrid perversions. They present illicit sex as the normal way of life.

Or have you read the novels on the best-seller lists—"Tropic of Cancer," "Lolita" or "Lady Chatterly's Lover?" These books are pornographic, They are sold legally now, all over the country. They are being read by impressionable, literate, questioning teen-agers. I can testify that in one city they are turning up as new contributing factors in teen-agers sex delinquency. Probably the same thing is happening in other places. Read one of these books. Be shocked.

EVEN under the best of circumstances it isn't easy for teen-agers to remain decent. Our young people are struggling to control themselves, just as we struggled. Can you remember how you felt about sex when you were 16?

Our parents were wiser than we are. They didn't let books and movies undermine our ideals. They spared us the temptations our children receive. I think we should be ashamed.

Liberal Arts

Four recent members of the LBCC Liberal Arts Division choir and the Schola Cantorum have sung their way to renown and are currently preparing for an American tour with the Greg Smith Singers, a professional chorus limited to 20 members. They are Ned Bertsch, 1961-62 College Choir president, Phillip Carey, Tom Westerman and Sharon LaNobs.

This year's Homecoming theme, "Ole Goes Disneyland," will blossom forth Friday, when the traditional Old Clothes Day takes on a new look. His Many Medals Prove His Mettle

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
PT Press Exec

He's as much at home in a cockpit as a duck is in water. And, speaking of ducks, today's Chef of the Week, Col. Glenn T. Eagleston, has taken some dives of his own.

He's credited with 25 enemy planes destroyed, and 14 damaged, while flying 96 combat missions in P-51 and P-47 type aircraft. Currently he commands the 2478th Air Force Reserve Sector, headquartered at Long Beach. He is a rated command pilot with more than 3,600 flying hours and 1,200 jet fighter hours to his credit.

Born in Farmington, Utah, he came to our state in time to graduate from Alhambra High School. He attended Pasadena City College for one year before enlisting in the U.S. Army in August of 1940. Upon completion of the Army Air Force basic and advanced pilot training course at Luke Air Force Base, Arizona, he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in September of '42.

* * * *

SINCE that time he's been suspended in midair about 90% of the time. From the 354th Fighter Group in the European Theater, he went to the 109th Air Force Base Unit at Dover, Del., and then on to Newark, N. J., where he served as director of operations and subsequently as executive officer.

His "altitude" itinerary continued on, each stop, adding knowledge to his already vast store. Eagleston's advanced training included air tactical school, jet fighter pilot training, and graduation from Air Command Staff School, Air University at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., in 1949.

Col. Glenn T. Eagleston

Col. Eagleston began his second tour of overseas duty at Korea in November of 1950, where many of his aforementioned dives were made. One year later he was returned to the States (New York, specifically) where he remained until completing the Manpower and Management Course at George Washington University, Washington, D. C.

* * * *

MORE BASES and more promotions followed until he eventually came-down-for-a landing in Okinawa in 1958. He received the Legion of Merit for his outstanding people-to-people activities while serving in this capacity.

Among his other decorations are the Distinguished Service Cross, Distinguished Flying Cross with three oak leaf clusters, and the Air Medal with 26 oak leaf clusters. He was given the Croix De Guerre de Vermeil Dore and the American, European, African and Middle East Ribbons. The United Nations Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, and many other decorations, are included among Col. Eagleston's rewards for a job well done.

That Eagleston is the man-for-the job is evidenced by the fact that he participated in the air offensive in Europe, Normandy, Northern and Southern France, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace, and in Central Europe.

It was in July of '62 that he became commander of the 2478th Air Force Reserve Sector, Long Beach.

* * * *

COL. and Mrs. Eagleston, the former Louise Fahey of Holyoke, Mass., have five children ranging in ages from 17 years to six months. There's Susan, 17, Billy, 15, Sandra, 13, Noel Page, 3, and Lisa MacMurray, 6 months.

While "the colonel" usually goes hunting in Arizona, he is rated as having chalked up one at the shortest hunting seasons in history. It all happened on the base at Okinawa . . . one lone deer got lost on the runway. He "bagged" it in nothing flat.

Eagleston cooks with the same casual flair with which he flies, always taking over the preparation of the entree at family dinner parties.

His entree today is for Dove, a la Eagleston.

Chef of the Week

Dove, a la Eagleston

- 1 dozen dove
- ½ lb. margarine
- 2 tbsp. flour
- ½ cup dry sherry
- salt
- pepper
- garlic
- bay leaves

Salt and pepper dove. Use garlic salt with light touch. Melt margarine in frying pan; brown dove in margarine, turning rapidly.

Remove dove; add flour and stir in sherry.

Return dove to frying pan and simmer for 20 minutes. Serve on buttered toast.

Serves one hungry man.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Stands Pat Against Nudism

DEAR ABBY: The lady who lets her children run around naked is doing them and her community a favor. Nudist children are never juvenile delinquents. No, the world isn't going crazy. It is slowly awakening to the fact that morality does not come from the clothing store.—A NUDIST FAMILY IN NASHUA, IOWA.

ABBY

DEAR FAMILY: Aren't there Laws? And those who break them might risk having the book thrown at them. Including the Good Book:
"When thou seest the naked cover him." Isaiah, LVIII, 7.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I am very puzzled over your attitude towards people who let their small children run naked in their yards. You are fair in most respects but so unfair in this one. A naked child is a beautiful thing. Your thinking reveals either a sick or nasty mind.—DISAPPOINTED

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: My reason for objecting to small children playing naked in their yards is that child mofesters and sex maniacs always seem to turn up where they are least expected. Parents who allow their children to romp unclothed should build high fences.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I met an artist about six months ago and fell for him brush, palette and easel. I started taking painting lessons from him but he told me to save my money because I had no imagination and was wasting my time and his. (I knew this, but took the lessons to get to know him better.) He is not married and doesn't appear to have any inclination in that direction. I have bought more of his paintings than I have room for, but I can't seem to get anywhere with him. Tell me how to get this man to realize how I feel about him—NO ARTIST

DEAR NO: You don't have to be an artist to draw conclusions. This man is in love with his art. All you will ever get from him is the brush.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: Regarding OLD-FASHIONED MOTHER who reported the children's misbehavior to Father at the end of the day so that he could do the punishing:

My mother did that, and half the time we didn't know what we were being punished for. We grew to fear our father, and instead of running to greet him, we'd hide. Then Father passed away when we were in our teens. Our mother had no control over us because she had no one to do the disciplining for her. All she could say was, "If your father were only alive!" She was fortunate because we never got into any real trouble. So, I want to agree with you, Abby. Tell parents again that disciplining children is a joint effort, and should take place the moment a child needs it and not "when Daddy comes home."—WITH ABBY ALL THE WAY

OUR COVER

Ranging along Seventh Street just east of Long Beach State College, the Bixby place—"The Ranch of the Big Red Barn"—has stood forth as a familiar landmark for over half a century. "Big Red," along with attending buildings and the picturesque old ranch house it served, once sat proudly in the middle of a 50-square-mile spread. But time moves on, and demanding inroads of civilization have now slashed that vast area to a mere 1,500 acres, with still further cuts in prospect next year. Our cover, as drawn by staff artist Clyde Winslow, catches a view of the old barn framed beneath lacy foliage of an ancient pepper tree.

NEXT WEEK

One hundred years ago the woman who worked in a gambling hall was doomed to the life of a virtual outcast. Not any more. For instance, in the casinos at Reno, Nev., are 1,900 girl dealers. Most of them are married, and some are grandmothers. Many of them are active in church, P-T.A. and club circles. Southland has more to say about them next week, in words and pictures, in a story called "The Girl Dealers."

Little Boy, Big Jump

Mike Day, 11, poises at the top of straw-covered ski jump preliminary to fast down-run to become air borne.

By Rosemary Beck

A LONG BEACH youngster who is up in the air about physical fitness, is Mike Day, 11-year-old son of Mrs. Marylee Day, 2024 Locust St., Long Beach, and a 6th grade student at Lafayette School.

Mike, who spends his weekends at Mt. Baldy in the Angeles National Forest, is undaunted by the lack of snow during the summer and fall. A 15-minute ride on the chair lift carries him to an elevation of 7,800 feet, where, along with scores of other enthusiasts, he skis on straw-covered slopes and ski-jumps on a chemical compound similar to cornstarch. (Straw skiing continues until snow skiing starts).

Mike began skiing on straw a year ago and proved himself a natural on the snow slopes last winter by winning trophies and ribbons in junior competition. He is now jumping almost 70 feet off Mt. Baldy's 30-meter jump which has a vertical rise of 100 feet from the floor of the ski jump. Mike, along with several other youthful jumpers, also serves as a junior instructor at the Mt. Baldy ski school.

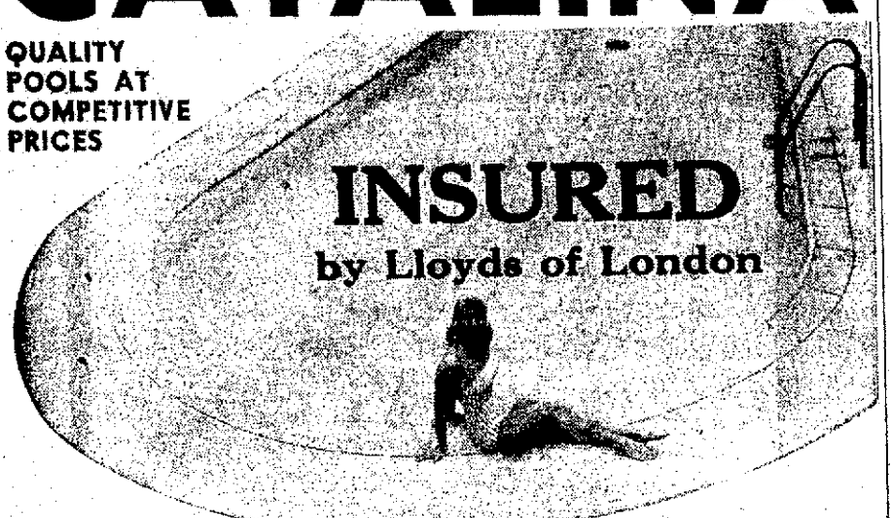

Soon Mike and his mother will be learning German in preparation for a trip to Kitszbuehl, Austria, next September, where they plan to live for two years, and where Mike hopes to meet the challenge of Austrian ski slopes.

Here's Mike, wearing padded helmet, at the top of the 30-meter Mt. Baldy ski jump.

Las Vegas visitors marvel at the beauty and lavish costumes of shows at the Nevada resort. This bit from a Moro-Landis routine is example.

Beauty on the Line

By Aubrey B. Haines

FROM the 10900 block on North Hollywood's Ventura Boulevard nowadays comes a conglomeration of seemingly unrelated sounds. The din of a tap-dance routine is sometimes heard above the racket of a battery of sewing machines, the twang of Oriental music, a cobbler's hammer, and the whir of a movie projector.

Out of it all come Moro-Landis Productions, pioneers of Las Vegas spectaculars. Heading the company is George Moro, producer, choreographer, and stager of the productions. His wife, Ruth Landis, concentrates on the myriad problems of the business end, including maintenance of the massive record file of Moro-Landis-trained dancers and showgirls scattered throughout the nation. Miss Landis also supervises creation of the elaborate production costumes turned out by the hundreds in the costume studio on the premises, where a single showgirl's costume may cost as much as $1,000.

BEGINNING 13 years ago, Moro and Landis were so successful that they almost found no time to marry. "I was working at El Rancho in Las Vegas then," Ruth recalls. "I'm a private from the ranks—an ex-chorus girl. The manager liked the girls in the line but not the costumes or the routines."

"He asked us, 'Can you do better?'" says George, a former stage and film director. "He offered us a deal for four weeks. We stayed three years." During that time they changed two routines every two weeks. "Finally," George says, "Ruth asked me if I had a blue suit. I said yes. She said, 'Wear it this afternoon.' I knew what was coming."

Today, some 200 dance numbers later, Moro-Landis Productions places acts in night clubs from Las Vegas to Boston.

"We have all our routines on film," Ruth

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to LaReina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give brief genealogy on McCLAIN.—A. B., Lakewood.

A. B.: McCLAIN is a variation of MacLean, one of the most prominent Scotch Highland clans. The ancient source name was Mac-Gilla-Eain, meaning "Sons of the adherent of St. John." The hero clan founder "Gilla-Eain of the Battleaxe" lived in the 1200s. The clan armorial crest consists of this battleaxe, symbolizing the ancestor's prowess in war. Duart Castle was the clan home for many centuries. Located on a cliff of the Island of Mull, across a channel from the west Scotch county of Argyll, it is still formidable and impressive. The MacLean coat-of-arms is a shield divided into four sections. The upper left section has a red rock on a silver background; the upper right has a hand holding a blue cross on silver; the lower left has a black galley ship on gold; the lower right section has a salmon below two red eagles on a silver backing.

DEAR MISS RULE: I will appreciate the background of HUBERT. Mrs. H. H., Lakewood.

H. H.: HUBERT'S French progenitor was baptized with this name in honor of St. Hubert an 8th century Dutch bishop who became patron saint of hunters. Hubert meant "With brilliant intelligence." The Hubert shield granted in medieval Normandy has three red lions on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like brief history on HURT. Mrs. G. C., Long Beach.

G. C.: HURT an English personality descriptive surname, was first used for a man known to his relatives and friends as quick and brave as a "Hart" or stag deer. Centuries of name evolution resulted in the change from Hart to Hurt. Thomas Le Hurt was an English land owner in the late 13th century. Five generations of the Hart family lived at Ashborne, Derbyshire up to the year 1611. Their shield has a golden stripe between three gold rosettes on a black background.

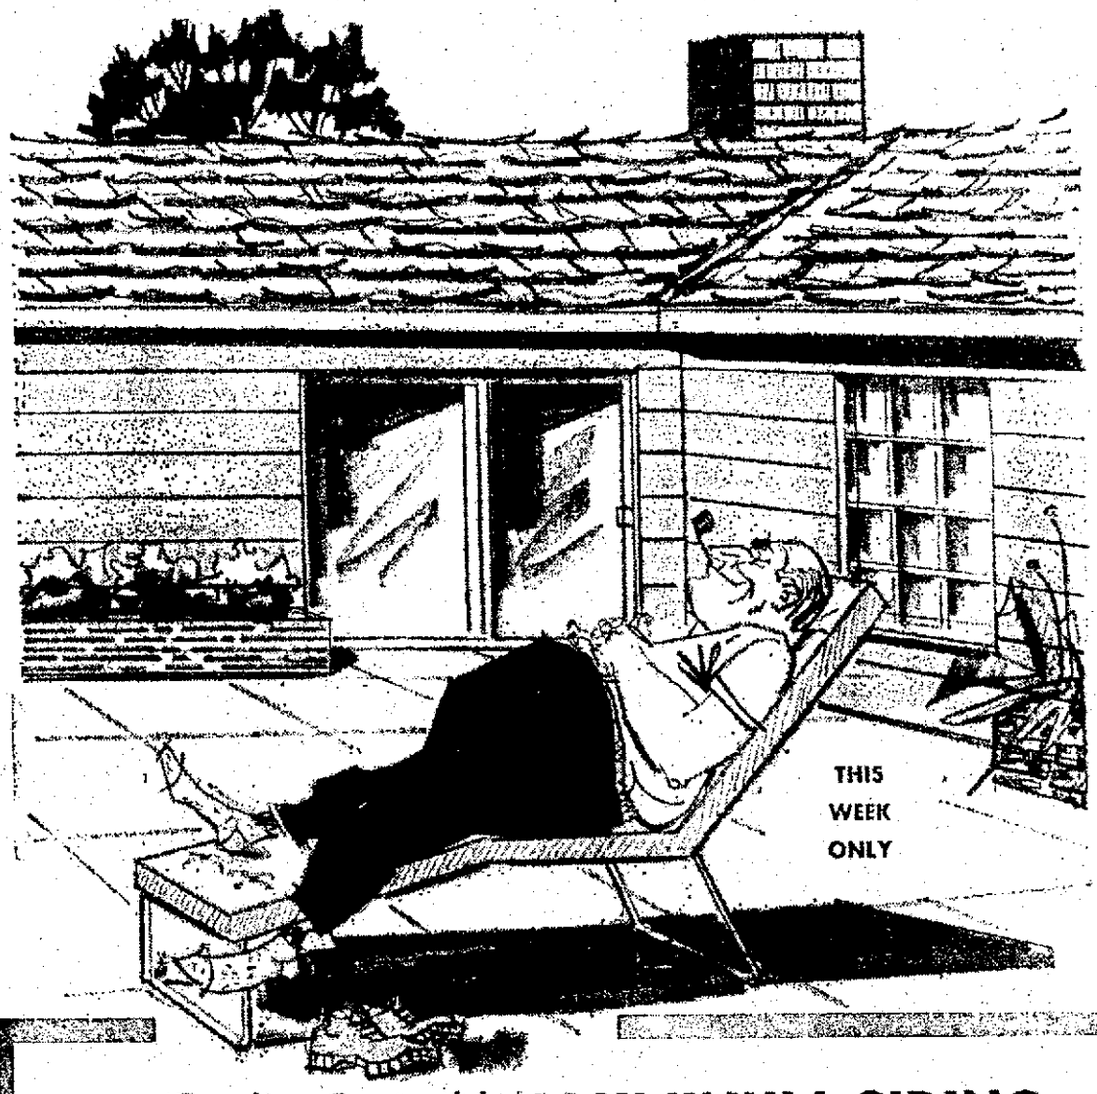

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background of HARBORD. M. W., Long Beach.

M. W.: HARBORD is derived from the Teutonic "Heri-bord" meaning "Warrior's-shield." Your ancestors were living in England before the French invasion in 1066. The Harbord lineage were titled Barons Suffield. Their shield has a golden imperial crown between four rampant golden lions on a background divided into four sections colored alternating blue and red.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on THOMAS. T. T., Long Beach; J. T., Lakewood.

T. T., J. T.: THOMAS was at first an English given-name honoring the Apostle St. Thomas whose name signified "a twin." By the 1200s Thomas became a surname, recorded in many parts of Britain. Welsh Thomases decended from Thomas Ap (son of) Llewellyn, last king of south Wales. They used the Welsh royal shield,a gold rampant lion on a red, gold-bordered background. Capt. Nathaniel Thomas, born in Wales in 1606, migrated to Massachusetts where he married Jennie Briggs whose father arrived on the Mayflower in 1620.

Judo, the 'Gentle Way,' permits followers to develop mind, body

'Hajime!'

By William Jones

NINETY-FIVE pound Roxanne Mealer walks onto the tatami, bows to her sensai and then stands patiently awaiting his orders. "Some nagewaza," barrel-chested John Ogden orders.

The slenderly built girl walks up to a youth. With a purposeful shriek, she flips the youth over her shoulder and onto the mat with a thud.

The young man is 17. Roxanne is 10. He outweighs her by 70 pounds.

But Roxanne is not unique as a judoka (Judo participant). There are students as young as 6 at Ogden's Judo School in Long Beach, one of 24 recognized Judo schools in Southern California. Other schools in the area include the Long Beach Judo School, 1677 Seabright Ave., operated by Mas Nakaoko, and the Kodokan Judo Dojo School at Garden Grove, run by Shag Okada, and belonging to the Judo Black Belt Federation and the Amateur Athletic Union. Both Nakaoko and Okada have Fifth Degree Black Belt rating.

OGDEN, WHO OPERATES his school on East Anaheim Street, says the popularity of the sport was given impetus by service men stationed in Japan during World War II and the Korean conflict.

"It was then they cleared up some misconceptions they had about Judo," Ogden said. "They had thought of Judo as a bloody sport in which persons poked fingers in eyes or delivered a rabbit punch to the back of the neck. In Japan, these service men saw Judo in a new perspective."

Judo, meaning "the gentle way" in Japanese, is described by its followers as a way of life in which the student develops both mind and body, emphazing mental relaxation and physical coordination. The physical emphasis is on leverage and balance. Weight, strength, age, sex are of little importance.

Inside a typical Judo school there is silence except for the soft scuffling of bare feet on the mat—the tatami. The instructor, the sensai, directs the students to sit quietly on the mat. All wear the traditional Judo-gi, a costume composed of a white cotton jacket, trousers and cloth belt.

"HAJIME" (begin) shouts the sensai. Contestants square off in pairs, bow to each other and flip their opponents to the canvas with whacks that resound like artillery fire. A

Judo student shows how to prepare for a hard fall and escape injury as he is tossed with a one-arm shoulder throw by his instructor, John Ogden.

Roxanne Mealer, 10, uses the science learned as a judoka to send a youth of 17 and 70 pounds weight advantage over her shoulder in demonstration fall.

Confidence is a factor gained in studying judo, according to Police Officer J. R. Taylor, shown demonstrating a loin throw against an adversary.

Los Alamitos–reduced in two centuries from 50 square miles to a mere 1,500 acres . . .

The Ranch With the Big Red Barn

By Vera Williams

Southland residents often refer to Los Alamitos Rancho, east of Long Beach State College on E. Seventh Street, as the "Ranch With the Big Red Barn."

A 'POSSUM, not particularly afraid, crouched on top of the fence around the tennis court at the Fred H. Bixby ranch in the moonlight the other night, looking down with some superiority on a couple of leaping, barking ranch dogs.

They couldn't reach him, and he and they knew it, but the encounter provided excitement for a half-hour or so—the first excitement for months at La Casa de Rancho Los Alamitos.

The first excitement, that is, if one doesn't count the rabbits—sometimes 30 at a time—that hop in from the nearby brush under cover of darkness to feed on the lush lawns.

Or the mocking birds that raise their families in the century-old pepper trees and occasionally fly down to battle with the dogs.

ALL IS SILENCE and serenity at Los Alamitos Rancho, in less than two centuries cut down from 50 square miles to 1,500 acres—100 acres at the "home place" with the big red barn, at the top of E. Seventh Street in Long Beach, held in lifetime trust for the Bixby son and daughters, and 1,400 acres controlled by the Fred H. Bixby Ranch Co. east of 101 Highway overlooking the Marina.

There will be much excitement, beginning next year, when an $18 million development, deluxe multi-units, rises on the ranch land.

"They'll be on the hills, with a view of the ocean and the Marina: they'll be two stories high, with a feeling of space—gardens, patios," explains George J. Salzer of the Ranch Co. (If he had a title, it would be "manager," but in that casual way of the Bixbys, beloved by employes and friends, nobody ever bothered to give him a title.)

Los Alamitos Rancho is part of the Los Nietos land grant which Pedro Fages, Spanish governor of California, gave in 1784 to Manuel Nieto, a Spanish soldier who had served under him. The grant, "bounded on the north by the foothills and on the south by the ocean," was 50 miles square, lying from the San Gabriel foothills to the ocean, between the Santa Ana River and the San Gabriel River which at that time emptied into the ocean near Wilmington.

AT FIRST IT was 300,000 acres, but because it encroached on the property of the San Gabriel Mission, it was reduced by half—to 150,000 acres.

In 1804, Don Manuel Nieto died. After his estate was settled, the part of his land known as Rancho Los Alamitos, comprising some 29,000 acres, went to his son Don Juan Jose. The part known as Rancho Los Cerritos, of approximately the same number of acres, went to his married daughter, Dona Manuela Nieto de Cota.

(Los Cerritos Ranch House, 4600 Virginia Road, now is a Long Beach historical museum. It is open to the public; visit it some day.)

Alamitos Avenue and its extension divided the two ranches. In the park west of the Villa Riviera stands a marker that shows the division of the two ranches at the beach.

In 1834 Don Juan Jose sold Rancho Los Alamitos to Jose Figueroa, Mexican governor of California, for $500—$500, scarcely a down payment on one of the thousands of pleasant homes now on the rancho property!

DON ABEL STEARNS, a Yankee from Massachusetts who had taken out Mexican citizenship, married Arcadia Bandini, daughter of his friend, Don Juan Bandini of Los Angeles, in 1841. At that time Stearns was 42 and his bride was 14.

The following year Stearns bought Rancho Los Alamitos from Francisco Figueroa, brother of the late governor, for $6,000, of which $1,500 was paid in cash and the rest in hides and tallow laid down in San Pedro and Mazatlan.

At the time of the sale, the official list of improvements on the property besides 2,043 cattle, 182 horses, mules, sheep and hogs, included three adobe houses, one covered with pitch and two with rushes. These houses, the walls four feet thick, had been built, it was said, by Don Manuel Nieto, himself. That makes the dates between 1784 and 1804.

Stearns combined the adobes into one house and for the next 24 years he and Arcadia spent their summers there. The adobe, the oldest landmark in Long Beach, is the center of the Los Alamitos hacienda. Rooms and wings have been added, making it a 19-room house—but in the attic one still may see and touch the original bare adobe.

DARK-EYED, spirited Arcadia presided over Los Alamitos and "El Palacio" in Los Angeles. Celebrities who visited California stayed at the Stearns home where aristocratic dons and their families attended banquets and balls given in their honor.

Meanwhile, the companion Los Cerritos Rancho also had fallen into Yankee-become-Mexican hands. Don Juan Temple, who had cruised around the Horn in a windjammer, married Dona Rafaela Cota, one of the 12 children of Dona Manuela Nieto de Cota, and he bought Los Cerritos in 1843. His wife and her 11 brothers and sisters had bought the rancho from their mother. Don Juan paid each owner $275.75. For an additional $25 he bought the ranch branding iron and the right to use it.

Temple built his two-story adobe house in 1845. This house, after having been restored by the Llewellyn Bixby family in 1930, was taken over by the City of Long Beach in 1956 to be preserved as a historical monument.

Horses bearing the colors of Los Alamitos and Los Cerritos annually ran a four-mile race starting from the south side of El Cerrito (Signal Hill) straight to the ocean where they circled a stake and raced back to the starting point.

BAD TIMES came to the master of Los Alamitos. In 1859 he started to build the Arcadia block in Los Angeles, behind his fancy residence, "El Palacio." In 1861 in order to finish building the Arcadia block, named for his wife, he mortgaged Rancho Los Alamitos to Michael Reese of San Francisco for $20,000 with interest at 1½ per cent a month.

Came 1862 and 1863, the years of the "big drought." Cattle died by the thousands. Rancho Los Alamitos was advertised for sale for $153, the amount of unpaid taxes on the property. No one offered to buy it.

In 1866, unable to pay off the mortgage, Don Abel Stearns lost Rancho Los Alamitos to Michael Reese by foreclosure.

Also in 1866, Don Juan Temple sold Rancho Los Cerritos, 27,000 acres, for $20,000 to Flint-Bixby & Co., made up of Dr. Thomas Flint, his brother Benjamin, and Llewellyn Bixby. Jotham Bixby, a younger brother of Llewellyn, was made manager. In 1869 Jotham Bixby bought a half interest in Los Cerritos, which then was principally a sheep ranch.

John W. Bixby, cousin of Jotham and Llewellyn, came out from Maine to help out with the ranch. Also from Maine came Susan Patterson Hathaway, sister of Jotham's wife. Margaret Hathaway Bixby, to help with the children.

SOON JOHN and Susan were married. Their son, Fred Hathaway Bixby, was born in Wilmington in 1875.

In 1878 John W. Bixby subleased a portion of Rancho Los Alamitos and with his wife and small son moved into the neglected old adobe, which had a dirt floor and sagging roof. Their first night Mrs. Bixby cooked in kettles over an open fire. Her husband nailed slats across a window to keep cattle from hooking their way into the house. That window now can be pointed out in the heart of the Bixby home.

In 1881 John W. Bixby persuaded I. W. Hellman, a Los Angeles banker, to come in for a third interest. Rancho Los Alamitos was bought by John W. Bixby, I. W. Hellman and the Bixby Co.—with John as the manager.

John W. Bixby and Hellman visualized great expansion, with Alamitos Bay as the harbor for Long Beach. It was a natural harbor. (The present harbor on the west side is man-made.)

Unfortunately, in 1887 when he was only 38 years old, John W. Bixby died. His third of Rancho Los Alamitos went to his widow, Susan, and their two children, Fred, 12, and Susanna, 7.

Fred H. Bixby and Florence Elizabeth Green were married in 1898 shortly after they were graduated from the University of California at Berkeley.

From then until 1906 Fred H. Bixby leased the property from his mother and sister. Mrs. John W. Bixby died in 1906. That year, Fred H. Bixby and his wife moved into the old adobe with their three children (soon to be four, and later five).

FRED H. BIXBY was a "working rancher" and the ranch under his management was a "working ranch," blooded horses, blooded cattle, up-to-date farming and ranching methods. Employes called him "Boss." He broke mules when he was in his 60s, he roped horses for exercise when he was in his 70s.

Bixby's Shire horses and Polled (without horns) Herefords brought prizes wherever they were shown. He crossed Shire stallions and donkeys and raised the biggest, strongest mules in the country.

He was president of the National Livestock Assn., president of the California State Fair Board. He gave a large grant to the University of

SMITHSONIAN OF THE PRAIRIES

The Man Who Bought His School

By Sterling Bemis

HAROLD WARP liked school so well he bought it. As a result the doorway to the rustic past opens daily at Warp's Pioneer Village on the flatlands of Nebraska at Minden.

Minden is on U. S. Highway 6, but it's only a piece down the road from Highway 30. Either way, once you've entered Pioneer Village you'll find arrayed in 22 buildings 30,000 items tracing the history of the plains country from Kit Carson's moccasin paths to the vapor trails of the jet airplane. It is an orderly record of America's progress since 1830.

Now back to school with Harold Warp. The 50-year-old Minden native was a prosperous Chicago manufacturer (Flex-O-Glass) with a longstanding love for the midlands when he learned a little over a decade ago that the country school he attended as a boy was for sale. His bid won the stocky little building and all its records.

NEXT HE ACQUIRED the first church built in his home town. Then he enlisted his sister, Mrs. T. C. Jensen of Minden, and her auctioneer husband in the chore of bringing true a dream of preserving farm and shop scenes of the past for posterity. In three years Warp and the Jensens traveled 140,000 miles and their collections were ready for chronological display.

The village opened in 1953. It has cost Harold Warp easily a million dollars of the fortune he has accumulated since as a 20-year-old he left Minden for Chicago with $800 and the patent for a plastic window covering. His reverence for his heritage as the son of hardy Norwegian immigrants pioneering on the new sod of Nebraska is shown at every turn. But the exhibition is more than regional. It reflects the ingenuity and enterprise that built America.

Viewing a kaleidoscopic range of industrial heirlooms, the visitor sees a complete panorama of transportation—wagons, horseless carriages, steam engines, firewagons, bicycles, velocipedes, boats and airplanes. The gulf in time and invention between the first internal combustion engine and the first jet airplane is spanned.

AN ERSTWHILE rustic lad will find at the village the farm machines that once geared his day's chores. He can push buttons and set the wheels of some exhibits turning, hear the clatter of a thresher, recall the smell of chaff under a burning sun.

The lathe of Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin, is one of many items that give the village the historic stature of the Smithsonian Institution. Some who have toured the old museum in Washington have found the Nebraska counterpart superior in its field in some respects. For one thing, its exhibitions are immaculately groomed. They are arranged for easy access.

In an original pony express station may be seen the saddle of Buffalo Bill. It became the galloping throne of the celluloid sheik, Rudolph Valentino. The village shows the most complete array of authentic pony express paintings existant. An "honest Injun" fort dating to the redskin wars, the government land office of pioneer Bloomington, Neb., and the railroad depot of the western terminus of the Burlington Railroad in the seventies are among historic structures.

LEGEND SAYS that hard dollars were molded into the bell resting in the old church. It responds with a silvery clang to a finger-tap, but most visitors are gentle with it. A sign at the entrance to the church, still used for worship, reads:

QUIET PLEASE.
IF YOU MUST WHISPER,
WHISPER A PRAYER

The builders of Pioneer Village got a taste of prairie rigors when they wrought a replica of a sod house. Six men needed three weeks and stripped 11 acres of sod to copy a structure that cost the original sodbusters $39.50. Touring handymen find a bewitching array of levers and cogs, wheels and brakes, harness and tools. Women are enthralled by priceless china and silver antiques handed down in the Warp family. The

With a Method

Purposeful changes fitted this home to family wishes.

in the Make-Over

By Stella George

THERE was method in the make-over of the Oscar Leifers' home at 2355 San Anseline Ave. when the family decided upon alterations, and each change was made with purpose.

New or renewed in the scheme of alterations are living room, family room, kitchen, screened-in patio and playroom-dressing room adjoining the pool. Only the three bedrooms and two baths remain unchanged.

Lacking an entrance hall, the house makes up for this missing feature through the ingenuity of Mrs. Leifer who created an illusion of a large entry by use of floor coverings. Light vinyl curves into thick martini-colored carpeting which covers about two-thirds of the living room floor. The vinyl continues into the kitchen, the service porch, and the bath, and, to the left, into the family room. Thus, all traffic through the home is on the vinyl floor.

THE LIVING ROOM appears much larger than it actually is because of the decorating theme. Martini drapes run the full length of the room. The couch is the same rich, neutral color. A pleasing and colorful accent is the French blue chair and hassock in one corner and an artificial tree in another corner blossoming with French blue flowers.

The long blond mahogany coffee table is unique because the entire center section lifts up to form a desk if needed. In the dining end of the room, table and chairs are also blond mahogany.

One wall of the kitchen was opened and a bar set above the sink when the family room was added. Walls are knotty pine. Spacious cupboards, large enough to store a poker table, for example, line a portion of one wall. A comfortable white couch which makes into a guest bed appears to be upholstered in some type of silk fabric. Actually, it is washable and practical naugahyde. Nearby is a leather chair, Leifer's exclusive property. A portable TV can be moved wherever needed.

THE SPACE between the kitchen and family room on one side of the bar is large enough to hold a small table and chairs for breakfast dining. The kitchen is bright and cheerful with yellow Formica and yellow appliances. Wallpaper is yellow and white. Because the area above the stove so often becomes stained because of cooking, Mrs. Leifer had a large square of clear glass installed from the top of the stove to the ceiling.

The entire back yard of the home consists of swimming pool and deck area. The latter is large enough to accommodate a ping pong table, deck chairs pool slide, and other pool luxuries. The screened-in patio, with access from the service porch, is a very usable and handy all-season room. In the summer it eliminates the fly problem completely yet provides the feeling of being out of doors. Furnishings include a round table, chairs, two rattan chairs and end table, and a small, formica-topped service

IN THE REAR of the garage (the side of which faces the pool) the Leifers have built a combination play room and dressing room. It can also serve as a guest room. From the youngsters' point of view it is one of the favorite rooms of all since it is private—and has a telephone.

A mural of two mermaids on the garage wall facing the pool was done by young Miss Leifer a few years ago.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Dramatically modern and highly practical, this study center is easily and inexpensively built from a plan.

By Bill Meyerriecks

EVERY PARENT wants his child to make better grades in school, but many don't take the trouble to follow one of the first recommendations of every education expert: provide a good place for home study.

This week's Sketchbook project not only gives instructions on how to provide a youngster a good place for study, but shows how the study center can give a decorator lift to an entire room.

The main design elements in the desk units are the vertical posts dramatically running from floor to ceiling. The secret of easy installation of the posts is a spring-loaded device which makes it possible to snap the 2x3s firmly in place in minutes, without damaging ceiling.

DESK SURFACE is 22 inches deep by 29 inches wide. It's supported at the wall by a hidden wall cleat, and screwed to the posts at the sides. Pigeon-holes rest on shelf brackets and the recommended pegboard wall surface permits easy installation of all types of additional hanging hardware.

The special type of pegboard we show on the wall is V-grooved and perforated only on the upper two-thirds of the sheet, giving it an attractive wainscot effect.

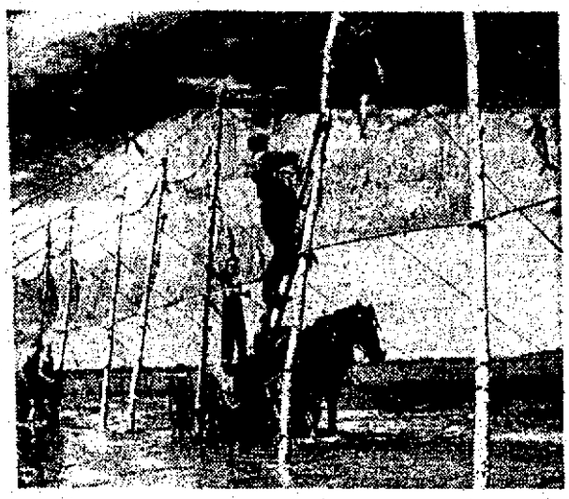

TO OBTAIN Student's Desk Plan, specify S-75 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Mosaic Projects Are Fun

Activities make leisure hours interesting and making the colorful little picture plaque shown above with NBC-TV's actress Sandra Campbell is an easy project. Same design may be used on a tray, coffee table or other subject. To obtain the full-sized plaque pattern together with a 34-page book showing all phases of mosaic handicraft, patterns for other projects and 200 illustrations of mosaic methods, send name and address and $1 in check, currency or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine, Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. Drive-In Fishing

Nova Scotians take their fish in a unique method that uses vast tidal differences as a chief factor.

By Enola Chamberlin

FISHING supplies mankind around the world with food and sport, and the ways of the fisherman are varied. Anglers in the Long Beach-Orange County coastal area make most of their catches with rod and reel, but Nova Scotians in the Bay of Fundy area have a drive-in method that lets the tides do much of the work.

The difference between the high and the low tides in the Bay of Fundy is a matter of 20 to 25 feet. Water drains out swiftly in one hour. A few hours later it comes pushing back with a force not to be denied. And when it rolls in it brings shad by the thousands. Accordingly, the early fishermen set high, heavily-braced poles into the sand at low tide level, about three miles out from shore proper. Between these poles, using only about the top one third, the fishermen string their nets a "tennis court" in the sea.

THE INCOMING tide bellies the middle of the nets like wind-blown sails. The shad become tangled in the mesh and there they hang as the tide goes out and the fishermen come in.

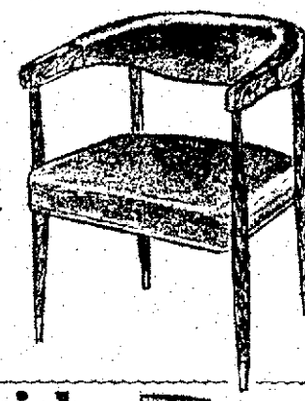

Sturdy horses draw wagons with ladders and men. Arriving at the nets one man stays in the wagon, picks the fish that are within his reach and manages the horse. Other men use ladders set in the sand to reach the catch. The fish are tossed into the wagon to be taken to market.

Since one fisherman's nets may stretch for hundreds of yards, many hands are needed if the net-caught fish are all to be harvested before the swirling tide roars in again.

It's Time to Lift Dahlias

Dahlia enthusiasts would never think of letting their favorite bulbs overwinter in the soil. Indifferent gardeners, however, often treat them this way with only a slight decrease in the quality of bloom next year.

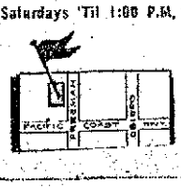

Dahlias cannot be left indefinitely, however, or the clumps will become impossibly crowded. Those left in the ground last winter should be lifted this year. The California Association of Nurserymen says this can be done any time the tops have dried, which could be now or December, according to when you planted your dahlias.

Breakfast Taste Surprise

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

Devonshire Raisin Breakfast Sandwich and sizzling sausages make up this start-of-the-day food platter.

FOR A taste surprise, try this delicious platter. It's a mouth watering selection of buttery raisin toast and jam swirled cream cheese spread, with sizzling meat accompaniment. It is especially appropriate to serve in late summer months, when sandwiches are most popular.

Americans eat more than 100 million sandwiches every day. For taste-surprising variety try several types of raisin bread available at your favorite bakery. This elegant orange spread is also excellent on raisin nut or raisin cinnamon bread.

Devonshire Raisin Breakfast Sandwich

- 2 (3-ounce) packages cream cheese
- ¼ teaspoon grated orange peel
- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- ¼ cup strawberry jam
- 12 slices raisin bread
- Butter

Soften cheese at room temperature. Beat in orange peel and juice until smooth. Swirl jam through cheese. Pile into serving dish. Toast and butter raisin bread. Arrange on large serving platter with cheese spread and any desired breakfast meat, such as link sausages. Makes 6 servings.

RAISIN BREAD SANDWICHES FOR SUMMER EATING: Raisin bread blends harmoniously with fillings for sandwich snacks indoors or out. Raisin nut bread is superb with Monterey Jack or Swiss cheese. For hearty meat sandwiches spread raisin bread with herb seasoned butter.

RAISIN CINNAMON BREAD LOVELY OFFERING: Spread it with softened cream cheese mixed with chopped salted pecans or sweet orange marmalade. For dainty tea sandwiches, butter raisin cinnamon bread generously, sprinkle with sugar and broil until bubbly. Cut in quarters to serve.

FREEZE AHEAD RAISIN SANDWICHES: These raisin bread sandwiches will stay fresh in your freezer for 2 to 3 weeks, ready for eating under the sun or stars. Spread bread with butter to the edges to prevent sogginess. Take your choice of cooked or canned chicken, turkey, seafood or meats, dried beef, cheeses and peanut butter fillings. Wrap well in transparent wrap or heavy waxed paper.

No two Lilly Kraus dolls are the same. This basket-maker group shows care that goes into making dolls.

Dolls of the Incas

By Dorothy Severns

LILLY KRAUS Ecuadorian dolls were recently introduced in California through Miss Ruth I. Mahood, historical Curator with the Los Angeles County Museum.

These hand-carved Indian dolls represent descendants of the Incas in the provinces of Ecuador from the capital city of Quito 15 miles from the equator, to majestic Chimborazo, the highest peak in the Andes.

Geographically interesting to children and adults, the dolls always will be a rarity because they are created and dressed by only one person—Lilly Kraus.

After beginning her career in London with original water-repellent artificial flowers, she opened a shop in Ecuador where she designed and sold handbags, belts, leather scrapbooks and albums.

AS A HOBBY, she made dolls — replicas of basket sellers of Guayaquil, dancers from the fiesta in Saquisili, poncho-clad men carrying flowers and produce to the fair — and Panama hats from Cuenca (More than 85 per cent of all Panama hats in the world are made in Ecuador). Doll-making was so fascinating that it continued to be her hobby after she married and retired from business.

Elsie Church, 2419 251st St.; who is a member of the Southern California Hand Weavers, was the first in California to possess a pair of the Lilly Kraus dolls. Most interesting to the "Twenty-Five Weavers" of the local group are the hand-woven clothes on the dolls and the spindle and distaff carried by the "Chimborazo Woman."

Weaving is as old as civilization in Ecuador.

On the roads leading to Otavado, they carry woven goods, fruits, vegetables, or chickens in small coops strapped to their backs.

Dressed in bright-colored ponchos and mushroom-shaped hats, some Otavado Indians wear sandals, many are barefoot, and about their waists are belts — chumpis—decorated with symbols of their ancient religion.

GROUPS of women in swishing skirts trot along with their husbands. Babies are usually strapped on their backs, and they chatter in Quechua (the Incan language) while their busy hands spin thread. A distaff for the wool is placed under the arm and the wool is drawn from it by the thumb and index fingers, which are moistened in the mouth of the spinner. When the spindel is given a whirl, the strands twirl tightly.

From ponchos and hats and sandals and underclothes, Lilly has reproduced each detail of dress in the dolls. Her delicate carving portrays every facial expression—the quiescent face of the Quito woman carrying the flower-decorated candle to church; gray-haired Musico's mellowed beauty, and the serene Calderon with his cage of chickens. In this age of assembly-line-production, it is amazing to discover that no two of her dolls are alike.

Making dolls that are replicas of Ecuador Indians has become an absorbing avocation with Lilly Kraus, above.

GRADE CARD

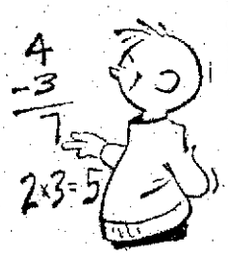

Problems in Math

By Harry Karns
Education Research Associates

QUESTION: "My daughter knows her math and can work problems quickly in her head. Yet her school papers reveal all sorts of minor mistakes which cut her grade down. What's the trouble—and the remedy?"

ANSWER: The difficulty sounds familiar.

A father recently described to us his experience with this seventh-grader during the first days of this school term. The teacher had assigned review problems in addition, subtraction and multiplication—processes which the boy had mastered in fifth and sixth grade. The father spot-checked the boy's work and found the answers correct. But the boy brought home "D's."

The father's first impulse was to write a brisk note to the teacher. But he decided instead to give the son's papers a second inspection.

True, the work had been done correctly, but problems had been copied incorrectly from the textbook. The child had gotten the right answers to the wrong problems. Naturally, his answers did not fit the key used by the teacher in grading papers.

IN SEVERAL CASES, the youngster, while doing accurate work on problems correctly copied, had not done the kind of work assigned. For example, he had added when the book called for multiplication. Another error resulted from writing numbers carelessly; a nine was written like a seven.

He had copied his work a second time for the sake of neatness and in doing so had put down wrong numbers—purely a mechanical error which did not reflect on his mathematical ability but which nevertheless cost him a grade point.

To describe such mistakes is to prescribe the remedy—greater care. Encourage your child to:

1. Double-check and make sure all numbers are copied correctly.
2. Write numbers clearly and distinctly and avoid making sevens like nines, zeroes like sixes, and sixes like ones.
3. Determine whether symbols require addition, subtraction or multiplication.
4. Do neat work the first time, thus avoiding the chances of error that go with copying work over.
5. Place each number where it belongs in relation to other numbers. Numbers out of line don't add up to the right answer.

You Ask, We Answer

By Haskin

Q. When did the U. S. Naval Academy first use a goat as mascot? E. J.

A. According to legend, the Naval Academy has had a goat as its mascot since 1890. On their march that year from the ferry station at Highland Falls up the steep hill to West Point to play the first Army-Navy game, the Naval Cadets (as they were then called) commandeered a goat from the non-com's quarters for their mascot. However, the official files do not record this incident but list 1893 as the year a goat mascot made his debut at the time of the fourth Army-Navy game.

Q. Please list some of the words used in the 1962 National Spelling Bee. C. H.

A. Some of the words on which spellers went down were: ensconce, bourgeois, debacle, corollary, posthumously, eviscerate, chrysalis, erysipelas, amorphous, valetudinarian, cutrass, supererogation, prescient, solecism, logorrhea, dihiscent. The word esquamulose was misspelled by the two finalists, who were then declared national co-champions.

Q. How can one tell whether a child's shoes fit properly? V. S.

A. If shoes show signs of wear chiefly on the ball of the foot, it is likely they fit properly. Wear at the toe shows that shoes are too short, and wear on one edge means that the foot is off balance. If the heels are run-over it is a sign of poor posture which needs correction. Shoes which are too narrow will show wear around the edges of the sole.

Q. Does Alaska still produce gold in quantity? R. D.

A. Alaska still produces gold in appreciable quantities. In 1960, gold production from lode and placer mines was 180,000 troy ounces, valued at $6.3 million.

The Man Who Would Not Conform

El Alisal, the Arroyo Seco home that Lummis built of native stones, is open to public daily from 1 to 4 p. m.

Charles Lummis, wearing the corduroys for which he was famous at his arroyo home.

By Roberta Nichols

"SING FOR your own supper," shouted one of the guests who had been subjected to the mock indignity of singing "La Paloma" while flapping his arms and swooping in and out among other guests.

Charles Fletcher Lummis, a slight figure in doeskin charro costume and drawnwork shirt, picked up his guitar and leaned against one of the four trunks of the venerable sycamore tree around which he had built the house. There was a hush among the merrymakers, a group composed of actors and writers; a senator, the pretender to a throne, and a railroad magnate. All were bound together by one thing—being born in March, thus being eligible for Lummis' annual birthday party, the March Hare 'noises'.

Here in the patio of the house, at 200 E. Ave. 43, Los Angeles, and built of boulders from the Arroyo Seco, conversation was good, wine sparkling. Here under the sycamore a table groaned with food for which the host might demand that the guest sing or perform.

"What shall it be?" he asked.

"EL ZAPATERO," someone said. "Page 32, El Charro, The Kind Hearted Boss," suggested another.

Both were folk songs that Lummis had collected and published under the title, "Spanish Songs of Old California." He had even recorded them for posterity on the talking machine.

He was suddenly grave. "It will be—." He did not finish, but in a clear, resonant voice took up the strains of "Adios, Adios, Amores." Farewell, O Love, Forever.

When he had finished the only sound was a breeze riffling tender young leaves. Like a ghost, some thought, remembering the son Amado, who had died in 1900.

Charles F. Lummis came upon the California scene in 1885, having walked 3,507 miles from Ohio to Los Angeles to take up editorship of the Times. During the 143-day tramp he sent weekly dispatches ahead to the paper, recounting his experiences en route, in typical Lummis vein—dramatic, often lurid, not always credible.

AND THIS was an incongruity. Because the man came from a strict New England background where right was right, wrong was wrong, and a fact in fancy dress was suspect. And he was a minister's son.

From the time that his mother died when he was 3, Charles lived in a predominately feminine world, first with relatives and later in a female seminary where his father taught after giving up the ministry. The boy was willful and spoiled from the undivided attention of so many young women.

Here began a life of nonconformity and studied showmanship upon which his Puritan conscience never ceased to exact payment, if we are to believe that conflict between standards and actual ways of life can affect man physically.

Guilt created by two marriages and an illegitimate daughter who as a young woman came to live in the Lummis household may have been contributing factors to his dramatic illnesses — paralysis before the age of 30, from which he recovered; blindness from which he just as miraculously recovered.

But showmanship was as much a part of Charles Lummis as the rarified California air that he wrote about when he became editor of the magazine, "Land of Sunshine." For the magazine he developed and published some of the best western talent of the day and El Alisal became famous as a salon for which artists and millionaire alike vied for invitations.

DON CARLOS, as Lummis called himself after he had made final rejection of the cast, was an author of many books. Without formal training he was an excellent archeologist. He championed four California Missions. The King of Spain knighted him for writings on Spain in America. He founded the Southwest Museum. And he was a librarian.

As city librarian for Los Angeles, he built one of the best reference departments in the Far West.

That he worked hard at rebellion cannot be denied. However some of his hi-jinks point more to an inordinate need for attention. But the stories made good telling — spreading mustard on pie, preferring flint and steel to matches, bursting into a roomful of guests clad only in loosely knit white underwear.

By 1928, time was running out for the land of sunshine's prime booster. Although dying of cancer, he set himself the task of getting three books ready for publication. The day after receiving confirmation of the acceptance of the last one, he died.

Fittingly, funeral services were conducted in the patio and his ashes are sealed in a wall facing the venerable four-trunked sycamore that he loved. His favorite band of Spanish musicians played his favorite song, "Adios, Adios, Amores." Page 34 in his collection of music, "Spanish Songs of California."

"Farewell, O Love Forever." Page 34. That is the last page in the book.

The Willbanks Story

The Willbanks Carpet Co. is a departure from the usual carpet specialty shop. It was founded on the premise that quality carpet, backed by expert installation, could be sold at a minimum mark up, in sufficient volume to be profitable.

The extension of this premise was to operate without frills and costly fixtures from a low rent and thus low overhead location in a factory warehouse on a side street in Signal Hill.

By eliminating high rent and other cost raising features, the company decided it could afford to pass on to its customers the substantial savings by giving more carpet value at less cost.

CAMERA ANGLES

Go Spectacular With Infrared

By The Shutterbug

SCENIC views certainly rank high as favorite summertime photo subject matter, but if you think color is the only way to shoot eye-catching landscapes it's only because you haven't tried a very special type of black-and-white film that can give you some of the most spectacular scenics you can imagine. The film is Kodak Infrared.

With Infrared film in your camera, the only extra item of equipment you'll need for exciting landscape photography is a dark red (Wratten A or equivalent) filter over your lens. With this setup, shooting is done in the same manner as with conventional black-and-white materials. But the resulting pictures are far from conventional. Blue skies are rendered so dark they look almost black; clouds pop out with their whiteness. Over-all contrast within the scene is increased noticeably over normal. Green grass and leaves appear white, as if covered by snow. Details in the far distance of the scene show with remarkable clarity. The over-all effect of such an infrared photograph is unlike anything possible with other available films, color or black-and-white.

Shooting scenics with Infrared film, as described in accompanying article, brings unconventional results.

KODAK INFRARED film is available in three different types for still photography: Infrared film in sheets, available in all regular sizes; 20-exposure 35mm cartridges (IR 135); and Kodak High Speed Infrared film in 100-foot rolls for bulk loading.

Unlike conventional panchromatic films which are "blind" to the radiation of infrared light, Kodak Infrared materials are treated during manufacture with special dyes that impart sensitivity to this otherwise invisible wave length of light. Infrared films are also sensitive to blue light; hence the need for heavy red filtration to block all but infrared light from the film during exposure.

Because they have a longer wave length than visible light, infrared rays do not focus in the same plane as do visible rays. To insure picture sharpness when shooting infrared pictures, you'll have to increase the lens-to-film distance slightly to properly focus these longer rays. Many cameras, particularly 35mm types, have a special infrared focusing mark engraved right on the lens distance scale. Visual focus is made in the conventional manner; then the distance reading is set opposite the infrared mark, rather than the regular index. Focus extension required for infrared work is often listed in lens data sheets; if no such information is at hand for your camera, a basis for trial is the extension of the lens by 1/4 of one per cent of its focal length.

KODAK recommends an exposure of 1/25 at f/8 for distant subjects in bright sun; 1 second at f/22 for nearby subjects. This data applies to the use of 35mm Infrared film; for High Speed Infrared, correct exposure will be obtained at 1/25, f/16. Because most exposure meters will not register in the infrared region, an actual daylight exposure index cannot be assigned to the slower film. High Speed Infrared film carries a daylight rating of A.S.A. 50 when used with a dark red filter.

As additional insurance for critical image definition, always use the smallest lens opening possible under whatever shooting conditions are present. A steady tripod is a virtual necessity when following this rule.

Is Woman's Place in the Home?

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

PROBLEMS of the married woman who seeks a career is the theme of a gripping first novel, "A WOMAN'S PLACE," by Ann Helming (Coward McCann, $4.95). In a way, it is three tales in one: three women go their separate ways into the business world of the city, yet meet frequently for gay chatter, discussions of their marital problems and affairs, and to find comfort in the understanding of friends—women friends.

Ellen Devore, although comfortably housed with her successful engineer husband, Ted, and their child, craves a return to the theatre, a career that was just beginning to show promise when love, marriage and motherhood drove her from her first love.

Marty Blake, Ellen's friend, has an even more energetic drive to succeed in business; her success as executive chief in a large department store places her, career-wise, ahead of her husband, Don. She and Ellen fight for their goals, and they fight to preserve their marriages, at times poignantly. Other men in their lives increase tensions and desires.

Leigh Willoughby, more complex than her two companions, tries sex on men's terms. As a feature writer for a metropolitan daily, she battles for a position of importance; when she wins the post desired by her lover, she suffers loss in victory. Driven both by carnal desires and by an inner force never at rest, Leigh touches deeply the lives of men married and unmarried. She gives the story its earthy and exciting honesty.

Ann Helming, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of UCLA, served 10 years as newspaper reporter in the Southland; as critic and columnist, she perfected a professional, reportorial style so evident in this highly successful first novel. Her dialogue (she's an expert with speech) has the warmth of a kiss and the drama of a slap. The young and knowledgeable Miss Helming is at the beginning of a successful career—she already is the finished "pro." "A Woman's Place" is wholeheartedly recommended.

THE FACTUAL history of the uphill struggle of the American submarine to her present dominance and the deeds of her intrepid crews and rescue-divers is a saga of adventure and heroism superior to most fiction.

Vice Adm. Charles A. Lockwood, a submariner most of his 39 years, and his writing partner, Col. Hans Christian Adamson, Air Force historian, both retired, add to their list of literary achievements "HELL AT 50 FATHOMS" (Chilton, $5).

Accurate information and spellbinding anecdote tell the story of the Navy's dedicated efforts to eliminate danger from undersea duty. There were the tragic losses of the crude pioneer pigboats; the sinking of the S51 off Long Island in 1925 with 33 men; the loss of the S4 with all hands, and divers tapping messages to dying men inside; and the Squalus disaster off New London in 1939. The Navy met this challenge with the Momsen lung, rescue chambers, escape hatches and other devices on the way.

This is a well written book of quality, ably compiled, with an appendix of world submarine disasters from 1864 to 1960.

JERRY D. LEWIS of Pacific Palisades, author of "CRUSADES AGAINST CRIME" is constributing all royalties on autographed copies of his book to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

Persons who wish autographed copies may send $4.95 to Jerry D. Lewis, 1350 Marinette Road, Pacific Palisades.

"Crusade Against Crime" is an anthology of true crime stories about key cases of the FBI, T-Men and other law enforcement agencies, with case histories by J. Edgar Hoover, Robert F. Kennedy, Quentin Reynolds and Don Whitehead.

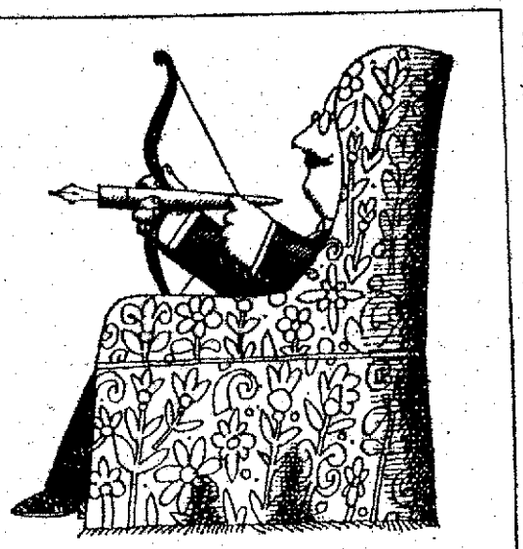

SOME WRITERS, like Tolstoy, achieve greatness in long epics like "War and Peace." Argentina's Jorge Luis Borges has reached the pinnacle via the little essay and the very short short story.

"LABYRINTHS" (New Directions $5.50) is the first of Borges' writing to be translated into English, except for fugitive pieces in literary magazines. There are 21 "fictions," as Borges likes to call his Kafka-esque stories, each with a deep meaning imbedded. There are 10 essays, on such subjects as Argentine writing, Pascal and Paul Valery, on "Kafka and His Precursors" (Borges obviously owes a debt to Kafka) and on Shaw. There are some wonderful parables too.

The stories—the best are "Lottery in Babylon," "Deutsches Requiem" and "Funes the Memorious"—are not stories in the usual sense; they are actually essay-stories. The translations are by the best interpreters of Latin American literature—Dudley Fitts and Harriet De Onis among them.

ISAAC Basheves Singer, who writes, we are told, marvelously in Yiddish, has himself helped to translate his novel "THE SLAVE" (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, $4.95). So we are assured of a good share of the rich, old world imagery in his style.

"The Slave" is of epic sweep—the story of the obliteration of a Jewish community by Ukranian Cossacks in the 17th century; of how Jacob, fleeing the massacre, is sold into slavery to a farmer by bandits. In the isolated village he finds himself among half-pagans. Jacob, learned in the Talmud, falls in love with his master's daughter Wanda. The law makes marriage impossible. But Jacob learns, and this is the point of the novel, that religion is more than ritual; his love teaches him that reality, too, constitutes true religion.

California at Davis so that "theoretical" farmers could be turned into "practical" farmers by actual farm work in the summer time.

Barbecues with Bixby himself barbecuing the beef were institutions.

His was the era that a man's word was as good as his deed. He closed many deals with a handshake—nothing on paper. Never was he known to renege on his word.

Even before Fred Bixby died in 1952, Progress—with a capital P—began cutting in on his property. The Navy selected 104 acres of Rancho Los Alamitos in 1941 for a naval hospital, which later became the Veterans Administration Hospital. Bixby made available 300 additional acres for Long Beach State College.

Subdivisions shot up like mushrooms. Naples, Belmont Shore, Belmont Heights, Los Alamitos, Los Altos, Rossmoor, College Estates and College Park Estates all are on original Los Alamitos Rancho land.

"The property keeps raising buildings—instead of crops," sums up Salzer.

MRS. BIXBY, active in the Day Nursery, Tichenor Orthopedic Clinic and a multitude of kindred organizations, died in 1961 after a long illness that apparently dated from her husband's death.

Bixby is included in the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City. His biography, his hat, chaps and lariat are displayed there. It isn't a television sombrero — it's a rancher's hat, battered, sweat-stained. Always it should be remembered that Fred H. Bixby was a "working rancher," and his possessions showed that he used them.

There are no barbecues, no social activities at Los Alamitos now. Years ago Bixby put the house and gardens in a trust so that his children always would have a home to which they could return if they wished.

They come home sometimes, to stay overnight: Katharine Bixby Hotchkis of San Marino, Elizabeth Bixby Janeway of Santa Ynez, Fred H. Bixby of Los Angeles. (John Bixby died when he was 23, Deborah Bixby Green of Oakland died in 1959.)

On the place are two women, Ann Livoni, the housekeeper, and Helen Morrill, the cook, and four men, Joe Sisneros who was born 46 years ago on the rancho and never has lived anywhere else, Miguel Hernandez, Jesus Vasquez, Peter Nissen. And the two dogs, Barney and Duke. No horses, no cattle, no sheep.

THE HERB garden is redolent with rosemary—Mrs. Bixby always wanted rosemary in the carrots!—mint and sage. Roses bloom in neglected profusion in the rose garden and a variety of flowers in Mrs. Bixby's "Friendship Garden," where she planted slips and seeds given her by friends.

Rubber trees planted by John W. Bixby spread wide across the front lawn.

In a niche in the garden stands a statue, a shining black horse, given by the ranch hands in memory of "Boss."

Traffic thunders past on Seventh Street, just out of sight, just out of hearing. Many of them refer to the layout as "the ranch with the big red barn."

THERE ISN'T even a vegetable garden. The theory is that it is cheaper to buy vegetables than to raise them for six employes.

This is the first year there has been no farming on the land above the Marina. Crops were poor during the dry years, and last year the tenant farmers did not get their seed back. The tenants, who also called Fred Bixby "Boss," are scattered now, with their families.

If the ghost of Don Manuel Nieto hovers over quiet Los Alamitos, it will be surprised when those apartments go up next year!

Judo, the 'Gentle' Art of Self Defense

visitor is taken aback by the devotees slapping the canvas like seals after each fall.

In falling, the trainee slaps his hand on the mat to take weight away from head and spine and avoid injury.

A great pyschological weapon in Judo is the Kiai, an offensive shout in a match. The startling scream is done to put fear into the opponent and tighten the stomach muscles for a throw.

Ogden recalls that when he once asked a woman student to practice some Judo with him, she collapsed from fright at his shout and thus ended the match without any actual Judo throws.

Learning Judo is made easy because instructors first insist on teaching students how to break various falls. A Judo expert throwing another person will hang onto his victim as he drops, easing the fall. There are physical exercises and lessons in tumbling before the student actually is taught how to throw opponents.

JUDO STUDENTS, who remain silent while on the mat, express courtesy by bowing both to their instructor and opponent. Showoffs are quickly banished from the dojo, or exercise hall.

Ogden recalls that while walking through a park one night, three doped-up hoodlums demanded his wallet. The 40-year-old, 5-foot 7½-inch tall Judo expert neatly cast all three into a nearby lake.

After the three hoodlums got out of jail, the toughest one visited Ogden's Judo School and tried to sign up for a course. He was turned down.

Judo enthusiasts claim that their newly gained knowledge helps them avoid outside brawls. A Long Beach police officer, J. R. Taylor, (Brown Belt, 2nd class) said Judo does much toward gaining confidence.

LOCAL JUDO instructors have gone out of their way to help the handicapped learn the sport. Ogden, for example, teaches several blind boys. "It is important to them two-fold; because it teaches them self-confidence and good balance," Ogden, a Navy Judo instructor during World War II, said.

Advancement cycles for the beginner in Judo depend on his skills and mental outlook toward mastering the varying requirements. Achievements are classified by colored belts.

Depending on his ability, technique, knowledge of the sport, attitude and results in competition, the student may climb from a White Belt rating to a Black Belt. In between are the Green and Brown Belts. Within these Belt ratings are various degrees awarded for proficiency. At present there are only two living Tenth Degree Black Belts in the United States. Ogden holds Black Belt rating, 3rd degree. Air Force Generals Curt Le May and Thomas Powers are also Black Belts. Official certification of the Belt awards is made by Black Belt Federation of America.

SPORT JUDO as we know it in the United States is derived from the method developed by Dr. Jigoro Kano, who founded the Kodokan Judo. Dr. Kano, a small, timid Japanese boy at the time had grown tired of being bullied by stronger classmates. He developed his own system after learning in a Jujitsu school that strength is not an important factor in protecting oneself.

Jujitsu, still practiced throughout the world and from which much of Judo's techniques are borrowed, is an older form of Japanese self defense. Kano observed that injuries were frequent in Jujitsu because of malicious throwings, poking, twisting and jabbing. By combining Jujitsu's method of attack and defense with his own higher aims and techniques, Kano created Judo.

Thus allowing the boys to flip over pretty Roxanne Mealer.

The common newt is an easy-to-keep and interesting pet.

THE PARADE

They Lead Two Lives

By Eleanor Avery Price

IF YOU have a youngster, don't be surprised if he walks in one day with a small four-legged animal that resembles a lizard but is smooth slippery, and without scales. He has probably found one of the various salamanders. Many children, and adults too, like to collect amphibians (a Greek word meaning a double life), and your child may be a budding naturalist.

Let him keep this fascinating creature related to frogs and toads. A semi-aquatic terrarium will make a fine home for it. In other words, there should be both water and a "bank." Put water in a dish and then sand all around it level with dish edge. Cover the sand with fresh green moss and keep it damp. If this is too difficult to make, put water in an aquarium and a floating object onto which the pet can crawl. Do not put fish in the same tank, but a frog will be happy there provided there are a few rocks near the "bank" to create a shallow bathing place. Cover the home with a piece of strong glass with a small open space at one end.

Handle the salamander preferably only with wet hands.

THE PET will sleep days and stay awake nights unless you feed it during the day. It eats insects, plant lice, worms, caterpillars, ground fish, slivers of raw meat.

The common newt, pictured with this article, is an easy-to-keep salamander. After a tadpole stage, it becomes a reddish eft and spends two or three years on land. When it starts to turn yellowish-green, it returns to water and develops a broad tail for swimming purposes. Both the eft and grown newt have black-rimmed red dots along the sides. Length is three to four inches.

The spotted salamander has large yellow or orange spots on a black back. It attains seven inches and prefers land so it can be found under stones and fallen logs and easily carried home in a screw-top jar with air holes punched in the top and wet moss on the bottom. The yellow-striped tiger salamander never leaves water. The red salamander, marked with brown spots when young, enjoys both water and air. The giant land salamander of the west lives in damp wooded areas but is shy and nocturnal so seldom seen. The newest salamander, obtainable from dealers, is the Japanese newt.

SALAMANDER eggs may be collected in the spring. They are jelly-like and resemble frog eggs. The newt's eggs are separate and are found on leaves of underwater plants. When removing eggs, take the whole plant home in a bucket and water and put it in an aquarium without fish.

Land-living salamander eggs are laid in a mass in lakes and ponds and have a dark spot on each egg. These can be carried home in a jar with water.

Children enjoy watching the eggs turn into tadpoles. Tadpoles will eat slivers of liver and crumbled hard-boiled yolk. If rocks with moss on them are placed in the tadpole's home, the tiny creature may nibble on the moss.

says. "We also keep our musical arrangements and all the costumes and number them to correspond with the film.

"We can send the films—all in color and with sound—to our line captains in other cities so that they can see what a routine looks like. They adapt them, but I always check any changes."

MORO-LANDIS requirements are equally firm about the kind of routines they produce. When the French nude shows first came to Las Vegas, the Sahara Hotel—where the Moros were working—asked them to produce one. The Moros refused. "We don't do that kind of thing," they affirmed. "We're back at the Sahara now. The management wasn't satisfied with the other kind of show."

Disbud Camellias

Camellias are prone to setting more buds than are good for them with the result that individual blooms have less quality than they should. The California Association of Nurserymen recommends disbudding this month or next, before the plants come into bloom and waste their energies on too many buds.

Never leave two buds together, thinning them out to some three or four inches apart along the branches. When forced to choose between two buds, pinch off the one that faces up into the disfiguring elements of sun and rain.

MEXICO will issue you a tourist card ($3) at the Mexico City Airport when arrive. Most of the airlines have means of issuing the card at their ticket counters, too. You need some proof of citizenship — birth certificate passport (old or new), army discharge papers.

Write to Colon Travel Bureau, Hotel Colon, Merida, Yucatan, Mexico. There are daily flights to Cozumel from Merida. At Cozumel you can fly smaller planes over to the new resort at Isla Mujeres.

"About drinking water in Mexico?"

All tourist hotels serve a bottle of purified water in your room. (Use it for brushing your teeth, too.) Also, when you check in, have the maid change the water in the bottle. Chances are it has been there since the last guest. If ice in your glass is in cubes, it's probably made of purified water. If it has been chipped off a large block, I would ask first. (You run into this out in the country.)

"Where do you get bullfight tickets in Mexico? What are the best seats?"

A taxi driver will take you to the main office downtown. But it's a little easier to get them from the travel bureau desk in any major hotel. The seats you want are in "som-

"I'VE HEARD THIS STORY BEFORE!"

GOING PLACES —
—with the Sloanes

QUESTION: "We are expecting some overseas visitors who plan to do some sightseeing in the United States and Canada. What do you consider the ten most important places to visit?"— S. H., Columbus, O.

A—That's backing us into a corner. But if we had to choose, the list would include (not necessarily in any order):

1. New York, the most cosmopolitan city in the world and the commercial and cultural fountainhead of the United States.

2. Washington. In few capitals do the government buildings so dominate the appearance and character of the city, and impart a sense of the majesty of the nation.

3. Florida, particularly the glittering eastern Gold Coast which so typifies a particular brand of American sophistication, and is so unlike any other resort in the world.

4. The majestic Pacific Northwest, a man's country of waterways, forests, rugged peaks and splendid green valleys, where wildlife is still taken for granted.

5. The awesome Rockies in Colorado and Wyoming.

6. The equally awesome and comparatively unappreciated deserts of Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada and Utah.

7. Niagara Falls. There are higher and larger waterfalls, but few to which you can get so close with ease, and in comfort and safety.

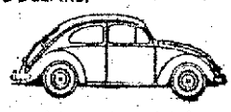

8. The Daniel Boone-Davy Crockett country of the Appalachians—the Cumberland, Great Smoky, and Blue Ridge Mountains.

9. The Alpine beauties of Alberta's Banff National Park, a refuge of glacial streams, mountain grandeur and wildlife.

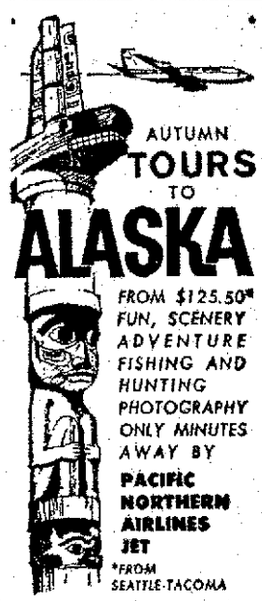

10. San Francisco, not only the most beautiful of cities but in many ways the most typical of what is best in America.

Even the Burros Will Be There!

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

Famed 20-mule team of the 1880s in Death Valley is being reassembled for Death Valley Encampment.

DESERT LOVERS wouldn't miss it for the world!

And that, most of all, includes old-time prospectors—with their burros—who'll be on hand for the annual Death Valley Encampment Nov. 8-11 in Death Valley National Monument. A crowd of 15,000 is expected.

One interesting event will follow another for four days and three nights—talks by naturalists, campfires, conducted tours, dancing, concerts and tall stories by desert rats. And there'll be exhibits of firearms, mineral, art and Indian artifacts.

One of the highlights of the encampment will be the appearance of the famed 20-mule team, now being reassembled for the first time in 12 years. During the four days, this famous team will move throughout Death Valley, pulling wagons used in 1852 and 1889 to haul borax from the valley to the nearest railhead 165 miles distant to Mojave.

HONORING the 20-mule team and its original route will be a group of Equestrian Trails, Inc. members who'll undertake a six-day ride covering 142 miles from Boron—31 miles west of Barstow—to Death Valley over the old 20-mule team route, arriving Nov. 9.

Dedication of two historical markers, both honoring the borax industry, will be an important part of the encampment activities. The first ceremony takes place at 11 a.m. Nov. 8 at Searles Lake, near Trona, marking the 100th anniversary of the discovery of borax at the dry lake by John Searles; the second, at 10 a.m. Nov. 10 at the site of the Harmony Borax Works, which served as the starting point for the 20-mule team trip to Mojave.

Conducted tours (you drive) the last three mornings will include Ubehebe Crater, Scotty's Castle and other historical and scenic attractions in Death Valley.

Things get going in a big way Nov. 9 with an author's breakfast ($1.55) opening the fireworks at the Furnace Creek golf course. Some of the West's outstanding authors will appear on the program. Photographers hold a similar breakfast Nov. 10, same place; and Protestant and Catholics alike will open the Nov. 10 program with services, followed by an artists' breakfast and entertainment by top-flight western artists.

SATURDAY'S PROGRAM (Nov. 10) includes two traditional events of the encampment, a chuck wagon lunch at Stove Pipe Wells Hotel and a Burro Flapjack Sweepstakes.

The Burro Sweepstakes is a contest in which colorful desert characters race to see who can first prepare a flapjack and then feed it to his burro. Can-can dancers from the Las Vegas Strip will be on hand to furnish additional entertainment.

Evening programs also will add up to fun. The opening night calls for a campfire across from Stove Pipe Wells Hotel, with community singing; the second evening, dancing—old time and modern—at Furnace Creek Ranch; the third evening, a photographic show, concert and dancing.

MOST VISITORS will go prepared for the fun of overnight camping, with trailers or lean-to tents and sleeping bags. Since desert nights are cool in November, these visitors are urged to bring their own duffel, with ample bedding, as well as wood for camping out. They should also bring folding chairs or camp stools for the various evening programs.

Rooms are available at Furnace Creek Inn and Ranch (MAdison 7-8048); Stove Pipe Wells Hotel (MAdison 2-293 Wells Hotel (MAdison 2-2937); and at Scotty's Castle (HOllywood 5-1223). But it must be realized that these facilities are limited and that first come will be first served unless reservations are made.

Death Valley '49ers, the sponsoring group, was formed in 1949 at the centennial commemoration marking the successful exodus of the Jayhawker-Manly party from Death Valley after being separated from their wagon train. But, of course, the main objectives of the encampment are to publicize the beauty of the area and to preserve the memories of California's pioneers.

bra" — meaning the shady side. And I would recommend asking for "primer tendido."

This is the section not too high up, not so close that you are sitting at ringside. (If you are not squeamish and want to get right on top of the kill ask for "barrera."

"Where is the place in Mexico where they have Gypsy music and drink wine out of goat skins?"

YOU must mean Rincon de Goya. They drink the wine out of a sort of glass pitcher called a porron. You drink it out of the spout — at arm's length if you're good. (Add up your check carefully here. The waiters seem to be careless.) Another place for flamenco music and dancing: Gitanerias.

"What kind of money is used in Jamaica?"

A Jamaican pound, equivalent to the English pound—with all the breakdown of shillings and pence.

Grow a Backdrop of Blue

By Joe Littlefield

Delphiniums may be planted now for a background of blue in a variety of shades for a spring flower bed.

PLANT small-size Pacific hybrid delphiniums about now or even a bit later, at the back part of a sunny flower bed. Fertilize them at least twice, water well, and you will have gorgeous, 5-foot spikes of blue flowers in various shades come spring.

Space the plants about 15 inches apart in a staggered row, at least five plants to a group. This provides a showy backdrop of blue for lower growing, winter-spring blooming annuals and bulbs in the foreground.

Other annuals, biennials and bulbs should be set out now. Depending upon size of the flower bed, set out small or large masses of flowers and bulbs.

MASS calendulas for orange and yellow color in the mid-section of a sunny flower bed. Place lighter-toned stocks beside them, then a group of gay snapdragons, and a clump of Iceland poppies.

Tuck in some groups of tulips, daffodils, Dutch iris, and ranunculus and plant small masses of anemones back of pansy or viola edging planting for additional color.

As you look at the bed from the side, it is as if you're looking at a flight of steps, from the low growing plants in front, progressively increasing in height up to the tall delphiniums at the back of the flower bed.

TWO BIENNIALS planted now, blossom next spring. They are foxgloves and cup-and-saucer Canterbury bells. Plant them in sun, or more sun than shade.

Unless the flower bed has been prepared in advance with manure and leaf mold or premoistened peat moss has been worked in, you'd get much better results by preparing the soil before planting.

Most practical and effective soil preparation is to spread a two-inch layer of manure and two-inch layer of either leaf mold, premoistened peat moss, or an already processed mulch material. Dig these in shovel depth and soak down thoroughly. Extra heavy, packed soil should be treated with a fast action liquid soil conditioner that combats alkali, and prevents packing.

A few days later dig over the bed and soak it down again. A week or so later, rake the soil to level it and it is ready for planting.

Where the time element is limited and the soil cannot be prepared as recommended, work a generous handful of leaf mold, or premoistened peat moss, or an already prepared mulch material into each hole for the small plants.

Plants set in prepared soil start to grow quicker, develop into huskier plants, and flower much better.

New Hybrid Lilies

WONDERFUL things have been happening to lilies in recent years. Older standbys like the Auratum, or Gold Banded, lilies are now widely enjoyed by home gardeners. But their late blooming habit often tantalizes their admirers.

New hope is seen for impatient lily fanciers, however, since many new hybrid types, with sparkling color and form variations, are now being offered. Today these hybrid lilies may be enjoyed for five full months in your garden, from May through September in most areas. Here, to prove it, are four of the newer groups of lilies currently being marketed by Walter Marx Gardens from the Northwest's most outstanding lily hybridizers.

Earliest to flower are the May-blooming Golden Chalice hybrids followed by Bellingham hybrids in June-July, Olympic hybrids in July and the Auratum in August-September.

The Marx Gardens (Box 38, Boring, Ore.) show the flowers in full color in the brochure, "New Hybrid Lilies."

Golden Chalice hybrid lilies open with chalice-type, yellow to apricot-orange blooms.

Living Up to Its Name

PASSERSBY look with surprise at the huge size of the elephant's-ear plant growing in the yard of the home of Mrs. Evelyn Weinberg, 262½ Loma Ave.

The plant takes up a third of the rear yard and can be seen from the street.

"A year and a half ago a friend, pulling up elephant's-ears from her yard, gave me a shoot — this is the result," explains Mrs. Weinberg.

THE PLANT stands 12 feet high, and stretches 15 feet wide. Individual ears measure 40 inches long, 33 inches wide.

How did she do it?

"All I did was put it in the ground, fertilize it well after it took hold, and give it lots of water," says Mrs. Weinberg. "I still water it three or four times a day. It has a lot of 'babies' coming up around it. Some of these are four feet tall, and they're going to be big, too."

—VERA WILLIAMS

Gigantic leaves of the elephant's-ear plant at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Weinberg evoke viewers' surprise.

I HAVE had many opportunities to observe the beautiful St. Augustine grass lawns throughout the Southern states and I cannot recommend them strongly enough for keeping their thick, green carpet intact, even in cases where children play on the lawn or other conditions have a tendency to break them down. I know of many St. Augustine lawns growing beautifully in Southern California and, unless you object to their thick, shaggy appearance, you cannot have a lawn that is less trouble to keep healthy and beautiful.

A St. Augustine lawn should be started from flats in the spring; however, if you prefer blue grass or clover, the best time to put them in is between Oct. 1 and Oct. 15.

Remember that proper preparation of the soil prior to planting any lawn is ultra important. Bone meal (50 lbs. per 1,000 sq. ft.), soil sulphur (30 lbs. per 1,000 sq. ft.) and iron sulphate (copperas ferrous) (10 lbs. to 1,000 sq. ft.) should be worked into the soil before the lawn is planted.

Dress Up Blank Walls

BLANK walls can be dressed up with climbing vines or espaliered shrubs. Vines require an open frame trellis with light members. One-inch redwood strips are recommended, because redwood resists termites and rotting and shrinks and swells less than other woods. The strips can be placed in an interesting pattern to add interest to the wall even before the vine has its growth.

Nail holes should be prebored. Trellises against walls may be hinged at bottom, and hooked to wall at top, to permit painting the wall.

The heartwood grades of redwood contain the natural substances which resist decay. These natural rot and termite resistant substances are harmless to plants; some chemicals used to preserve non-durable woods are harmful to young roots and tendrils.

An espalier for trees and shrubs must be more sturdy than the simple trellis for vines, especially if fruit-bearing trees are planted. Size of members will depend on the shrub.

An arbor can carry the vine overhead as a colorful sunshade. It can be of the same design as the vertical plant support, and both should blend with the architecture of the home.

Away from the house wall, a vine-covered trellis can be used to set garden areas apart, or a pleasant bower can be a combination of trellis and arbor.

For Bulb Growers

Compiled for gardeners who want to know more about bulbs, "How to Grow and Use Bulbs" (Lane Book Co., Menlo Park, Calif., $1.95) digs thoroughly into its theme with photos, text and diagrams. Featured is a bulb encyclopedia, listing, illustrating and describing many varieties.

Eight pages of color illustrate landscaping ideas and give close-up photos of individual flowers. Techniques of growing bulbs in the ground and in containers are given and 10 of the most popular bulbs get full-chapter treatment.

Seasonal calendar and a planting depth chart are among other features of the 118 indexed pages.

Landscaping Talk

Landscaping will be the subject of J. Paul Walker, former teacher of agriculture in the Long Beach public schools, at a meeting of the Long Beach Parent Chapter, American Begonia Society, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Linden Hall, 208 Linden Ave. A question and answer period will follow. Refreshments will be served and visitors are welcome.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . . Study the rose garden this month and uproot any bushes that have not given satisfaction. Turn the soil and let it air out until new varieties arrive on the market in December.

Start planting daffodils, bulbous iris and lilies as they arrive in nurseries.

Scatter snail bait pellets around newly planted winter annuals.

Many spring and summer perennials are available as seedlings this month.

Check nurseries for varieties of the early flowering Sasanqua camellias. They start showing color in October.

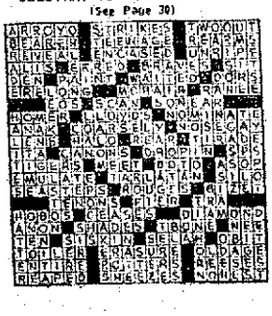

Many vegetables can be planted for winter harvest. Beets, carrots, lettuce, Swiss chard, peas, parsley, cabbage, Brussels sprouts are included.

Geraniums should be pruned back this month to keep plants from getting too leggy.

Continue spraying roses and later tuberous begonias for mildew. Add an insecticide to the rose spray to catch such late season pests as thrips, leafhopper.

Select shubs for fall color. Many are beginning to show autumn tones in nurseries now.

ladies are also guided into reveries by five period kitchens, ranging from 1830 to 1930, all with original equipment. A pioneer doctor's office, equipped with frightening instruments, shares the nostalgia with barbershop, drugstore, harness shop, blacksmith shop, general store and printing plant of the plains country.

CHILDREN CAN RIDE on a steam merry-go-round or play engineer in an 1889 locomotive or signal from a caboose that still faintly suggests the leathery aroma of cattlemen bound for the stockyards behind sixty cars of longhorns.

The sculpture of John Rogers, recently celebrated in an art circle revival, is exhibited. Rogers did with plaster and clay what Norman Rockwell does with pen and brush. Eighty of his creations have been catalogued. A total of 55, including his first, "Checkers Up at the Farm," are shown at the village.

The sculptor's "Council of War" presents a likeness of Lincoln considered by his son Todd the most exact ever produced.

A single fee brings admission to all buildings, which are arranged in a circle like wagons mustered against an Indian attack. The nostalgia-packed structures are the ramparts of Harold Warp's war against time's inroads on the prairie past.

...but don't know what's wrong

*Pre-Menstrual Tension may be an unfamiliar term to many women, but its symptoms are very familiar. In the week before periods, the body accumulates excessive water, then bloating, pressure on nerves and organs result, causing tension and discomfort. You become headachy and irritable—even gain weight.

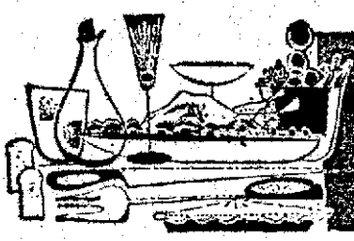

Now, in Pamprin Tablets medical science offers an effective, yet simple and inexpensive relief. Pamprin safely removes the excess water from the body, thus easing tension . . . easing it as no aspirin or simple pain-reliever can.

At the same time, doctors find, Pamprin has a wonderfully calming, soothing effect on the irritability, "nerves", and emotional upsets common to pre-menstrual time.

What's more, many women who ordinarily suffered cramps and backaches once their periods began, found surprising relief, too. Pamprin will not disturb your normal period—contains no hormones, narcotics or harmful sedatives.

Get Pamprin at your druggist . . . before your next period. Or for a generous free trial supply of Pamprin Tablets, send your name and address today to Chattom Laboratories, Dept. 5, Chattanooga 9, Tennessee.

REX WELCH
Back From Tahiti Again
Caricature by Bob April

YES, THAT honored guest who dropped in for dinner the other night at Welch's was none other than Mr. Rex Welch himself.

His large staff was so glad to see him they gave him the full red carpet treatment. Rex and Mrs. W. ordered one of their favorite dishes, grilled swordfish steak with lemon parsley butter, and complimented chef Larry Contaoi for doing his usual fine job.

The owner of Welch's had been away for six weeks on another of his journays to Tahiti, where he is co-owner of the Bel Air Hotel and restaurant. A large construction and enlargement project is currently under way on the hotel and Rex's presence was required for decisions on many details. He will return to the tropical island again after Christmas to continue work on the project.

During his absences, Welch's fine Long Beach restaurants are in the efficient hands of Bill Welch, his brother, who manages The Tenderloin, 4363 Atlantic Ave., and Arnold Vann, who manages Welch's, Atlantic at San Antonio Drive.

Welch's, one of the prime sea food houses in Southern California, serves a dozen outstanding ocean and stream delicacies, plus beef and fowl selections. Among the sea foods, priced from $2.50 to $3.50, are jumbo shrimps with hot sauce; Long Island oysters, grilled sea bass, grilled northern halibut, Columbia River salmon, abalone, shrimp or crab Newburgs, shad roe pan-fried in butter, lobster and frog legs. One of the most popular items is the sea food grill dinner, including shrimp, filet of sole, scallops and oysters' all breaded lightly and deep fried.

All entrees are served with soup or delectable salad, marvelous hot rolls, potato and beverage. — TEDD THOMEY

'Wide Country' Concentrates on Stories

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — Big name guest stars? "Wide Country" is turning up its wide nose at them, says the series co-star, Andrew Prine. (The series airs 7:30 p.m. Thursdays, channel 4.)

"We're concentrating on stories," says the tall, slender, intense young actor. "And we're not even thinking about name stars. I feel guest stars are overrated. The audience doesn't tune in to see a particular guest; they tune in to watch a program they like.

"Take a show like 'Frontier Circus' last year. They had the best guests money could buy, but the show laid a great big egg. That's because they didn't have one decent story."

While name value means less to Hollywood today than it ever has, Prine says it has become important on Broadway.

"Broadway copped out," is the colorful way he puts it.

"THEY SOLD OUT to the big name stars. Broadway is scared. They figure they have to have big names or big musicals to get anybody to buy tickets."

This is one reason why Prine left Broadway and took the "Wide Country" part. He didn't have the name value for a Broadway drama. As for musicals—"I'm not about to sing and dance."

He figures that working in a popular television series will make him a name. "If the name becomes big enough, I can come back to Broadway."

With this fond hope, he has kept his New York apartment.

"Maybe I did that," he says, "so I can tell myself I'm coming back some day. I don't know if I ever will, but I can keep saying I will. That's important.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Sex, at long last, has come to the westerns—well, one of them anyway.

Come 8:30 p. m. Monday, green-eyed, red-haired Pat Blair will ride onto "The Rifleman's" range via channel 7.

"I'm no gingham girl," said Pat. "I was put in to add sex. My blouses are like cut down to the navel."

And it's alright with Pat, as well as most everybody else.

"Lou Mallory (the role she plays) is not the cliche western heroine, the soft, clinging-vine type," she said.

"Lou is Irish, independent, self-sufficient and out-spoken. She used to own a saloon and now she runs a hotel.

"I love Lou."

And so will, as the scripts develop, Lucas McCain, "The Rifleman," as played by Chuck Connors.

But there's no marriage in the offing—at least not this TV season.

There's a kiss or two, but mostly there is conflict between the pair.

"FOR EXAMPLE," said Pat, "I am rescued one time by Lucas. Am I grateful? I am not. I'm so mad, I could just kill him."

Pat, in real life, almost succeeded in killing herself a few years back.

In New York at the time, Pat decided she wanted to be a high-fashion model. She weighed 125 pounds proportioned quite attractively along a 5-feet, 7-inch-tall frame.

But high-fashion models aren't supposed to be "quite attractive," at least not 125 pounds quite attractive.

So Pat decided to lose weight and did a "particularly stupid" thing.

"I just kind of quit eating," she said. "I got emaciated, thin, gaunt. I couldn't get out of bed."

Fortunately, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Blake, came for a visit. They took one look—then another to make sure it was their daughter—and sent for a doctor.

"HE TOLD ME I could have died," said Pat. "I had reversed my body chemistry and had kept going down.

"He made me eat every three hours, protein and healthy things, cheese, meats, apples."

When Pat recoverd, she went to New York's fashion center and took a good look at the high-fashion models.

"They looked to me," she said, "like walking death."

So Pat reversed her decision and walked away from death.

Since then, oddly enough, she has appeared in several fashion shows, including one in Long Beach for the benefit of the City of Hope.

"I wear a simple sheath or full skirts," she said, "which is just fine with me.

"I think most other women's dresses are made by designers who don't want women to look attractive."

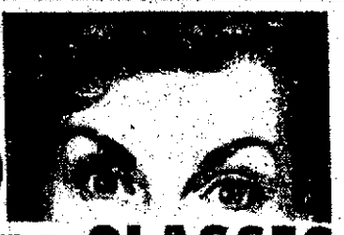

And besides, who ever heard of a high-fashion model looking sexy, especially in a western?

ANDY CLYDE runs for commander of a veterans post during "The Real McCoys" at 9 p. m. Sunday, channel 2.

Veteran Scene Stealer on Receiving End

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jackie Coogan, first of the child stars, finds himself on the receiving end of scene-stealing gambits by a passel of kid actors in a new television series.

As costar of "McKeever and the Colonel" (6:30 p.m. Sundays, channel 4), the bald, heavy-set Coogan is surrounded by juvenile hams.

(Jackie also guest stars 8:30 p.m. Tuesday on "The Red Skelton Show," channel 2).

Over in Switzerland Charlie Chaplin must surely be enjoying Jackie's plight. For it was the Chaplin picture, "The Kid," that exploded Coogan to international fame.

Coogan's memory reached back 43 years to 1919 when as a moppet he swiped scenes from Chaplin.

* * * *

"CHAPLIN himself was the greatest scene stealer of all time," he recalled. 'No matter what was happening Charlie could draw attention to himself—if he wanted to.

"But after working with me in 'The Kid' he said, 'If a child actor is an extrovert God help anyone else in the picture.' And those were the silent days, too."

W. C. Fields, a felonious

JACKIE COOGAN

rascal himself at filching scenes, once slipped a few ounces of gin into Baby Leroy's orange juice (inadvertently inventing the forerunner of screwdriver cocktails) to insure quiet repose of the infant during a big Fields' monologue.

* * * *

"KIDS HAVEN'T changed since my day, except they are more hip," said Coogan.

"Chaplin taught me how to upstage him and a million other little tricks that I find handy now that I'm working with a pack of children. If one of them steps on my lines I'll kill him."

Coogan portrays a rotund Army sergeant reduced to playing den mother for the inmates of a military school.

"The youngsters on the show are aware that I was a child star and want to know what it was like in the old days. Sometimes I give them straight answers and sometimes I kid them.

"But they have it a lot easier than I did. The law forbids them to work more than four hours a day, with another four hours devoted to school work. I used to work eight hours a day and squeeze studies in whenever I could.

* * * *

"AND THERE'S a disparity in salary, too.

"When I was making the 'Kid' my salary was $75 a week. Chaplin gave me a $5,000 bonus at the end of the picture. Today the kids on the show start out at $500 a week and go up from there."

Coogan followed "The Kid" with such enormous hits as "Oliver Twist," "Circus Days," "Trouble" and "A Boy of Flanders." He admits he earned more than $8 million before he left his teens.

And thanks to Coogan, today's youthful actors need not worry that their assets will be dissipated as were his.

By the time Jackie reached his 20s he was flat broke.

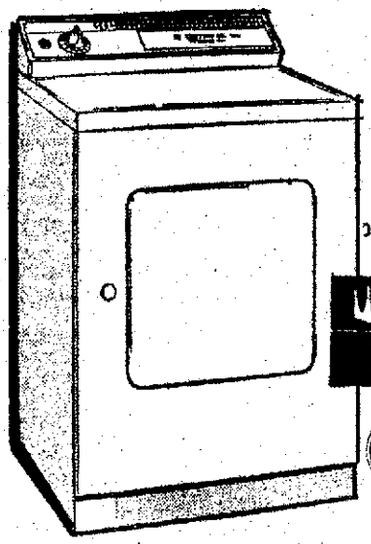

"I was responsible for the so-called 'Coogan Law,'" he said. "It gives most of the child's salary to a court trust fund so parents and guardians can't get at it."

Such little shavers as Shirley Temple and Margaret O'Brien grew up to collect large fortunes as a result of Coogan's misfortunes.

To TV or Not TV

By WILBUR C. LANDREY

JOHANNESBURG (UPI)—South Africa is one of the few civilized places in the world without television.

There isn't any—a fact striking to Americans and Europeans used to their livingroom television. Most other things in South Africa are mighty like home here in contrast to the newly independent and under-developed states to the North.

Television is coming here, too—but WHEN is an explosive question both politically and technically.

While the black African states to the north are in a hurry to acquire television stations as status symbols and as a means to reach largely illiterate populations, South Africa is in no hurry.

ONE NEWSPAPER earlier this year predicted it would come in 18 months. The minister of posts and telegraphs, Dr. Albert Hertzog, reported in parliament that as far as he could see South Africa would never have television at all.

The best guessers would guess "never at all" means 1965 or 1966.

The launching of Telstar — with its promise of eevntual international television — brought the question back into the political areana again. As the anti-government "Rand Daily Mail" commented then:

"Before many years are out, television will be worldwide and the efforts of our government to isolate us from its effects will seem even more ridiculous than they are now."

RADIO IN SOUTH AFRICA is run by a public corporation—the South African Broadcasting Corp. (SABC). The act under which it operates left the decision on television squarely up to the government.

Critics have sometimes charged that the go-slow on television is another attempt to "isolate" South Africans from a hostile outside world.

The question is complicated. Like most things in this country, it is bedeviled by the fact that white South Africans are divided into those whose first language is English and those whose first language is Afrikaans.

To start television, there would be a ready-made supply of programs in English from America and Britain. But Afrikaans is spoken nowhere outside of South Africa, although Dutch and Flemish are similar. The government, an Afrikaner nationalist government, is sensitive to the problem.

ANOTHER PROBLEM is how many channels to allot. Will there be separate English and Afrikaans language channels as in sound broadcasting, or will there be only one channel for the whites which will help familiarize each group with the other's language?

And what about channels for the black Africans who outnumber the whites by three to one?

Finally, there is some concern over the moral effect of television on South African youth. Dr. Hertzog already has pointed out that a British commission of inquiry has found TV a major cause of teen-age crime.

In all this, the South African press has been torn between the desire to chide the government for heel-dragging and the fear of possible competition when television comes.

Pan and Fan Mail

I understand TV doesn't guarantee programs as scheduled, but when I sit up late to watch a program as important as I felt that one might be, entitled "Argument—Ben Hunter—What to Do About Cuba," I'd like to know what caused the cancellation.

Frank A. Winslow, Long Beach.

An important baseball game between the Cardinals and the Dodgers sidetracked Cuba, Frank.

Hunter's program was delayed in the airing. He felt, because of the delay and a time curtailment, he shouldn't "waste" the Cuba program. It was aired the following week, instead.

* * * *

All TV commercials are not bad. In fact, some of them are pretty good.

Among the better is the one for a tomato sauce. The little old winemaker is good. Some of the cartoon commercials are more entertaining than certain TV programs.

J. Paul Gleason, Long Beach.

Sounds to me like you've been brain-washed, J. Paul, but each man to his own poison.

* * * *

Channel 9 has a fine commentator, Joe Dolan, who appears nightly.

I have heard him speak out for "peace," which is, of late, a bad word. Recently he spoke on the Bill of Rights, the fundamental rights of the people and how almost non-existent they are these days.

It is so wonderful to have a man speak out with frankness and honesty and to be concerned about a person's right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

Silvia Donnenfield, Lakewood.

Early or late, Sylvia. "peace" has never been a bad word. Incidentally, Dolan is about as controversial a commentator as you can find. Sooner or later—and I'll make you a bet on this—he's going to say something with which you thoroughly disagree.

Just remember he's only trying to speak out with "frankness and honesty."

* * * *

In a recent article, someone wrote in and commented on a certain headache-pill product and how the commercials were so nerve-racking that she would never buy the product because of the silly commercials that advertise it.

Well, I would like to say that they are stupid commercials also, but that we don't judge the product by its commercials and I'm sure anyone who has any sense will not judge a product without even trying it.

As for the commercials, everytime I see them on television I have to laugh.

They aren't nerve-racking, but are the cutest things I have ever seen.

My girl frinds and I have a blast acting them out and cracking jokes at them.

I'm not saying this lady is a nut because she doesn't like them, but I hope the makers of this product don't take the commercials off the air.

In the school talent show we put on for the school, my girl friend and I are going to act them out.

Beverly Rosamond Smith, Seal Beach

Nice of you to warn your fellow students.

Japanese TV Cartoons Show How to Woo and Not Win

By ROBERT CRABBE

TOKYO (UPI)—Japanese television viewers this winter may have a chance to take lessons in the art of courtship with the aid of animated cartoons.

"I'm trying to teach men how to get girls," says the show's producer and author, Choken Maruo.

It will be frisky entertainment, even by the standards of Japan, a nation that takes a matter-of-fact approach to sex.

Entitled "The Various Chapters of Love," the new show will present 12 animated cartoon episodes drawn by Japanese artist Yoji Kuri.

They will be offered a major Tokyo television station shortly.

IN EACH EPISODE, Maruo appears in caricature, cast as a scholarly professor of the art of courtship. Each show deals with the fortunes—and misfortunes—of his pupils in their pursuit of the opposite sex.

Maruo is director of Tokyo's Music Hall Theater, where handsome young Japanese girls appear bare to the waists.

Besides his job as director at the Music Hall, Maruo is the author of a number of books, including "A Practical Guide to Making Love." Maruo professes to dislike the title, calling it "dry and unpoetic."

Boy does not get girl in any of the 12 cartoon shows. One Tokyo newspaper calls this "a concession to current morality."

MARUO, MORE LOFTILY, says he insisted on these endings, "because the men don't deserve to get the women. They are not really in love with them."

In each show, some humorous mishap befalls the ardent pursuer just as he stands at the brink of success.

One of Maruo's previous television shows was denounced in the Japanese parliament.

Entitled "Pink Mood," it depicted young women relaxing in the privacy of their homes and apartments.

Maruo solemnly insists that it promoted public morality.

"Men left the geisha houses to rush home and see my show on television," he explains.

ROY ROGERS & Dale Evans Show—George Gobel is special guest star and end man in a western-style minstrel show at 8 p.m., ch. 7. Roy and Dale, as interlocutors, introduce show's regulars plus Gobel and a banjo-playing family from San Francisco.

THE DEFENDERS—An attack on the inadequacy of our sanity laws is the subject for the series' first 2-part drama, to begin at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2, in a test of the 119-year-old McNaughten rule which legally defines sanity in more than 40 states. Don Gordon plays the psychotic killer who admits his crime, knew what he was doing and that it was wrong (the McNaghten definition of sanity). Sylvia Sidney plays the mother whose early treatment made him the way he is.

Q. Is it true that Arnold Palmer, the great golfer, flies his own plane to golf tournaments? Also how much will he earn this year and from what?—Laverne Mitchell, Helena, Mont.

A. Palmer flies his own plane, a two-engine, seven-seat job, to most tournaments. His income this year from all sources will approximate $350,000. He receives a $6,500 guarantee from Wilson Sporting Goods plus royalties on clubs bearing his endorsement. His syndicated newspaper column brings in another $20,000. His minimum fee for golf exhibitions is $3,000 plus a percentage of the gate. At this summer's end he had already won approximately $100,000 from golf victories. Further fees come from his endorsement of shoes, shirts, slacks, socks, windbreakers, golf clothes of all types.

Q. I heard that Anita Ekberg has gained 70 pounds, now weighs 200. Is that really true?—T. Dolci, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

LONG LIFE RECIPE. Want to live a long life? Be born a Swedish girl and get yourself married. A special mortality study compiled by the United Nations reveals that married men and women live longer than the unmarried and that married Swedish women have the longest life expectancy in the world -- 75.

FALLOUT ANTIDOTE. The most common and dangerous component of radioactive fallout is Strontium 90. A Finnish scientist, Dr. Kai Setala of Helsinki University, claims he has devised a simple means of eliminating Strontium 90 from the human body, removing it from the sweat and saliva where it concentrates. The antidote is a soapy white substance trade-named Beronium. It is being manufactured in three forms — a pill, a skin lotion, and a toothpaste -- by the Finnish drug firm of Berner & Co., which has applied for provisional patents in 42 countries. Experiments are currently underway on animals.

HORSE SALES UP. TV westerns have not only helped boom the gun business but also the sale of horses on the installment plan -- especially in Canada. So many persons have been infected by the Wild West bug that they are buying the whole western regalia, horse included. Price and Palme, horse dealers in Ontario, sell their animals for $4 down and $4 weekly. The horses range in price from $150 to $550.

MARRIAGE AND GRADES. Do married college students make better grades than the unmarried? Yes was the immediate post World War II answer when returning GIs thronged the college campuses. But no more. Nowadays the unmarried male student is doing slightly better than his married counterpart. The report comes from Dr. Anthony Samenfink, a University of Vermont sociologist, and Dr. Robert L. Milliken. They point out, after comparing the grades of married and unmarried male students, that marriage is no remedy for poor grades. Husbands just don't do as well as bachelors in scholarship.

WHO TRAVELS? Perhaps you've always known it, but now surveys prove that people 60 and over comprise the largest segment, at least 40 per cent, of the travel market. Thomas Cook & Son and other travel agents report their average customer is 60, and the U.S. Passport Agency reports that the number of passports issued to persons 60 and over has almost doubled in the past five years. It's the old folks who have the time, and in many cases the do-re-mi, for present travel.

Vatican spectacles are stage-managed by Msgr. Enrico Dante, shown at side of Pope John XXIII.

the Vatican's magnificent showman

by MELTON S. DAVIS

VATICAN CITY.

FEW OF THE THOUSANDS at the Ecumenical Council now meeting here may notice a slim figure who always seems to be at the side of Pope John XXIII.

Yet the awe-inspiring proceedings of the first such world assembly of the Roman Catholic Church in 92 years owe their flawless functioning to him: Msgr. Enrico Dante, 78-year-old Prefect of the Masters of Pontifical Ceremonies. Other faiths are present as observers.

Once described by a newsman as "ringmaster of the most magnificent show on earth," he is responsible for staging all rituals taking place in the Vatican and all functions anywhere involving the Pope. The meeting now under way in the gold and scarlet-trapped Council Hall represents Msgr. Dante's greatest test.

Long years of service at the Vatican, including 15 years in his present post, have prepared him for this challenge. Up to this week, his masterpiece of spectacle-staging is generally considered to have been Pope John's coronation. In fact, it was Msgr. Dante who, on that eventful day of November 4, 1958, placed the golden tiara on the head of Cardinal Roncalli, thus officially making him the new Pontiff.

Msgr. Dante's coolness and calm have been strongly tested since then. For the present Pontiff's informality, his disregard of protocol and his dislike of schedules have kept his prefect on a continuous alert. The Pope can order a last-minute change in itinerary, suddenly decide to visit an old friend or a church he had seen years before. Frequently he has stopped to talk with someone and thrown a carefully arranged program out of kilter.

During the Pope's 1958 visit to Rome's city jail, an employe, instead of kneeling when being presented, ran forward and extended his hand. Some of the prelates gasped in horror, but Msgr. Dante only smiled and imperceptibly edged the over-friendly employe to one side.

Msgr. Dante isn't always able to avoid situations. Sometimes he has had no choice but to close his eyes. In 1959 the Pope went to Trastevere, the workers' district of Rome, where he gave communion to 40 boys. During the reception one of the mothers offered him a cup of coffee and a bun. Without a moment's hesitation John said, "I accept with thanks," and started eating heartily.

The advent of television has brought some new and disturbing elements into Msgr. Dante's work. This year the Pope resumed visiting the Lenten Stations after a lapse of 200 years. While he was delivering a church sermon, huge spotlights set up for televising the ceremony flashed around the interior, blinding spectators. In the middle of a sentence the Pope abruptly stopped and said to Msgr. Dante, "Take those bothersome things away." The prefect made a quick gesture and the lights immediately went off. Then he was seen to disappear from the Pope's side for a few minutes. When the lights came on again, they were softer and stationary.

Audience Manager

Msgr. Dante's day-to-day task is the directing of papal audiences. Endless visitors want to meet the Pope, who every day devotes five hours to receiving individuals and groups. These can be anything from a team of bicycle racers to heads of governments.

Recently members of an Italian circus performed their acts in the Hall of Audiences. The event recalled medieval times, when jugglers and acrobats were in constant attendance upon the popes. Msgr. Dante handled this with the same aplomb with which he smoothed the way for General Eisenhower and members of the Kennedy family.

Showmen from many countries have watched with admiration as Msgr. Dante's long, ivory-toned fingers move constantly but without haste, as he subtly orders or reminds participants where and when to stand, sit or kneel, to speak or remain silent.

His flair for coordination, as he keeps things moving with unobtrusive gestures and whispered instructions, stems from a unique combination of athlete and organizer. When young he was an enthusiastic football and tennis player, went in for long-distance swimming and mountain climbing. As a young priest he helped develop the Pro Roma athletic organization, later to become the Rome professional football team, one of the most important in Italy.

Msgr. Dante almost had a diplomatic career. But, he says, "I failed as a diplomat before I began." This happened in 1923 when Pope Benedict XV wanted him to reopen—after World War I—the Apostolic Nunciature in Paris. Filling this office would almost automatically have given him the rank of cardinal, but Msgr. Dante declined the offer rather than leave his two sisters behind in Rome.

One of the dramas of his life has been the desire of two popes to make him a cardinal, and his pious refusal of the honor. Despite this, there are many in the Vatican who think that when, in 1960, Pope John chose three secret cardinals in pectore ("within the breast") Msgr. Dante was one of these and that his name will be revealed at the Pope's pleasure.

No matter what his rank, though, Enrico Dante will continue to play a key role in the current assembly, which Pope John has called "the most moving and most solemn spectacle ever offered to the world, to the angels and to men." ■

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

EVER SINCE MARILYN MONROE overdosed herself to death, the one tangential question raised most frequently here is: Who will take her place?

Talent agents, studio executives, casting directors have all eagerly studied their player lists and selfishly offered such possibilities as Jayne Mansfield, Ziva Rodan, Stella Stevens, Yvette Mimeaux and Fay Spain—but for the most part such girls, while bountifully endowed in the physical sense, lack the rare, almost ineffable personality ingredients which go into the making of a universal sex symbol. They lack the "it" of Clara Bow, the "oomph" of Betty Grable, the seemingly natural sex innocence generated by Marilyn.

They are either too rutty, too obvious, too specialized in their appeal, or deficient in the art of simultaneously arousing the libido in men and empathy in women.

"To become a sex goddess in motion pictures," says ace cameraman Leon Shamroy who recently finished photographing Elizabeth Taylor in Cleopatra, "a girl must first of all be photogenically revealing. Second, she has to stimulate the men in the audience without antagonizing the women. I think Liz did that very well until the breakup with Eddie Fisher. Then she antagonized the women, so that now men are afraid of expressing their desire for her in front of their wives. For my money the next Hollywood sex goddess might very well be Tuesday Weld.

"Tuesday," Shamroy continues, "has all the necessary attributes. She's young, only 19, much smarter than Marilyn ever was. She's got as many curves as a scenic railway, and most important of all, she comes across on film.

"A lot of these actresses—they look great in the flesh, but put them in front of a camera and right away their sex appeal evaporates."

One executive at 20th Century-Fox, which has Tuesday Weld under contract at $35,000 per film, says: "I hope this kid makes it as a replacement for Marilyn Monroe; if she doesn't, I don't know anyone else in this town who can. And the truth is if Hollywood can't come up with a sex goddess, we might as well junk this whole business, because that's the one thing we can offer which television cannot."

Whether the public realizes it or not, the fact is that television has become primarily a medium which exploits and popularizes men, not women. Female sex appeal on TV is practically non-existent. Let one actress show a little too much cleavage, and the sponsor howls. Let another get involved in a domestic scandal, and the network drops her like a radioactive tomato. This is why TV personalities generally make such dull copy. Circumstance compels them to lead colorless, circumspect private lives. The result is that most of them become as interesting as laundry lists.

Motion picture personalities, on the other hand, can live recklessly without too much fear of public or studio retribution. Elizabeth Taylor may romance Richard Burton. Ingrid Bergman may elope with Roberto Rossellini. Jayne Mansfield may remove her husband from her payroll. But the careers of these film personalities endure.

The public demands a sex symbol and only the motion picture medium, it appears, can discover, project, and promote one.

The most qualified candidate for such promotion is the aforementioned Tuesday Weld, who has appeared in 10 movies and more than 100 TV programs.

Here is a lovely, young, chameleon-eyed blonde, 5-feet-4, 110 lbs., with a 36-23-34 figure, firm, well-toned, beautifully shaped.

She boasts Freudian allure and an ample bosom, two of the prime requisites of the typical American sex symbol. As a bonus, Tuesday can act. She's been working ever since she was 3½ and, unlike Marilyn Monroe, takes direction quickly, easily, and perceptively.

Says veteran director Leo McCarey: "She's a bright young thing, quick to grasp, quick to absorb, and capable of self-discipline."

"My real name," said Tuesday, "is Benjamin"

Like Marilyn, however, Tuesday Weld is moody and, for someone only 19, inordinately suspicious of people, especially men, "because they've hurt me."

Her mother claims: "This is nonsense. Tuesday makes up stories for newspaper reporters, because the truth bores her. She doesn't like telling the same thing over and over again. One time, for example, she told a reporter she had spent most of her youth in pool rooms. Another time she described herself as 'young with an old soul.'

"On another occasion when she was asked for the hundreth time whether her name was really Tuesday, she said, 'No, my real name is Benjamin.' She has an impish desire to shock, but she's actually a perfectly normal young woman."

Dwayne Hickman, who's played opposite her in the Dobie Gillis TV series, describes her somewhat differently: "Tuesday's not a very outgoing girl," he declares. "She takes knowing. She doesn't give her friendship easily. On certain things she's outspoken, but basically she's reticent. She's hard to know."

Sexy quality of Tuesday Weld is apparent in this pose from recent TV series. Now 19, Tuesday may become top film box-office draw.

Is she Marilyn Monroe's successor?

Says Elvis Presley, her leading man in* Wild in the Country: *"That girl's not only got a good figure but a good mind. She gives a man the feeling that inside, she seethes."

The truth about Tuesday Weld is that she is the creature of an incredible background. Her father, Lothrop Motley Weld, Harvard '20, was the playboy scion of an old, prominent, wealthy New England family. Her mother, Aileen, daughter of famed illustrator Balfour Ker, was Lothrop Weld's fourth wife.

When Weld died of a coronary at 49 in 1946, he left no money. (His heart was so bad no company would insure him.) What he did leave was a widow and five children—two sons by a previous marriage and three children by his marriage to Aileen.

Tuesday was the last of these. She was born of a distinguished family tree in the Salvation Army Hospital in New York on August 27, 1943. She was born into an incongruous world of impeccable social background and almost absolute poverty.

Her mother named her Susan "because," she explains, "they wouldn't let me take her out of the hospital unless I named her something. But two months after she was born, I named her Tuesday, and she's been Tuesday ever since."

They lived in a coldwater flat in Manhattan's slums

Tuesday and her sister Sally, eight years her senior, and a brother David, six years older, were raised in the heart of Manhattan. They lived with their mother in a slum tenement, a ground-floor coldwater flat on First Avenue and 53rd Street for which they paid $20 per month rent. The flat had no bathroom, and the lavatory was a community project located in the hall.

Mrs. Weld worked occasionally as a sales clerk in department stores, managed to keep her brood together and survive on her pitiful earnings plus a small allowance from her mother-in-law.

When Tuesday was 3½, the child began to work as a fashion model; she earned $33 for her first job, gradually became the family breadwinner.

As a youngster, she hated to pose. "I didn't like photographers treating me like a piece of furniture. 'Stand here. Move there. Sit down.' It got so that I became petulant and rarely smiled. And I remember the photographers trying every trick to make me smile, but I just wouldn't. I guess maybe I didn't really like modeling. But I did it for years. First, the Conover Agency got me jobs, then the Huntington Hartford Agency.

"When business was slack and I didn't get jobs, mother used to work. Then she'd quit to take me around. Somehow we managed, but I remember during my whole childhood we were always short of money. And naturally my schooling was very irregular. Eventually, because of my hours, I had to go to the children's Professional School."

By the time Tuesday was 8½ she was so fed up with modeling that her mother took all the money they could scrape together, $900, and moved the family to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

"For two years," she says, "Tuesday lived a natural life without a single day's posing of any kind. During this period I catered my favorite chili con carne to restaurants as far down as Miami. The children went to school; we lived in a community of fine and thoughtful neighbors; life was more slow and peaceful. Then we started to run out of money and Tuesday became restless. I left the two older children with friends, and Tuesday and I went back to New York."

Mrs. Weld was prudent enough to refrain from suggesting to her extremely photogenic daughter that she return to modeling. But by this time some of Tuesday's girl friends, "Kids I'd gone to Professional School with," had developed into top New York models and minor TV actresses. Tuesday spoke with them, then one day went to her mother and said she'd like to start working again.

Her mother warned her that she would have to give up parties and proms, all the social activities most teenagers looked forward to if she were serious about becoming a top-flight actress. She explained that she would use some of Tuesday's modeling money to send her to drama and dancing classes, and Tuesday agreed. The child was 11 when she resumed work. By 12 she was regularly appearing on the covers of half a dozen different magazines, had jobs playing child parts in a dozen different TV shows.

That same year the Huntington Hartford Agency sent her to the Bronx to audition for the lead role in Rock, Rock, Rock a low-budget motion picture directed by the late Will Price, former husband of actress Maureen O'Hara. Price selected Tuesday from 300 applicants to play a 16-year-old, paid her $400 for the film which was shot in nine days.

Intensely serious about her acting career, Tuesday subsequently heard that famed director Elia Kazan was auditioning girls for a new play by William Inge, The Dark at the Top of the Stairs.

"I wore clothes to make me look real old," she says, "and makeup to match, and I honestly felt that I appeared very sophisticated. Mr. Kazan asked me how old I was. At the time I was only 14, but I lied. I told him 16. He said: 'Well, why've you made yourself up to look like 30? Go home and scrub up, then come back as you really are and read for me again.' " Tuesday did. She didn't get any of the lead roles, but Kazan hired her to understudy two of them.

The fate of the understudy even in a hit—is to sit

When the show opened in New Haven, Tuesday was dreadfully unhappy because the play was a hit and she had done nothing but sit forlornly in the below-stage dressing room, holding tightly the tiny corsage of baby roses her mother had sent to console her. She came out of the dressing room, and ran into a young agent, Dick Clayton, who used to represent the late Jimmy Dean.

Clayton says: "I took one look at her, and I knew this kid had it—sex appeal, talent, depth. I told her if she ever got to Hollywood I'd like to represent her. Several months later, her mother phoned me from New York and said I could become Tuesday's agent providing I got her some work. I got her a job on the* Matinee Theatre TV program, and she and her mother flew out to Hollywood. They got here in April, 1958. A few days after she finished Matinee, I took her out to 20th Century-Fox to see Leo McCarey who was directing and producing Rally Round the Flag with Paul Newman and Joan Collins.

"McCarey took one look at her and signed her without a test, right on the spot, for the part of the sexy young baby sitter."

Tuesday was next signed by Paramount to play Danny Kaye's crippled daughter in Five Pennies, a film based on the life of band leader Red Nichols. And word soon began to spread that Tuesday Weld was a physically precocious teenager with a high sex-appeal quotient. Behind this word lay a rising mountain of fan mail, mostly from servicemen who'd seen her on the screen.

Unsolicited fan mail, particularly from young men, has always been an indicator of an actress' box-office potential. When 20th Century-Fox saw the mail flooding in, studio executives made inquiry concerning Tuesday. They were told that the studio had dropped her option but had been using her in the Dobie Gillis TV series, that she'd also been making other full-length motion pictures all over town.

Tuesday's goal is marriage —but never to an actor

In 1960 the studio re-signed her, cast her with Bing Crosby in High Time. Said Crosby: "Tuesday's got the right charms in the right places."

Celebrating her new contract, Tuesday moved out from under her mother's protective wing at 17, bought a new two-bedroom Hollywood hillside home complete with swimming pool, quickly furnished the pad with hi-fi, TV, and recording equipment. She also bought a Thunderbird, quickly traded it in for another model. She changes cars the way most girls change clothes. In the past year she's had six; now drives a white convertible Cadillac.

In addition to earning $126,000 last year—not bad for an 18-year-old—Tuesday inherited a sizeable estate in stocks and bonds from her paternal grandmother. "The inheritance," explains her mother, "will save her from becoming dependent on the whims of Hollywood, which no girl should ever be subjected to."

Restless by nature, Tuesday Weld today is ambitious for success and achievement. She says she would like to inherit Marilyn Monroe's mantle but does not want to devote her life to a motion picture career.

"It's terribly depressing," she says, "to spend your best years hanging around a sound stage. I'd like to get married and have children. That's the best career any woman can have, but an actress has to be extremely careful in choosing a man. Actresses usually choose such lousy husbands—they pick actors, I'd rather not."

Striking similarity is evident between Marilyn Monroe at 19 (above) and Tuesday Weld at 17 (below). Tuesday's advantage is she's a better actress than ill-fated Marilyn, who early in career was not taken seriously by producers.

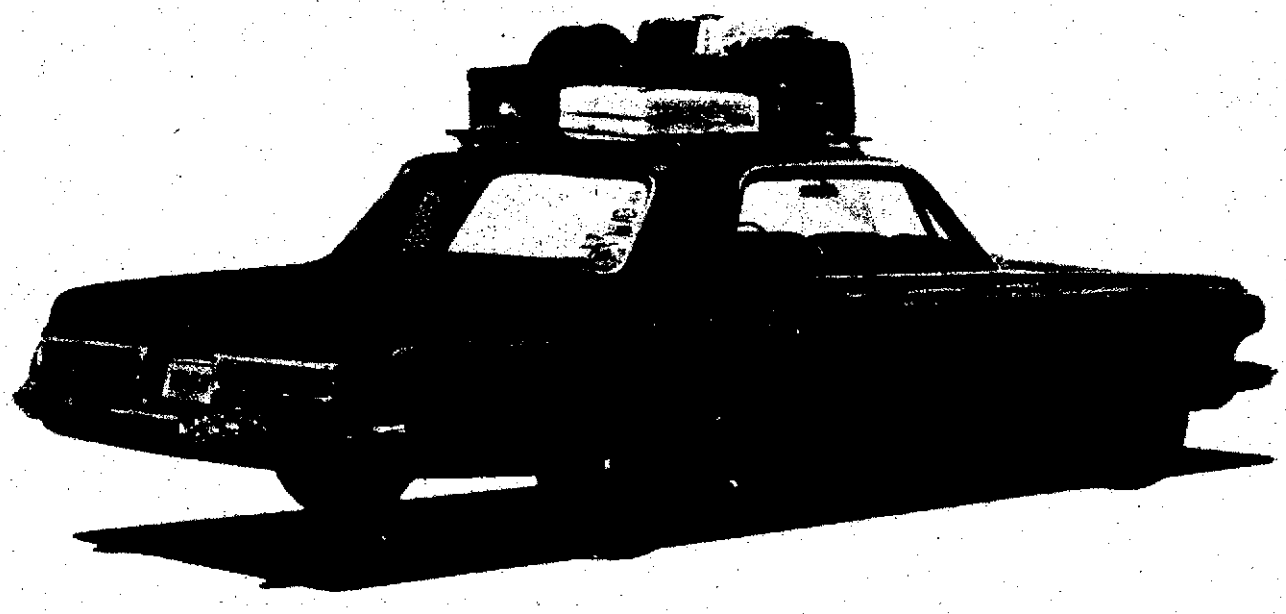

Tuesday's been playing the field for the past few years, but before marriage she wants to fulfill herself as an actress, to play memorable roles of meaning.

"I'm a good actress," she says. "I can play more than sex-bait or the girl who arouses wolf-whistles. I've been described as a kook and an oddball and an erupting volcano. But I'm none of those. I go to dancing school, I take singing lessons. I'm trying to improve myself all the time. I just don't want Hollywood to treat me the way it treated Marilyn Monroe. She hung around this town, wasting the best years of her life trying to get jobs.

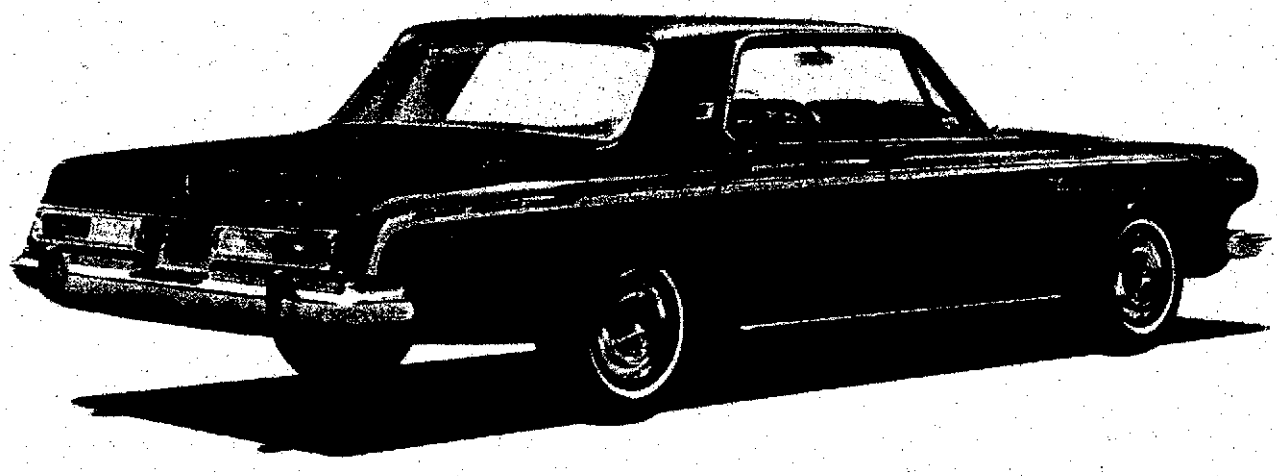

"She told everyone she was serious about her work, but producers would look at her figure and they just never would believe her. Somehow a girl who bulges in the right places is never considered a serious artist in Hollywood."

Tuesday Weld bulges in all the right places, but Hollywood considers her serious—in fact, too serious. Says one casting director: "If she would only smile more often, Tuesday would get more jobs. Sure, she's sexy, but she's also sullen. She gives one the feeling that she considers life a burden instead of a joy. No one had a more terrible youth than Marilyn Monroe. Yet, she always tried to smile. This kid doesn't. The minute she does, the sky for her is the limit—because in addition to sex appeal she's got real talent, and that's an unbeatable combination." ■

THE ROAD NEVER GOT...

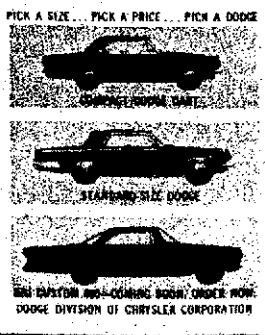

SUCH A BEAUTIFUL GOING OVER

INTRODUCING THE 1963 DODGE

The 1963 Dodge in the topmost picture has just come back from a good long run. It's been to the World's Fair in Seattle, to Mammoth Cave and to lots of other interesting places. It has carried backbreaking loads of people, luggage and camping equipment. It's been pelted by sand, gravel, snow, rain, sleet and hail. But take off that luggage rack, give Dodge a good hosing and rubdown, and it'll look, run and sound like a brand new car. That's the way this Dodge is. Dependable. Long-lasting. Tight. With a fully unitized body that is reluctant to rust, because we take care of that.

With Torsion-Bar suspension in front that won't let road bumps do any harm. With a stout-hearted engine (6 or V8) that gives and gives on regular gas. With a high-output alternator that helps the battery last a good long time.

But great as Dodge dependability is, it's not everything. The good looks of the '63 Dodge testify to that. If you want to give the road a good going over in a car that comes out of it looking great, see your dependable Dodge Dealer.

A NEW SHORT CUT TO MENTAL HEALTH

BY ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

Brief therapy: patient reveals problem—but not from the analytic couch.

THERE'S A NEW SHORT CUT to mental health. In more than a half-dozen American cities, patients with everyday, but distressing emotional disorders, tensions, depressions, family and job conflicts, are being helped—in 30-, 20-, and even 10-minute psychotherapy sessions by family doctors as well as psychiatrists.

It's part of an exciting development in American psychiatry. There are slightly more than 11,000 psychiatrists to serve the entire nation. Obviously, something has to be done to "stretch" psychiatric treatment and put it within financial reach of more people.

Make no mistake. The brief, 20-minute "hour" (as experts refer to sessions) is not replacing the 50-minute hour for patients in deep psychoanalysis. Short sessions are not geared to remake the patient's total personality, nor can they "carry" the patient for years.

Without delving into the patient's total life history, brief treatment deals with his acute, immediate problems, seeking to overcome urgent emotional difficulties.

"The short session," says Dr. William F. Sheeley, of the American Psychiatric Association, "is the only practical way to treat vast numbers of patients, many of whom cannot and should not be psychoanalyzed."

To these patients—there are thousands today in Chicago, Los Angeles, New York, New Orleans, Boston, Columbus (Ga.), and elsewhere—brief therapy means relief from emotional problems for a total cost of $100, $50, or even as little as $25.

"The brief treatment session is a trend of the future," declares a Columbus, Ga., psychiatrist, Dr. Leonard T. Maholick. "If you go about it correctly, you can accomplish a great deal in 10 or 15 minutes of treatment."

Even a single 20-minute session with a properly-trained and oriented doctor can help certain patients. What types of problems do they have?

Psychosomatic complaints are among the most com-

WHEN THE CHOICE IS YOURS . . . CHOOSE ATLAS

mon. Dr. Bertram B. Moss of Chicago, chairman of the Illinois Academy of General Practice mental health committee, tells of a 34-year-old divorcée who complained of stomach cramps.

She had no physical problems, so Dr. Moss asked her to discuss anything she deemed important. In a single session, the patient revealed that she was going out with two men. On dates with one of them, she disclosed, the stomach discomfort occurred. With the other, it did not.

Then she told why one of her suitors made her feel tense and jittery. The next day—after "ventilating" her problem (a vital process in any type of psychotherapy), the stomach pains disappeared. She made her choice and has been free of symptoms for several weeks.

Depressions, arising from death in the family, illness, or job difficulties, yield at times to brief therapy.

Dr. Francis Nicolle of New Orleans tells of a 33-year-old mother of three who became terribly depressed because she disliked her stepfather. In just six sessions, she came to understand the source of her depression. Her guilt feelings were alleviated and she happily returned to her duties as wife and mother.

Sudden but common stress periods bring countless candidates for brief therapy to the doctor's office.

A 55-year-old California woman used to break out in a rash every time her son and daughter-in-law had a marital spat. The rash covered her hands and caused her endless grief and pain. In just three brief sessions, she began to accept the fact that her son and daughter-in-law really loved each other and that their arguments were "normal." With this realization, her rash gradually disappeared. She has been symptom-free for months.

THIS WOMAN has a "fragile" personality and may need brief therapy again as other stressful situations arise, but therapy will always be available to help cushion her emotional upheaval. Hers is not an exceptional case. As Dr. William B. Terhune of the Silver Hill Foundation, New Canaan, Conn., points out, "Every individual experiences serious stress several times in life which may require treatment."

Where can the patient go for brief, low-cost psychotherapy? In a few cities around the U. S., psychiatrists offer it. Some outpatient psychiatric clinics do, too.

Perhaps the most heartening fact, though, is that an estimated 2,500 general practitioners, family doctors, now are trained to give brief psychotherapy, or will be in the near future.

To this end, the American Psychiatric Association and the American Academy of General Practice are stepping up training programs so that more GP's will be able to help their patients over tough emotional hurdles.

"It's a wonderful way to practice," says Dr. Moss, "a way in which the family doctor can shine again." ■

you will love this SPANISH DISH

The 17th anniversary of the United Nations will be celebrated on October 24 by 104 countries. Mark the event by serving a UN Day dinner of Spanish chicken and other foreign dishes.

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

U Thunt, Acting Secretary-General of the UN, suggests the following menu for American tastes. In all but the main course he allows a choice of dishes, from which we made up the following menu:

Borscht (U.S.S.R. and Middle Europe)
Paella Valenciana (Spain)*
Curried Green Beans with Almonds (India)
Tossed Green Salad
French Dressing (France)
Lemon Meringue Pie (U.S.A.)
Coffee (Latin America) Tea (India or Ceylon)

To make dinner preparations easier, buy canned borscht and serve hot or chilled, topped with dairy sour cream. Most of the Paella ingredients are canned, making the recipe much simpler than the usual Spanish recipe. Serve the green beans in a mild curry sauce, topped with canned slivered almonds. Make the pie with pie crust mix and packaged lemon pie filling. The Paella may be made the day before and reheated, if desired.

*Paella Valenciana

- 2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut up
- ¼ cup salad oil
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
- 2 or 3 garlic cloves
- 1 Italian sausage, hot or sweet
- 2 medium onions, chopped
- 2 cups raw, long-grained rice
- 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes
- 1 can (10½ oz.) whole clams
- 2 cups water or giblet broth
- 1 envelope saffron
- 1 can (6 oz.) shrimp
- 1 large green pepper, diced
- 1 can (15 oz.) artichoke hearts
- 1 can (4 oz.) pimientoes, diced
- 1 cup fresh or frozen peas
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Brown chicken pieces in salad oil in large skillet until skin is crisp and brown. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. With garlic press squeeze garlic over chicken. Place chicken in 4-quart baking dish or Dutch oven. Slice sausage ½-inch thick; brown slices in oil left in skillet. Add slices to the baking dish. Cook onions in skillet until soft but not brown, adding more oil if necessary; add to the baking dish. Combine rice, tomatoes, juice from clams, water or giblet broth and saffron; mix well; turn into the baking dish. Cover; bake at 375° for 45 minutes. Remove cover. Halve clams; add with drained shrimp and green pepper. Slice artichoke hearts ¼-inch thick; add with pimientos and peas. Stir well. Add more giblet broth if necessary. Cover baking dish. Bake ½ hour longer. Serve on a platter, garnished with chopped parsley. Makes 8 servings. FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

So many women are asking this important question.

The answer is—yes. A remarkable new medical discovery called Dioctyl Sodium Sulfosuccinate has now made possible a special new laxative for a woman's sensitive system. We call it Correctol®.

Correctol is recommended any time in a woman's life, even during and after pregnancy.

Try gentle, hospital-tested Correctol . . . bearing the Good Housekeeping Seal. Ask your druggist for Correctol.

Then and now: 5-year-old Dave Garroway of Schenectady, N.Y., tries out his first "car"—a home-made, boy-powered "dinky," built with grandfather's aid because Dave envied a neighbor's Chandler. Today Garroway owns five sports cars.

Everyone remembers one of life's great experiences

MY FIRST CAR

DETROIT, MICH.

NEXT SATURDAY, the giant National Automobile Show will open in Detroit — launching the 1963 models. An estimated seven million Americans will buy these new models. Of these, one buyer in five will be engaging in one of the most memorable experiences of American life. They will be buying their very first cars.

On page 22, you meet four Americans who have just taken this big step—reaching it only after much care and cogitation and sure to remember it all their lives. For almost as much as he remembers his first sweetheart, an American brought up in the Automobile Age recalls fondly his first car. Long after it has rusted away in the auto graveyard, he can tell you when he bought it, where he bought it, what good times he had in it, how many times and where it broke down. And he recounts each such anecdote with the far-off tremolo of the reminiscent lover.

How about you? Do you remember your first car?

TV celebrity DAVE GARROWAY does. It was a Model-T Ford with a brass radiator and he and a friend paid $10 apiece for it. However, the car Garroway remembers best is shown above. He built it, age 5, helped by his grandfather because he envied a neighbor's Chandler. "We made it out of wood, a wagon and four wheels from a grocery cart," Garroway recalls. "It had a top speed of about 6 mph if you fed the motor—me—two Eskimo pies."

WALTER CRONKITE, CBS news commentator, had his first car when he was 15. It was a hand-me-down from his father. "It was a great big black box of a Dodge," Cronkite says lovingly. "I could get more kids into that car than college kids today can cram into a telephone booth. There were usually about 12

'Mechanic' Walter Cronkite, 15, gazes under hood of his fondly-remembered first car—a 1926 Dodge. His bewilderment, today's CBS commentator says, was genuine. "No one told me to change the oil in the car's transmission," Cronkite says, "and one day it just ground to a stop."

THE WORLD'S BIGGEST AUTO SHOW

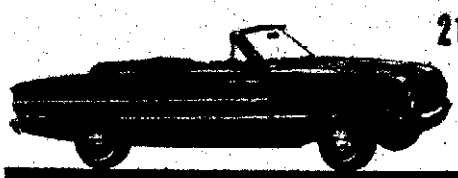

UNDER THE VAST ROOF of Detroit's Cobo Hall and Convention Arena, the 44th National Automobile Show, biggest of its kind in the world, will open next Saturday and run for eight days. On display will be every 1963 model of every car and truck made in America. The exhibit will cover 300,000 square feet, represents millions in investment. Highlights include an antique car rally, a special musical revue, special exhibits and open-houses. Admission: adults $1, children 35 cents.

Why people used to buy cars—and why they do today

passengers. I'll tell you, it made me the undisputed social leader of San Jacinto High School."

Astronaut JOHN GLENN also got his first car from his father, who was in the car business in New Concord, Ohio, at the time. "It was a 1929 Chevy convertible that was, you might say, permanently converted," Glenn remembers. "There was no top at all anymore. I used to carry half of an old Army pup tent to throw over it in case of rain. One day I took a brace and bit and bored holes through the floorboards so the water would run out. I had it three or four years and then one day I was skidding it around a mudflat and I straddled a half-submerged log. That tore the bottom out of it. My dad was so disgusted with me that he grounded me for 30 days."

Glenn's buddy in orbit, Astronaut SCOTT CARPENTER, also remembers his first car—a 1934 Ford. He financed it by selling his clarinet. Carpenter souped up the car and rebuilt the body to accommodate a home made rumble seat. "Why don't they build cars with rumble seats any more?" Carpenter asks nostalgically. "I think something wonderful went out of life when they stopped."

Like Carroway, many Americans bought their first car with someone else. MICKEY MANTLE of the Yankees, for instance, bought an antique Chevrolet with then fellow-Yanks DON LARSEN, TOM STURDIVANT and JOHN BLANCHARD to drive back and forth to the Stadium. It cost $100. "But that doesn't count oil," Mantle says. "You had to stop at every gas station and say, 'Check the gas and fill with oil.' "

SEN. HUBERT HUMPHREY of Minnesota bought his first car in 1933, with three classmates at Denver College of Pharmacy. They paid $3.25 each. For the rest of the year Humphrey scrimped and saved to buy the others out. Then he took the car back to Huron, S.D., and drove it a year. One day he needed a stake for a big weekend, so he sold the car for $9 and blew it all on a football game, dinner and an evening out.

Several Americans learned to drive in their first cars. Baseball comedian AL SCHACHT, driving his first car—a 1928 Will St. Clair—home from a Tampa, Fla., agency, was accompanied by TRIS SPEAKER. "Speaker knew I knew practically nothing about cars," Schacht recalls. "So when we were in the heaviest traffic, he knocked the gearshift into neutral. I hadn't the slightest idea why it wouldn't go. Finally a cop came over and he couldn't figure it out either. So we called a mechanic and he got it back in gear. A few blocks later, Speaker did it again. But this time he couldn't contain himself and he confessed."

The president of the American Medical Association, DR. GEORGE M. FISTER of Ogden, Utah, got his first car in 1919—a 1916 Dodge coupe. He was just out of medical school. He taught himself to drive and set out with his father for Salt Lake City.

Sideswiped Cow

"First thing we came upon was a herd of cows," Dr. Fister remembers. "They wouldn't move and I couldn't stop, so I hit one. The car was damaged but it would still run, so we kept going. A few miles further on, we came on a place where the road was being repaired. I drove over it and tore out the crankcase. This time the car stopped for sure. I had it towed back to Ogden and sold it. So in one week I bought my first car, taught myself to drive, took my first trip, wrecked the car and bought my second car."

Attorney General ROBERT F. KENNEDY'S first car also ended up a wreck. It was, as Kennedy recalls, a 1946 black Chrysler. "I don't remember it too well because I seldom saw it," the President's brother says. "My friends drove the heck out of it. One day it just disappeared completely. Later I heard that Kenny O'Donnell's brother had borrowed it and smashed it into a concrete abutment."

SEN. PAT McNAMARA of Michigan says he bought his first car, an old Reo, when he not only had never driven a car but hadn't even ridden in one. He bought it second hand, closing the deal with the owner's mother, who didn't know how to drive it either. It took him all afternoon to figure out how the car started, and then the rest of the afternoon to get it home. "As I recall," says McNamara, "there was one pedal combining brake and clutch, which made things rather complicated.

"It's funny," he adds, "that all that first month, while I was learning to drive, my father always rode with me. But after I learned how, he said I drove too fast. He never would get in the car again."

Women remember their first cars, too. Actress ANN HARDING, for instance, had a "tenth-hand Buick roadster", which had a top speed of about 38 mph. "I always named my cars," she says, "and I named that one 'Hedgehog.' That was because it couldn't be a road hog, not at that speed. One rainy night I was crossing the Jersey meadows when suddenly I came upon a detour sign and a man signalling me to stop. Well, I wasn't stopping at night for anybody. So I zigzagged around him and kept going. I don't know who he was, but he fired a gun at me. Luckily, he was a bad shot and only winged the window. It's hard to make a getaway at 38 mph."

And JEAN CARNEY, wife of actor ART CARNEY, remembers well their first car, which was really hers. "It was a 1936 Chevy with a rumble seat," she says, "and it was a hand-me-down from my uncle. Not too long after that I met Art and married him.

"You know," she muses, "I often wonder if he married me for my car."

—ED KIESTER.

Family, the Bolognini's of Teaneck, N.J., selected Chevrolet Impala as their first car. "Jim offered me a mink stole," says Elsie Bolognini, a British war bride, "but I said, 'Let's buy a car.' I was shopping for an economy model, but then this sporty model caught our eye. It makes us both feel so good just to have it!"

Suburban housewife, Mrs. Robert Jurick of Hewlett Harbor, N.Y., picked Rambler station wagon. "We wanted a car that was economical, easy to handle, that had plenty of room for the children," Mrs. Jurick says. "And they love this one. And I'm certainly able to come and go more readily, keep up all my errands."

Nurse Claire Simoneau, 24, of Marlborough, Conn., decided Falcon sedan was best for driving back and forth to Hartford Hospital. "What it means to me is independence," Claire says. "Not having to depend on others, going where you want when you want. Truthfully, I don't know how I ever did without it."

Young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Tweedy of New York, decided on a Plymouth convertible. "It's something I've always wanted," Tweedy says. "As a kid I always loved cars and I always wanted to have one, and now I do. It means a lot to us—a chance to travel, to enjoy the country, and mostly a source of pride."

CAN A WANT AD in a newspaper bring a home, devoted parents, two brothers and a dog to a homeless child?

A classified ad brought all these things and more to a 10-year-old little girl named Irene. The child, once a ward of Ontario's Department of Public Welfare, is now the adopted daughter of Leo and Frieda Schell. (These names are, of course, fictitious.)

The youngster, who had been out on loan to foster parents more than half her young life, lives in a nice home in a suburban area here. She has her own room, a daddy who lets her climb onto his lap, a loving mother, two older brothers and a family dog. Irene now has the kind of life little girls in foster homes dream about.

Irene's new home and new family came about through an ad in the personal column of a newspaper. It's the unique method used by the Province of Ontario's Department of Welfare to place children out for adoption.

The advertising program, instituted in 1959, uses "parents wanted" ads weekly in 18 provincial newspapers. So far more than 500 children have been placed for adoption through these ads. This revolutionary method has been so successful here, that agencies in the U.S. are copying the technique.

What makes it necessary to advertise for parents when by common report there are more couples looking for children than there are children available for adoption?

Special Cases

Although the number of infants available for adoption is admittedly limited, the number of hard-to-place youngsters is far greater than the demand. That's why Ontario advertises for parents for youngsters who are older, who may have a handicap or two or perhaps who are the issue of a mixed union.

Irene was one of these hard-to-adopt youngsters. She was 8½ and nobody came along who was charmed by her peppy personality, her warm expressive eyes or her sweet smile. She lived in a shelter with 14 girls.

Frieda and Leo Schell, parents of two boys, answered one of the ads for a little girl. They didn't get the one they wrote for, but their name went on a waiting list. Then they heard about Irene.

"We were thrilled, excited but also a little frightened," Mrs. Schell says.

"I had no idea of how an 8-year-old girl would adjust to our home. We are no experts in child raising. We have muddled through with our own boys, but we figured that with God's help we could give this little girl the love and understanding that every child is entitled to."

The Children's Aid Society arranged a "preview." This permits the prospective parents to view a child without an actual meeting —to see if the child appeals to them.

The case worker may take the youngster to a playground or to the zoo or to a restaurant so that parents may see the child in action. The first time the Schells saw Irene was at a restaurant in a large shopping center.

"I'll never forget the day," said Frieda Schell. "Irene was seated at a table in a restaurant eating chips. She didn't know we were watching her, but she looked so cute as she chatted away with the social worker.

ADOPTION continued

With the older adopted child,

When they left to go walking we followed and when they stopped in front of a shoe store, our hearts went out to Irene. She was gazing fondly at a pair of high-heeled shoes."

There was no question about it, they wanted Irene. In the meanwhile, their intended daughter was told that a family was interested in adopting her. The case worker told Irene about the two boys, Ron, then 16, and David, 13, and about Ginger, the dog.

The day came for Irene to meet the family. Frieda Schell recalls, "I was so nervous I didn't know how to dress. I decided to wear a sweater and skirt because Irene was going to be dressed informally. Later Irene told me she didn't like what I wore."

A Room of Her Own

Irene arrived for dinner with the social worker. The first thing she inquired about was the dog, then she wanted to see "her" room. While Irene was only at the Schells for a visit, the family had already been preparing to take her in. Leo Schell had redone his son David's room in feminine colors, his wife had changed the draperies and bedspread to a more girlish pattern, and even David contributed something—a doll which he bought out of his savings. Irene came to live with the Schells many weeks later.

It was a probationary period. When the novelty of Irene's arrival wore off, problems started cropping up.

"I remember our first crisis," Mrs. Schell said. "My husband Leo is very musical and both our boys play instruments. Leo wanted to teach Irene the piano and she hated it. One day she said to me, 'I'm not going to play the piano anymore. And I want you to know,' the child added defiantly, 'I haven't signed the adoption papers yet.'"

While the child never has anything to do with adoption papers, the remarks were a cutting blow to Mrs. Schell. She was very upset, and the incident so disillusioned Mr. Schell that he was on the verge of sending her back.

A musical evening at home with Irene and father at the piano. David, 15, toots his saxophone.

With the experience of two boys behind her, Mrs. Schell took Irene aside and sternly told her she would have to obey her father.

"If you don't discipline an adopted child, as you would your own, she feels that she doesn't belong. If you scold her, she then takes it to mean that you really care for her and that she really is a member of the family," Mrs. Schell said.

Several hours after the spat, Irene apologized and agreed to take piano lessons.

No family, with adopted children or not, gets away with just one problem. The next crisis concerned David. He wanted a bicycle

Learning to ride a bicycle isn't hard if your brother holds the bike for you. David gives Irene a lesson on her first two-wheeler.

each problem may become a crisis

badly and he finally got it on his birthday. But Irene got a bicycle almost immediately after her arrival. David became sullen, petulant and disobedient.

One day, after being scolded by his mother, he blurted out, "Irene gets away with murder, and you always come after me for nothing."

"David and I had a long, hard talk which ended up with both of us crying," the mother said. "He thought I didn't love him anymore. After I explained how much Irene needed him as well as us, he started to understand. Now they're like a regular brother and sister, they fight like cats and dogs."

Six-month Probation

The family got along so well and adjusted so quickly that it took only a six-month probationary period for the Schells to legally adopt their daughter. She's been a member of the family for a year and half now.

The story of Irene is just one of many cases that have come through the Children's Aid Society. The Society currently has about 3,000 children in foster homes, waiting for someone to adopt them. In addition to the classified ad program, the department has also tried putting some of these hard-to-adopt children on television. For five minutes each Friday, several children are seen at play on a program called Pat's Place. Radio is also used to tell couples about available children.

Not everybody can adopt older or handicapped or interracial children, according to Laurie Charleson, adoption consultant to the Department of Public Welfare. Says Miss Charleson:

"People who adopt special children must know how to handle them, they must be mature, have a lot of experience with children and not give up when the sledding gets tough. Most important is that these people also be adjustable and appreciative of youngsters as they are—even if they are duller mentally, or disabled in some way."

Mrs. Schell supervises bedtime prayer—new to Irene who had no previous religious instruction.

Several months ago, in the same paper which carries classified ads for parents, there was a letter to the editor written by "Happy Parent." The letter read in part:

"Our little daughter has just celebrated two birthdays on the same day. First, her 10th birthday, and second, the first anniversary of her arrival as our adopted daughter.

"She is a happy, well-adjusted little girl, a ray of sunshine and we cannot imagine our home without her.

"We answered an ad in your paper placed by the Children's Aid Society and to anyone contemplating adopting an older child we can only say, 'DON'T be afraid.' " ■

A bum approached a lady on the street and asked, "Ma'am, would you please give me 15 cents for a sandwich?"

To which the lady replied, "Let me see the sandwich."

An exuberant agent took his client, a chicken, to see a theatrical manager and pointed out the chicken's various talents. Then he gave the chicken the go sign to show the manager what she could do. First the chicken recited excerpts from Shelley and Keats. Then she did a medley of songs from The Music Man in a clear soprano voice, a snappy dance, and a few card tricks. The agent beamed and asked, "Well, what do you think of that?"

"I don't know," said the manager. "Let me see her legs."

Foreign pictures are getting so popular, they're starting to make them in this country.

It is better to have loved and lost—and also cheaper.

A formation of birds was flying south for the winter, and one bird near the back asked another, "How come we always follow that same idiot leader?"

The other replied, "He's got the map."

A baby lion was chasing a hunter around a tree in Africa. Mama lion said to the baby lion, "Junior, don't play with your food!"

Two brother herrings entered a local pub and ordered two beers. The bartender set them up and then chatted with them for a while, after which the two herrings left. The next day the two herrings returned and again ordered two beers, and the bartender passed a pleasant few hours. The third day, only one herring showed up. The bartender asked, "Hey, where's your brother?"

"I don't know," replied the herring. "I'm not my brother's kipper."

A deep-sea diver got a message: "Come up quick—the ship is sinking!"

They have so many foreign cars today, it's been two years since anybody was hit above the knees.

A bum approached a fat lady on a corner and pleaded, "Ma'am, I haven't had anything to eat for five days!"

"I wish I had your will power," answered the admiring woman.

Two camels were walking across the desert. Said one to the other: "I don't care what anybody says—I'm thirsty!"

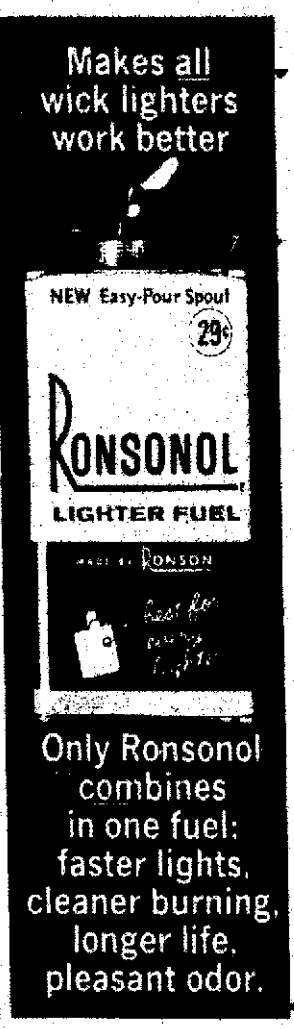

A tourist approached a New York native on Broadway and asked, "Could you tell me how to get to Carnegie Hall?"

"Practice!" answered the New Yorker.

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

In Hollywood recently actress Shirley MacLaine was explaining to a reporter how radically times had changed. "When I was a kid in high school," she said, "the longest word in the English language was antidisestablishmentarianism, and everyone knew it. Then a few years ago a new dictionary came out with a still longer word . . . pneumonsltramicroscopisilikavokaneonosis or something like that. But I can tell you that television has antiquated both of those words. The longest word today in the English language is "the brief word we will now have from our sponsor." ■

PROP. E LOOKS LIKE HANDWRITING ON WALL

Gardena's Poker Kings Gloomy

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

A billboard at Rosecrans Boulevard and Vermont Avenue asks voters next month to "Vote for Home Rule—No on E."

No explanation is offered, no other issue is raised. The campaign against Proposition E, on the Los Angeles county ballot, is keyed to this simple assault.

Proposition E would outlaw poker parlors in the county. In the opinion of the county counsel it would bar even friendly games in private homes.

If it is passed, the free-swinging days of Gardena are done. Even in Gardena there is little optimism. One glum parlor operator says simply:

It's pretty hard to go out and campaign for millions of votes to save poker."

That operator, and the owners of the other fine card clubs in Gardena, remember some days when the city itself almost kicked out the clubs. In 1960, for example, a proposition to outlaw poker in Gardena was defeated by the thin margin of 4,564 to 3,755. That was the fourth time Gardena voters had saved the clubs. Last spring the clubs won another election, 5,905 to 3,619.

Those victories in Gardena do not make the poker palace operators very happy.

"If we couldn't do better than that in the city where we are paying taxes and salaries, we don't figure to do much in the whole county," one grumbles.

Just the same, they have gathered up a small campaign fund and are fighting the issue on the "home rule" basis.

Gardena is unique in Southern California. Under a state law providing for local option, it licenses clubs to operate draw-poker games. There are many kinds of poker—stud, for example, is a popular form—but the state legalizes only one, five-card draw.

There have been sporadic attempts to legalize draw poker elsewhere in this area. Some 10 years ago, Seal Beach briefly permitted the Airport Club to function. But Gardena has been a consistent haven, for 40 years, for gamblers.

The origins of public poker in Gardena go back almost to the days of the community's birth in the 1880s. Then it was largely an area of dairy ranches and farmlands. The cowpokes, milkers and farmers liked their poker and they played it openly.

By 1930, Gardena residents felt big enough to become a city. They incorporated that year, with a population of 3,000, and brought poker along with them.

The "home rule" issue was strong then. Los Angeles had already annexed Wilmington, San Pedro and other areas in the southeastern part of the county. Gardena residents felt they had to protect their interests—including poker.

Not until 1946, when the population had soared to 10,000, was there strong enough sentiment against poker in Gardena to force an election. It was a bitter, initiative affair, with 18 candidates in the council race, two tax levies and a ban on poker clubs on the ballot.

The card clubs squeaked through — 1,527 to 1,106. Three of the four incumbent councilmen were re-elected.

However narrow the defeat, the foes of legalized gambling in Gardena were too discouraged to try again until 1958. By then the population had soared to 32,500.

The poker clubs, mindful of the squeak 12 years earlier, worked hard in this campaign and scored their greatest popular victory—6,277 to 2,265. In 1960, the foes of poker got the issue on the ballot again, and were beaten again last spring.

Apparently convinced that Gardena's 40,000 residents were not of a mind to outlaw poker themselves, the gambling foes succeeded in putting the poker ban on the county ballot which voters will mark Nov. 6.

This maneuver is based upon a new state law that permits counties of more than 4,000,000 population to decide on a county-wide basis whether draw poker shall be permitted.

The law obviously applies only to Los Angeles County. Consequently it was challenged as discriminatory, but County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy delivered a 28-page opinion holding it legal, and a superior court backed him up.

In his opinion, Kennedy

29 TEETH GONE—OOPS! WRONG GIRL

LONDON (UPI) — A young woman went to her dentist for a routine, six-month check-up and left minus her 29 teeth, the Medical Protection Association reported Saturday.

It all started with a mixup in names, and the dentist did not realize his mistake until the woman due for the extraction arrived in his office, the report said.

The two patients had appointments for the same hour, and when the first woman went into surgery, she answered the anesthetist's questions without comment.

Then they pulled her teeth.

Of California, By Californians, For California

DUE TO the importance of the California governorship, these newspapers have made an especially detailed study before making a recommendation.

Our usual policy is to support a proven public servant for the job in which he has experience.

We have considered the speeches and platforms of both candidates. We find that Gov. Brown's program is helpful to the needs of California, and that Mr. Nixon has talked mainly in generalities against crime, dope and communism. With the same material, he could just as easily be running for governor of Florida or President of the United States.

Gov. Brown, a church-going family man, certainly is not in favor of crime, dope or communism. With his background as Attorney General and Governor he does know how to handle these problems.

We feel Mr. Nixon's selection of such national subjects for theatrical campaign speeches only shows that he cannot successfully criticize the Governor's achievements and plans for state progress.

As just one example of proven state service, Gov. Brown has done much more to solve California's most important program, an effective water distribution system, than either of two able former governors, Govs. Goodwin Knight and Earl Warren, both Republicans and both men these newspapers supported.

Two of California's most honored senior newspapermen, whose years of public service and dedication to California's interests are beyond question, are James K. Guthrie of the San Bernardino Sun and Telegram and Thomas Storke of the Santa Barbara News-Press. One of these newspapers is generally Republican and the other usually Democratic. They have both endorsed Gov. Brown and said in part:

Mr. Storke's News-Press: We are supporting Brown not because he is a Democrat, but because he has been a good governor. We are opposing Richard Nixon, not because he is a Republican, but because we believe he is less qualified than Brown to administer the affairs of the state.

Mr. Guthrie's San Bernardino Telegram: As is well known to those who follow the political expressions of this newspaper, we do not attempt to argue with the partisan beliefs of either Republicans or Democrats. The two-party system is necessary. But it is important to good government that the independents of both parties or no party make their decisions on the individual records of the candidates and the issues of the day . . . .

Gov. Edmund G. Brown has turned in an impressive record as the head of California's government. He succeeded in putting the state water plan together in the face of vigorous opposition in certain sections of the state and in doing that which two able predecessors had not been able to accomplish.

Gov. Brown's accomplishment in this field should not be ignored. He created enemies by forcing the state-water plan. By the very nature of things, he is then entitled to rewards in those parts of the state which are to benefit from the state-water plan.

This election is not to choose a new envoy to some distant country or the winner of a television beauty contest.

IT IS AN ELECTION OF CALIFORNIA'S LEADER, BY CALIFORNIANS, FOR CALIFORNIA.

The Independent and Press-Telegram for years have been generally Republican in their recommendations. The publisher is a registered Republican. But how a candidate has done and will do a job is more important than a party label.

Because of the Governor's record of accomplishment, these newspapers endorse Edmund G. (Pat) Brown for reelection.

DESERT TOWN DIGS ORE FOR JAPAN

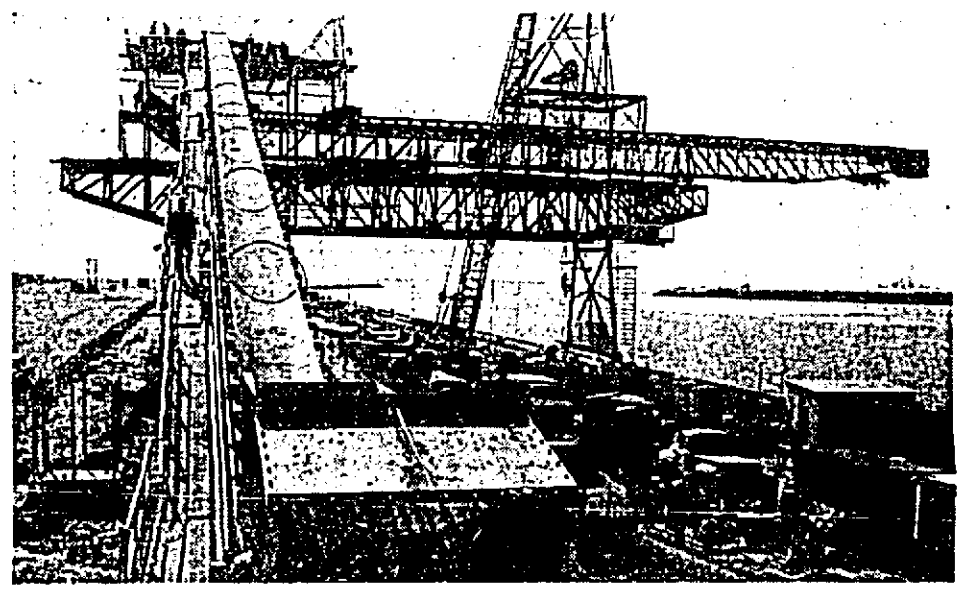

By LOU JOBST
I. P-T Marine Editor

EAGLE MOUNTAIN—This sunbaked Mojave desert mining town of 1,800, and Long Beach joined last week in one of the most ambitious export operations in West Coast history.

The undertaking involved shipment of 10 million tons of high-grade iron ore to Japan during the next decade.

The ore is to be dug out and processed on this 6,000-acre mineral claim owned and operated by the Kaiser Steel Corp. in this rubble-strewn highland 60 miles east of Indio.

It is to be carried to Long Beach Harbor at the rate of 1,000 ore cars a month for stockpiling and transpacific shipment from a new $4.5-million shiploading terminal being built on Pier G.

PIER G ORE-SHIPPING FACILITY WILL LOAD JAPANESE SHIPS

First ship in the new trade, MV Okitsu Maru, is scheduled to arrive in Long Beach Friday. The Okitsu Maru and an identical sister ship were built especially for the operation.

The red-black ore, which comes in two textures — fine grain-like sand and one-inch bits —is to be turned into steel at plants owned by the Mitsubishi Corp., Japan's largest industrial empire.

The construction men are working around the clock to complete the fully automated pier facility which includes a vast underground stockpile, conveyor system and bunkers.

At the peak operation about one-third of the ore taken from the open pits at Eagle Mountain will go to Japan; the remaining 3½-million tons a year will be consigned to Kaiser's Fontana Steel Mill, for which the mine was opened in 1948.

To achieve this production the 435 Kaiser workers here must blast and dig out 75,000 tons of ore-bearing rock daily.

The rough ore, which is below the 60 percent needed for blast furnaces, must be crushed and upgraded in two elaborate processes. The principal ores are hematite and magnetite.

Magnetite, as the name indicates, is magnetic. The ore concentrates are removed from the waste by passing it over magnetic drums.

Hematite is removed by dumping the ore into water tanks where the heavier mineral material sinks to the bottom and is removed. To accomplish this Kaiser has built a benefaction plant capable of circulating 18,000 gallons of water a minute.

The water, like that used to supply the town's 300 homes, shops, businesses, and 160 dormatories, is brought nine miles from deep wells sunk in the desert floor.

Since the ore is taken from open diggings, which are a series of 45-foot-high benches cut into the side of the

Discordant Congress Closes Shop

Lawmakers Quit As House Passes Waterways Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 87th Congress limped to bickering adjournment Saturday, ending a nine-month session marked by persistent Senate-House feuding over prestige and appropriations.

It was these recurring interchamber ruptures that were instrumental in making the final regular session of this Congress the longest since the Korean-war year of 1951 when adjournment came on Oct. 20.

And the strained atmosphere surrounding the much-delayed adjournment gave little indication that the interchamber tensions will be much eased when the 88th Congress meets on Jan. 9, 1963.

• • • •

THE HOUSE opened the way for adjournment Saturday by rallying a majority of 236 members. Hopes for Friday adjournment were killed when the House was unable to produce a quorum of 218 members.

It then gave voice passage to the $5-billion appropriations bill to finance waterways projects—flood-control, navigation and power-dam undertakings often described as "pork-barrel" projects.

The House laid aside a $500-million catch-all supplemental appropriations bill but only after lifting from it several Senate-approved items and adding them to the big public works appropriation measure.

BEFORE considering these two House actions, the Senate passed by voice vote a $2.4-million "pork-barrel" au-

Bay Area Slides Kill 2 as Storm Havoc Soars

By Associated Press

Earthslides killed two children, wrecked hillside homes, and blocked main highways temporarily in the Oakland area Saturday in the wake of the heaviest rain in the San Francisco Bay area in half a century.

Diane Dobson, 5, was killed by a slide that destroyed her family's home in Oakland. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dobson.

Willam J. McCarthy, 10, was killed by a slide that buried him in the backyard of his home in Orinda, an Oakland suburb. He was the son of W. G. McCarthy, supervisor of elementary education in the University of California Department of Education.

Their deaths, and that of Robert Tyo, 34, Belmont plumber killed by electric shock while working in a flooded Hillsborough basement, raised the two-day storm toll in California to 17.

As the storm called the worst in Oregon's history, blew itself out Saturday over western Canada the federal government promised "all possible assistance" to western Oregon, where damage was estimated officially at $150 million.

In response to Oregon Gov. Mark Hatfield's request that President Kennedy declare his state a disaster area, Edward A. McDermott, director of the U. S. Office of Emergency Planning, telegraphed Hatfield that the President was deeply concerned and steps for assistance were under way.

Throughout the storm area, at least 43 lay dead.

The toll by states:
California 17.
Oregon 11.
Washington 9.
British Columbia 6.

Firemen ranged the east Oakland areas threatened by spreading earthslides urging families to evacuate.

Rock and earthslides closed the Western Pacific railroad's Feather River Canyon route east of Oroville.

The railroad rerouted its California Zephyr passenger trains over the Southern Pacific lines across the Sierra. But Friday's west-bound train arrived at Oakland nearly 24 hours late and the east-bound train to Salt Lake City ran

JFK Fights Hard for More Demos

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—President Kennedy, in the fierce fighting form of his 1960 campaign and striking back at critics of his Cuba policy, Saturday denounced "those self-appointed generals and admirals who want to send someone else's sons to war."

In a vigorous three-state campaign swing, he accused GOP Kentucky Sen. Thruston B. Morton of being ashamed of his own party and unleashed his bitterest attack at Indiana's Sen. Homer E. Capehart, one of the Senate's most outspoken advocates of militant action against Cuba.

"This is a time for men who talk softly and carry a big stick," Kennedy said in a paraphrase of Theodore Roosevelt. "This is no time for rash and irresponsible talk which strengthens the claims of our adversaries."

• • • •

KENNEDY'S Pennsylvania-Indiana-Kentucky campaign swing hit its high point at an airport rally in Indianapolis where he leveled his sights on Capehart, an advocate of naval blockade or even invasion of Cuba, and said:

"This is no time for confused and intemperate remarks on the part of those who have neither the facts nor the ultimate responsibility."

In Louisville, before a peppy partisan throng of some 10,000 at Freedom Hall on the state fairgrounds Saturday night, Kennedy said sarcastically he wanted to put in a word of defense of Morton.

2,000 Negroes Riot in Florence, S.C.

FLORENCE, S. C. (UPI) — Hundreds of Negroes were reported rioting in this city Saturday night in an incident touched off when a policeman attempted to arrest a Negro woman on a drunkenness charge.

Every available city and county officer, the highway patrol and city firemen were ordered to duty.

Police Chief Melvin Adams estimated that half of the city's 4,000 Negroes were involved. He said police broke up the first big fight that followed an attempt by officer Harold Tisdale, a Negro to arrest the woman in the city's Negro district.

He said that later, shortly before midnight, the rioters regrouped at an intersection on U.S. 301 north of the city and began pelting autos.

Visitor Here Killed When Struck by Car

A 72-year-old man was killed when he was struck by a car Saturday night as he crossed Broadway at Cerritos Ave.

Police identified him as Robert H. McKinney, of Lakeport, Calif., who was visiting relatives at 271 Cerritos Ave.

2 Couples Killed in Accidents

Two Long Beach couples were killed in separate car accidents, authorities reported Saturday.

Dead are:

William Marshall, 41, and his wife, Eleanor, 33, of 1471 Linden Ave.

Morris S. Golden, 55, and his wife, Elizabeth, 46, of 3375 Falcon Ave.

• • • •

THE INYO County Coroner's office said the Marshalls were killed instantly when their car plunged off the road 25 miles north of Bridgeport in the Walker River Canyon Friday.

The California Highway Patrol said the Goldens were killed when he attempted to pass another car on a narrow bridge. He crashed head-on into another car driven by an Arizona college student. Two youths in the other car were injured.

L.A.C. Says:

Will We Pay Ransom for Cuban Debacle?

Will the United States government take part in paying Castro ransom for the release of Cuban invasion prisoners? This question was asked of the administration as Congress adjourned. It was rumored that our government would help by supplying some $13 million of food and medicines to make up for the ransom being demanded by Castro.

When we go back to April 1961 when the Cuban invasion force was betrayed by the U. S. it would seem we owe a great debt to the 1,400 men who landed there expecting to be covered by air forces from the U. S. At the last minute President Kennedy cancelled the coverage. The result was the invasion force was left to the mercy of overwhelming odds.

On the Sunday evening of April 16 the Cuban invasion force—trained in the U.S.—was at sea on its way to the invasion. A few hours earlier President Kennedy had given "final" approval to the plan. On the day before a surprise attack by B-26 bombing planes—belonging to the invaders—had knocked out all but seven planes of Cuba's tiny air force.

This resume of events given by U. S. News says a second attack was scheduled for Monday morning to coincide with the landing of the invaders. It was supposed to finish the job of wiping out Castro's planes and provide support for the invaders. Secure in this assurance the invaders went ashore in the early morning darkness. This landing was successful. Some 1,400 men landed safely in a place called the "Bay of Pigs."

Confidently this little group caused severe losses for Castro. But the air coverage never came—Castro's tanks moved in without bombing opposition from the air coverage. At the last minute the President cancelled authority for the invaders' planes to take off. This was the end of the invasion force as a combat unit. They then became prisoners.

The President admitted it was his responsibility. The reasons for changing his mind have never been given. But the tragic result is now apparent. No longer is Castro as helpless. He now has Russian soldiers, Russian aircraft and ships. If we are now to stop a Communist military base from growing only 70 miles from our shores, we will have a far more dangerous situation than we would have had if we had carried out our agreement with the Cuban invasion force we abandoned.

While we were in Europe in June of 1961 the newspapers were filled with reports of racial riots in Alabama. We expected to be asked about these racial problems. But the questions asked us by the people we talked to was "Why did you not go through with plans to invade Cuba? Why did you leave the invasion force without support?" It is a question asked all over South America. There is no logical answer to the question that lowered our prestige far more than it was when Mr. Kennedy made it a major issue. We would have been respected had we followed through. We lost world respect because of our failing to carry out a plan we had fostered—then as a last-minute decision destroyed.

It would seem we owe a debt to these prisoners whom we left stranded. They would hardly have made the effort without assurance of reinforcements the government had encouraged. It was a fateful decision for them. It was also fateful for thousands of United States young men who may be called upon to fight and die against a menace that might have been destroyed had we carried out what was promised for April 17, 1961. It may be the most costly decision of weakness ever made by a United States President.

Congress Bickers to Adjournment

thorization bill approved Friday by the House.

This measure — which provides no money — was one on which the Senate conferees largely surrendered to the House in the final conference - committee showdown.

The House had approved 166 projects to cost about $2.25 billion and the Senate upped this by about 50 projects, pushing the authorizations to about $4 billion.

BUT A three-day backstage struggle largely between Chairman Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla., of the Senate Public Works Committee and Chairman Howard W. Smith, D-Va., of the House Rules Committee, was won by the Virginian and nearly all the Senate additions were shelved.

The Senate tacitly acceded to the House dropping of the supplemental appropriations bill until next year.

Then it wound up the legislative proceedings which began last Jan. 10 by giving voice-vote passage to the $5-billion waterways-projects appropriation measure.

Formal notifications were sent to the House and to the President announcing that the Senate had concluded its business and would adjourn sine die if the Chief Executive had no further business for it. The House had sent similar notices earlier.

Both chambers then adjourned.

This congress will meet again only if summoned into special session between now and next January.

* * *

THE FINAL Senate-House compromises—largely forced by election-year pressures on members to get along with their campaigning—obviously satisfied no one completely, although the House yielded far less ground than the Senate in the eleventh-hour adjustments.

This intramural bickering came with Democrats holding the leadership in both branches by virtue of heavy majorities.

Should Republicans win control of the House in the November elections—as their leaders insist they will—the split between the chambers could become even more marked and bitter. The Democrats can not lose Senate control because only about a third of the seats are to be filled and many of these are in the one-party South.

HOPES for Friday adjournment were blasted late Tuesday night when the House could produce only 204 members—14 under a majority—for a roll-call vote on the $5-billion appropriations bill.

The roll call had been demanded by Rep. Clarence Cannon, D-Mo., who was irked by Senate action in putting into the supplemental money bill a $205,000 item stricken by House conferees from the public works bill.

Pair Arrested After Fatal Auto Pileup

COMPTON (CNS)—The intensive search for two youths reportedly responsible for a seven-car accident that took the lives of two men, one a police officer, ended Saturday night with their arrest.

Charles Ray Tweedy, 19, and Dennis Wayne Zimmerman, also 19, both of Gardena, were taken into custody at their homes.

Lt. William W. Church, watch commander at the Compton police station, said both youths admitted they were in the speeding auto pursued by a Compton police car that was rammed broadside by another vehicle late Friday night, triggering the seven-car accident.

D. K. Phipps, 37, a Compton policeman and father of four children, and Kermit W. Bodine, 33, were killed.

mountain, most of the work is done by heavy equipment and conveyor machines.

The Kaiser rolling stock includes some of the biggest construction machinery ever made, including steam shovels capable of taking 25-tons in a single bite, and trucks with $1,500 tires and load capacities of 100-tons. These machines have a healthy appetite—gulping down 10,000 gallons of diesel fuel a day.

Neither the miners nor the town resemble the popular notion of hard-rock mining.

"YOU COULDN'T call these people pick-and-shovel miners. They are highly skilled technicians and specialists," said Martin J. Hughes, mine manager and an engineer who has dug up minerals on three continents.

The town is no dingy dust-covered collection of mining shacks, either. It is a green oasis of wide streets, modern homes and every convenience you would expect of suburban living.

It has a shopping center, parks and a swimming pool, schools and churches. A high school with an enrollment of 80 and a new post office were opened just last month.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH it has no city government, it has its own law. A deputy San Bernardino County sheriff, whose beat covers a vast stretch of desert land between the colorful named communities of Cactus City and Hell, lives here.

Although Kaiser owns virtually everything in the town, Hughes says he has no authority over the people off the job. However, he is a sort of unofficial mayor, as was illustrated recently when he closed the town's only beer parlor because it was too rowdy.

MARTIN HUGHES
Mine Manager

Summer temperatures range up to 140 degrees, and winter nights dip to freezing, but isolation, not the weather, is Eagle Mountain's most depressing feature.

* * * *

TO OVERCOME this the town has developed a social life around the schools and a large number of social and fraternal clubs. Television with five channels, has been piped in. Many of the inhabitants are outdoor enthusiasts who build sand-buggies for desert exploration, and keep small craft for water recreation on the Colorado River and the Salton Sea.

The most attractive inducement to workers is the low rent of $45 to $80 a month.

Many of the town's people are lured into the desert to study the wild life, and—as some claim—to look for gold.

* * * *

IT WAS GOLD fever that first brought man into this desolate country. The iron deposits were discovered before the turn of the century by prospectors looking for the percious metal.

The deposits believed the largest in the western United States were not touched — except for a brief period in World War II when they were mined for ship ballast at Los Angeles-Long Beach Harbors — until Kaiser moved here and bought up the claims in 1947.

Before that there was no need for the ore or the technology necessary to upgrade it for the blast furnace, said Hughes.

* * * *

HUGHES, who claims "The ore is not likely to run out in the foreseeable future," says the range is producing iron of about the same quality as the great Mesabi Range in Minnesota.

Flash flooods, which have ripped out big sections of the 52-mile railroad track Kaiser had to lay to the nearest Southern Pacific line, are the biggest single natural problem in the operation.

Maintenance of the equipment, which also includes five diesel locomotives and 650 ore cars leased from SP, is the largest single mechanical headache.

Douglas Center to Be Dedicated

* * * *

THE CEREMONIES will be open to badge-wearing employes of Douglas Aircraft Division and their families. Following the dedication ceremonies, an open house will start at 1 p.m. in the new building.

The center, comprising the recently - occupied 305,000-square - foot engineering building and an integrated laboratory structure about the same size, will become the "nerve center" of Douglas' entire aircraft division.

Groundbreaking ceremonies took place a year ago. The principal building in the center is the new nine-story administration building.

Word is 'Go' for Nuclear Test in Sky

HONOLULU (AP)—The United States was set Saturday night to explode its second high-altitude nuclear shot in five attempts Sunday night above Johnston Island.

Radio reports from Johnston said the count-down was underway with generally favorable weather conditions predicted for blast time.

A cold front which threatened to delay the test stopped about 300 miles north of Hawaii, raising hopes Pacific skies will be clear when the rocket-borne nuclear device is detonated.

* * * *

SCIENTISTS at Johnston Island insist on good weather for visual observation of the test.

The device is scheduled to be lifted by a Thor missile between 30 to 40 miles above Johnston and exploded between 9:30 p.m. HST Sunday and 2:30 a.m. Monday.

The blast will be in the sub-megaton range—less than one million tons of TNT.

Who's Cookin'? Big Dog Sniffs, Alarms Family

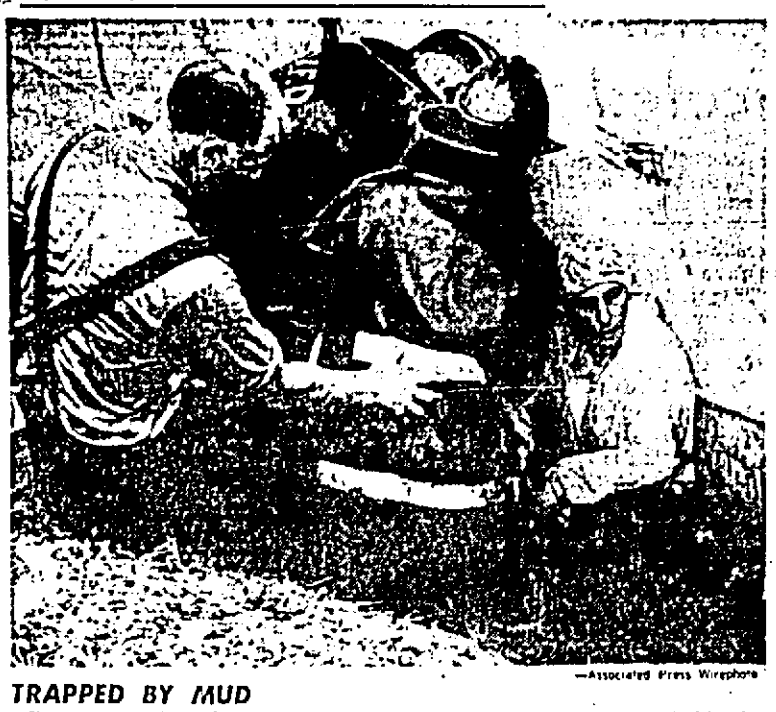

BLANEY, S. C. (UPI)—A mysterious "beast" which had been seen peering into the kitchen window of a rural family's home near here turned out Saturday to be a Great Dane named Richard.

His owner, Ben Rotureau, said Richard meant no harm.

F. L. Pack, into whose home the animal had peered earlier this week, had police searching for what he said was a large, cat-like animal with a roar loud enough to rattle windows.

The animal was seen outside Pack's house Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Investigation by officers and neighbors showed the "beast" was actually Rotureau's Great Daane, which weighs 115 pounds. Rotureau usually keeps Richard penned up in his yard, but the canine apparently slipped out long enough to frighten Pack and his family.

FLOODING of lowland areas near Oroville and Plumas was expected Sunday with the State Department of Water Resources predicting a Feather River flow six feet above flood stage.

Hundreds of basements were flooded in low-lying Sacramento areas Saturday with south Sacramento-area roads under two feet of water. Picnic tables floated away in Del Paso Park.

A slide hit the Oakland home of Mrs. Jeanne Stewart and she was trapped for a time with her children, Michael 15 and Paula 11. The slide jammed all the home's doors. Michael finally managed to force the front door open.

DAMAGE SOARED into the multimillions in Oregon. It was "probably the greatest disaster that Oregon ever had," said Gov. Mark Hatfield.

He declared a state of emergency Friday night and called out National Guard units to patrol the streets of hardest-hit cities.

Oregon took the hardest punch of this hurricane, along a 1,000-mile path 125 miles wide there were shattered buildings, uprooted and broken trees, felled power and telephone lines, ashes from a night of fires—and the dead.

• • • •

WIND GAUGES blew away at many points at 80 miles an hour and more. Some clocked forces of 100 miles and more. It was 121 at Mt. Tamalpais, north of San Francisco, and an almost unbelievable 170 miles an hour at the north Oregon coast's Mt. Hebo radar station.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A spokesman for Southern California Edison Co. said 25 linemen left Saturday for Portland, Ore., to help restore electrical power to the storm-swept Northwest.

The linemen took off from International Airport aboard an Air Force plane. The move followed an appeal for help from Pacific Power & Light Co. in Portland.

Promises to Spend Assailed by Nixon

ANAHEIM—Richard Nixon, battling for the governorship, refused Saturday to "outpromise" his opponent in an effort to gain votes in the November election.

Speaking before the members of the League of County Employees Associations, the former vice president said that too often today the successful candidate is the one who promises to spend the most money.

• • • •

"WE SHOULD try to achieve the most efficient type of government, not the most costly. And often, the costliest is not the most efficient," Nixon told the 300 delegates.

"The trend in government should be towards more state and county control and away from control in Washington," Nixon said.

"But you cannot have a right without responsibility," Nixon continued. "In the past there has been an erosion of responsibility.

"State and local officials haven't done the job that must be done and can best be done on local levels."

• • • •

THE REPUBLICAN candidate paid tribute to the county employes by telling them that by doing their jobs they were fulfilling a life of public service.

Following his noon luncheon speech, Nixon spoke briefly at Knott's Berry Farm Japanese-American luncheon and appeared at the Balboa Bay Club, Saturday night he spoke at a Republican rally in Costa Mesa.

Gardena Poker Palaces Gloomy as Poll Nears

wryly recalled, in answering the "home rule" proponents, that Chapter 215, page 319, of the California statutes of 1873-4 is entitled:

"An act to prevent hogs and goats running at large in the town of Fiddleton, Amador County."

Kennedy's opinion added some philosophy to the literature (if any) of gambling. It says:

"It is possible to play draw poker without any element of gambling whatever, just as many other card games are played . . . to prohibit such an innocent pastime, so it is claimed, would be unreasonable.

"On the other hand, draw poker is essentially a gambling game. Without gambling, few people would play it."

• • • •

OBVIOUSLY, Gardena's card clubs are the target of Proposition E. The penal code that will apply, however, if Proposition E is carried, says:

"Every person who deals, plays, or carries on, opens or causes to be opened, or who conducts, either as an owner or employee, whether for hire or not, any game of poker, including lowball poker, is guilty of a misdemeanor."

Counsel Kennedy's opinion is that this law makes even "friendly" poker games in homes illegal.

THEIR BUSINESS BOOMS

Quiet Revolution in How to Get Man Into the Air

Signs to tell the world about products and places of business are getting bigger and going up higher and the man who is in part responsible for this is Claude Garland, now retired, of Palos Verdes Estates.

Garland, inventor, teamed up with Carl Frye, a local sign manufacturer, in 1947 to introduce the first three-tubed telescopic crane.

From a two-man business, Garland crane, now headed by Frye, of 455 E. Roosevelt Road, has grown to employ 24 persons and does in excess of $600,000 in sales yearly out of its 18,000 square foot plant at 1770 Creston Ave., Signal Hill.

The company builds about 100 cranes a year—and the sales and service staff travels the entire U.S.

• • • •

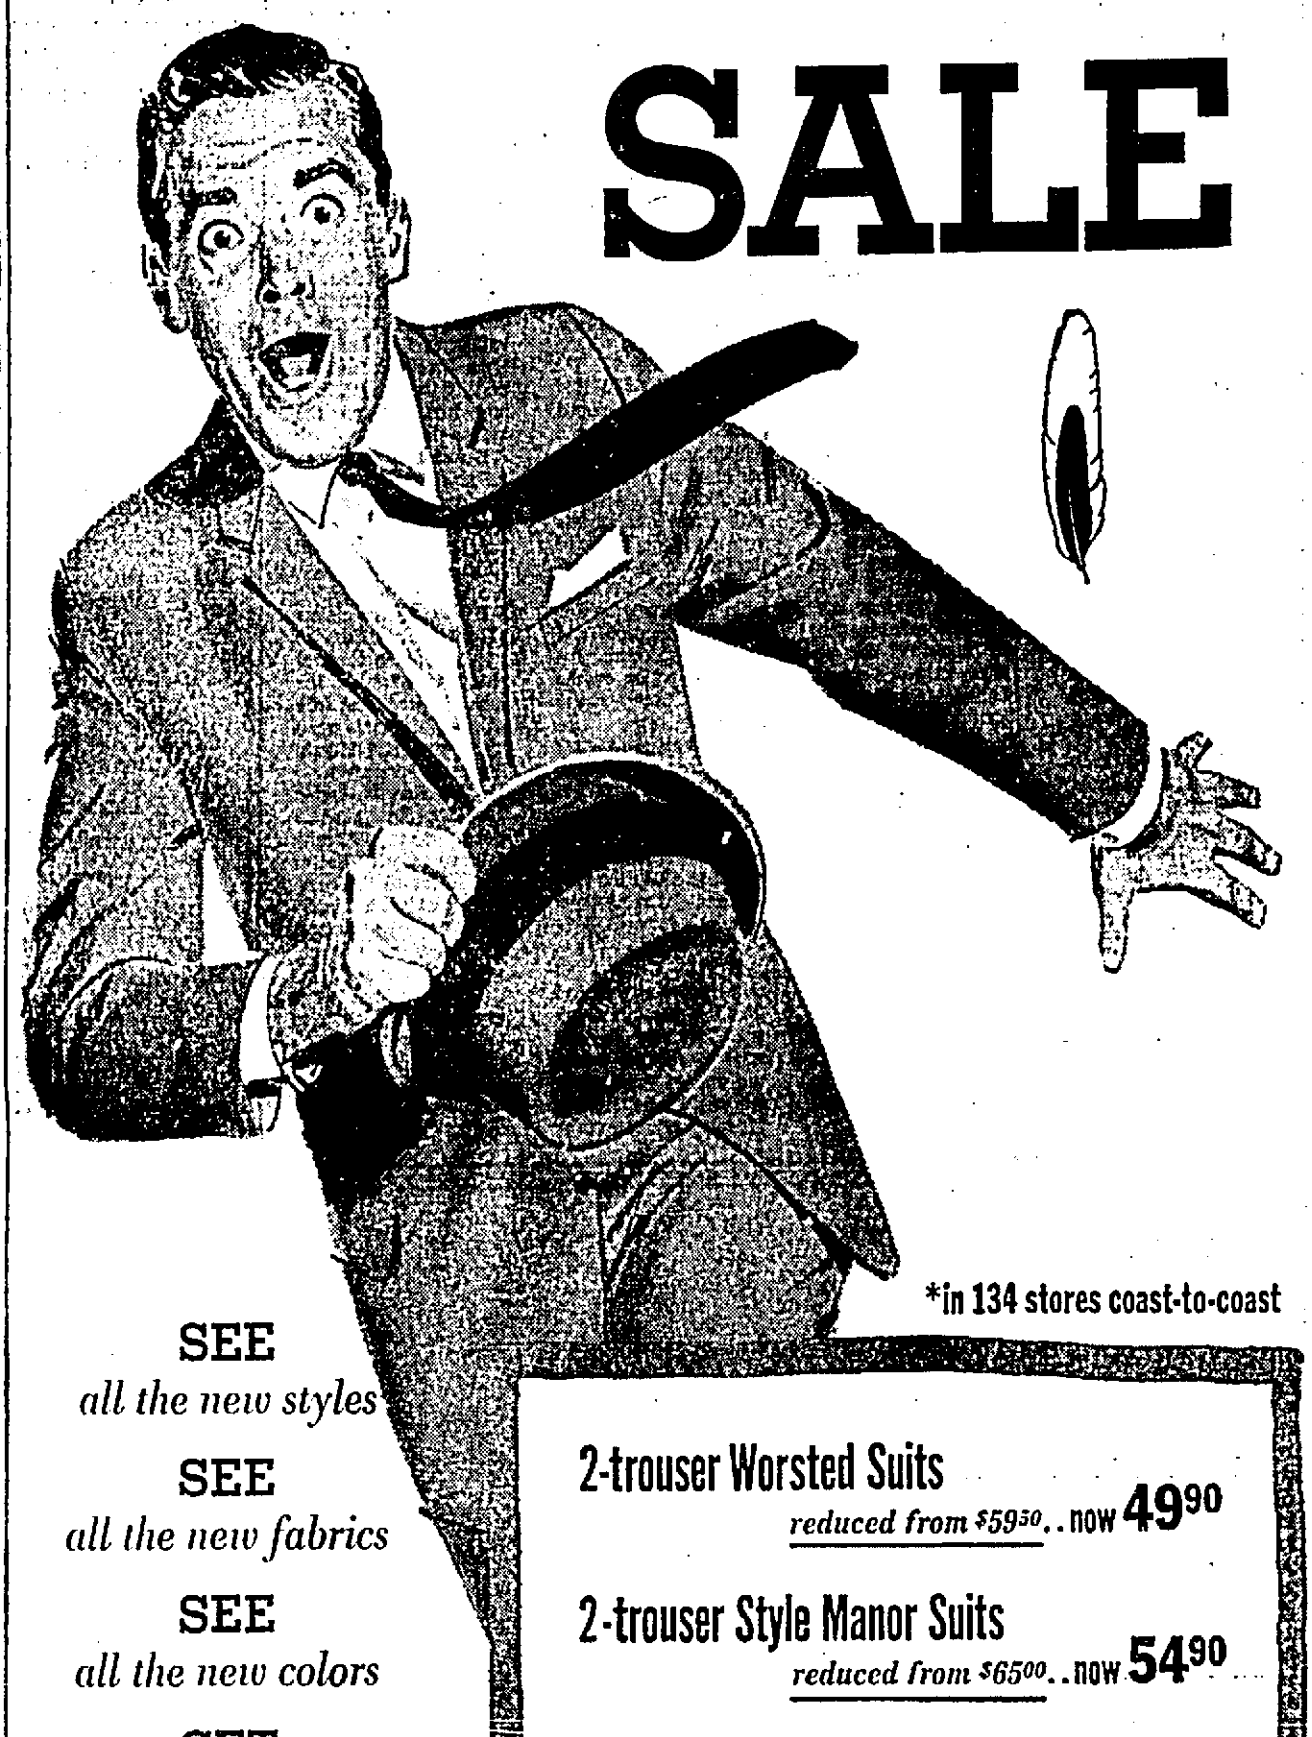

IN THE 1940s the only telescopic cranes used by sign companies were two-tube affairs that reached less than 50 feet into the air. They required a mass of outside cables, guys and trusses, and possessed little in the way of compactness and maneuverability.

The Garland patented crane was of radically new design. It was compact, easy to transport and could lift relatively heavy loads to greater heights than previously attainable. Signs got bigger and were put up higher as the new crane made maintenance easier and safer through use of baskets and remote controls.

Vertical reaches in excess of 100 feet are possible with the new cranes, and new uses are found for the machines.

TREE TRIMMERS, pre-fab home builders, industry and the military use the cranes. Garland customers include Douglas Aircraft, North American Aviation, Northrop Aircraft, General Dynamics—Convair and Astronautics, Hughes Aircraft, the Martin Co., Edwards Air Force Base (to set up material and service equipment). Pratt and Whitney Aircraft near Cape Canaveral, Fla., use two 60-foot Garland cranes of advanced design in and around tanks of liquid oxygen.

Once-Famed Wayside Colony Bows to Progress

By VERA WILLIAMS

An 80-unit TraveLodge is to go up on the quarter-block at the southeast corner of First Street and Atlantic Avenue.

It's progress, of course, but an oldtimer—anyone who lived here before World War II is an oldtimer—can't help but feel a nostalgic tug at the heartstrings.

Hang it, that's the location of the Wayside Colony, the dream of Jim Savery for an arts and crafts center for Southern California.

He built it with love and a good deal more money than he could afford back in the 1920s.

• • • •

JIM SAVERY, dramatist, musician, patron of the arts, believed two things strongly.

1. Useful things should be beautiful. And conversely, beautiful things should be useful.

2. Human beings are the happiest when they work creatively with their hands.

Jim took an old building and some vacant lots, and he built a place that attracted national and international attention.

• • • •

IN OLD WORLD atmosphere, he provided a series of shops and studios where artists and craftsmen could work in congenial surroundings, at prices they could afford to pay. They could sell their wares, and people who wanted to could come and buy the things already created, or order art objects fashioned to their individual liking.

This Log Cabin Used to House the Colony's Bookshop.

There were quaint restaurants where one ate Continental food at tables spread with red-checkered cloths, to the light of candles that dripped wax over bottles.

There was a "sky-roofed" theater, where the Players Guild, which became the Community Players, was born. The Art Association held its exhibitions and meetings, rent free, in an upper gallery.

• • • •

A LOG CABIN housed books, new and old. Yesterday's Room, lighted by ship's lanterns, was furnished with things that came around the Horn or were brought West in covered wagons. There were wheels, too, that dropped from wagons on the western trek.

On the Avenue of Shops were hearded woodcarvers who would have been at home on the Brittany coast or on Cape Cod, weavers working with soft colors in Colonial patterns, glass blowers, portrait painters.

There was a Children's Theater, child-size, where children were encouraged to put on their own plays and puppet shows. The walls were lined with children's books.

• • • •

ARTISTS and writers met in the courtyard to show their pictures and hash over plots for their stories and novels.

Visitors reveled in old furniture, pewter, early glass, rare amethyst jewelry in the antique shops.

In Jim Savery's time, Wayside Colony did all right. There was some question about whether it paid its way. But its fame spread. Musicians, artists, writers who came here went first to Wayside Colony.

• • • •

ROGER NOBLE BURNHAM, sculptor, summed it up well when he said "Wayside Colony reflects the friendliness of art."

But in 1931 Jim Savery died after a tragic, short illness.

After that, the atmosphere changed. Wayside Colony became commercial in spots, decrepit in spots. Only some of its old serene charm remained.

Now it is no more.

• • • •

ALL THE buildings, the shops, the studios have been vacated. Fireplaces have been dismantled, plumbing fixtures pulled out.

There isn't a person, a sound on the premises. When, in memory of Jim Savery and the artists and craftsmen he befriended, one treads up and down the rickety stairs or moves through the empty corridors, there isn't a sound except the echo of one's own footsteps.

One of the days, a bulldozer will move in and level the buildings and tear out the great old trees. It won't have much trouble with the buildings; they are about to fall down, anyway.

• • • •

CONSTRUCTION of the 80-unit motel, covering the quarter-block, will begin in November, says Harry Deardorff, San Diego structural engineer, and it will be finished by spring, in time for the tourist season.

A three-story concrete-block structure with a swimming pool is planned, announces Robert Lutes of San Diego, vice president of TraveLodge Corp.

Undoubtedly it will be a fine, handsome building to which the new Long Beach can point with pride.

But, goodby Jim Savery and Wayside Colony.

'Annie Get Your Gun' Wins High Plaudits

By RACHEL MORTON

It speaks well for the recently organized Community Music Theater of Long Beach that in spite of the Ringling Brothers circus packing them into the Arena right next door, Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium was near-capacity-full for "Annie Get Your Gun" Friday night.

And from the success of the opening night I am sure there will be capacity audiences for the rest of the performances, tonight and Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

James Brittain, director, Gerald Daniel, orchestra conductor, and Albert Ruiz, choreographer, have outdone themselves this time. "Annie Get Your Gun" was a professional performance from the tiniest tot, Diane Runolfson, who "wouldn't go away," to the handsome hero, Byron Palmer, as Frank Butler. Betty Tesman melted into the role of Annie, and won all hearts, including Frank's.

THEIR SCENES together were delectable and convincing. Palmer's rich baritone voice made much of the lovely song, "They Say It's Wonderful," and "The Girl That I Marry." While the "Moonshine Lullaby," as sung by Miss Tesman to the children, and "Sun in the Morning," were really moving. These two fine artists seemed made for one another.

James Jay was an imposing Buffalo Bill in stunning leather costumes and with a remarkable makeup. The gentility of his character impersonation was in sharp contrast to the circus people around him.

Very fine was the portrayal of Chief Sitting Bull as played by Paul Teschke, and he looked every inch an Indian chief.

ONE HAS COME to expect good things of Joan Strickland, and she did not disappoint as the meddlesome Dolly Tate. Joan is a character actress par excellence.

The roles of Tommy Keeler and Winnie Tate were cleverly sung and danced by two charming, talented young artists, Ron McGlynn and Karen Bateman. George Berkeley as Charlie Davenport supplied plenty of good comedy. The typical small-town innkeeper, Mac, was in the capable hands of Hal McCune.

Too much praise cannot be given the wonderful performance by the little children. They were artists in embryo.

A TRIO of men's voices, with Clay Patterson, Dan Brown and Robert Vaught, was most effective, as was the singing of a male ensemble with Franklin Butler "My Defenses Are Down."

Prop. 9 Called Aid to Accounting

By JIM McCAULEY
I. P-T Sacramento Bureau
(Thirteenth of a series)

SACRAMENTO — Proponents of Proposition No. 9 say it would help streamline the state's bond fund accounting.

It authorizes the legislature to create a general obligation bond proceeds fund. Into it would go money from the sale of general obligation bonds authorized by any or all existing or future bond acts.

Assemblymen Jesse M. Unruh, Charles J. Conrad and Milton Marks filed arguments in favor of the proposition, saying:

"A yes vote will help bring businesslike accounting procedures . . . while at the same time assuring the continuance of present safeguards on bond issues."

No negative arguments were filed officially.

However, some critics say little is accomplished by the change. And some criticism has been leveled at legislators for cluttering up the long ballot with trivial changes.

Grass Fire Starts Near Fontana

FONTANA (AP) — A wind-whipped grass fire broke out Saturday in the Jurupa Hills south of Fontana and within a few hours it had blackened 110 acres.

Because of unusually high winds—part of a storm front moving in from the north—the California Division of Forestry was forced to cancel borate bomber activity after a few forays.

'WHITE HAT' HONOREE

Roosevelt Johnson, SF 1/C and crew member on the USS Defiance, was one of more than 100 Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard enlisted men honored Saturday night by Long Beach Independent Business Men's Association at its annual "White Hats of the Year" awards dinner. With the seaman, a previous winner, is Paul R. Rioth, LBIBA president (l), and Mayor Edwin Wade.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Kennedy Holds to Brazil Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Officials said Saturday that President Kennedy has decided to go ahead with his scheduled mid-November visit to Brazil, despite increasing concern here over Berlin and Cuban developments.

They said a White House advance party would leave Monday for Rio de Janeiro and Brasilia to prepare for the three-day visit beginning Nov. 12. Kennedy will confer with President Joao Goulart and other Brazilian leaders.

Campaign Plan Change

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—President Kennedy will begin his two-day campaign tour of Southern California on Thursday, Oct. 25, instead of Friday as previously planned. The change in plans was announced today by Eugene L. Wyman, Democratic State Central Committee chairman.

Ranier Defies France

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI) — Prince Ranier III hurled defiance at President Charles de Gaulle in a Monaco-wide radio speech Saturday night. He said tiny Monaco would not bow to France in their squabble over taxes.

RAINIER

The prince spoke over Radio Monte Carlo to his 30,000 or so subjects and explained the tax crisis that has gripped this 368-acre country on the blue Mediterranean. His wife, Princess Grace, and their two children were in Paris but preparing to fly to his side.

"What menace can we constitute to the economy of the great friendly nation, France?" he asked. "What we want is to live in peace with France."

Even as Ranier spoke, French "troops"—all three of them—were massed at the frontier. The three, members of a French security troop, lounged lazily at the border.

Pope Greets Non-Catholics

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Shunning his elevated throne, Pope John XXIII mixed warmly with Protestant and Orthodox church leaders Saturday night and promised them his utmost efforts to hasten the hour of Christian unity.

"If you could read my heart, you would perhaps understand more than words could say," Pope John told 39 non-Catholic observers to the Vatican Ecumenical Council who gathered in the Vatican Palace Hall of Consistories for the special hour-long audience.

Never before had a pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church met with such a wide representation of other Christians. The confrontation was of an intimate nature unprecedented in the 400 years since the Protestant Reformation.

Underworld Figure Dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Rodger K. Leonard, onetime associate of ex-gambler Mickey Cohen and a figure in the slaying of Jack (the Enforcer) Whalen, died Friday night at UCLA medical center.

Leonard, 45, underwent surgery for a brain tumor Friday.

Leonard was convicted by a jury Sept. 27 on three counts of perjury in connection with the shooting of Whalen in December, 1959. He faced sentence in federal court C[illegible]

Kennedy Fights Hard for More Democrats

was chairman of the Republicans National Committee," Kennedy said. "But I ask you, if you were a candidate for office in 1962, would you put the word 'Republican' in your signs?"

That touched off a mild uproar. And Kennedy got another loud cheer earlier from some 15,000 people at an airport rally in Indianapolis when he hammered back at Capehart's campaign charges on Cuba.

The President had kind words for only one Republican—and this added up to a unique and forceful plug for Kentucky's other Republican senator, John Sherman Cooper. Kennedy called Cooper, a close friend of his, a "great senator."

• • • •

BUT HE SAID Morton, through blind and negative "opposition" to the New Frontier, had cancelled out the votes Cooper frequently cast for Democratic proposals.

Kennedy was in Kentucky to boost the Demoratic candidacies of Lt. Gov. Wilson W. Wyatt, running against Morton for the Senate, and Rep. Frank W. Burke, who is running for re-election to Congress from this district.

Today, Kennedy will fly to Buffalo, N.Y., to take part in Pulaski Day ceremonies and, incidentally, try again to rub some of his prestige among Polish-American and other voters onto Democratic candidates in New York, including Robert M. Morgenthau, who is trying to unseat GOP Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

THE PRESIDENT began his weekend of campaigning in New York City Friday, traveling then to Newark, N.J., and western Pennsylvania before heading on to Indianapolis and Louisville Saturday.

Hosmer Backer Retorts to Johovich

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Congressman Craig Hosmer's citizens' committee chairman, C. L. Fowler, Saturday charged Hosmer's Democratic opponent, Joseph J. Johovich, with making false charges and challenged him to "end his campaign of deception and innuendoes."

Fowler, noting Hosmer seeks his sixth term representing the Long Beach district (32nd), took exception to Johovich's statement that Hosmer "is serving a selfish minority in the district."

FOWLER

"Who does this candidate include in this so-called 'selfish minority'?" Fowler asked. "Is it the hundreds of persons here in all walks of life; wiodws, veterans, servicemen and wives, businessmen and the many others that Congressman Hosmer has assisted in every way possible with their problems and projects?

"Could it be the naval shipyard employes whose jobs Hosmer helped assure by his part in the fight against subsidence; or the west side homes the congressman helped to save from storm damage through flood control projects; or the area's servicemen and dependents who will benefit by the new Navy hospital for which Hosmer has devoted unceasing efforts and leadership to make it a certainty?

"Perhaps this reckless, inexperienced novice and challenger means by 'selfish minority' every man, woman and child in Southern California whose rights to life-giving Colorado River water our experienced congressman has consistently protected," Fowler said.

On Johovich's "vague charge" that Hosmer had engendered the hostility of other Southland congressmen, Fowler said the charge is "both untrue and a low blow in campaigning."

"Does this uninformed aspirant for this important office refer to Rep. Clyde Doyle, who works with Hosmer on local military and other matters? Or Rep. Cecil King, who joined with Hosmer to support legislation for our naval shipyard and our new Navy hospital? Or is he referring to Rep. Chet Holifield, with whom Congressman Hosmer has led successful efforts for laws to advance atoms-for-peace?"

Governor Brown Here Thursday

Gov. Brown will join pension leader George McLain at a county-wide rally of senior citizens at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in Morgan Hall, 835 Locust Ave., it was announced by Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick.

Johovich at LBCC Forum

Joseph J. Johovich, Democratic nominee for Congress, 32nd District, will address the Long Beach City College Student Forum at 11 a.m. Wednesday on "Campaign Issues of 1962" in the college auditorium on the Liberal Arts campus, 4901 E. Carson St.

Speaking on the same topic Oct. 31 will be the Republican nominee, incumbent Congressman Craig Hosmer. In charge of both programs will be Student Forum President Gerald Anderson and moderator Joe Hodge.

GOP Colleague Endorses Kennick

Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick, Democrat, West Long Beach-Lakewood 44th District, who will be honored at a "Lakewood and Dominguez Salutes" dinner Monday in Lakewood Country Club, announced Saturday that he has received an expression of support from a Republican colleague, Assemblyman James L. Holmes, R-Santa Barbara, along with congratulations to Kennick on "the tremendous job you have done as chairman of the Committee on Manufacturing, Oil and Mining Industry."

Maid of Cotton Judge Selected

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—A California fashion expert was named Saturday as chairman of the judging panel which will select the 1963 Maid of Cotton here Dec. 27-28.

Miss Marjorie Carne, fashion director of California Fashion Creators, will serve with six members of the cotton industry and related organizations, according to the national cotton council. The other judges have not been named.

Dairy Valley Auto Crash Hurts Seven

Seven persons, including five from one family, were injured in a two-car crash Saturday in Dairy Valley, according to Lakewood sheriff's deputies.

Most seriously injured is Maria Martinez, 35, of 16919 Pioneer Blvd., who was treated at Pioneer General Hospital for deep face cuts, a wrist sprain and leg and body bruises. Doctors feared she may also lose her unborn child.

Her husband, Salvadore Martinez Marino, 36, who was driving their vehicle, and their three children, Louis, 13, George, 10, and Salvadore Jr., 8, were treated for head and body cuts and bruises.

Shirley Anne Johnson, 17, of 10342 Victoria St., Whittier, the driver of the other car, and her mother, Anna Johnson, 60, were thrown from their vehicle in the accident at Valley View Boulevard and Artesia Street shortly before 6 p.m. Except for deep cuts and abrasions neither suffered any serious injuries, deputies said. They were treated by their own doctor.

BEAUTY QUEEN CONTESTS . . . They hold them for everything, best crawler to best looking ankles.

HER MAJESTY, THE BEAUTY QUEEN

There's a Crown for All Shapes and Sizes

By Patricia McCormack

NEW YORK, N.Y. (UPI) —Most every little American girl dreams of wearing a crown someday.

Thanks to the beauty-go-round—contests involving expenses or more than $1 million a year—hopefuls so disposed can try for one of an estimated 5,000 crowns when they reach young ladyhood.

At the top, there's the Miss America contest — and the estimated $65,000 in earnings and prizes earned in the year following coronation.

The Miss America pageant headquarters in Atlantic City spends $350,000 a year.

At the other extreme, there's the Miss Smiling Ankles contest. The National Shoe Institute gives the winner the title plus a chance to earn up to about $1,000 in $50 an hour photographic assignments during her reign. The pictures are keyed to shoe promotions.

• • • •

IN BETWEEN are the college queen contests paying off in whistles and psychic income; the Miss Sweet Potato competition, paying off in some fame. Ditto the Miss Lumber contest — and the hundreds of miss you-name-the product contest.

Most every product, it seems, must have a queen once it gets to the big time — or at least a queen to promote it.

In the stampede to cash in on the little girl's dream, the promoters have been outdone only by the French — who are ahead by a nose, you might say.

The French have a Garlic Queen. She wins her weight in garlic.

• • • •

WHAT THE contests make, however, is some confusion in the minds of plain folks who can't tell one queen from another without a scorecard once you get past the big ones —Miss America, Miss Universe, Miss Rheingold.

The latter seems the most democratic. The brewery's queen is selected by popular election—and the turnout is second only to the national presidential elections.

Last year more than 20 million votes were cast in the Miss Rheingold election. The young lady with this title makes appearances in Puerto Rico and Europe, in addition to going about the United States.

In Europe, she is acclaimed as an outstanding example of American charm and femininity. The brewery's queen wins a contract worth $50,000.

• • • •

MISS UNIVERSE last year earned about $30,000, including a gift of a $3,500 mink coat.

After the big three, the confusion starts — there's a Miss Teenage America contest, a Miss American Teenager, a Miss International Beauty Congress (set up in Long Beach, Calif., when the Miss Universe contest moved to Miami).

• • • •

Also: the America's Junior Miss Pageant in Mobile, Ala.; the Mrs. America Contest; the Miss Young America (limited to girls four to eight years of age); the Grandma America — and so it goes?

• • • •

THOSE WANTING to get an early start on contesting can enter the Diaper Derby sponsored by a New Jersey Amusement Park. The judges score only on crawling.

The America's Junior Miss Pageant, typical of the contests far from the big-time budgets of the Miss America and Miss Universe, gives a top prize of $6,000, plus a wardrobe.

The winner travels until the beginning of her fall semester, promoting products for the most part.

• • • •

THE MOBILE contest, like many, has the backing and blessing of the Mobile Junior Chamber of Commerce, the City of Mobile, the County of Mobile and the State of Alabama. As much as selecting a queen, the contest activity helps to put Alabama on the map — and draws tourists.

Nationally, sponsors of the Junior Miss Pageant include a soft drink company, a film and camera company and a manufacturer of clothes for those with junior miss figures.

Many of the contests, taking more than a page from the Miss America pageant book, handle contestants with great care.

Ben Bella, Dr. King Talk Race Problems

NEW YORK (UPI) — Algerian Premier Ahmed ben Bella conferred for an hour Saturday with Negro integration leader Dr. Martin Luther King on the effect the U.S. racial problem has on emerging African nations.

An aide to the leftist Algerian strongman said during the meeting Ben Bella invited King to visit Algeria. King accepted, the aide said, and will go there "as soon as possible."

"It was a very friendly, constructive meeting," the aide said. "They talked mostly about the relation between the American racial problem and colonialism. They also discussed whether violence or non-violence was the best way to win.

"We think," the aide added, "that Dr. King's policy of non-violence is a good solution in the United States. We agree with him."

The meeting between King and Ben Bella raised eyebrows in some diplomatic quarters here. Fears were expressed that it might be seen as an intrusion into U.S. internal affairs.

The King-Ben Bella meeting came as the Algerian leader ended a round of meetings here before leaving today for Washington where he will be greeted by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and a party of high government officials.

Ben Bella has said that after his meetings in Washington he planned to visit with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in Havana.

Vodka Route Not So Rocky, But Blurry

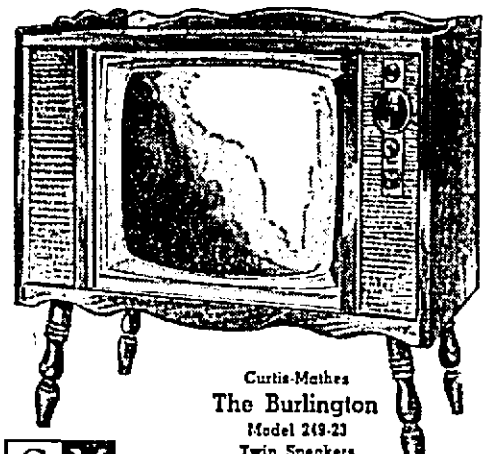

MOSCOW (AP) —The official labor newspaper Trud Saturday expressed suspicion that the road the vodka trucks travel isn't as rocky as the drivers claim.

It said drivers can report two bottles broken on every trip and this they do-even though none is broken. Citing the case of a vodka factory in Sterlitamak which has four drivers, the newspaper said: "It appears they steal more than 700 bottles a month."

Yank Officers in German-Held Rome

Editor's Note: This is another in the series of articles recalling people and places, campaign victories and catastrophes in World War II. Other articles will appear at intervals of approximately two weeks.

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

In peacetime, Palmero is a warm-water port on the north side of Sicily where the moon beams softly across the blue Tyrrhenian Sea. And Sicily was at peace, at last, on the night of Sept. 6, 1943.

The noise of the motors in a British P-T boat disturbed her quiet harbor.

At dockside two coated figures waited patiently. Midnight passed, and the waiting men chatted idly. An officer from the boat reported to them, they talked with him a while.

Then, at 2 a.m., a messenger came to the docks. The two men boarded the P-T boat and, running at an easy harbor speed, it pulled away and headed to sea.

• • • •

BRIG. GEN. Maxwell Taylor and Col. William Tudor Gardiner were setting out on one of the strangest missions of World War II. They were heading for Rome, the capitol of German-held Italy.

The war around Europe had reached a turning point. The fall of Africa and Sicily had disheartened the Italians. Within 24 hours they would surrender.

But surrender held no hope of removing the Germans from the Italian peninsula—more than 20 of Hitler's toughest divisions were entrenched on that mountainous land.

The Americans' task—to springboard Allied armies into Italy at strategic points, and to gain the foreful cooperation of the surrendered Italians.

• • • •

OUT OF THE harbor the seas were rough. The P-T boat cruised off Sicily until dawn, finally sighting an Italian corvette at 6:45 a.m.

Aboard this once-enemy ship Gen. Taylor and Col. Gardiner met an admiral who graciously invited them to lunch as his ship turned back for Italy. But he knew nothing of the mission (or at least said nothing about it.)

The corvette made the port of Gaeta, about 75 miles south of Rome, at 5:30 p.m. The two Americans were taken ashore in a closed boat. From the dock they walked boldly to an Italian navy staff car and driven through town.

• • • •

ON ALL sides they saw German soldiers, some of whom gave them curious glances. But nobody moved to intercept the Americans, who were scarcely disguised. The colonel, for example, was wearing a British officer's cape.

At the outskirts of the port, the Americans were transferred to an Italian ambulance, and started the journey to Rome. Frequently they were halted by German roadblocks and the accompanying Italian admiral finally advised them to "look sorry, like you are prisoners of war."

Looking as disconsolate as two prospective conquerors can, the two Americans peered continually through the slot windows of the ambulance. About all they saw was a great number of Germans.

The Germans weren't interested.

• • • •

AT 8:30 A.M. the ambulance arrived in the heart of Rome, at the Palazzo Caprara, where they were met by Italian officers who outdid themselves in their tirades against fascism.

Not until 10:15 did the patient Americans wade through these campaigns of self-salesmanship and get to the heart of their problem. Then they were closeted with Gen. Carboni, chief of the army corps assigned to the defense of Rome.

• • • •

GEN. CARBONI, well aware of the surrender of his nation, was a fountain of information. He sketched out the German positions, their numbers and their arms. If the Americans were surprised or alarmed, they didn't show it.

The Americans learned, however, that a frontal attack on Rome might precipitate a disaster.

The Eternal City was ringed by 48,000 well-equipped German troops. Prior to the surrender, the Germans had cut off all the Italians' gasoline supplies, reduced their ammunition to 20 rounds per firing piece.

Carboni reported the Italian armored forces didn't have gas enough to move 30 miles. The infantry couldn't last half an hour in battle.

• • • •

THE INFORMATION came as a blow to the Americans. During surrender negotiations they had been assured that the Italian army, once invasion began, would fight by the side of the Allies against the Germans.

On the planning boards in Sicily were designs for transporting an American army, by land, air and sea, to Rome to units with the Italians. An invasion move at Salerno, south of Rome, was already under way.

The Allies had thought these moves might quickly break German resistance.

• • • •

GEN. TAYLOR now faced a delicate problem. For its solution he insisted on seeing Marshall Pietro Badoglio, who had recently ousted Mussolini as factual head of the state.

At midnight Gen. Taylor and Col. Gardiner were ushered into Badoglio's mansion—and then kept waiting while Carboni and other generals huddled with their chief.

Reluctantly, the Americans were faced with the hard fact that the surrendering Italians were not living up to their promises, for whatever reason. Reluctantly, they coded a message to Gen. Eisenhower, suggesting that the front assault on Rome be cancelled.

• • • •

THE ITALIANS, Gen. Taylor reported, could not even guarantee to hold the airports of Rome for the necessary time to land American and Allied troops.

Gen. Taylor's attitude caused some consternation on the Italian staff, which went back to its maps and books. By noon of the next day the Italians were prepared to "guarantee" an invasion of Corsica.

To the Americans, the capture of Napoleon's birthplace seemed something less than strategic. They rejected the Italian offer. Back in Sicily, the Allied forces were already aboard for the bloody battle of Salerno.

• • • •

THE GENERAL and the colonel now returned to their ambulance. Their trip from the coast to Rome had been so successful that they decided to go bodly from Rome.

This time they ordered the ambulance to an airfield, and the Italians placed a Savoia-Marchetti tri-motored transport and its crew at their disposal.

Coolly, the Italian pilot talked to his control tower. Calmly he filed a false flight plan.

As the plane taxied down the runway, it went past the noses of hundreds of German warplanes, all unaware of the prize before them.

• • • •

THE TRIP TO Sicily was uneventful. While it was under way, the bloody Battle of Italy had begun at Salerno.

The strange mission of the general and the colonel, hopefully planned to shorten the war, failed of its original purpose. But it did succeed in two other points.

It brought to the Allies a first-hand report on German men and equipment on the Italian peninsula (a discouraging report, later borne out by the facts of battle).

More than that, it averted what might have been a bloody fisaco, and the slaughter of thousands of Allied troops in a frontal assault on Rome. Later Rome fell without resistance, after being accepted by the retreating Germans as an "open city."

Grads Honor Williams

John T. Williams, city manager of Seal Beach, was honored Saturday as Long Beach State College "Alumnus-of-the-Year."

The award was made by Robert Hoting, Alumni Association president, in ceremonies which were part of the Long Beach State Homecoming program.

Hoting said that Williams, a 1959 graduate, was chosen for his record in civic affairs since graduation.

• • • •

THE MUNICIPAL official was the second to receive the college's highest alumni honor. James Boren, now with the U.S. Economic Mission in Bolivia, was the first recipient.

Alumni merit awards for achievement were presented Don Gould, past president of the alumni association and head of the math and science department at Downey High School; Francis J. Flynn, dean of development at the college who has aided the association for many years; and Miss Francis Schaafsma, a 1956 graduate who returned to the college as a member of the physical education staff.

AT 40 YEARS OF AGE

Boy Achieves Ambition, Becomes Clown in Circus

By BUD WORSHAM

A 40-year-old Long Beach man who has yearned for the life of a circus performer since he was a youngster saw his dream come true this weekend.

Paul Alford of 412 E. 16th St. made his circus debut Saturday with the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus at Long Beach Arena.

For Alford, a bachelor, this chance to perform with "the greatest show on earth" was as satisfying as an astronaut reaching the moon.

• • • •

"UNK," AS he is known to some 40 nieces and nephews, is no newcomer to the entertainment field. As a Shriner he has made hundreds of youngsters laugh in his visits to crippled childrens' hospitals.

Seeing how his clowning gave these kids some happy moments, Paul decided to make it a career.

A finish carpenter by trade, he sought the same perfection as a clown. He spent hours studying the history of the circus and the techniques used by the Big Top's famous masters of mirth.

• • • •

BORN IN Liverpool, Ohio, Alford's father brought him and his five sisters and four brothers to the Signal Hill oilfields in 1927. He remembers how going to the circus was the highlight of family fun. The thrill never left him.

After graduating from Poly High School and serving three years in the Marine Corps, Paul still was fascinated by the circus. But his deep-seated yearning was tempered by the necessity of learning a trade.

Ever so often the urge to perform would lead him backstage, where he made props for the L.B. Civic Light Opera.

PAUL ALFORD . . . Not a Newcomer

ONE NIGHT he was hurriedly swept into a chorus of swordsmen during the staging of "The Mikado." The feel of greasepaint on his face, and the excitement of the audience, convinced him that his place was on a stage.

Through the encouragement of two of his closest friends, Dick Christiansen and the late Sam Leddel, Alford has applied himself steadfastly to the art of becoming a clown.

There's no mistaking his identity as a clown when he's decked out: red, checked trousers and coat with tails, an exaggerated wing collar, a twirly tie that rotates at will, flowers that pop out of his tiny top hat and 17-inch shoes.

Alford has perfected a quirky, smiling mouth that never becomes sad, and he has designed a number of eye-catching costumes and routines. And he has taken voice lessons.

India Says China Violates Border

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Indian sources charged Saturday that Chinese Communist planes, operating from newly-built Tibetan airstrips guarded by Korean war veterans, have been repeatedly violating Indian airspace in the disputed northeast frontier territory.

(A Communist New China news agency dispatch charged that Indian paratroopers have been dropped in the Changdo district in preparation for large-scale attacks on Red frontier posts. A broadcast, monitored in Tokyo, said "aggressive Indian troops" have intruded into the entire Kechilang River Valley north of the so-called McMahon Boundary Line, which the Reds do not recognize.)

• • • •

INDIA formerly rejected as "completely groundless and deliberately mischievous" a Chinese Communist charge that Indian aircraft flew over the Tibetan capital of Lhasa.

Reliable sources here said Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru had been informed that Chinese Red aircraft flew over Indian-claimed territory at least 20 times in the past two weeks. The sources said the Indian air force had been instructed not to shoot down the offending planes but that these orders were likely to be rescinded if the alleged intrusions continued.

• • • •

THE RED PLANES, these sources said, were taking off from two new airstrips built only 40 miles north of the McMahon line which India claims as the border with Red China. The new airfields are able to handle jet fighters and big transport planes, according to Indian sources.

The source said that Chinese Communists troops who were veterans of the Korean fighting had been stationed along the Tibetan border and were guarding the new airstrips.

Indian frontier commanders, meanwhile, were reported to have told Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon that Wednesday's sharp battle with Chinese Communist troops in the Dhola area opposite Tibet had been a "hands-down" victory for India.

Reliable sources said Krishna Menon was given a description of the battle, in which the Indians claim to have inflicted 100 casualties in Red troops, during an army staff conference Friday.

British Help to Develop U.S. Skybolt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The British have agreed to pay more than $20 million toward development of the U.S. Skybolt missile and to conduct their own full-scale test program on American soil, it was learned Saturday.

The 40-foot, two-stage Skybolt, an intercontinental missile in every respect that will travel the first leg of its journey by plane, is to be "married" to the U.S. B52 and British Vulcan bombers.

• • • •

SEVERAL of the white, delta-winged Vulcans will be flown next February to Elgin Air Force Base near Valparaiso, Fla., for launching experiments that may continue for nearly two years on the Cape Canaveral range.

At Eglin, the British already have begun setting up a testing colony that will include 300 pilots and mechanics and about 700 dependents. A planeload of 80 British wives and children is scheduled to arrive there Tuesday.

The British-U.S. agreement for joint development of the Skybolt calls for the United Kingdom to pay only that part of the cost which would be unnecessary for American purposes.

Negro Opera Star to Sing in Miss.

NEW YORK (AP) — Leontyne Price, Negro soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, said Saturday she will give a benefit concert next January before a non-segreated audience in her home town of Laurel, Miss.

Laurel is about 185 miles south of Oxford, Miss., where rioting recently occured over the admission of a Negro student to the University of Mississippi.

The concert is scheduled for Jan. 27 in the auditorium of a Negro high school in Laurel. It will benefit St. Paul's Methodist Church, the Negro church where she sang in the choir and played piano in Sunday School.

The event will take place on the second anniversary of Miss Price's debut at the Metropolitan Opera in "Il Trovatore." Last October, she became the first Negro star to open a season at the Met, singing the title role in "Girl of the Golden West."

During opening week of the Met, which begins Monday, she will sing two performances of Aida.

WIND BLOWS TREE DOWN, UP AGAIN

MILL VALLEY (AP) — A strong gust of wind blew a 25-foot pussy willow tree across a driveway on Evergreen Avenue.

A housewife got busy in the rain and cut off many branches so she could get her car out of the garage to meet her husband.

An hour later another strong gust blew the tree upright again.

West German Market Falls to New Low

By WALTER T. RIDDER
L. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Disconcerting economic news came out of Western Europe this past week when stocks on the West German stock exchange tumbled to new post-war lows. Heavy selling on Wednesday and Thursday cut over-all stock prices to less than one-half of their 1960 record highs.

Germany's blue chip stocks, in which some American mutual funds had substantial interests, slumped badly. These included Daimler-Benz, Volkswagen, some key chemical companies, and steel. Many individual stocks have dropped even more than the over-all 50 per cent figure.

The news that the German decline was not greeted happily by international financiers here. The German market has been declining steadily throughout this year, but last week's virtual collapse brought worried frowns to Western world economists.

• • • •

SEVERAL reasons were given for the German Market's plunge. The increasingly tense Berlin situation was given as one factor, although it was pointed out that the German market had not dived so damatically during previous Berlin tensions. Some economists thought German stocks had been over-valued in relation to dividends and potentialities, much as were American stocks before the sharp dive of late spring.

The most serious question the market's fall posed was this—is the unprecedented European post-war economic boom coming to an end? Impetus was given to the thought that perhaps it is by German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's some - what gloomy economic report to his parliament during the week. European stock exchanges in general have been on a downward trend recently and the German stock plunge has raised fears that the skid may become accelerated.

With the United States economy moving ahead only sluggishly, the almost fantastic business booms of Western Europe, notably in West Germany, Italy and France, were considered the bulwarks of the Western Alliance's economic posture.

• • • •

FOR the past few months there have been signs that the European economy was levelling off, just as did the U.S. economy following its post-war burst. In Germany, for instance, the post-war industrial empire of Willy Schlieker, "Wunderkind" of German industry, blew up during the summer and one of its essential parts, the German ship-building industry, is hanging on the economic ropes. The German market's slump has caused apprehension that confidence in the ability of Germany to maintain her post-war pace has vanished.

The continuing drop of European stocks comes at a time when a controversy is swirling both in and out of Great Britain about her entry into the Common Market. Prime Minister MacMillan's government is pressing hard for entry. It is being bitterly opposed by many British interests, as well as a number of people on the continent. As long as the European economy held up and was booming, the thought of entering the Common Market, singled out as one of the more important factors in Europe's prosperity, was enticing. Should Europe's business slow down or undergo reverses, the prospect of entering the Common Market may well become considerably less attractive.

Which is why for the moment the eyes of diplomats as well as international financiers will be watching nervously this coming week the performances of all the European stock exchanges.

Court Wades Deeper Into Prayer Issue

By LARRY OSIUS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, which won some plaudits and more criticism by striking down a New York State School prayer, is wading deeper into the emotional waters of church-state relations.

The court agreed this week to hear appeals on two more prayer cases, having many of the same elements, which resulted in opposing decisions in lower courts.

In Pennsylvania a three-judge federal court held unconstitutional a state law requiring the daily reading of 10 verses of the Bible. Officials of the state and of Abington Township appealed the decision, originally sought by Edward L. Schempp, a Unitarian living in a Philadelphia suburb.

• • • •

IN MARYLAND the state supreme court upheld a Baltimore School Board regulation requiring that school be opened each day with the reading of one chapter from the Bible or a recital of the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Madelyn E. Murray appealed. She said the school board ruling was offensive to her and her 11th grade son William J. Murray. Both say they are atheists.

In both states children may be excused from participating.

The Supreme Court moved into the prayer situation in a 6-1 decision last June which brought sharp reaction on both sides of the question.

The court held that a prayer prescribed by New York State officials for use in public schools violated the Constitution.

• • • •

MANY CRITICS contended the court was banning all prayers in school and public functions. So sharp was the outcry that recently Justice Tom C. Clark departed from the custom of not commenting on a decision to express surprise at the criticism.

All the court had decided, Clark said, was that government can not take part in establishing religion under the Constitution.

Rulings on the two cases accepted by the court this week could help clarify the situation. But the problem of church-state relationships has been furrowing justices' brows for decades and any ruling on these cases won't be the final answer.

Warranties Extended on 1963 Autos

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT (AP) — If you bought a 1960 model domestic car, you paid your money, got a pat on the back from the dealer and some obscure fine print from the manufacturer assuring you the car would last at least 90 days provided you didn't drive more than 4,000 miles in that time.

If you bought a 1961 or 1962 model, this warranty from the manufacturer was set in a little larger type and it said the car would be free from defects for 12 months or 12,000 miles.

And if you buy a 1963 model you will find the manufacturers almost overpowering you with claims of quality. In nice black type four of the five companies tell you their cars will prove defect-free for 24 months, or 24,000 miles. The fifth company says the power train of its cars — engine through rear axle — will last five years, or 50,000 miles, without trouble if given reasonable care.

* * * *

DOES THIS mean cars suddenly are six to eight times better than they were in 1960? No, and nobody makes such a claim.

Then is the warranty just another sales gimmick?

Absolutely not, insist the manufacturers, who say the cars are better.

General Motors was the first to apply the 24-month warranty to its entire line of cars. Ford, which went to 24 months for its Lincoln Continental two years ago, quickly followed the GM move. So did American Motors and Studebaker.

Chrysler has chosen the long-term plan on the power train, sticking with the 12-month policy on the rest of the car.

* * * *

CHRYSLER announced an outline of its new plan in August, saying it believed other companies might try to beat it to the punch. Other companies said they were considering it, but nobody followed.

General Motors held off until the week the first of its 1963 models went on sale. It had informal arrangements with dealers covering such items as transmissions and air conditioning units for up to 24 months even though the published warranty was only to consumers.

Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp. sliced prices of stainless sheet and plate an average of about two per cent. Revere Copper & Brass, Inc., announced it will increase prices it charges distributors for copper water tube and copper drainage and vent tubing.

The Justice Department filed a civil antitrust suit against three big oil companies, Cities Service, Sinclair and Richfield, and asked a U.S. district court in Los Angeles to order them to quit allocation of markets. The companies denied the accusations.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Auto Industry Brightest Spot in Economy of U.S.

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The automobile industry was the brightest spot in the economy this week.

Most other segments of business rocked along at a good but far from startling pace.

The stock market wallowed in the slowest trading in many months. The Jewish religious holiday, the Columbus Day semi-holiday and the World Series distracted interest.

Results in the automobile industry are being eyed as the key to general business conditions in the fourth quarter. If sales of new models are high it is anticipated that the spending will bulge over into other retail areas.

So far, car makers report an enthusiastic public response to the newly introduced 1963s.

* * * *

THEY STEPPED up production this week to an estimated 156,000 passenger cars, the second highest weekly output of this year. All major companies worked overtime, and Chrysler recalled 600 idle workers to its Jefferson plant in Detroit.

Maintenance of the current production rate would make October the top month of the year with 705,000 cars.

Plans call for building 1.7 million to 1.8 million cars in the balance of this year, making a 1962 total of 6.8 million.

The University of Michigan Survey Research Center said a poll of consumers indicated that prospects for automobile sales this quarter are good.

* * * *

THE STEEL industry was depending on the high automobile production to bite into inventories of steel and bring new orders.

Steel orders have been climbing the last two or three weeks but so far there has been no big gain from the car makers. Steel industry leaders predicted a modest increase in production next month. Output last week dipped 1.1 per cent from the previous week to 1,746,000 tons.

In the first 40 weeks of this year output totaled 76,528,000 tons, up 5.5 per cent from the 72,551,000 tons in the like period of last year.

University of Michigan's survey indicated the outlook for consumer spending in the near future is optimistic. But it found that longer range trends "are far from comforting."

* * * *

"THE CONSUMER sector will not contribute to a recession during the next six months," the surveyors reported. They added that "consumer sentiment and consumer demand have not been greatly influenced by the developments that have taken place during the late spring and summer," including the stock market slump.

"Most Americans do not see a close connection between what happens in the stock market and what happens to the economy," according to the survey. "They do not accept the notion that the stock market decline is a signal for an economic recession."

As for the more extended outlook, the survey found that most people do not expect the unemployment problem to be solved soon and feel that international tensions will have an adverse effect on business.

* * * *

THE FEDERAL Reserve Board reported that department store sales last week were unchanged from the like week last year. However, for the four weeks ended Oct. 6 sales were three per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1961.

Heavy construction awards in the week ended Monday rose to $04.7 million, from $353.9 million the previous week and $338.9 million a year ago.

F.W. Dodge Corp., which gathers construction statistics, predicted that contract awards for new construction next year will increase to a record $43.4 billion, a gain of about five per cent over this year's anticipated total of $41.3 billion.

The company expects the boost to be inspired by income tax cuts and greater government spending.

* * * *

ON THE PRICE front, the wholesale cost of coffee was cut up to five cents a pound by major roasters. Food chains indicated at least some of the reductions will be passed on

Celebrezze Tells School Aid Stand

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Anthony J. Celebrezze, the new secretary of health, education and Welfare, is prepared to fight for federal aid to public schools. But he can see no constitutional way to include parochial schools in the program.

The former mayor of Cleveland, in an interview with United Press International, spelled out for the first time his stand on the controversial issue of aid to parochial schools, which has brought President Kennedy into sharp conflict with Roman Catholic bishops.

• • • •

CELEBREZZE, like Kennedy, a member of the Catholic Church, said that he is convinced, after a close study of the whole question, that "the Supreme Court has spoken quite clearly."

"Aid to private elementary and high schools is unconstitutional," he said.

But he said the Supreme Court has not ruled out the use of tax funds to aid private institutions of higher education, and there are many long-standing federal programs which provide a precedent for such aid.

• • • •

AFTER three months in the H-E-W Department, Celebrezze has become as strong advocate of "Medicare" as Abraham Ribicoff the man he succeeded.

"I'm for the Social Security approach," he said, "because I think it's good fiscal policy for people to provide for their health care in old age while they're able to work.

"The Administration plan is based on the same concept as insurance. People would pay Social Security taxes during their earning years, and would be covered with health insurance after they retire.

"That is much sounder — much more conservative, in my opinion — than proposals for the government to finance health care for the aged out of general tax funds. I don't think we can afford to do that on anything like an adequate scale."

Q. Opponents charge that the Medicare plan would lead to "socialized medicine" . . .

A. That nonsense. The government wouldn't have a thing to say about the patient's choice of a physician or hospital, or about the course of treatment.

Q. Why can't private health insurance do the job?

A. Because the insurance rates aren't fixed. The older a person gets, the more he needs the insurance, and the less he may be able to pay for it. But that's just when the premiums become the highest. And they can cancel the policy on him after his benefits run out—just at the time he needs coverage the most.

Professor Urges Slow Learners Be Given Help

LIBERTY, N. Y. (AP)— One-third of American students — the slow learners — are being ignored by educators, says a Michigan State University professor.

Dr. Ernest O. Melby told the second annual convention of the New York State Association of School District Administrators that more attention by teachers is needed to keep these slow learners from being relegated to a "scrap-heap."

Melby said that unless these children are trained to handle jobs in our highly automated society they will end up by joining the ranks of the unemployed.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Mass of Laws Will Affect Most U.S.

By HARRY SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Democratic-controlled 87st Congress finally shut its doors last week, leaving in its wake a mass of laws affecting almost every American.

Among bills signed by President Kennedy, for example, was one raising postal rates on first class letters, airmail and post cards one cent beginning Jan. 7. Most other classes of mail also will be raised gradually. By 1965 the annual tab will be $605 million. The long-sought objective is to get the post office out of the red and on a pay-as-we-go basis.

• • • •

THE SAME BILL carried a $1 billion pay raise for 1.6 million federal workers. But the President directed all government agencies to try and offset this by weeding out deadwood and exacting more efficiency generally.

Also signed into law was a foreign trade bill which invited new tirades of resentment from Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev. It gave the President unprecented power to cut U.S. tarrifs so the United States, the six-nation European Common Market which Khrushchev has bitterly denounced, and other free world countries can cooperate in removing trade barriers.

DONOVAN

When the chief executive asked for it, he said it would enable the Western world to launch an economic offensive which should effectively sidetrack Soviet Bloc trade penetration. No American President has ever had such tariff-cutting power.

• • • •

OTHER MEASURES signed include a $3.9 billion foreign aid program, well under what Kennedy had requested; a tax-deductible pension system for the self-employed such as doctors, lawyers and farmers, and tighter control over the testing and sale of drugs. This last bill grew out of the thalidomide tragedy in which malformed babies were born to hundreds of European mothers who took the sleeping potion. Until then Congress had backed away from drug legislation.

The election-conscious Congress had been reduced to bare quorums when the legislators got away. Many already had departed, some resentful over delays that kept them from beginning their campaigns in September. But they left with high praise from the President who congratulated them on a good record in the face of big political obstacles.

Kennedy himself hit the campaign trail again with forays in Maryland, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Kentucky. Still ahead were invasions of Missouri, Illinois, Washington State and California. Most of the states are battlegrounds in Kennedy's drive to get more New Frontier Democrats elected to the 88th Congress.

• • • •

IN THE Republican camp, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower carried the GOP banner into California where he proclaimed Kennedy was seeking "a one-party government." Also in California, GOP gubernatorial candidate Richard M. Nixon pledged anew that he would not be a candidate for the presidency in 1964. The former vice president is in a nip-and-tuck race with the Democratic incumbent, Gov. Edmund (Pat) Brown.

In another hot political area, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman declared the new farm law just enacted would give farmers the best break they have had in 30 years. The Kennedy administration has been under sharp GOP attack for its farm policies. Freeman said Congress finally had recognized that rural community as well as commodity problems warrant consideration.

Cuban Premier Fidel Castro finally told Cubans that Russian "military technicians" are stationed in their country. He reiterated the familiar charge that the United States was preparing for an invasion and said the technicians, plus Soviet weapons, were needed for defense. Meantime the bearded revolutionary broke off negotiations with New York lawyer James B. Donovan for the release of 1,113 Pigs Bay invasion prisoners. Castro's price for their liberty is $62 million. Donovan claims he is operating in a private capacity, not for the U.S. government. Some congressmen doubted this. It was Donovan who won freedom from Russia for U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers.

British ship owners decided unanimously to oppose President Kennedy's impending move to curb trade with Cuba. They said his threat to ban from U.S. ports all vessels carrying Russian arms or goods to Cuba added up to "sanctions." Britain has never broken relations with Castro. A few other governments have pledged the President their cooperation.

• • • •

THE SUPREME Court refused to review a lower court order which forced the admission of Negro student James H. Meredith to the University of Mississippi. Meredith was enrolled two weeks ago after troops called out by Kennedy put down a bloody riot. At one time 31,000 soldiers were concentrated within a 100-mile radius of the campus at Oxford. Most of these were withdrawn this week when student disturbances were reduced to a minimum.

Meredith himself aroused considerable Army ire by complaining that troops guarding him had been segregated. The Army offered proof to the contrary. The Justice Department named seven students who took part in the rioting.

Also on the racial front a federal judge at Alexandria, Va., directed that Prince Edward County, Va., schools may not stay closed to avoid integration while other tax-supported Virginia schools remained open.

• • • •

THE COUNTY switched to a private tuition system in 1959 and closed its public schools to avoid integration. Since then Negro children have been without schooling.

The Supreme Court struck down racial barriers in bus and railroad terminals in Louisiana and Georgia as an outgrowth of the "freedom rider" campaign last November.

Council to Get Redistricting Ordinance

NEW COUNCILMANIC DISTRICTS ordinance slated to get first reading Tuesday by city councilmen are outlined above. The nine districts are represented by the following councilmen: 1—Raymond C. Kealer; 2—Bert B. Bond (vice mayor); 3—Lewis D. Reese; 4—Andrew H. Baird; 5—Edwin W. Wade (mayor); 6—Emmet M. Sullivan; 7—Robert F. Crow; 8—William A. Graham and 9—Virgil H. Spongberg. The redistricting, first since 1955, is required by the City Charter.

May 14 Election Boundaries Mulled

By GEORGE WEEKS

Battle lines for the Long Beach City Council primary election next May 14 will become official within the next few weeks, even though the candidacies won't develop until later.

New boundaries for the nine councilmanic districts, in each of which a separate contest will be fought simultaneously, will be incorporated in an ordinance for first reading Tuesday by the Council. Under normal procedure, the ordinance will become law some 40 days thereafter.

Councilmen agreed on the new boundaries last Tuesday after more than a month of more or less amiable discussion off the record. The net effect will be to equalize, within a range of slightly more than 1,000 persons, the population in all districts.

* * * *

AVERAGE population for each district, excluding 17,522 persons listed by the Census Bureau as crews of vessels reporting Long Beach as their home port, is 36,900.

Under the old districts, the population ranged from 30,300 in District 7 on the West Side to 46,700 in District 4, Los Altos and neighboring areas.

The compromise agreed on by the council spares all incumbents the embarrassment of running against another council member. Each remains in his own old district, although their constituents are radically changed.

* * * *

THE REDISTRICTING, first since 1955, carries out belatedly a charter requirement that districts be realigned at five-year intervals beginning in 1955 if there is a substantial inequality of population.

City Planning Department estimates of the population in the old and new districts follows:

District	Old	New
1	32,700	37,350
2	39,900	37,100
3	37,400	36,600
4	46,700	36,700
5	36,700	36,400
6	31,600	37,450
7	30,300	37,200
8	35,000	36,900
9	41,900	36,500

BEACH Combing

With MALCOLM EPLEY

ON the wall of a public room in the Los Altos Center some one has scrawled:

SURFERS!
Today the beach,
tomorrow the world!

OCCASIONALLY one encounters shocking evidence of a lack of understanding of the voting procedures in our state.

Like the other day, when a usually well - informed business man said to me:

"I've been having quite a time convincing my wife, who is a registered Democrat, that she can write in the name of any Republican candidate she likes at next month's election."

It was embarrassing to explain to him that at this, and any general election, all voters get identical ballots and the names of all candidates will be on each ballot.

Every voter will have the privilege and the right of marking the ballot for any candidate he likes, regardless the candidate's or the voter's party affiliation.

RECENT discussion here of the idiocy of California's long ballot brought a note from a veteran election board worker indicating a way in which some reform action could be forced.

Her idea was that election board workers should lead the way in demanding that something be done.

In her own case, she said she will simply not work on the board if long ballots persist. Now I'm definitely not advocating what amounts to a strike, but I do believe that these people could help a lot in bringing about a sensible change in this situation.

SIGNS on the freeways have been frequently discussed here. Now Reader F. Wozny brings up another subject: Signs off the freeways, indicating where they are. I agree that there is a lot that could be done in this field, although recently I've observed considerable effort in that direction.

Bro. Wozny makes note of a specific situation right here in Long Beach. He writes:

"There's a need for a large sign on West Ocean Blvd. indicating the approach to the freeway. There's a huge overhead sign showing that the harbor is straight ahead, but the only freeway direction is a small green sign on the right that can't be seen until you're already making the turn.

"It doesn't matter to those of us who know just where to look for the turn onto the freeway. We've managed, from experience, to get into the right lane. But it can be mighty confusing to others unfamiliar with the area. In fact, out-of-towners have commented on the need for a decent sign. Do you agree?"

Agreed.

SPEAKING of confusion, have you noticed how the name Richards and Richardson are all over the ballot in the coming voting.

Dr. Ralph Richardson is running for school superintendent and Wilbur Richardson is running for Assemblyman on L.B.'s west side. They should be getting some advantage out of each other's advertising.

And for U.S. Senate, there's a candidate who is not only named Richards but has the full name of Richard Richards.

That brings up an old experience elsewhere. A friend of mine named Mahoney was ruled off the ballot but ran a write-in campaign for mayor. He told his followers they wouldn't find his name.

But a man named Maloney was running for state treasurer. In our town he got an abnormally large number of votes and some of Mahoney's friends told him, after the election, that he was all wrong. They found his name right there on the ballot.

2,500 Volunteers to Man 42 Sabin Oral Polio Vaccine Clinics Sunday

By BOB SANDERS

More than 2,500 volunteer workers, including doctors, nurses and pharmacists, will be manning 42 Long Beach area clinics next Sunday and the following Sunday to administer the new Sabin oral polio vaccine.

Goal for the Long Beach district is the inoculation of as many of the 550,000 residents of the area as possible with Type I of the Sabin series. Clinics for Types II and III are scheduled later.

"This mass immunization program with Sabin oral vaccine is one of the most important medical projects undertaken anywhere," said Dr. Sam Woolington, Long Beach pediatrician who is serving as chairman of the district.

* * * *

THE LONG BEACH district includes all of the city plus Signal Hill, Wilmington, Lakewood, Catalina Island, Artesia, Torrance and Dominguez.

It is part of the drive by Los Angeles County Medical Association to inoculate 6 million persons in the county.

The clinics will be set up in 33 area schools, Memorial, Pacific, St. Mary's and Community Hospitals and five other locations. A complete list was printed in Thursday's Independent, Press-Telegram. Hours are from 11 a. m. until 6 p. m.

* * * *

IN AN effort to eliminate waiting time at the clinics, the Independent, Press-Telegram will publish a pre-registration form in next Sunday's paper. By clipping the form from the paper and filling it out before going to the clinic families may eliminate time consumed in registering at the clinic.

Although a minimum donation of 25 cents is expected to cover the cost of the vaccine, Dr. Woolington said that no one will be turned away for lack of funds.

Every one in the community three months old or older is urged to take the Sabin vaccine, even though they may already have taken the Salk vaccine.

* * * *

SABIN VACCINE, which has been approved by the U. S. Department of Health is the only one that destroys polio virus and thereby eliminates the possibility of a person being a carrier of the disease.

Dr. I. D. Litwak, Long Beach city health officer, has pointed out the dramatic effect of Sabin vaccine on an outbreak of polio in Pasadena in August.

"Seven cases occurred in quick succession in one area of the city," Dr. Litwak said. "Crews rushed into the area and administered 10,000 doses of Sabin vaccine. Not another case was reported.

* * * *

THERE ARE many advantages of the Sabin vaccine over the Salk. First, because it is given on a lump of sugar taken orally it eliminates the needle. Also it gives longer protection and prevents a person from being a carrier.

"If this drive is successful," Dr. Woolington said, "and the people really turn out for it, it may be possible to eliminate paralytic polio from Southern California forever."

SPACE 'TINKER-TOY'
Douglas scientists envision a "spaceball" complex, doubling as a space station or planetary transport, which would be formed in outer space by units joining together after they were fired into orbit. The complex, resembling a child's "Tinker-Toy" plaything, could supply a space vehicle with powered stages for inter-planetary excursions.

MAY HOLD VITAL KEY

'Tinker Toy' Space Base Devised by Douglas Aid

By LEE CRAIG
Military-Aviation Editor

A "tinker toy" space station has been devised by a Douglas Aircraft Co. space engineer which may provide the key to outer space explorations.

The "Spaceballs" comprising the station could be lofted into orbit by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's advanced Saturn C-5 vehicle, which is expected to become operational in this decade, according to Douglas expert T. J Gordon.

The spherica, spaceball, with its astronaut passengers would remain attached to the Douglas-built S-IVB, its terminal stage, whose empty cavernous fuel tanks would provide added living quarters.

As resupply vehicles would be shuttled to the space station, their expended S-IVB terminal stages could be attached to the "spaceball" complex. Additional spaceballs could be orbited and also linked to the complex.

More spaceballs could be orbited and joined, with their expended stages also connected with the growing station, which eventually would resemble a colossal model of a molecule.

The space vehicle would be provided with sufficient thrust for planetary excursions by additional S-IVB stages, fully fueled, which would be orbited and attached to the spaceball complex.

A Demonstration of Ineptitude

NINE OF THE 10 members of the State Board of Education have taken an action which, though not illegal, is an unprecedented demonstration of ineptitude and ill will.

These members have endorsed one of the candidates for State Superintendent of Public Instruction and rebuked the other in stinging language.

Nobody denies that these officials have the right as citizens to endorse, singly or in a group, any proposition or any candidate. But is it proper or sensible for them to do so in the case of the superintendency?

When they endorse Dr. Ralph Richardson and denounce Dr. Max Rafferty, they set the stage for what could be a bitter and destructive relationship.

DR. RAFFERTY HAS AN excellent chance of winning election as State Superintendent. If Dr. Rafferty is elected, he will be a part of the Board of Education and the only member on the board, incidentally, who will have been chosen by the voters of the State of California. The need for a cordial relationship is obvious.

The burden of that cordiality is now upon Dr. Rafferty, for these nine members have made it clear that they don't intend to carry any of it.

The arrogance and sheer unfriendliness of their action is reflected by the answer given by Board President Thomas W. Braden when asked whether the board would cooperate with Dr. Rafferty should he be elected:

"If he is elected, the burden would be on him to cooperate with us. He is responsible to us under state law."

IT IS TRUE THAT the Superintendent of Public Instruction is the secretary and executive officer of the Board, and that he executes, under the direction of the Board, the policies decided upon by the Board. This does make him responsible to the Board.

But we hope that Mr. Braden and his eight associates will not forget that the Superintendent is an elected officer, responsible also to the voters of this state.

UNDER CALIFORNIA LAW, the office of Superintendent is non-partisan. But Dr. Rafferty considers the action of the nine board members "a brazen partisan political activity," a political conspiracy among appointees of the Governor to give an advantage to the candidate affiliated with the Governor's political party. Dr. Rafferty also comments that his own campaign successes have thrown his opposition into a "fit of desperation."

The character and language of the Board members' action suggest that his analysis is correct on both counts.

In any event, what they have done is unworthy of men appointed to the high and responsible job of determining educational policy for the State of California.

JFK Political Trip May Boomerang

By the I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The President's enthusiastic campaign tour on behalf of Democrats—any Democrat—may have a built-in boomerang.

His scattered Congressional successes, for example, have been based on bi-partisan support. Some of his worst times have been supplied by his own party. Without the help of Sen. Everett Dirksen (R., Ill.), the minority leader, and Sen. Thomas Kuchel (R., Calif.), the Republican whip, there might have been something approaching a shambles. Yet he has dedicated himself to the defeat of both, though not with the vigor the Democratic candidates would have liked.

He traveled to Minnesota last weekend on another quest, the defeat of veteran Congressman Walter Judd, a Republican his administration has depended on with such subjects as the foreign aid program and passage of the U. N. bond legislation.

Judd's value to the State Department can be summed up simply. As he votes on such things as foreign aid, so vote 50 or so Republicans, enough to overcome the opposition which exists in both parties.

LONG-TIME observers here say they have never seen anything quite as rough and dirty as the path Congress traveled toward adjournment. The way was strewn with ambuscades. The air has been bitter. There never have been more naked displays of political blackjackings.

Many Democratic members of the Congress are extremely bitter, for example, about the childish display of power put on by Rep. Mike Kirwin (D., Ohio) in his successful quest for a $10 million aquarium. Few, however, are willing to take him on.

As chairman of an Interior Appropriations subcommittee he proved his might by killing an Oregon project desired by Sen. Wayne Morse, a fellow Democrat, who had ridiculed the aquarium on the Senate floor.

Rep. James Utt, Southern California Republican, was reminded of his vote against the $900 million emergency public works bill when he testified in behalf of a needed beach erosion project.

Glendale Physician Carries Last Hope of Third Party

The American (Prohibition) Party is a hair away from oblivion. California's highest voter registration in history shows 4,824 Prohibitionists of a total registration of 7,531,211. To stay alive the party must keep a registration of at least one-fifteenth of one per cent; or one of its statewide candidates must poll at least 2 per cent of the entire state turnout.

In state convention last August, the Prohibition State Central Committee took resuscitative action in resolving to take steps to change its name to the American Party, because "the party is not for prohibition as the word is commonly understood."

HOUSER

Party substitutes for the all-out prohibition image are ultra-conservative platform planks and a fault-finding that other party positions "have been ones of consistent compromise and fluidity."

Despite its .066 per cent registration, the American Party claims it deserves more newspaper space, equal TV network time with the two major party nominees. Dr. Robert L. Wyckoff, of Glendale, the party candidate for governor, says the press is tending to bypass the opportunity to present views of all candidates in favor of the "glare and bigness of the Republican and Democrat campaigns."

• • • •

IN OUR own 32nd Congressional District, where the party has 179 registered members, the cause is being carried principally by G. E. Rucker, 4555 Falcon Ave., who identifies himself as Wyckoff's campaign manager for the Long Beach area. He wants help, including an office, telephones and a couple of women for office work. Those interested in the third party and good government, Rucker says, may call him after 4:30 p.m. at GA 7-0012.

Rucker also solicits campaign contributions which he says may be mailed to Dr. Wyckoff at 1530 E. Chevy Chase, Glendale 6. He says the third party "is very much alive and has every intention of winning the election. Parties have changed; remember the Whigs and the Federalists. Good shall always win out over the bad. This is a natural law and if good does not win out there is chaos."

Rucker further promises that the party will be "pulling a very real surprise on Mr. Nixon and Mr. Brown. We mean a truly ethical surprise."

• • • •

PLATFORM planks include belief in constitutional government and private enterprise. The party opposes the graduated income tax and says all income should be taxed at the same rate for so long as an income tax remains necessary. It favors right to work laws, opposes any form of coercion of union membership while, at the same time recognizing the merit of collective bargaining.

• • • •

DR. WYCKOFF stresses his party's dedication to returning government from Sacramento to local communities and charges the other two party platforms have no provision to curb this "tendency to centralization of power." He opposes Proposition 1-A for educational building and speaks in favor of charging students tuition in keeping with value received. He opposes State Senate reapportionment and favors Prop. 24, the Francis amendment.

Goldberg and JFK Rib British Laborite on Common Market

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy was entertaining Hugh Gaitskell, head of the British Labor party at an intimate White House luncheon, when a very interesting, off-the-record debate took place.

Present were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Vice President Lyndon Johnson, and Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg.

PEARSON

Goldberg, now on the Supreme Court, came up through the ranks of labor and has intimate knowledge of the trade union movement in England and elsewhere.

"What I can't understand about the British Labor party," he shot at the head of that party, "is your opposition to the Common Market."

The Secretary of State, who has to promote harmonious relations with our British allies, winced a bit. But Goldberg kept on ribbing the possible next Prime Minister of England. President Kennedy joined in the good-natured banter.

They both argued that the Common Market had already brought better relations between the countries of Western Europe and would probably lead to a close-knit governmental system for Western Europe.

"This is what the trade union movement has always favored," argued Goldberg. "You want better understanding. Why then your opposition?"

Gaitskell wouldn't admit it, of course, but those around the White House table suspected he figured the Common Market was a good political issue on which to force an election and try to defeat Premier Macmillan's Conservative government. If so, it's believed British Labor would be just as strong for the Common Market as the Conservatives are today.

ONE OF Speaker Sam Rayburn's last acts before his fatal illness was to persuade his close friend, Rep. Francis (Tad) Walter D-Pa.), not to retire from Congress.

Walter has now served 30 years in the House of Representatives and has the rating of elder statesman. Outside Washington, the Pennsylvania solon is best known for his chairmanship of the un-American Activities Committee, a job in which he has sometimes stirred up fierce animosities.

But to those who know him in the cloakroom of Congress, Walter is kindly, considerate, and has the courage to stand up against unpopular measures. When Rep. Glenn Cunningham (R-Neb.), darling of the Texas oil tycoons and the right-wingers, introduced his amendment to ban Communist literature from the mails, Walter was one of the few with the courage to stand up and oppose it. Though not in favor of spreading Communist propaganda, he saw the danger of political censorship of the mails. Once established, he knew the principle could be used against Republican literature or Democratic literature.

In the end, only two congressmen had the courage to vote against the Cunningham amendment.

PROPOSITION 23

State Senators Close Ranks to Fight Senate Expansion

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO—California's state senators are taking virtually a unanimous stand against Proposition No. 23, the measure that would add 10 new state senators from big-city areas.

The united front to keep the Senate as it is transcends north-south geography, party faith and population size of home districts.

Senators have closed ranks so firmly that campaigners for Proposition No. 23 cannot name one senator who has endorsed the reapportionment initiative.

Most have been extremely active against it. The campaign has been led by a blue-ribbon bloc of leadership [illegible] cludes Sen. Hugh M. Burns, majority leader; Sen. John F. McCarthy, minority leader; Assemblyman Jerome R. Waldie, Assembly majority leader, and Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell, Assembly minority leader.

• • • •

WHY THE TOGETHERNESS in a 40-member Senate that has been marked by in-fighting on other issues?

Senators feel that adding five new Senators in Los Angeles County and one each in Orange, Santa Clara, Alameda, San Francisco and San Diego Counties—as proposed in Proposition No. 23—will upset the present balance between urban and rural areas.

Opponents say there is no real indication of a need for reapportionment. They say the Senate has been responsive to big-city needs on freeways, smog control, social-welfare problems, water and all other major urban issues.

The classical argument of senators hinges on a comparison of the California Senate with the federal Senate. They say California should keep the federal system of having one house based on population and the other based on geographical districts.

"If both houses of Congress were based on population, it is likely that eastern big-city interests would have delayed the development of the West considerably . . . and the same thing could happen to underdeveloped areas of California if selfish big-city interests run both the Assembly and Senate," argues one spokesman for the senators.

Specifically, reapportionment critics forecast that natural resources, farmlands and resort areas will suffer if Proposition No. 23 passes.

• • • •

LOS ANGELES, ORANGE, San Diego, San Francisco, Alameda and Santa Clara Counties already elect 52 of the 80 assemblymen. No. 23 foes argue that California needs a balanced legislature like Congress to prevent the majority from ignoring the minority.

Sen. George Miller said a predominance of senators from rural areas exerts a good conservative influence on the Senate. "They are less likely to panic and less subject to pressure influences," he added.

Miller declared it would be easier for Los Angeles interests to bottle up a bill or appropriation favorable to Long Beach if Proposition No. 23 passes. He predicted only one of the county's six new senators would be from Long Beach area and that Los Angeles could put tremendous pressure on the other five.

"Long Beach is better off with one state senator who is sensitive to its interests," he concluded.

Miller maintained there is more than meets the eye to the claims of some Southlanders that they are short-changed when state gas tax money is divided.

He said there would be no real statewide highway system if all the gas tax money were returned to the county that collected it. "All you would have would be county road systems, and some of the smaller counties would not have adequate highways for a statewide system," he added.

Again comparing the situation to the relationships of states to the federal government, Miller pointed to Nevada and smaller Western states. Nevada would not have adequate cross-country roads if it weren't for federal highway grants, he said.

"My Contra Costa County doesn't get back all the gas tax money that is collected in it . . . but I still favor the present system because it preserves our state highway system," he concluded.

• • • •

ANOTHER KEY REASON Senators oppose Proposition No. 23: it would set in motion a chain of future reapportionment battles in California.

The proposition calls for a reshuffling of Senate seats again in 1971 and every 10 years thereafter—but doesn't spell out what happens if legislators cannot agree on a reapportionment formula every decade. Some fear that the upshot will be that the U. S. Supreme Court may intervene to tell California how to reapportion if the Legislature deadlocks.

"A deadlock is a certainty," one senator forecast gloomily.

Senators haven't talked much about it. But the cost of enlarging the Senate is likely to be substantial.

The Office of the Legislative Analyst estimates it would cost $324,500 a year to add 10 senators—plus an additional outlay of $300,000 the first year for new office space. If the electorate votes lawmakers a raise in pay, costs would be higher.

One Capitol Building informant, asked why no one had raised the issue of cost, said he doubts if voters pay much attention to the spending of a few hundred thousand dollars extra when the state has a $2.88 billion budget.

If voters decide to enlarge the Senate from 40 to 50 members, these are the annual additional costs to taxpayers: salaries, $60,000; per diem, travel and staff assistants, $193,000; equivalent space rental cost for office space, $31,500; related legislative services, $40,000.

Mind Should Open Before Mouth

EDITOR:

It is the solemn duty of every American before he opens his mouth to criticize our government policies and programs that he also open his mind.

A few hours a week sitting quietly and contemplating our constitution, its amendments, our foreign policies and the friends and enemies outside our borders, might be worth all the defense buildup we could muster in the next hundred years.

Fellow Americans spend just a little time thinking instead of spouting off and we might see peace in our time.

Instead of so much "free time" lets spend some more study time starting in elementary school maybe then we won't have so many uninformed or half informed citizens shooting off their mouths hollering for a "shootin' war." You know the old saying, "I'll fight for freedom with every drop of YOUR blood!"

JFK Promises Sound Hollow

EDITOR:

In the light of developments of the past 20 months, there is a hollow sound to JFK's glowing promises about Cuba. Here are a few quotations he made when he was seeking the Presidency in 1960:

"I want people to wake up all over the world in the next years and wonder not what Mr. Khrushchev is doing or what Mr. Castro is doing, I want them to wonder what the United States is doing."—Candidate JFK, Queens, N. Y., October 27, 1960.

"We must let Mr. Castro know that we do not intend to be pushed around any longer and in particular do not intend to be pushed out of our naval base at Guantanamo or denied fair compensation for American property he has seized."—Candidate JFK, Johnstown, Pa., October 15, 1960.

"I am not satisfied to have the hand of the Communists move 3,000 miles from East Berlin to our former good neighbor in Cuba, only 90 miles from the coast of Florida, only eight minutes by jet."—Candidate JFK, Washington, D.C., September 20, 1960.

• • • •

MR. J.F.K., many Americans are wondering what the United States is doing? And why you haven't done anything to stop any of the things you promised the American people you would do, if they elected you President.

The United States is getting in deeper trouble. I believe the people will choose a man in 1964 that will do the job.

Deplores Early Yule Activity

EDITOR:

Last month I saw a Santa Claus doll in a department store, and already many stores have specials on Christmas cards and gift wrappings. It's a wonder we haven't heard Christmas carols yet.

With almost three months of Christmas shopping ahead, it will be a wonder if our budgets and spirits survive. By the time Christmas does arrive, the majority of the people will be financially exhausted, emotionally upset, and will have lost the true spirit of Christmas.

To many people, Christmas just means exchanging gifts and pleasing the children with toys from Santa Claus. Let's slow down just a bit and remember that this is the day the Saviour was born, a day for rejoicing. If we put more time into remembering what Christmas really is, we will be ahead both financially and spiritually.

By Charles F. Berlitz and Robert Thompson-Davis

One of the usual ways of greeting in China may have to be modified as a result of the widespread food shortages under the Red regime. The greeting is: Chih kwo fan la ma?, meaning "Have you eaten your rice yet?", and it is often said just as we say "Good morning!"

With the present shortages, however, the plausible answer Han mei chih.—"Still have not eaten," might be considered counter-revolutionary, while a disenchanted Gung chan tang dee-sha, shwei neng chih?—"Under Communism, who can eat?", might well place the observer in a position where his eating days would be permanently over.

A copy of the Berlitz "Diner's Dictionary" will be mailed to anyone submitting a question used in "Languages in the News."

MARTIN A. NISHKIAN
Heads Outstanding Engineering Firm

Engineering Achievements Made By M. A. Nishkian Are Outstanding

Martin A. Nishkian, prominent consulting Engineer, designer and constructor of Long Beach, has a record of progress that is an enviable one.

Although primarily known for his engineering achievements he is also an accomplished violinist. He is an ardent fly fisherman, and is the proud owner of two fine quarter horses, Tiny Chick and Thunder Chick. Previously he owned a string of thoroughbreds.

Nishkian was born in Fresno, and graduated from San Francisco Poly High School, and the University of California. He also did post graduate work at the University of California and Stanford.

Several Expansions

The company which bears his name, is located at 3754 Long Beach Blvd., Long Beach. This two-story structure was designed and built by Nishkian in 1953, at which time he occupied only the second floor.

In 1956, the building was extended 40 feet to take care of the growth of the Nishkian operations.

In 1962, the organization was still suffering from growing pains, and it was necessary to take over complete occupancy of the building.

Nishkian heads three other organizations — Manco Construction Co., Constructors Nishkian S. A. of Mexico City, and the Nish-Paul Oil Company.

He is a member of the Petroleum Club, Optimist Club, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, Pacific Coast Club, San Diego Club, and last year was named Citizen of the Year by the Exchange Club.

Wide Range of Work

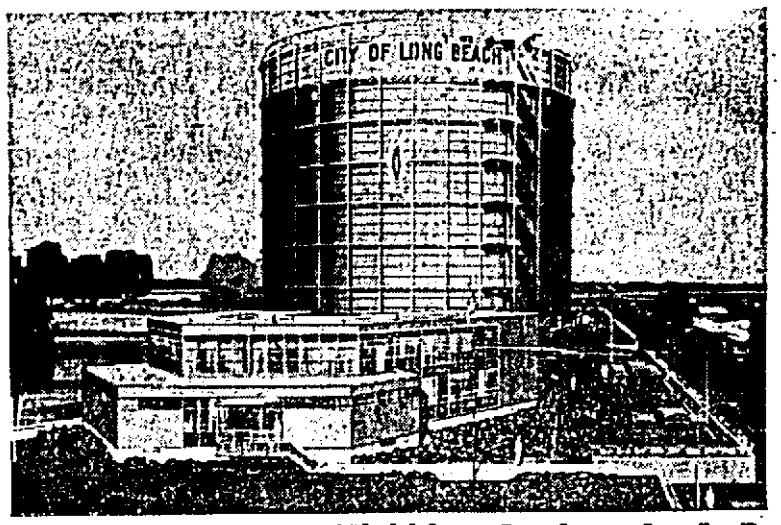

Nishkian designed, engineered and constructed projects in recent years cover a wide range and in various states.

He was retained by the Atomic Energy Commission to prepare plans for additions to the material reactor site at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

Nishkian was the designer for a $3,502,500 heading and air-conditioning plant to serve nine new buildings in the Los Angeles Civic Center; the Star Kist Tuna plant in Fish Harbor on Terminal Island; the Cooperative Steam plant on Terminal Island.

Varied Other Projects

He engineered an ultra-modern heating project for Camp Pendleton Marine Corps Base; designed jet fuel storage underground tanks and a 20,000 foot distribution system for the Naval Air Station in San Diego; the $12 million gas compressor station in Needles, Calif., for Southern Counties Gas Co., was another of his projects.

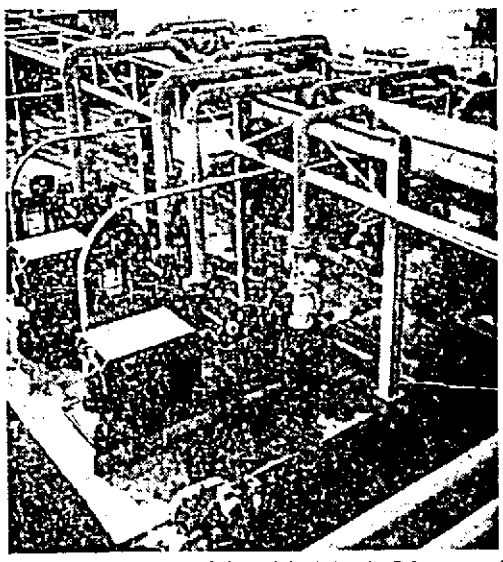

Gas Compressor A Nishkian Project In L.B.

The progress in major civic improvements made by the City of Long Beach in the past few years is well illustrated by the Municipal Gas Department Compressor Plant No. 6. This $2,700,000 ultra-modern facility was engineered and designed by M. A. Nishkian & Co.

The 174-foot gasholder, which is equivalent to a 17-story building, and the adjoining compressor plant supplies some 5 million cubic feet of gas to customers in the northeasterly portion of Long Beach.

The plant design is unique, featuring a sphere 10 feet in diameter in the center of an octagon for gas suction, and a doughnut type header encircling the sphere for the gas discharge. This modern facility also features a central recording and indicating instrument panel which automatically controls the entire plant. The main building is constructed of rigid frame with porcelainized aluminum exterior panels and curtain-wall, and houses four 550 horsepower gas engine driven reciprocating compressor units and related equipment.

Nishkian Designed Plants To Halt Harbor Subsidence

This is a photograph of the original level. Salt water is now being pumped at high pressures into the subsiding areas, and the results are most favorable.

This is a photograph of the plant located on Terminal Island, immediately north of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard. This plant and its distribution system, together with the Mainland water injection and distribution system is a portion of the subsidence control water injection program which M. A. Nishkian & Co. performed for the Long Beach Harbor Department.

The plants were designed for the purpose of halting land subsidence that threatened one of the Nation's largest ports.

The removal of large quantities of oil over the years was one of the reasons for the land subsidence, and it has been reported that at the center of the Wilmington Oil Field, sinkage had reached a depth of 23 feet below the

The two plants consist of high pressure, electric-driven pumping units, designed to supply water to injection wells at 1500 psig; 1250 psig. and 1000 psig. for the various underground oil zones at a total rate of 15,000 gpm. The distribution system consists of approximately 20 miles of high pressure steel piping and approximately 3 miles of low pressure salt water piping.

M. A. Nishkian & Co. is presently completing the design and drawings for the injection of an additional 2,150 gpm. at the existing Long Beach Harbor Department's Plant Z.

Reagan Seeks Cranston Job

(This is another in a series of articles on major election candidates.)

By JIM McCAWLEY

SACRAMENTO—Financial management has been the most oft-mentioned issue in the race for state controller.

State Controller Alan Cranston, the Democratic incumbent, proudly has put his and the Democratic Administration's record on money matters on the line.

Cranston contends he and his Democratic colleagues have proved it is possible to be humanitarian and fiscally responsible at the same time.

• • • •

ASSEMBLYMAN Bruce V. Reagan, Republican nominee, has criticized Cranston's financial management. And he has blasted Cranston for being the founding president of the California Democratic Council.

Cranston, 48, first Democratic state controller in seven decades, credits his office with "saving the state hundreds of thousands of dollars by implementing new methods and equipment."

• • • •

A CRANSTON campaign statement declared:

"During the fiscal year just ended the state raised more than $73 million from sources other than taxes and fees. The State Lands Commission (under the chairmanship of Cranston) accounted for $16.6 million, the bulk of it from state-owned oil tidelands.

"The investment of money not needed for immediate expenditures raised another $19 million for the general fund."

• • • •

CRANSTON, chairman of the Franchise Tax Board, said that board had simplified income tax forms, speeded service, streamlined its methods and instituted new depreciation write-off rules which will result in a $15 million saving to California business.

Cranston, a former Stanford University track star, operated a real estate, investment, and property management business in Northern California prior to his election in 1958.

As a journalist in the 1930's, Cranston was sent to Europe to cover the rise to power of Hitler and Mussolini. Cranston authored the 1945 book, "Killing of the Peace," an account of the United States Senate fight over the League of Nations which was ranked as one of the top 10 books of the year by the New York Times.

• • • •

REAGAN, an Assemblyman from Pasadena, has let fly with some barbs at the journalistic backgrounrs of Cranston and Finance Director Hale Champion, an ex-reporter.

Of Cranston's claim of a $15 million saving for business on fast write-off rules, Reagan replied:

"This is just one more example of the fiscal folly so characteristic of the inexperienced press agents who run the state's finances under Gov. Brown.

• • • •

"WHAT REALLY happened is that the Brown-Champion-Cranston budget builders padded the state's budget by over $21 million—more than then could possibly spend and give away last year. Now, calling the excess a 'savings,' they proposed to declare a dividend on money they never should have collected in the first place."

Reagan, now serving his third term in the Assembly, said he favors more careful audits, more modern methods, crackdowns on welfare frauds checks and balances to restore the level of the unemployment insurance fund and replacement of present politically-appointed tax appraisers. Reagan charged that the appointees are "incompetent."

• • • •

REAGAN said: "California's fiscal program now is in the hands of a liberal, free-spending bureaucrat with no experience in money handling."

Reagan, 60, is president of Atlas Federal Savings & Loan Assn. Since 1921, he has been in business as a banker, stock broker and savings excutive. He is a native of Winnebago, Minn.

Also on the ballot for state controller will be The Rev. Frank G. H. Stevens, a Pasadena clergyman who is the Prohibitionist nominee.

New Caltech Device Detects Atom Blasts

By RALPH DIGHTON

PASADENA (UP)—A device which could be a forerunner of a worldwide network of nuclear blast detectors was announced today by the California Institute of Technology.

The new instrument, a cross between an earthquake-recording seismograph and a computer, was built for the Advanced Research Projects Agency's Vela, which is concerned with the detection of nuclear explosions.

Called a digital seismograph, the device distinguishes automatically between earth movements caused by earthquakes and those caused by nuclear blasts.

This automatic analysis is expected to speed up detection of nuclear explosions at great distances. Installation of a network of such devices has been proposed as a way of policing nuclear blasts if an international agreement to ban tests is reached.

A spokesman for the institute said the instrument is believed to be the first of its kind in the world.

WASHINGTON (UP)— Farm employment during the September harvest season was down 4 per cent from last year and the lowest for the month in more than 35 years.

The Agriculture Department reported employes in the last week of the month numbered 8,471,000, compared with 8,796,000 last year. September usually is agriculture's peak employment month.

Factors in the decline included a smaller crop acreage and increased use of machinery and other labor-saving equipment. The average wage rate on Oct. 1 was reported at 86.8 cents an hour, compared with 84.3 a year ago.

Senate Passes Bill to Admit 23,000 Aliens

About 7,000 of these would be highly skilled persons, and whose entry was requested by U. S. employers in applications filed with the attorney general prior to April 1, 1962.

The attornty general would have to report to Congress on each petition he approves for the addmission of these persons, or for allowing them to stay in the country with immigrant status if they already are here.

David Loss, 15, Sycamore Junior High School student in Anaheim, collapsed and died while doing the twist at a school dance. The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack E. Henderson, was dead on arrival at Anaheim Memorial Hospital Friday night. A deputy coroner said the death was tentatively listed as a heart attack.

Collegian Jailed

Police arrested a 205-pound Cerritos College football player Friday night on charges he knocked down a plainclothes policeman who was trying to break up a disturbance in a Downey drive-in restaurant. The officer, Donald Jones, said he stopped a fight between two teen-age boys and was taking one of them out of the drive-in when he was attacked from behind by Ernest McCauley, 18, of 12708 Glenshire St. Witnesses said Jones was knocked out.

The fund will be administered by the Bank of America and money will be loaned to ambitious and deserving students who attend the California College of Mortuary Science in Los Angeles.

Hero Welcome for Astronaut

ORADELL, N. J. (UPI) — Astronaut Wally Schirra returns today to his hometown for the first time in 20 years for a hero's welcome from those who remember him as that serious little kid who was crazy about airplanes.

Highlight of the homecoming will come on Monday when the six-orbit spaceman is presented the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Distinguished Service Award.

Schirra, his wife, Jo; their children, Marty, 12, and Suzanna, 5, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schirra Sr., of San Diego are due tonight.

CAR THEFT CASE

Rare Blood, Rare Excuse

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Given three days off for good behavior, Charles Dexter Young walked out of jail.

After serving 87 days for auto theft, he was broke and in a hurry.

Police said Young hopped into a parked car and drove away. The car belonged to Police Lt. Ben Newton. Officers quickly caught Young.

Young, 21, explained his actions this way:

"I got a rare blood type, see? And it sells for $10 a pint. I needed transportation to the blood bank."

Over Million Use Birth Control Pills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than one million American women are now using birth control pills, according to the Planned Parenthood Federation.

A Federation spokesman said the new oral contraceptive is marketed in this country by the G. D. Searle Co. under the trade name "Enovid."

The pills are available only by a physician's prescription. Taken on a rigid schedule of 20 days a month, they prevent conception by suspending ovulation.

The current retail cost is about $3.50 a month. Thousands of low-income families are receiving the pills free through Planned Parenthood Centers and other birth control clinics.

The U.S. Food & Drug Administration cleared Enovid for commercial sale in May, 1960, after extensive tests in the United States, Puerto Rico and other countries indicated the pills were safe and compared favorably in effectiveness with standard contraceptive appliances.

Measles Epidemic

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UP)—More than a third of Greenland's population has been downed by measles in an epidemic which has afflicted the world's largest island since April.

An official report issued Saturday said 10,771 cases were registered among the 32,000 Danes and natives on the island, with 49 native deaths attributed to the disease. Thule, site of a big U.S. Air Force Base, was one of three settlements not affected.

Russians Establish Senegal Embassy

DAKAR, Senegal (UP)—Soviet Charge d'Affaires Serguei Chaverdian arrived here Saturday to open an embassy.

"I am sure," he said, "that the establishment of diplomatic relations and the exchange of ambassadors between the Soviet Union and the Senegal Republic will create more favorable conditions for a fruitful development of friendly relations between our two countries."

SANTA BARBARA'S Alan Reynolds tackles Long Beach State's Don Montgomery, jarring ball loose. Referee ruled that Reynolds interfered on pass play, giving 49ers first down. Santa Barbara scored a 7-6 victory.

Late 49er Bid Falls Shy, 7-6

By AL LARSON

Long Beach State blew two golden scoring opportunities in the last three minutes of play and UC Santa Barbara squeezed out a stunning 7-6 CCAA victory Saturday night at Veterans Stadium.

After spotting the 49ers a touchdown in the second period, the Gauchos got the most mileage out of their only drive of the night late in the third quarter. Barreling 45 yards in 10 plays, quarterback Austin Dias dived into the end zone from one-foot out to climax the march.

Roger Hembree split the uprights with 4:15 remaining to give the Gauchos a 7-6 lead which held up to the end.

• • • •

LONG BEACH'S loss can best be attributed to the loss of kicking star Tom Turrill early in the second period. "The Toe" suffered a slight concussion and was sidelined for the rest of the game.

He was unable to convert after Long Beach's first score, forcing the 49ers to gamble on a two-point conversion pass which fizzled, and then was the most disappointed man on the sidelines when the 49ers had the chance to pull victory out with 2:40 remaining.

The 49ers had to call on the untested Tom Cunningham for a field goal attempt on Santa Barbara's 20 but his kick sailed straight up in the air and the Gauchos seemingly had the game "clocked" up.

• • • •

BUT THREE plays later Tony Pallante fumbled and the 49ers came up with the big recovery on the UCSB 22. Now it was a race with time. There were 90 seconds left.

On the first play Curt Bennett was foiled attempting to pass and lost 10 yards. Hank Edney made up five of these on a screen pass from Bennett. Now there were 45 seconds left.

On the next play Bennett was trapped but got off a desperation pass which sailed out of the end zone. Confronted with a fourth and 15 situation on Santa Barbara's 27, Curt's all-important pass to Dee Andrews fell incomplete in the left flat and the Gauchos had locked up their second successive conference victory in three starts.

The 49ers, who had hoped to ride out of the basement, instead suffered their second CCAA setback in a row and as the season reached the midway point, see their record at 1 and 4. All defeats have occurred at home—the last coming before a homecoming crowd of 4,004.

• • • •

EARLIER in the final period the 49ers put together a sustained drive of 50 yards which wound up 10 yards short of paydirt when Edney was stopped inches away from a first down.

Santa Barbara couldn't move and Jim Fisher barely got off his punt which bounced out on UCSB's 27. This set up Long Beach's field goal opportunity which sputtered—which is the story of Long Beach's season to date.

Andrews again was Long Beach's leading ground-gainer, packing the ball 18 times for 62 yards net. The game, which had been built up as a possible passing duel between Dias and Charlie Anderson, failed to materialize. Dias completed only three of seven attempts for 40 yards while Anderson was one-for-five for 21. Bennett clicked on one-of-four attempts for four yards.

• • • •

LONG BEACH got its offense rolling in high gear late in the first half and carried a 6-0 lead into the locker room at intermission.

Penalties kept the 49ers spinning their wheels throughout the first quarter and much of the second until Andrews and Anderson combined to engineer a 59-yard touchdown drive.

Andrews flashed his true form for the first time this year when he exploded for 39 yards on five carries to set up Anderson's key fourth-and-nine pass to Rex Burrell which put the 49ers one yard from paydirt.

• • • •

WITH 1:55 remaining in the half, Jim White dived over right guard for the score.

Anderson elected to go for two points on the conversion but was dropped before he could get his pass in the air.

During the nine-play advance, Andrews carried four successive plays and reeled off one 19-yard gain—his longest this year.

In the first period, Anderson was confronted with a fourth-and-17 situation on Santa Barbara's 27-yard line but he fired incomplete to Don Montgomery and the Gauchos were out of trouble.

• • • •

ACTUALLY the drive was short-circuited by an offsides penalty which killed a 14-yard ramble by Wayne Mickaellan which would have given the 49ers first and goal on the three. Instead they wound up on the 22 and on the next play Andrews was trapped for a five-yard loss.

Instead of going for the field goal, Anderson tried two successive passes and failed on both. This occurred before it was known Turrill was out for the game.

Long Beach was stalled by five rule infractions, while an additional three were refused during the first 30 minutes of play.

• • • •

SANTA BARBARA, which picked up only two first downs in the first half and never got out of its own backyard, made good on its only threat in the third period.

Dias cashed in the 45-yard drive when he executed a perfect swan dive into the end zone with 4:15 remaining in the quarter.

Hembree split the uprights to give the Gauchos their 7-6 margin.

NO JOY NOR BASEBALL IN MUDVILLE

Another Water Show at S.F.

By GEORGE LEDERER
L. P-T Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — There still is no joy in Mudville. Nor baseball. The mighty monsoon refuses to strike out.

The World Series goes into its 11th day today and the program calls for more aquatics.

The third successive rain postponement in San Francisco, and fourth of the Series, is a 10 per cent possibility, according to the weatherman. But who can trust him? He hasn't played ball, either.

Rain probability was 80 per cent Saturday, which meant that the weatherman was 20 per cent wrong. Even the seagulls sent out an SOS from Candlestick Park, where the outfield is under an inch and one-half of water.

Fearless Ford Frick, Commissioner of Baseball and Water Safety, issued his latest bulletin from a row boat: "Don't give up the ship," he said. "If you do, you better be an expert swimmer."

Few persons, least of all the commissioner, would hazard a guess as to when the Series might be resumed. Its principals, the Yankees and Giants, still were in town Saturday, but both considered evacuation.

"I don't see how we can play Sunday," said Admiral Alvin Dark of the Giants. I don't care about batting practice, but our pitchers, particularly (Jack) Sanford, have to do some throwing."

The Yankees, led by amphibious major Ralph Houk, considered fleeing to Modesto, 80 miles to the south. The only thing stopping them is an 80 per cent chance of rain in Modesto.

The Giants may work in the Cow Palace today. The only thing stopping them is the ice hockey floor, but that shouldn't be much of a hindrance. Trailing in the series, 3-2, they're already skating on thin ice.

• • • •

WHENEVER the sixth game is played, Whitey Ford and Billy Pierce will be the opposing pitchers with the Yankees 6½-5 favorites.

"Pierce will have to get beat one time at home before I don't start him," said Dark. There had been speculation that Dark would move up Sanford, winner of the second game and tough-luck loser of the fifth. Sanford has a 23-2 record in two seasons at Candlestick. Pierce's record there is 12-0.

Candlestick Park groundskeeper Matty Schwab held to his opinion that "it might take two days to dry the field after the rain stops." The infield was not protected during the off-day Thursday, the day the rains came.

"I'm afraid that when I lift the tarp," said Schwab, "there may be no grass left."

• • • •

SCHWAB SAID the drainage system is so slow that he usually waters the outfield at 4 a.m. in preparation for a night game. Watering of the infield takes place much later, as Dodger fans know. This time Schwab has no problems in holding down the dust.

As the fellow said aboard the Titanic, "I know I ordered ice, but this is ridiculous."

Stanford Mistakes Aid Cougars, 21-6

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — A blocked quick kick, a 92-yard kickoff return and a short pass gave Washington State University a 21-6 win over Stanford Saturday in the Cougars' first Big Six football game.

Washington State junior end Clete Baltes tied a school record for pass interceptions in a single game as he picked off three Stanford aerials, one of which set up the Cougars' final scoring drive.

After a see-saw first period WSU backed Stanford into a corner on junior halfback Kenny Graham's punt to the Indian seven. On the first play of the second period Stanford halfback Stan Lindskog tried a quick kick.

• • • •

WSU SOPHOMORE guard Jim Paton, who weighs 210, broke through the giant Stanford line and blocked the kick. Linebacker Gery Gehrmann followed the ball into the end zone and fell on it for a touchdown.

The Cougars scored again as the second half opened when Graham took the kickoff on his own eight, faked a hand-off to junior halfback John Browne, squirted through the defenders and out-raced both blockers and pursuers for the touchdown.

Baltes' third pass interception set up WSU's final score when he took Stanford quarterback Steve Thurlow's pass on the Stanford 24. Six plays later, with the ball on the 11, quarterback Dave Mathieson passed to sophomore end Jerry Shaw in the end zone.

• • • •

STANFORD managed to get onto the scoreboard on the second play of the fourth period when senior fullback Ed Cummings plunged over from the one, capping a 46-yard drive of eight plays.

The win, Washington State's sixth in a row over Stanford, gave the Cougars their best early season record in 26 years. The 1936 season opened with six consecutive wins. Only a tie with Arizona State mars WSU's four-game record thus far.

The Cougar's record-setting pass catcher, Hugh Campbell, covered by two Stanford defenders and three photographers for a national magazine, failed to garner a single reception.

In the statistics, it was Stanford's game all the way with the Indians chalking up 238 yards to WSU's 84 and eight first downs to Washington State's three. But Stanford fumbled four times and lost three of them while WSU lost only one fumble and had no passes intercepted.

Blades Fall in Overtime

CALGARY — Lou Jankowski swooped in front of the Blades net to beat Jack McCartan with the winning goal at 7:23 of sudden-death overtime before 1,832 fans Saturday night as Calgary scored its second consecutive Western Hockey League victory, 2-1.

Jankowski circled the defense after John Kosiancic and Norm Johnson fed him a pass inside the blue line at the right point. He gave McCartan no chance and ended a splendid goaltending duel between McCartan and Stampeder Roy Edwards.

LAST-SECOND PENALTY KOs SAN JOSE WIN

SAN JOSE (AP) — An illegal procedure penalty on the final play of the game wiped out a San Jose State touchdown and left the winless Spartans with a 12-12 tie against Idaho Saturday.

A sparse crowd of 2,500, braving a steady drizzle, saw San Jose State's hopes of breaking a five-game losing streak erased when officials flagged down an eight-yard pass from Rand Carter to Walt Roberts in the Idaho end zone.

Hank Hollingworth, I, P-T excutive sports editor, will serve as guest chairman for this week's Long Beach State Monday Morning Quarterback Breakfast at the school cafeteria.

Soph Fullback Paces Duke to 21-7 Victory Over Bears

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Soph fullback Mike Curtis scored twice as once-beaten Duke built up a 14-0 halftime lead and rolled to a 21-7 victory over California's Bears here Saturday.

A shirt-sleeved crowd of 31,000 saw the Blue Devils score in each of the first three quarters. The stingy Duke line, which had been leaky all season, yielded the Golden Bears only 12 net yards rushing during the entire game and halted several threats.

Trailing by two touchdowns, California took the second half kickoff and slammed 64 yards in 11 plays. Quarterback Larry Balliett, who sparked the drive, flipped to halfback Allen Nelson for the touchdown.

Duke took the next kickoff and showed more fireworks by going 74 yards for a touchdown, with Curtis scoring from the 14. Bill Reynolds kicked his third extra point and the score was 21-7.

California moved to the Duke five late in the fourth period after recovering a fumble, but the big blue line held.

Duke got its first touchdown midway in the first quarter when halfback Mark Leggett slashed over left tackle from the six to cap a 58-yard march.

The Blue Devils got another touchdown in the second period when Curtis went over from the three to climax a drive that started on the California 45.

California halfback Tom Blanchfield attempted a field goal from the Duke 27 in the first period, but Duke center Ken Williams rushed in to block it at the line of scrimmage.

California's ground game could do nothing against the hard-charging Duke line. But the Bears rolled up 203 yards passing by hitting on 15 of 26 attempts.

Dilday Death Is Sports Loss

Long Beach athletics lost one of its biggest benefactors—indeed, probably its BIGGEST benefactor over a span of years—with the passing a few days ago of Jack Dilday.

Dilday's contributions to sports in the City of Long Beach never could be correctly estimated because he aided so many people that even a certified public accountant couldn't keep an accurate record.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

But two of Jack's major accomplishments will live long after the rest of us are gone. His first was spearheading a drive some years ago to construct a decent football stadium. His second was being a founder and charter member of the now-nationally recognized Long Beach Century Club.

Dilday stood on the corner of Pine Avenue many afternoons securing signatures for a bond issue to erect Veterans Stadium. He labored incessantly to encourage voters that a city the size of Long Beach was remiss in not boasting a respectable stadium.

Veterans Stadium stands as quiet testimony today that Jack Dilday succeeded.

When the Century Club was founded almost seven years ago, Dilday was one of a handful of sports boosters who believed such an organization could be a success in Long Beach. No need to chronicle the club's success here. Seven years later, the hundreds of activities and hundreds of athletes aided by the Century Club are again quiet testimony that Jack Dilday succeeded.

A leukemia victim, Jack knew two months ago that his time on this earth was running out. As late as 48 hours before his death, however, he insisted he was on the upgrade and wondered to what new sports project he might lend assistance.

"Let's do something to get stands built on the other side of the stadium," he suggested. "The place still doesn't look right the way it is."

Maybe, some day, something will be done to fulfill one of Jack Dilday's last wishes to eliminate the present half-vast stadium.

At any rate, today at 2 p.m. at Dilday Mortuary hundreds of people from every walk of life will pay final respects to Jack Dilday, husband, father, sportsman and genuine friend. Jack has gone, but he will never be forgotten.

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

. . . The rain-scarred World Series is ruining nerves of the Dodger family. Promised word on the 1963 managerial situation right after completion of the World Series, the family now is concerned that the Series won't be over 'til Thanksgiving . . . and nobody will be able to eat his turkey dinner without indigestion.

. . . P.S. Keep your money on Walter Alston, with Chuck Dressen for the place spot and Pete Reiser third. Leo Durocher has all but been scratched. He came up lame.

. . . 'Tis hoped here that the concession snafu at Long Beach Arena is cleared up soon. Complaints have been growing about long lines, poor help and general apathy in service. The groans reached a peak Friday and Saturday with sellout crowds at the circus there. With a big schedule of winter basketball, hockey and ice shows, there's no room for any further concession collapse.

. . . Victims of another snafu were the Millikan High football players. The sporting goods store that promised the Rams their new uniforms three weeks before the season, delivered them three weeks AFTER the season commenced. Thus, Carl Berneker's kids played their opening games in horrid, old practice uniforms.

CLAUDE JENNINGS, the court reporter, umpire and sportsman-about-town, hopes he's never called upon to be a first base umpire in a World Series involving Bill Skowron and Willie McCovey. "They both pull their foot off the bag too soon," moaned Jennings, an oldtime first baseman in the classic Chuck Stevens tradition himself. "Especially that Skowron. If I was the umpire there, I'd rule that runner safe every time the foot comes off. And that would be almost every play."

. . . Speaking of umpires, the colorful PCL arbiter Emmett Ashford is being considered as a referee in the American Basketball League. Racial prejudice has kept Ashford from the major leagues, but the ABL could take a big step forward by inking flamboyant Emmett.

. . . Long Beach's ABL Chiefs, who'll radio all their home games, will play their final five "home" games in Hawaii next March because Arena dates are unavailable. They'll still play 22 contests here, which should be enough basketball season for anybody.

SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TD

Huskies Surge Back for 14-13 Win

PORTLAND (UPI) — Charlie Mitchell scored a now-you-see-it, now-you-don't touchdown with less than three minutes to play to bring Washington a 14-13 football victory over Oregon State Saturday.

Mitchell climaxed a 60-yard drive by the Huskies after Lee Bernhardi recovered an Oregon State fumble on his own 40.

Washington drove to the Beavers' two-yard line where Mitchell took a handoff and slanted into the line. He was knocked down at the line of scrimage but reached into the end zone and touched the ball to the turf for the tying touchdown.

Then he jerked the ball back under him before the onrushing Beavers could snatch it away. Jim Norton's conversion decided the game.

The nation's leading passing combination of quarterback Terry Baker and end Vern Burke, until then, had Oregon State in a 13-7 lead.

A crowd of 30,030, held below the estimated 35,000 by the tail of typhoon Frieda which struck Oregon Friday night, saw the Huskies escape with their third win of the season. They have tied one.

The storm smashed Western Oregon with winds up to 80 miles-per-hour in the Portland area and threatened cancellation of the game because of damage to the roof of Multnomah Stadium. But engineers pronounced the structure safe.

Baker completed seven passes to Burke for 103 yards and Oregon State's two touchdowns in the second period.

The imperturbable senior quarterback took Oregon State 80 yards in eight plays for the first score. Three passes to Burke accounted for 55 of those yards. The touchdown came on a six-yard toss to his favorite receiver and Steve Clark kicked the extra point.

The Huskies, protecting a No. 6 ranking in the United Press International coaches' poll, stormed back 56 yards in three plays. Sophomore fullback Junior Coffey ran 43 yards for the score and Norton kicked the extra point for a 7-7 tie.

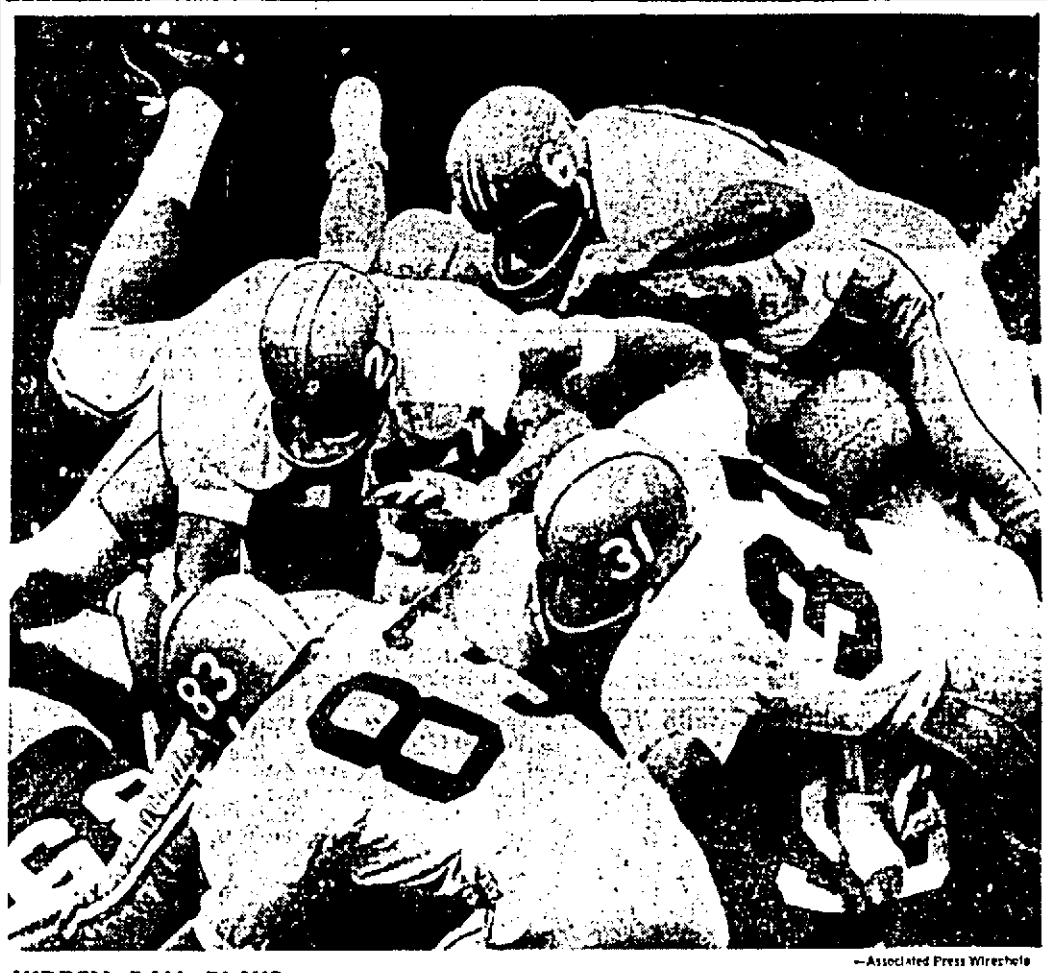

Baker and Oregon State moved 90 yards in the last 90 seconds of the half. Burke struck paydirt on a 10-yard toss from Baker with 25 seconds to play. Clark missed what might have been the tying extra point.

Baker added another 229 yards to his total offense record. He completed 10 of 23 passes for 144 yards and gained 85 rushing. Burke, who led the nation in catches before the game, now has 32 in four games.

Spartans Breeze Past Wolverines

By JERRY WYNN
I. P-T Staff Writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. — In this country of Paul Bunyan and football giants, Michigan State strides haughtily. Before a homecoming crowd of 77,501, the mighty Spartans crushed arch rival Michigan, 28-0, Saturday in a game which boils the blood of every Michigander.

Michigan State, which couldn't beat Stanford in what may eventually rank as the upset of the season, had far too many hungry workhorses and fleet ponies for its sister school from Ann Arbor. Clad in green and white, they rambled for 459 yards through a maze of amazed maize and blue Wolverines.

Fullback George Saimes, 190 pounds of probably the best double-duty player in the nation, tore through the Michigan line for 99 yards in 16 carries as well as sparkling on defense.

Halfback Dewey Lincoln accumulated 139 yards in seven flights with the ball, and fellow speedster Sherman Lewis scored three of the four MSU touchdowns and caught a pass for a two-point conversion to account for 20 points.

Against this array of talent, Michigan could counter with little. Star halfback Dave Raimey was snowed under repeatedly by the massive Spartan line and the Wolverines' four quarterbacks hit on only 7 of 22 passes.

* * * *

MICHIGAN STATE scored twice in the first quarter and once each in the third and fourth quarters, and might have sent the score higher if not for seven fumbles, five of which were recovered by Michigan.

Michigan State tallied its first touchdown on a faked field goal attempt. Smith, the apparent holder, passed instead to Lewis for a 12-yard score to complete a 43-yard, nine-play drive.

Michigan fumbled the ball back to MSU moments later and the Spartans moved 34 yards in five plays to score on an 18-yard pass from quarterback Charlie Migyanka to halfback Lonnie Sanders.

* * * *

MICHIGAN had one chance to get back into contention after recovering a fumble by Lincoln on the MSU 39. But the bid was quelled on the 18. That was the Wolverines' deepest penetration of the game.

Michigan State scored on its first thrust of the third quarter. After Saimes intercepted a pass on the Michigan 33, the Spartans ran the ball to the 3 from where Lewis bolted into the end zone. He then snared a pass from Smith for the two-point conversion.

The final end zone excursion by the Spartans and Lewis came early in the fourth quarter. The 154-pound dart tallied on a five-yard run to climax a 54-yard, 11-play drive.

Buckeyes Break Rush Record, Trample Illini

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Ohio State's bruising backs bolted through Illinois for 517 yards Saturday, a new Big Ten single game rushing record, on their way to a 51-15 victory.

The Buckeyes, a 33-point favorite for this mismatch—the largest point spread margin ever set up for a Big Ten game — made the gamblers look good with their smashing ground attack.

Though Illinois fought from behind to earn a 7-7 deadlock in the first period, Ohio State opened up and ran the gap to 51-7 before the Illini tallied again on a 90-yard pass play from Mike Taliaferro to Mike Yavorski with 10 seconds left in the game.

Illinois, suffering its 13th consecutive loss, showed strength only in the opening period. The Illini started from their 28 and managed to score on a 10-yard pass from Taliaferro to Rich Callaghan on the second play of the second period.

The Buckeyes, pre-season favorite for the national championship but upset by UCLA, 9-7, last week, had all the incentive to win. They were ragged in the first period, but scored each of the three times they had the ball in the second period.

At the half Ohio State had rung up 259 yards on the ground and had a 24-7 edge. In the second 30 minutes the Buckeyes had the ball six times and scored four times, running up 258 yards rushing.

The previous Big Ten rushing record for a single game was 465 yards by the Buckeyes against Indiana in 1956. The Buckeyes also hit on two of seven passes Saturday for nine yards and a total offense figure of 526 yards, short of the Big Ten record of 572.

Northwestern Passing Attack Shocks Gophers

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Northwestern's explosive passing attack, with Tom Myers coming up with the big play, broke a 22-22 tie with a 65-yard aerial to halfback Willie Stinson with 3:56 left and went on to upend Minnesota, 34-22, in a Big Ten football battle Saturday.

The Gophers had just scored on a 52-yard burst up the middle by fullback Jay Sharp and reserve quarterback Bob Sadek passed to end Ray Zitzloff for the conversion to knot it 22-22.

On the first play after the ensuing kickoff, Myers passed to Stinson in the right flat and the elusive 170-pound speedster shook off a tackle at midfield and outsprinted the Gopher defenders to score standing up.

Minnesota gambled on fourth down in its home territory after that and the Wildcats got the ball on downs at the Minnesota 25. Northwestern drove in from there for the clincher two minutes from the end with Myers passing three yards to Paul Flatley for the score.

Myers fired four touchdown passes to obliterate Minnesota's record of not having yielded a point in two previous games. The magnificent sophomore quarterback tossed a 10-yard scoring aerial to Gary Crum to cap an 80-yard Wildcat drive in the first quarter. He later threw nine yards to fullback Steve Murphy for another score before the final two strikes that broke it up.

Soph Sub Sparkles in 14-10 Iowa Win

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Young Bobby Wallace, a virtually untried sophomore quarterback, took over for ailing star Matt Szykowny Saturday and led favored Iowa to a 14-10 Big Ten football victory over stubborn Indiana in 80-degree weather.

The 19-year-old upstart from Alliance, O., scored the winning touchdown in the second period and operated Jerry Burns' T-formation almost flawlessly.

For Indiana it was the 16th consecutive loss in Big Ten warfare and eighth in a row at the hands of Iowa.

Wallace, guiding Iowa's offense the entire game, completed six of 10 passes for 68 yards and capped the Hawkeyes' winning touchdown drive, a 77-yard march, by crashing over from the 1-foot line on a quarterback sneak. Jay Roberts booted his second conversion and that was enough for the winning margin.

INDIANA had led briefly when Luke George kicked a 43-yard field goal.

Coach Phil Dickens' underdogs, who haven't won a Big Ten game since they licked Michigan nearly three years ago, stunned Iowa by scoring in six plays as the game opened, shifty Marv Woodson breaking into the clear for a 54-yard gallop.

Undefeated Kansas Rips Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (AP)— Kansas, undefeated in the Big Eight, overpowered Iowa State, 29-8, for the Jayhawks' second conference victory Saturday.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Jayhawks scored on drives of 40, 58, 70 and 49 yards with halfback Tony Leiker scoring on runs of 7 and 15 yards. Ken Coleman scored on a one-yard plunge and Gale Sayers ran 8 yards for the final Kansas touchdown.

Iowa State's homecoming day crowd of 22,500 had only one opportunity for elation when the Cyclones narrowed Kansas' 14-0 lead with a fourth-quarter score on a one-yard run by Dave Hoppmann with 11 minutes to play.

After Tom Vaughn ran for the two-point conversion to trim the margin to 14-8, Kansas drove 70 yards in 11 plays to assure its fifth victory in a row over Iowa State, and Sayers' late touchdown widened the gap.

Man to Man

WYNN MEADOR

By JERRY WYNN

DETROIT—A favorite son of Downey will try to brake the skid of the Rams today by throttling the custom-special Detroit Lions in the Motor City.

He is compact-sized Ed Meador, the outstanding defensive corner back of the Rams. Usually drawing the most difficult receivers to cover, the baby-faced 5-11, 193-pound four-year veteran has been the sparkplug of the Ram secondary.

In Washington last Sunday, Meador put handcuffs on Redskin star Bobby Mitchell for the first time this season, blocked one field goal attempt, and had a part in another blocked kick.

How do you go about blocking a kick, Ed?

"The whole idea is to have no one block you. In the Redskin game, I saw that their flanker back was concentrating on our inside rush. So I told our linebackers to rush harder inside to give me more room on the outside."

What was your secret to stopping Mitchell?

"I was just lucky. We played quite a bit of zone defense, and he happened to be on my side. He's a good receiver and one of the fastest men in the league."

Who are the toughest receivers for you to cover?

"Every one of them. Every team has got a good one today. Johnny Morris of the Bears always gives me a lot of trouble. It's funny because we are friends and were in the Army together. Frank Clarke of Dallas gave me a pretty rough time and Boyd Dowler of the Packers is so big, I need a ladder to get up to him."

Has there been an improvement in the Rams secondary this season?

"No, as far as pass interceptions go. We've only gotten two in four games. But we have the makings of a real good unit. So much of pass defending depends on a good pass rush. It's hard to evaluate."

Who do you consider the top defensive halfbacks?

"Night Train Lane of the Lions is one of the best, so is Jess Whittenton of Green Bay. There's Yale Lary of the Lions and Jim Patton of the Giants and a lot of other good ones."

Who are the toughest runners for you to tackle?

"As far as power runners, the toughest for me is Nick Pietrosante of the Lions. That rascal's so big, I can't get my arms around him. Jim Taylor and Jimmy Brown are both strong and tough."

Has defense in pro football caught up with the offense?

"I won't say it has caught up, but defense has become a lot more complex even in my four years. That is the reason the offenses are pressed to change their strategy so often now. Every team uses a spread at times to foul up the defense."

Do you get kidded about your size by other players?

"No, I'm as big as Arnett and Bass. Nobody kids me on the field, but in my business (Ducommun Metals and Supply Co.) I have been stopped many times on a sales call by people wanting to know if I'm really a pro football player. All they think of is the John LoVeteres."

What is wrong with the Rams this season.

"I don't know what to say, Jerry. We just wish we knew the answer. One thing is that we've made too many mistakes that cost us. Without them, we could have won three of the four games we lost."

How are the players reacting to losing each week?

"I can only speak for myself. And I know that losing makes me angry. I try to work harder to play better. I think the rest of the players feel the same way. We've had some of our best practices this week."

Do the Rams have a chance to beat the Lions today?

"Sure we do. We respect them. They have the best line to come along in a long time. But we don't fear them. We can beat them."

What has been your greatest thrill as a player?

"I've had a lot of them in pro football. I think the top one was being selected to play in the Pro Bowl in 1960. It sure would be a tremendous thrill to win some games this year."

METS BUY N. SHERRY, DICK SMITH

NEW YORK (UPI) —The New York Mets announced Saturday night that they have purchased catcher Norm Sherry and outfielder Dick Smith from the Dodgers in "a straight cash transaction."

Sherry, 31-year-old brother of Dodger 1959 World Series hero Larry Sherry, played in only 35 games this year and batted .182 with three homers and 16 runs batted in. In two previous seasons with the Dodgers he compiled a .271 batting average.

Smith, 23 and right-handed all the way, batted .255 for Omaha in the American Association this season. He hit 19 homers, drove in 79 runs and stole 30 bases.

Miami Shocks Purdue

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Quarterback Ernie Kellerman and end Bob Jencks teamed up Saturday as Miami of Ohio upset butterfingered Purdue, the nation's ninth ranked team, 10-7.

Kellerman passed 88 yards to Jencks for the Miami touchdown in the second period while Jencks booted the extra point and kicked a 31-yard field goal, missing on another 39-yard try for a three-pointer.

Purdue threatened five times in addition to Ron DiGravio's 49-yard scoring pass to Forest Farmer which gave the Boilermakers a brief 7-3 lead. Fumbles halted two of the threats, two others ended in unsuccessful field goal attempts by Skip Ohl and the Miami defense halted the final threat on its own three-yard line late in the game.

A fumble by Miami's Scott Tyler on his own 18 early in the third period set up another Boilermaker threat but a penalty and a 14-yard loss when DiGravio was trapped trying to pass halted the drive and Ohl's field goal attempt was short.

Fumbles by Tom Yakubowski on the Miami 19 and Terry Marcoline on the 24 stopped two other third-period Purdue threats.

Badgers Score First Win in 34 Years Over N. Dame

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Wisconsin unveiled a bruising defensive game to go with its powerful offense Saturday to beat Notre Dame, 17-8, for its third consecutive win this year and first win over the Irish since 1928.

Quarterback Ron VanderKelen took care of the offense, scoring the clinching touchdown in the third quarter on a one-yard plunge and passing 25 yards to all-America end Pat Richter for the Badgers' other score.

But the big story was Wisconsin's defense, relatively untested in easy wins over Indiana and New Mexico State.

Several times the Badgers gave Notre Dame scoring chances, but each time the defense proved up to the crisis. Four Wisconsin passes were intercepted, three by Tommy MacDonald, and four fumbles were lost, with two of the recoveries coming in Wisconsin territory. Once when Ed Hoerster recovered on the Wisconsin 24, the Badgers forced the Irish back one yard in four plays.

• • • •

THE ONLY Notre Dame score came in the final three minutes following a 68-yard march. Don Hogan capped the drive with a three-yard run and Denis Szot passed to Jack Snow for the two-point conversion. Snow set up the TD with a fine reception.

Szot engineered the drive, the only one of a long afternoon for Notre Dame, now 1-2 for the season.

Wisconsin moved to a 10-0 lead in the first quarter with Gary Kroner booting a 34-yard field goal and VanderKelen hitting Richter at the end of a 64-yard drive for the other score. Kroner converted the first of his two PAT's for the day.

It was Richter's seventh consecutive scoring game and he increased his school record for touchdowns on pass receptions.

Wisconsin's second touchdown came in the third period following a recovered fumble by Dion Kempthorne on the Notre Dame five. Merritt Norvell carried the ball to the one-foot line and VanderKelen went over for the touchdown.

• • • •

THE BADGERS threatened twice in the second period, with Gerry Gray intercepting in the end zone to stop one drive and MacDonald intercepting on the last play of the half to halt another. MacDonald also intercepted a pass in the end zone in the third quarter.

VanderKelen, who entered the game with 12 completed passes in 18 throws, completely ripped Notre Dame defenses apart in the first half by completing his first eight passes. He ended with throws for 122 yards.

Nebraska Rallies to Nip Wolfpack

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Halfback Dennis Stuewe raced 13 yards for a touchdown with just over a minute remaining to carry the undefeated Nebraska Cornhuskers to a 19-14 football win over North Carolina State Saturday.

North Carolina State scored the first time it got the ball, with quarterback Jim Rossi carrying it over from three yards out.

Joe Scarpati almost broke the hearts of the 38,000 fans in the third quarter when he returned a kickoff 91 yards for a score after Nebraska had taken a 7-6 lead.

It looked for a while like a two-point conversion the Wolfpack got and one Nebraska didn't would make the difference.

North Carolina State went ahead 14-7 on a two-point conversion following Scarpati's long run.

After the Huskers scored their second touchdown in the fourth quarter on a one-yard plunge by Stuewe, a pass for two extra points fell incomplete and left them a point behind. Dennis Claridge threw one pass for 35 yards and another for 16 yards in the 80-yard drive.

The final drive for the winning touchdown went 68 yards with Claridge passes again the chief factor.

Colorado Drops Another, 36-16

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Slow starting Oklahoma State came alive in the second quarter Saturday and raced past Colorado, 36-16, in a Big Eight football game.

The Cowboys, sluggish and erring in the first quarter, breathed new life after Don Karns took a short pass from quarterback Mike Miller behind the line and zig-zagged 60 yards through a maze of Colorado defenders for the touchdown that put OSU ahead to stay.

From that point the deeper Cowboys simply wore down the scrappy Buffalos who had gone ahead early in the second quarter when end Ken Blair stole an OSU pass and rambled 37 yards to a touchdown. When Larry Ethridge hit Blair with a 2-point conversion pass, Colorado led 8-3—but not for long.

Karns coupled with Dave Hanna's 23-yard first quarter field goal put OSU back in the lead nine plays later.

Then when Colorado failed to move the ball on its next possession, halfback Don Derrick began a personal crusade against the tiring Buffs.

Derrick returned Blair's punt 18 yards to the Colorado 47, then ripped off 26 yards to take it to the Buff 20. He added eight more before Miller ran it over from the one.

Missouri Blasts Kansas State, 32-0

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Unbeaten Missouri overpowered Kansas State 32-0 in its Big Eight Conference opener Saturday, with halfback Bill Tobin and Johnny Roland operating smoothly behind a big, tough line.

Tobin, a 193-pound senior, caught two touchdown passes, one from Roland, and set up another touchdown with a 21-yard burst. Roland, a fleet and clever 191-pound sophomore, scored twice besides his 9-yard touchdown flick to Tobin.

Coach Dan Devine then inserted Keith Weber, the talented sophomore quarterback and Weber directed a crew of third-stringers to the fifth Missouri touchdown. Halfback Dave Harvey took a pitchout from Weber and passed five yards to sophomore halfback Vince Tobin in the end zone.

The undermanned Wildcats, who have yet to score in four games this season, moved into Missouri territory only twice and never passed the Tiger 45.

Devine opened up his passing game a little Saturday. Quarterback Jim Johnson threw for one touchdown, an 11-yarder to Bill Tobin with 22 seconds left in the first half. Johnson, a left-handed thrower, set this one up with a 40-yard pass to end Jack Palmer.

Chargers Trampled by Bills

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Powered by Warren Rabb, Cookie Gilchrist and a savage defense, the long-suffering Buffalo Bills trampled the San Diego Chargers, 35-10, Saturday night for their first American Football League victory of the season.

The victory-starved crowd of 20,074 roared its approval of the smashing triumph, which ended a six-game losing streak for the Bills. It was icing on the cake as Lou Saban celebrated his 41st birthday with his first win as Buffalo coach.

The Bills had lost five in a row this season as well as the final game of the 1961 campaign. Ironically, San Diego started the Buffalo losing streak last December.

Rabb, the lanky signal-caller from LSU, tossed three touchdown passes, two of spectacular variety, and the 243-pound Gilchrist scored twice while piling up valuable yardage.

Rabb hit speedy flanker back Albert Dubenion for a 19-yard scoring pass in the first period, Glenn Bass for a sensational 76-yard TD in the second and found Gilchrist on a seven-yard pitch in the third quarter. Cookie flashed over from the one-yard line 33 seconds before intermission to give the Bills a 21-3 bulge.

Rookie Carl Charon of Buffalo made a leaping interception of a Dick Wood pass early in the fourth period and ran 51 yards to set up Wayne Crow's two-yard touchdown plunge.

World's Top Drivers in Rich Riverside Prix

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Roger Penske, in the pole position, and other American drivers will try to fend off highly touted foreign entrants today in the $32,000 Riverside Grand Prix for sports cars.

Penske of Gladwyne, Pa., driving a Zerez-Duralite Climax, set the pace for the twisting 2.6-mile course with an average speed of 96.5 miles an hour in Friday's qualifications.

Doug Hooper of La Crescenta, Calif., driving a 1963 Chevrolet Corvette Stingray, won the invitational three-hour Enduro Saturday, in a prelude to today's action. More than 10,000 fans viewed the race under sunny skies.

Hooper was clocked at an average speed of 84.06 miles an hour for 262.2 miles as the new Stingray was put into competition for the first time.

Billy Krause, 1960 Grand Prix winner, led the Enduro for the first half-hour in another new car—his Ford AC Cobra—until the car's rear axle broke. Krause of Long Beach, Calif., has been plagued by car trouble and notified officials that he would not attempt to qualify in the consolation race today.

Sharing the front position with Penske will be Bruce McLaren Surrey, England, No. 1 man for the Cooper driving team, and Walt Hansgen, Westfield, N. J., driving a Cooper Buick.

Jim Hall of Midland, Tex., and oilman who has his own racing track at home, will start his Chaparral-Chevy from the fourth position.

The Americans face a formidable array of experienced European grand prix drivers including the current world championship point leader Graham Hill of England. Bespectacled Masten Gregory, an American living abroad, Sweden's Joakim Bonnier, Australia's Jack Brabham and England's Innes Ireland were among the top 15 qualifiers.

Wismer Plans 'New' Football Season

The battle for the entertainment dollar throughout the country is becoming more bitter all the time and it is leading to some radical thinking about schedule changes . . . especially in pro football.

Baseball and pro football now overlap for a period of two and one-half months, but that isn't all of it.

The pro basketball teams started their exhibition games three weeks ago and will open their regular schedule shortly, and ice hockey already has completed its pre-season card and started its championship race.

HARRY WISMER
No TV Competition

So, there has been some serious discussion by various groups in recent months to map out a solution for their respective problems.

The American Football League in particular has found the opposition to its product quite oppressive as it continues to fight desperately for survival.

One of the most controversial figures in sports, Harry Wismer, major domo of the AFL's New York Titans, believes he has hit upon a plan that would give his league a tremendous boost.

It's a simple solution, he points out. "We should start our championship race late in October after the World Series and continue through February . . . two months after the rival NFL closes down," he says.

Wismer says the plan to change seasons will be put before the league owners next January when they meet in New Orleans. "In January and February we can command more national TV money while being exposed to a larger viewing audience," he points out.

"THE SPONSORS ARE EAGER to give it a try . . . especially because there will be no competition on national TV beginning next year since the national telecasts of the NBA have been canceled," Harry explains.

Wismer is the one who arranged for the excellent TV schedule that ultimately could put the AFL on solid footing if it can hold out . . . especially if he can sell everyone on the new "season."

There is no denying that the league would have folded after its first year if it hadn't been for the TV contract, which will have given the eight clubs a total of $4,200,000 by the end of this season — the loop's third.

Each club got $185,000 the first season, $115,000 last year and a high of $225,000 this trip.

BY THE END OF THE CURRENT campaign, the AFL will have suffered losses totaling around $7 million. Thus, you can see what the "blood bath" would have been without TV.

By comparison, the NFL is working on the first year of its new television contract under which each club gets about $325,000.

Wismer was questioned about the weather problems that are sure to pop up under his new plan. "Yes, it would prove troublesome at times . . . but no more so than it does now in late November and early December. We naturally would have to schedule as many games as possible in our 'warm-weather' cities during January and February."

Despite the league's heavy losses, Wismer insists it will continue operation. He says the league will vote in New Orleans for next season and "there will be other changes that will strengthen the league."

MEANWHILE, SOME OWNERS in the NFL are looking for ways to boost profits even more . . . while producing a better schedule.

Art Modell, the young president of the Cleveland Browns, would like to see the present schedule of 14 games boosted to 16.

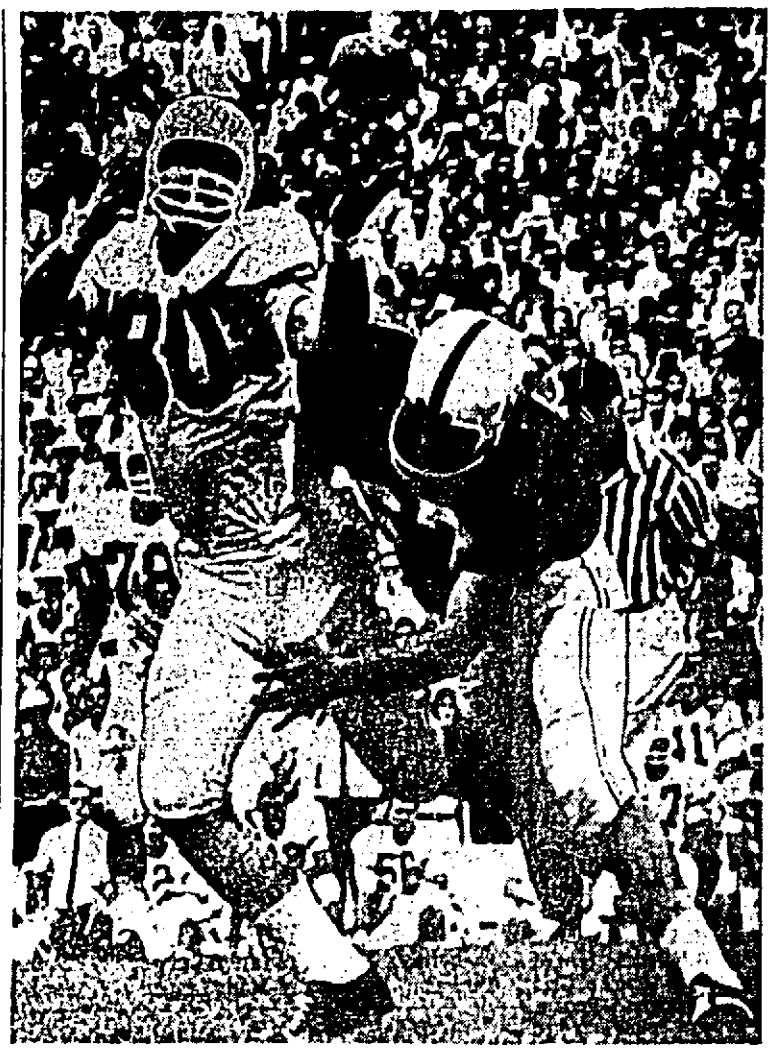

It could be done he merely switching two games from exhibition status to championship rating without raising the present overall total of 19 games.

Others agree that this might be a good idea for two reasons: (1) the original theory of pre-season games no longer is followed closely, and (2) the two extra games would boost the take from television.

Exhibitions once were played primarily to test new talent. The results were not important.

Now, however, many clubs find the exhibition schedule a great source of revenue and as a result the outcome of the games is much more important. Coaches no longer can experiment as freely in many instances as in the past.

And as long as they have to play it to the hilt, why not turn the exhibitions into games that count in the standings.

Oklahoma Fumbles Give Longhorns 9-6 Victory

DALLAS (UPI) — Shoeless Tony Crosby's 26-yard second quarter field goal provided No. 1 ranked Texas with a fist-swinging 9-6 intersectional victory over arch-rival Oklahoma Saturday.

Crosby's three-point punch and the recovery of an Oklahoma fumble in the Sooners' end zone by center Perry McWilliams was all that kept the Southwest Conference co-champions in the ball game against an Oklahoma team that defeated itself with fumbles and penalties.

The game erupted into a free-swinging gang fight with four seconds left on the clock after an Oklahoma player piled on Texas quarterback Johnny Genung as Texas ran out the clock. The fight lasted about one minute without any apparent major casualties despite the fact players from both benches joined in the fray.

Oklahoma stayed in the temper-frayed contest with a pair of specially-designed desperation passes just as the first half ended. Both were long throws from sophomore halfback Ronnie Fletcher to sophomore halfback Lance Rentzel. The first covered 39 yards and the touchdown throw was a 34-yarder that found Rentzel alone in the end zone.

Otherwise, the two great lines fought each other to a standstill and offensive thrills were rare as Texas won its fourth game of the season without defeat and the fifth in a row against Oklahoma in the 57-game series between the two clubs.

Oklahoma's linebackers kept Texas' talented running attack sputtering much of the humid afternoon despite the fact the Longhorns gained 198 yards rushing to only 66 for Oklahoma.

Texas' longest sustained drive was a 36-yard affair at the end of the game while running out the clock.

Both teams lost the ball twice on fumbles, but the two the Longhorns recovered meant the ball game. McWilliams got one of them for the touchdown and reserve quarterback Duke Carlisle got the other to pave the way for Crosby's field goal.

Oregon's Renfro Runs Rice Ragged

HOUSTON (UPI) — Oregon's marvelous Mel Renfro scored one touchdown, and set up three others with runs of 45, 20, and 30 yards Saturday night as the Ducks defeated Rice 31-12.

Renfro's one yard scoring plunge, Buck Corey's 27-yard field goal and Ron Veres' 17-yard touchdown pass to end Paul Burleson piled up a 17-0 halftime lead for Oregon.

Rice came back with two third-quarter touchdowns on a three-yard sneak by quarterback Walter McReynolds and a five-yard end sweep by halfback Gene Fleming. Both extra point attempts from placement failed.

Oregon's sophomore quarterback Bob Berry added third and fourth quarter touchdowns on runs of one and eleven yards. Corey kicked all four extra points for the Ducks.

The explosive Renfro rambled for 141 yard rushing, including gainers of 30, 18, 45, and 20 yards in addition to a 65-yard pass interception runback that set up a touchdown.

Renfro snatched off a desperation pass from Rice's McReynolds and weaved to the Owl 17-yard line before going out of bounds with one second left in the first half.

Veres came off the bench, rolled out on the next play and hit Burleson with the scoring strike in the end zone from which Rice never recovered.

The Webfoot's offense worked so well Oregon did not have to punt anytime in the game. However, fumbles and interceptions stopped several Duck drives.

LSU Topples Miami, 17-3

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Louisiana State's Tigers toppled Miami from the unbeaten ranks Saturday night, 17-3, despite a brilliant passing exhibition by Hurricane quarterback George Mira.

Mira, a 6-foot, 175-pound junior, completed 14 of 33 passes for 169 yards but for the first time this year failed to throw a touchdown pass in a game.

Miami grabbed a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on Bobby Wilson's 20-yard field goal, but LSU shot ahead 10-3 in the second quarter on a 30-yard field goal by Lynn Amedee and a 26-yard touchdown run by Jerry Stovall.

LSU put the game on ice in the fourth quarter when sophomore Danny LeBlanc cracked over left tackle for 10 yards and his first collegiate touchdown. Amedee tacked on his second conversion of the night.

The defeat was the first for Miami in four games and left LSU with a 3-0-1 record.

LSU fullback Preston Ward recovered a Miami fumble on the Hurricane 20 to set up the Tigers' field goal. Three plays carried to the 13, and Amedee's field goal tied the score at 3-3.

Stovall streaked up the middle from the 26 to score.

Alabama Defense Throttles Houston

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Defensive specialist Lee Roy Jordan scored the winning touchdown and bulwarked an awesome Alabama defense Saturday as the Crimson Tide whipped Houston 14-3 in a blistering intersectional football game.

The stingy Tide threw Houston backs for a minus-49 rushing yardage. The Cougars managed to pick up 45 yards passing but still wound up with a four-yard deficit overall.

A brilliant pass interception and runback by Houston halfback Gene Ritch set up a 30-yard Cougar field goal by Bill McMillan late in the first period.

But the top-ranked Alabamans erased the deficit and went ahead early in the second quarter when the Houston center passed the ball over the head of fullback Bobby Brenzina as he went back to punt. Brenzina grabbed the ball in the end zone, but 'Bama end Charles Stephens shook the ball loose and Jordan grabbed it.

The Tide scored again midway in the third period, marching 65 yards in 12 plays. During the drive 'Bama coach Paul Bryant pulled his sophomore quarterback Joe Namath in favor of Jack Hurlbut. The 6-foot-1 Texan took the Tide in for the touchdown with halfback Cotton Clark going the final three yards.

Alabama has now run its unbeaten string to 22.

Arkansas Scared, but Wins

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The undefeated Arkansas Razorbacks, with quarterback Billy Moore the key man both in the air and on the ground, turned back Baylor 28-21 Saturday but only after experiencing a frightening second half.

The Razorbacks piled up a 28-7 lead in the first half only to have Baylor come back after intermission with its own passing attack behind quarterback Don Trull and terrorize them with a 29-yard touchdown aerial followed quickly by another score on the ground.

The victory was Arkansas' fourth and its second in Southwest Conference play where it is shooting for its fourth straight year as champion or co-champion.

Trull rocked the Razorbacks with the help of great receiving by Claude Pearson, James Ingram and Ronnie Goodwin. Goodwin speared the 29-yard touchdown toss in the third period. He also scored soon afterwards on a four-yard run.

Lothridge's Heroics Too Much for Vols

ATLANTA (AP) — Brilliant Billy Lothridge, Georgia Tech's triple-threat quarterback, ran, passed and kicked the powerful Yellow Jackets to a 17-0 triumph Saturday over Southeastern Conference football rival Tennessee.

A record Grant Field crowd of 52,223 shirtsleeved fans saw the 184-pound junior run for Tech's first touchdown, pass to his high school buddy, Billy Martin, for the second and kick a 26-yard field goal to cap another scoring drive.

Tech, bidding for a return to the national rankings, has scored 67 points while posting a 3-1 season record, and Lothridge has had a hand or a foot in every point. Tennessee is 0-3 for the year.

Georgia Tech, with only a 10-7 loss to Louisiana State faces one of its stiffest tests next week against unbeaten Auburn.

CLEMSON FALLS

Georgia in Upset, 24-16

CLEMSON, S.C., (UPI) — Georgia spotted Clemson a 98-yard touchdown on the opening kickoff Saturday, then roared back with long passes by Larry Rakestraw to upset the Tigers 24-16 in a wild inter-conference game.

The crowd of 30,000 predominantly Clemson fans figured an easy Tiger victory was at hand when sophomore halfback Hal Davis took the opening kick at his two and raced straight up the middle untouched for the second longest touchdown in Clemson history.

But Rakestraw got the Bulldogs back into the game with touchdown passes good for 77 and 74 yards and the favored Tigers couldn't get close again.

Will 'Radical Changes' Put Punch in Rams' Offense?

By JERRY WYNN
L. P-T Staff Writer

DETROIT — Shaken by four successive defeats, the Rams may shake up their lineup against the powerful Detroit Lions today.

Although coach Bob Waterfield has indicated he intends to field his regular lineup for the opening kickoff at Tiger Stadium, there is a good chance it will be altered radically early in the game.

The changes should see rookie Ron Miller replace Zeke Bratkowski at quarterback, Jon Arnett return to action at left halfback, Les Richter move from middle linebacker to offensive center and two other key defensive players take over the offensive guard positions.

The shakeup, if carried out, is intended to put more punch in an offense which has been limited to four touchdowns in its last two games, and one that has flopped all season.

The Rams will need every weapon at their disposal if they hope to puncture the steel-fabricated defensive fortress of the Lions, the strongest in football.

How good is the Detroit defense?

"Any team that can hold the Packers without touchdown is pretty good, wouldn't you say?" Waterfield answered one question with another.

The Ram coach was referring to Detroit's 9-7 loss to Green Bay last week, the Lions' first defeat after three impressive victories. Now paired against the winless Rams, Detroit is rated a substantial 15-point favorite.

But Lion coach George Wilson isn't taking the Rams lightly.

"They are just too good a football team to be winless in four games," was the message he delivered to his players this week . . . one being heard all around the league.

The Rams know from experience in past years of the sturdy Detroit defensive posture, but will be encountering for the first time the new-look explosive Lion offense.

With Milt Plum at quarterback, Detroit ran up 45, 45 and 29 points against the Steelers, 49ers and Colts in its first three games. Plum's passing to Terry Barr, Gail Cogdill and Jim Gibbons has been the big factor while the hard running of Nick Pietrosante and Danny Lewis has kept rival defenses honest.

The major question for the Rams is how well will Miller, the inexperienced rookie, respond against the pressure the Lion defense will exert upon him. It should be an interesting afternoon for Bucky Badger.

KAWANA, Japan, (UPI)—Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., shot a record-equalling 66 Saturday to help the United States retain the world amateur golf team championship.

Pittsburgh Surprised

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Tom Woodeshick's 49-yard romp took West Virginia out of a hole in the fourth quarter Saturday, and the Mountaineers—engineered by quarterback Jerry Yost—proceeded to score a 15-8 upset football victory over Pitt.

Woodeshick's run up the left sideline from his own nine to Pitt's 42 gave Yost a chance to direct the Mountaineers to their fourth consecutive victory, three of them shutouts. Left halfback Tom Yeater scored the winning touchdown on a four-yard dash with 5:34 left in the game.

THE Panthers, now 2-2, had spoiled West Virginia's unscored-on streak 10 minutes before on Paul Martha's dazzling 34-yard run and Jim Traficant's two-point conversion pass to Gene Sobolewski. That came with 34 seconds left in the third quarter.

Navy Routs Cornell, 41-0

ANNAPOLIS (UPI) — Navy's reorganized football team — studded with sophomores and juniors including quarterback Roger Staubach — exploded Saturday for a 41-0 rout of Cornell before a crowd of 23,358, largest in Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium history.

Navy coach Wayne Hardin, disappointed in his "veteran" players, by-passed most of them in favor of sophs and juniors and the strategy paid off in the Midshipmens' second victory of the season in four starts.

Staubach, a sophomore from Cincinnati, O., set up Navy's first TD, scored the second and third on "keeper" plays and added a fourth score late in the game on a 10-yard pass to end Ed Merino of Long Beach, Calif.

Orange Hands B.C. First Loss

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI)—Quarterback Wally Mahle, playing his first varsity game, scored Syracuse's only two touchdowns of the season Saturday to help defeat previously unbeaten Boston College, 12-0.

The six-foot-three, 180-pound sophomore from Erie, Pa., engineered a 74-yard drive in 16 plays in the opening series of the game and then drove over from the 10-yard line for the first score.

Mahle thrilled the crowd of 31,000 by scooting over from the 20-yard line with seven seconds remaining in the game for his second touchdown of the afternoon that capped an 86-yard drive.

Melee as Army's Bandits Steal Ball, Stun Penn State

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP)—Army pounced on a fourth quarter fumble and scored on a 15-yard pass from quarterback Cammy Lewis to Dick Peterson Saturday for a 9-6 upset victory over Penn State, ranked third nationally.

The fiercely played game ended in utter confusion. Twice the excited gray-uniformed cadet corps rushed out on the field prematurely and had to be removed before the last play could be run off. Army and Penn State players exchanged blows in a wild melee that brought both coaches off the bench just before the final gun.

The previously unbeaten Nittany Lions were leading 6-3 on field goals of 32 and 24-yards by Ron Coates when Tom Kerns, center on Army's brazen Chinese bandits, grabbed a ball on the Penn State 18 which had slipped from the hands of Junior Powell.

After two running plays had picked up only three yards and a pass had gone incomplete, Lewis hit Peterson with a scoring pass in the end zone. A pass attempt for the extra point failed.

ARMY'S other score in the bitterly waged battle before a record homecoming crowd of 31,000 at Michie Stadium came on a 35-yard field goal in the fading seconds of the opening period by Dick Heydt.

Army's surprise victory thwarted Penn State's bid for a "grand slam sweep" of the service academies. The powerful Penn Staters previously had beaten both Navy and the Air Force, and last week had won over Rice in Houston.

It was primarily a victory for the Chinese bandits, who stymied Penn State to four first downs and a total of 38 yards rushing and 13 passing.

Casper, Lema Share Bakersfield Lead

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — Amiable Billy Casper Jr. and handsome Tony Lema deadlocked Saturday at 205 for a two-shot lead going into today's final round of the $40,000 Bakersfield Open golf tournament—richest event of the fall tour.

Casper, fourth-ranked money winner, from Apple Valley, Calif., fired a seven-under par 65, while Lema, San Leandro, Calif., shotmaker who won the recent Sahara Invitational, came in with a 68.

Billy's hot round was overshadowed by a course-record tying 64, earlier by big George Bayer, who trailed the leaders by five shots.

"It was my best putting round of the year," said Casper, "I dug up an old putter at home and tried it again. It has a little loft and worked fine, but I don't think I could have gone another hole."

Casper, bidding for his fourth tourney victory this year, had nines of 31-34, including eight birdies and a bogey. His sub-par putts ranged from 4 to 18 feet.

"I'm playing better than I ever have," said Lema. "My mental attitude is good and I'm not getting upset over a poor shot. It has taken me three years to get this way at least part of the time."

Bayer had 31-33, with an eagle, seven birds and a bogey. His previous rounds were a scrambling 77 and a 69.

Basketball Drills Begin Monday at L. B. State

Twenty - one candidates will be on hand as basketball drills begin Monday at Long Beach State.

Coach Dick Perry will welcome back seven men from last year's club which finished third in CCAA play with a 7-5 mark and 14-12 over-all. These include starters Lyn Hodge, center, and guards Bobby Holland and Stan Andersen. The latter has only a half season of eligibility remaining.

The first roster also has eight newcomers and six players up from last year's frosh-JV team.

Perry is high on transfers Johnnie Johnson, 6-6; Al Windfeldt, 6-5; Phil Herman, 6-4; Lonnie Moore, 6-3, and Jim Payne, 6-2½.

Best of the ex-JV crop seems to be 6-5 center Bob Roeland, 6-0 guard Bill Brummel and 6-5 forward Ken Ammann.

Main problem facing Perry before his club opens the season at Gonzaga Nov. 30 is replacing his first four forwards: Bill Florentine, Dave Jones and Ron Batson, who have graduated, and Ken Knapp who is not in school.

Two-Percent Boat Tax Proposed

A meeting of vital concern to all boat owners has been called for Tuesday in the New State Building in Los Angeles. At that time the California Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Revenue and Taxation will delve into the in lieu tax proposal for all boats in this state.

Briefly, should the tax be imposed, it would replace present city and county methods of taxation. It would be similar to the automobile fee and would mean a two-percent tax per year up the market value of a boat.

Sen. George Miller Jr., chairman of the Senate committee, points out that recreational boating has become one of the state's greatest activities with 275,000 boats registered this year. But, says Miller, needed facilities and protective and regulative service in the public as well as in the boaters' interest has lagged mainly because of inadequate financing.

Miller promises that all interested parties will be given a chance to present their side of the story at the Tuesday hearing. Anybody interested may call MAdison 0-3030 Monday for the hour and room where the hearing will be held. Inasmuch as state offices were closed Friday and Saturday, it was impossible at this writing to get that information.

THE LOWER DRAINAGE AREA of the Sisquoc River in Santa Barbara County always has presented a problem to fisheries experts who strive to keep it as a trout stream, but who are hopelessly swamped by a population of rough fish (chubs).

In order to help that situation, the Department of Fish and Game has planted 1,300 Coosa bass (commonly called redeye bass) from Tennessee. Already the redeyes have gone to work and virtually eliminated the chubs in the lower pools of the river.

The fish never gets much larger than 10 inches, but it has a voracious appetite and is a good fighter when taken on light tackle. It likes lures in fast water, but prefers grasshoppers and crickets in the pools. The fish thrives in marginal water too warm for trout and too small for other species of bass.

If this experiment is successful, DFG men point out, fishable populations of the redeye bass should be available within two or three years.

Also, if the bass clean out the chubs, it may give the DFG a chance to plant more trout in upper parts of the river and thereby provide a new rainbow fishery for the anglers of Southern California.

AN INITIAL LOAD OF CATFISH fingerlings is being planted today in the Indian Reservation section of the Colorado River below Parker Dam. Work is being done by the U. S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife as a part of the cooperative program with the states of California and Arizona to replenish and augment the population of catfish in the river.

When the bureau finally finishes its job, 500,000 catfish fingerlings will have been planted, and many of those fingerlings will be kingsize cats by 1964 or 1965.

That section of the Colorado River has gradually lost its fish life because of the diversion of much water through the Palo Verde Dam and low water has interfered with the migration of channel catfish upstream.

Resort owners have prodded the Department of Fish and Game. DFG officials, in turn, pointed out that the problem was one that affected both California and Arizona and that some agency would have to work out the solution. Needless to say, resort owners haven't been very happy about the situation. Some have turned to water skiers and have forgotten fishing entirely. This present plan may restore a fishery that was practically lost. It attracted hundreds of Long Beach-area residents.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — Doubleday & Company, Inc., continuing its Natural History Library in the paperback series, has released the following five books: "Cells: Their Structure and Function," by E. H. Turnbull; "The Navaho," by Clyde Kluckholm and Dorothea Leighton, and "The Yosemite," by John Muir.

Doubleday has now printed about three dozen books of this series. The books are available at book stores or from Doubleday, 575 Madison Ave., New York 22, N.Y. They range between $.95 and $1.45.

Good news for the southpaws: Ithaca Gun Co., Inc., of Ithaca, N.Y., has just put out its Model 37 featherlite repeater with a bottom-ejection chamber which keeps the shells out of the face of the handicapped left-handed shooter.

It also is equipped with a reverse safety. Ithaca says that it was the first gun company to take note of left-handers' problems.

That bottom-ejection idea sounds like it might be good for right-handers, too. Certainly, the shell casings wouldn't be flying into the face of another shooter in a small blind.

—OPEN LETTER—
From John D. Cotter
Cotter's Used Cars
Station Wagon Lot
2223 L. B. Blvd.

I want to bring before the public what we have worked for during the past 20 years, that has resulted in 20 years of fair dealing in clean cars.

We, at Cotter's Used Cars, took pride in ourselves and our company over these years of selling the cleanest cars in Southern California. We do not deal in so-called "price cars" or "gimmick" financing.

We continue to sell the cleanest cars in this area, at a fair price, with fair dealings to all our customers. Our warranty is not hard for us to back up, because all of our cars are checked out before sale.

Come see us for the cleanest cars in Southern California, at fair prices, and for fair dealing.

Sincerely,
John D. Cotter

HERE ARE THE FACTS

The used cars we have at our huge plant are the cleanest and best in the world. We says this without fear of contradiction. Here is the procedure for our cars at:

MARSHALL DUFFIELD
LINCOLN-MERCURY

1. Wash Motor and Chassis.
2. Inspection by foreman.
3. Motor compression test for rings and valves.
4. Transmission and rear end tested and checked.
5. New rings, bearings, piston pins, clutches replaced as needed.
6. Carburetor, distributor checked and tested.
7. The car is road-tested.
8. Oil changed and lubed.
9. All parts properly lubricated to factory specifications.
10. Wheels bulked to check the brake linings.
11. Front end examined and necessary corrections made.
12. Necessary burnsmne done in metal dept.
13. Polish and clean up. Upholstery completely renovated.
14. Tires checked, made to meet our specifications, which should be good for approximately 20,000 miles.
15. Front end aligned and (6) wheels balanced.

Wrightson Blasts at Phony Voice Teachers

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Earl Wrightson, the bearded baritone, enjoys saying, "I'm lucky that when I came to New York, I ran into Robert Weede instead of some phony voice teacher."

Frequently when he makes such a remark, a voice student inquires, "Does Mr. Weede have you begin each day with the fundamental animal grunt?"

"WHAT!" shouts Wrightson. "That's what I mean! Hell," he adds, "there are some great teachers, but, so many voice teachers can't afford to be honest because there aren't that many people with talent walking into their studios. They can't make a living being honest.

"ANYWAY," Wrightson growls, "it's also the pupils' fault. They want some magic formula, such as lying on the floor with books piled on your stomach.

"Walk through Carnegie or Steinway Hall and listen to what comes through those doors and you'll hear what I mean. Voices mashed up, voices that shouldn't even be allowed out of the bathroom! I've talked to teachers who've said, 'Yes, but if I don't take their money, somebody down the hall will.'"

• • • •

Weede he now calls "Pop" because that's what he's been to Wrightson.

"Weede won't take on anybody who can't sing," Wrightson says. "A voice teacher can only clean out the junk and make you sing naturally. Weede made me sit down and read the newspapers alould and open up my mouth. It's drudgery. It's nothing magic."

• • • •

WRIGHTSON, now 37, is constantly on TV now and also appears in supper clubs and theaters with Lois Hunt . . . but his Van Dyke-like beard has occasionally caused some difficulty for TV.

He refused to work for a couple of sponsors who wanted him to shave it off.

"Why do I insist on it?" he said. "Well, I have a forgettable face without it. And after all, you don't go into this business to be anonymous. And besides — I like it!"

VICTOR BORGE . . . With Comedy Package

Borge's Drolleries of '62 at L.B. Auditorium Oct. 22

Victor Borge, two concert grand pianos and a "long lost piano student" will appear at Municipal Auditorium at 8:30 p.m., Oct. 22.

Borge's drolleries are entitled, "Comedy in Music."

The "long lost piano student" is Leonid Hambro, on leave from his post as regular pianist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra to make the present tour with Borge.

The two take their seats sedately at the two pianos.

That is the last sedate thing about the program, which offers comedy, fine music and fun with music.

Overhead Brings Down the Profit

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Success in Hollywood is costly.

Rita Moreno, after some tough years, won an Oscar for "West Side Story."

She figured that since the Oscar it has cost her more to answer fan mail than she made in the year preceding the Oscar winning movie.

NO SAVING

Tax Bills Wait Heflin's Return

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Van Heflin, who makes pictures all over the world, says: "everybody thinks I do it to save taxes."

But he says he doesn't.

"I live in airplanes more than I do in our house in Brentwood but I always go back there after every picture job in Europe or wherever—and those tax bills are always waiting in the mailbox."

HAVANA (UPI) — Cubans were urged Saturday to line the streets of Havana Tuesday for a welcoming parade for Algerian Premier Ahmed ben Bella.

DANNY KAYE . . . Tells Why He Does It

'Dr. Kaye' Tells Motivating Push

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Why, a reporter asked, did Danny Kaye work eight hours a day in films and then turn out occasionally to play to live audiences?

Does it fill some psychological need? the reporter asked.

KAYE ECHOED the question, "psychological need?" Then he went into a hammy routine—with gestures:

"I do this because I need the love (here he places his hand over heart) that the audience gives me. I do it because I feel rejected if I don't get the roars of applause" and, his voice dropping back to normal, he concluded, "that's a lot of horse manure."

"I DO IT because I like it" and "because it makes me a very wealthy man."

(Kaye makes between $500,000 and $750,000 a year, but could make more. He doesn't want to work any more than he does, prefers travelling to being a full time movie actor, won't do a regular TV show).

Phenomenal Growth in Year Reported by Harvill Corp.

Harvill Corp.'s New Home, Just Northwest of Long Beach on Susana Road

Business Doubled for Harvill Corp.

COMPTON—Stories of growth in California companies are not unique, but when a metal-working firm drifts along for 20 years at the same pace and then suddenly doubles its sales in 12 months—that's unusual business news.

Harvill Corp., a die cating company which, a few months ago was low on any broker's list of growth stocks, has (1) plunged into the defense business; (2) moved here into a new plant; (3) jumped its sales from $3,000,000 to $6,000,000, all within the past year.

What happened?

Says a recent financial report: "New leadership, new abilities, new facilities and new products."

But President James W. Tuthill adds another ingredient—"a little bit o' luck."

• • • •

"DESPITE all our careful planning and hard work, if we hadn't been lucky we still might be fighting that $3,000,000 sales barrier," he admits.

Founded in 1929, Harvill sales exceeded $2,000,000 for the first time in 1942 and in the ensuing years had never topped $3,700,000 until now.

Tuthill and board chairman Murray S. Gelber, both of whom formerly held executive positions at Garrett Corp., joined Harvill in April, 1960. They immediately decided that the firm's military sales backlog of $189,000 was "a piddlin' amount."

"With important defense contractors in this area who often went outside of California for expert die casting, it would have been short-changing the stockholders not to go after more military work," Tuthill says.

• • • •

"AFTER NINE months we were still scrabbling for this work when two prime manufacturers received contracts which required precision castings—in large volume and in a hurry. We received the subcontracts. This was our lucky break."

One of these was for rocket fins on a new Army chemical missile for ground forces.

The other was for components of two different weapons, both of which were classified "secret."

About the same time the company, which had been located for 25 years at Century and Sepulveda Boulevards, had drawn plans to build a $1,300,000 plant at 19201 Susana Road, in the Ranchos San Pedro industrial area, just northwest of Long Beach.

And, in January, 1961, Femco Co., of Redondo Beach, a small but vital part of aircraft manufacturing with its custom-made hinges, was acquired for cash.

• • • •

"THINGS DIDN'T look too bad," says Tuthill. "We were still supplying old commercial customers like Bendix, Collins Radio, IBM, Ampex, Motorola and Sperry-Rand with die castings.

"We believed we would be occupying our new 101,000 sq. ft. facility in September, in time to swing into heavy production on military orders. And we contracted for a new 30,000 sq. ft. plant for our Femco division, which would be located one-half block from us.

"We also bought a small company which made molded plastic fibreglass products."

Then, in ensuing months, the luck turned sour.

For various reasons, construction of the new plant was not completed on time and Harvill was forced to remain in its old plant—and operate assembly lines which became known as "nightmare alleys"—during four months of peak military production.

• • • •

AISLES WERE JAMMED with three times the former number of employes, and carts, trucks and skip loaders.

Operations were conducted on a 24-hour, seven-day-a-week basis in wartime-like confusion.

Despite these problems the job was done. Hundreds of thousands of close-tolerance components were produced and delivered on schedule. They later were assembled into weapons about which the company still cannot speak.

Since February of this year Harvill has been producing castings for its military and commercial customers in its new plant which Tuthill calls "physically one of the finest die casting facilities in the nation."

• • • •

SALES FOR the fiscal year ending Oct. 31 will amount to $6,000,000, more than double any year's volume since 1952, during the Korean War.

Management, riding hard after more business, expects fiscal 1963 to jump into the $8-9,000,000 category.

"We believe our equipment and employes' skills merit the increased business," says Tuthill, "but a little luck will be most welcome, too."

OUTSTANDING DECOR IN STORE

Here is an interior view of the Mullen & Bluett store now open in Lakewood Center at 5028 Pepperwood Ave. Outstanding decor separates the three divisions.

To Compton Airtex Post

Appointment of Morris R. Lynn as operations manager of Airtek Dynamics, Inc., manufacturer of precision components for the aerospace industries was announced by President Robert F. Goodwin.

M. R. Lynn

Goodwin said Lynn will be responsible for all manufacturing activities, quality control, industrial engineering and purchasing at the company's Compton facility.

Lynn, a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers, until recently was associated with Ampex Computer Products Co., Culver City, as director of manufacturing for the tape memory division. He formerly served as manager of developmental manufacturing for the General Electric jet engine division in Evendale, Ohio.

JAYNE SNIPS RIBBON

Three ribbons were cut to open the three divisions of the Mullen & Bluett Lakewood Center store. Actress Jayne Mansfield cut the ribbon to open the women's shop; Gary Little, president of the Long Beach State College Student Body (center), cut the ribbon to open the traditional shop, while Mayor Robert W. Baker of Lakewood (right) cut the ribbon for the men's shop.

HINGES FOR AIRPLANES

An assortment of unique aircraft hinges frames Harvill Corp. president, James W. Tuthill. The firm's Femco division near Long Beach makes $1,000,000 worth of hinges yearly for military planes made by Boeing, General Dynamics, Lockheed, Martin, McDonnell, North American and Republic.

Three Ribbons Cut for Store Opening

Three ribbons were snipped to open Mullen & Bluett's new Lakewood Shopping Center Store.

Actress Jayne Mansfield, just back from Europe, cut one ribbon symbolizing the store's women's wear shop.

Mayor Robert W. Baker of Lakewood officiated for the men's wear shop, and Gary Little, Long Beach State College student body president, opened the store's traditional shop which caters to younger men.

Maurice Mandel, vice president and general manager of the 79-year-old Los Angeles clothing firm, headed the panel of Mullen & Bluett officials who joined community and business leaders for the opening ceremonies. Others were Ernest Richmond, vice president, and James T. Hannon, who will manage the new Lakewood store.

The Lakewood store merges three complete shops into a single large area of 9,000 square feet, divided by space and decor.

The new store is located at 5028 Pepperwood Ave.

GUS LUEKING MOVES

Outstanding Decor in New Shoe Store

Marking an outstanding improvement to downtown Pine Ave., the Florsheim Shoe Shop will open Monday noon in a new location at the Southeast corner of Broadway and Pine Ave., Gus Luecking, manager, announced.

The store is moving from 146 Pine Ave., a location used the past 26 years.

The corner location provides three times the window display space possible in the other store, Lucking said.

• • • •

EVERYTHING IN the store is new. All displays, rugs, furnishings and equipment have been purchased for the improved store. Decor is outstanding and the store is so arranged that every style of shoe carried is displayed openly for the customer to view in making a selection.

Lucking also announced the opening of a "Gay '90's Barber Shop" which will have an entrance from the store as well as an entrance from Broadway.

Red leather chairs, red wallpaper, a "September Morn" painting on the wall and other decor have been used for the Gay '90's theme. It is a three chair shop.

• • • •

FOR THE OPENING of the store, Lucking said a circus theme is being used. Banners and pennants with the circus theme will gayly decorate the building and an elephant will parade with a banner, "The Greatest Show on Earth."

Prizes of shoes and peanuts will be given away. Entertainment will be continuous from the opening until closing time with singers and dancers in the Gay '90's costumes appearing.

A feature of the store is the air curtain doors and complete air conditioning inside.

Local civic and business leaders will participate in the opening at noon Monday.

CHARM IN LARGE HOME

Here is a view in one of the models of Dutch Haven Homes which opened two new units the past week and drew thousands of viewers. The moderate price and low terms plus the charm of the homes appeal to the buyers.

Thousands of home buyers flocked to Huntington Beach this past week to attend the grand opening of two new Dutch Haven communities at the fast-growing coastal city. The new developments are unit 21 on Beach Blvd. and unit 22 on Edinger Ave. near Bolsa Chica.

An official of Luxury Homes, Inc., creators of Dutch Haven communities, said that the grand opening not only attracted tremendous crowds of viewers but resulted in a substantial number of reservations and sales. He added that most viewers were highly impressed with the moderate prices, especially in view of their generous size, high quality of construction and location within a resort city where prevailing prices are generally much higher.

The spokesman said that buyers are also enthusiastic over the fact that their purchase of a Dutch Haven home includes title to the land, with property rights fully protected by the Title Insurance and Trust Co.

• • • •

BOTH NEW communities feature "American Home Series" residences, available in sixteen exterior elevations.

Dutch Haven homes are three to four bedrooms with family room and up to two full baths. Prices start at $14,950, with $95 move-in cost to veterans on VA terms. Cal-Vet terms and FHA loans buyers are also enthusiastic at the newly authorized 5¼ per cent interest rate are also available.

LAKEWOOD MANOR

Del Cerro Home Offers Special 'Bonus Room'

KITCHEN IS OUTSTANDING

Built-in all-electric Medallion kitchens and a choice of several custom-like cabinet finishes are features of the big Del Cerro homes in Orange County's rural Tustin. The Del Cerro homes offer the extra "Bonus Room" in both three and four-bedroom plans. Site is on Red Hill Avenue east of Santa Ana.

The big "Bonus Room" that gives buyers more than 500 extra square feet of living area is a popular plus at George M. Holstein and Sons' Del Cerro community in Orange County's Tustin area, the pioneer building firm reports.

The current unit is selling at a second pace but with both three and four-bedroom homes still available for selection as to style, design and floor plan, Del Cerro sales manager Jack Enders reported.

• • • •

ALONG WITH the "Bonus Room" that is so ideal for play area, rumpus room, or as many as three extra bedrooms, the Del Cerro homes also include built-in all-electric medallion kitchens, a choice of rich cabinet finishes, custom light fixtures, varied entry treatment, shoji screens, family rooms with wood parquet floors, and a selection of wool carpet throughout.

• • • •

THE HOMES are up to 2100 square feet in size and are priced fram $23,800 to $25,000. Down payments can be arranged for as little as $995 plus costs and impounds.

The big Del Cerro homes have been compared to homes selling in the $30,000 bracket, Enders said, and stressed that buyers should act quickly for a selection in Hawaiian, Provincial, Tustin ranch or contemporary styling.

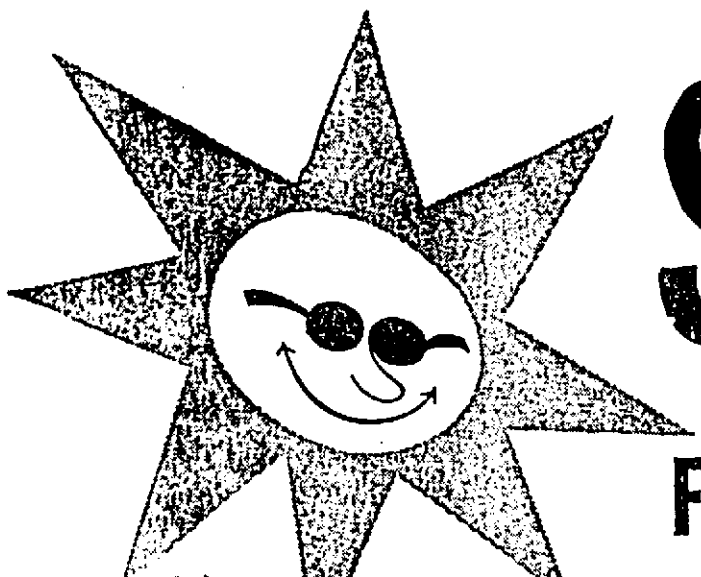

To reach Del Cerro in the beautiful Tustin area, stay East on 17th St. (Westminster Blvd.) through Santa Ana all the way to Newport (dead end). Then drive South (right) on Newport to Byran (across from the Larwin Square Shopping Center). Take Bryan one mile to Red Hill then left to model homes.

Real Fire Water From Their Well

WEST MILTON, Ohio (AP)—On the Glenn Doll farm, they sometimes burn the well water.

The water comes from a 116-foot well drilled in 1948. Flames dance above it when a lighted match is held near it.

One suggestion is that natural gas from an underground pocket may somehow be mixing with the water. The Doll family has been using the water for nearly 15 years with no apparent ill effects.

A DEVELOPMENT OF GEORGE M. HOLSTEIN & SONS

Anaheim Apartments Providing New Concept of Leisure Life

The immediate enthusiastic acceptance of their new Villa Desta - Anaheim apartment complex is a matter of personal satisfaction to Mortin Rodin and Anthony Gottuso, principals of Desta Development Co., builders of the new apartment-home complex.

FURNITURE AT LOW COST

Villa Desta-Anaheim apartment-homes at Orangewood and Haster are offering tenants the opportunity to buy furniture at manufacturer's cost. Shown is the lovely Italian Provincial living room of one of the five furnished model apartments from which selections may be made.

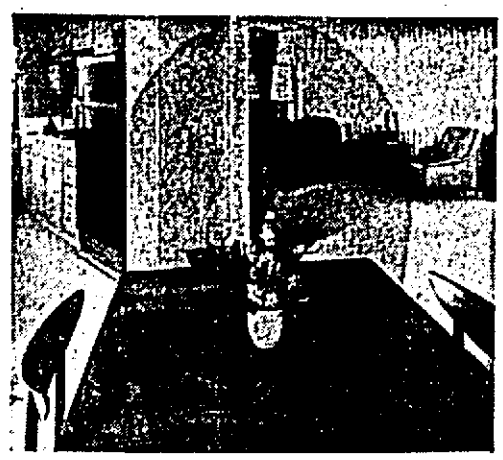

"We sincerely believe that hours spent at home should be enjoyable, relaxing and care-free," says Rodin. "The modern family seldom has an opportunity to really sit back and take life easy. When they should be able to relax and enjoy each other and their home . . . there's the lawn to be mowed, a screen to be fixed, the pool to be cleaned. As one of our new tenants expressed it the other day . . . 'This is what I call living. I had my own pool at home, but do you know . . . I never had a chance to enjoy it . . . too many chores.'"

• • • •

"WE DECIDED," Gottuso explained, "while Villa Desta was still in the planning stages, that ont only would we build an apartment that was easy to care for and live in . . . we'd carry it several steps further. We'd provide all the care and maintenance, offer complete laundry facilities, everything we could think of to make life easier and more enjoyable. To top it off we provided a place to spend those extra leisure hours . . . a real recreation area with a huge heated pool, a cabana and bath house, comfortable poolside furniture and a putting green."

Although Villa Desta is just a few blocks from the freeway and from the famous Harbor Strip, Rodin and Gottuso through design and planning have managed to create an aura of peaceful seclusion. Palm and olive trees, curving stone fences, expertly planned landscaping . . . all add up to a relaxed feeling seldom enjoyed by apartment dwellers.

Adult Community Adds More Homes

BIG ROOMS PROVIDED

The spaciousness of the rooms in the homes at Bay Cliff Village, San Clemente, is seen in this view of the living room and kitchen as seen from the dining area.

Construction has begun on an additional 29 Garden Cottage homes at Bay Cliff Village in San Clemente, it was announced by John C. Douglass Jr., of the Douglass Construction Co., developers of the adult community.

Of the 58 Garden Cottages already constructed, almost all have been sold. The Village, dedicated to the premise that adult living can be accomplished with a difference, has enjoyed tremendous success since it opened. The Villagers live in close enough proximity with each other to experience neighborhood-type activities yet enjoy peaceful privacy and unregimented activities.

• • • •

A MODERN clubhouse designed for the exclusive use and comfort of Bay Cliff residents was recently opened. The clubhouse features a fully-equipped kitchen, television, comfortable seating arrangements and card tables and chairs.

The village, which is located high on the San Clemente bluffs overlooking the ocean, gives its residents a view of the Pacific on one side and rolling hills on the other. "This view also has been a fine asset," commented Douglass. "Another important factor is the climate of San Clemente, considered by many to have the most perfect year-round temperature range in the country."

The homes have one and two bedrooms, one and two baths and all homes have separate dining areas, fireplaces, redwood-fenced patios and all-electric kitchens.

The homes are priced from $17,900. Construction features include wide overhang roofs, genuine lath and plaster walls, large bathrooms with tile showers, custom-designed fittings, dressing mirrors and vinyl floors.

Bay Cliff Village is located half-way between Los Angeles and San Diego. From Long Beach and Orange County take the Santa Ana Freeway south to the Estrella turnoff, then right to Camino Capistrano and left to Bay Cliff Village.

Beachwood in Tustin Appeal

Beachwood Estates homebuyers have expressed their preference for the exclusive Tustin residential location of the homes and their many custom features at a moderate price, according to Candlewood Realty sales agents. Mrs. Helen Taylor of Candlewood said: "Everyone visiting the houses has commented on the remarkable value offered by Beachwood Estates . . . the "original" styling of the homes, the many luxury appointments included and the gracious suburban neighborhood."

Beachwod homes offer four bedroom, 1600-square-foot plans with two baths and family rooms, priced from $22,450. A choice of styling is offered, with "swimming pool" sized lots in keeping with the estate zoning of the area. The development is privately walled for maximum quiet and security.

• • • •

THE MANY luxury extras offered include 100% wool carpeting, fireplaces with log lighters, heavy shake roofs, patios, ceramic tile baths, and marble topped ullmans. Kitchens feature O'Keefe & Merritt built-in range with rotisserie oven, electric dishwashers, disposals and handy breakfast bars with natural wood cabinets and patterned vinyl flooring.

Interiors of Beachwood Estates homes truly reflect a taste of elegance. Professional decorators have carefully color-coordinated the interiors, with individually planned fireplaces and attractive room dividers. Exteriors are similarly planned for distinction.

A decorator furnished model home is open daily for inspection at Beachwood Estates, Red Hill Ave. and Mitchell, in Tustin.

L.B. Design Firm's Show Draws Many

The annual fall and Christmas "Design Session" for professional designers and florists sponsored by the Benson Co., importers, processors and wholesale shippers of preserved natural foliages, coral, shells and supplies, recently was held at their place of business, 202-228 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. It attracted 208 professionals from San Diego to San Francisco and as far east as Denver.

The session was under the direction of internationally known designer Clark Kennedy with guest designer Morri Molho.

A total of 27 individual designs was made up. Fresh flowers were used in some, combined with preserved foliage, coral and shells. A very unusual and beautiful wedding bouquet was made with 13 "skeletonized" opuntia cactus pads combined with white orchids. After the cactus was skeletonized it was treated with white velvet flock and glitter—no greenery was used.

• • • •

THE COMMERCIAL window trimmer was also taken into consideration. Several outstanding backgrounds were made up by Kennedy and Molho. Two were in the sunburst theme using hand curled Sabal palm leaves, miniature silver and silver thatch palms with pods and cones for fall. The same was then adapted for Christmas with the aid of velvet flock and glitter.

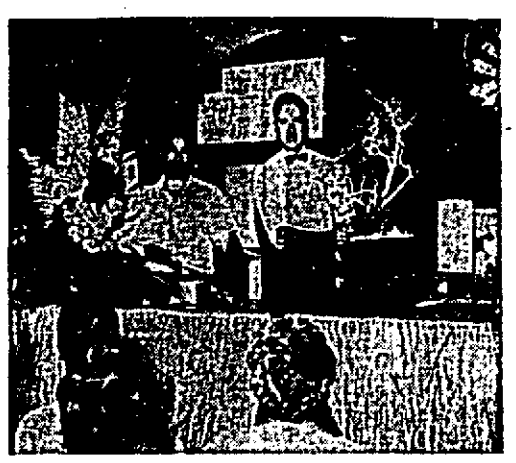

There was the eight-foot bamboo pole, snaked about with heavy rope loops, studded with the large natural Cecropia which are most beautiful with their natural white on one side and brown on the other. The Cecropia comes from the Benson Co. farm at Lake Worth, Fla.

Wall decor for the home as well as the store was shown. Pressed cork panels were used for some pieces. This product lends itself to easy application of foliages in similar manner to styrafoam only it is much more decorative and does not need a camouflage. Sea shells and coral came in for their bit too. Some of the table centerpieces carried out the sea motif.

Large cut coconuts were demonstrated most effectively as containers for table and TV arrangements.

This is an annual event with the Benson Co., owned and operated by Howard F. Benson and son Frank Benson. They not only ship these materials from Long Beach to every state in the United States, including Hawaii and Alaska, but do a thriving business in Canada.

In Long Beach 17 years the Benson Co. moved from their garage to a small warehouse on Freeman Ave. Now, for the past 7 years they have occupied most of the block on Pacific Coast Highway between Long Beach Blvd. and Locust Ave.

DESTA DEVELOPMENT COMPANY

Displays Aid to Home Buyers

ATTRACTIVE DISPLAYS

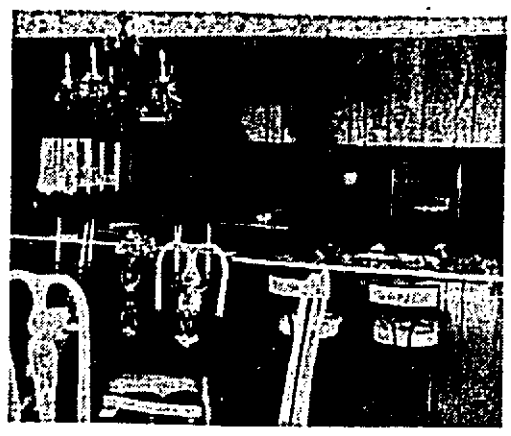

Discussing features of unique new illuminated renderings of Lake Park Homes are Clyde McKinley (left), of Merchandising Design, Fullerton, originators of the new rendering concept; and Max Tipton, vice president of Coleman-Paar, advertising agency for the Larwin Co. The display has brought much favorable comment from home-buyers visiting the Lake Park sales office where 16 design elevations and floor plans are shown with the back-lit process for convenient selection.

One of the most revolutionary merchandising methods used to date in the real estate development field is the new illuminated architectural rendering display at Lake Park, the Larwin Co.'s community just opened near Lakewood. The display is an innovation in the rendering field developed by Merchandising Design of Fullerton, and is one of nine different techniques offered to the building industry by the company.

Homebuyers and sales agents have been enthusiastic in their praise of the Lake Park sales office display as a new and convenient way for customers to select the floorplan and outside elevation they prefer. Max Tipton, vice-president of Coleman-Parr, advertising agency for the Larwin Co., commented: "We are extremely proud of the sales office here at Lake Park, and I feel this outstanding display of graphic art by Merchandising Design adds the final touch of distinction. Their unique architectural renderings are not only attractive, but an effective sales aid."

The Lake Park homes shown by this "back-lit transparency" method include four individual floor plans available in four different elevations.

Large Tiara Estate Home Custom Built

MUCH GLITTER PROVIDED

This view in a Tiara Estate Home shows the chandelier and food-serving bar, part of the glitter and glamour provided in these Anaheim homes.

Tiara Estates, Diamond Series Homes, are completed and ready for immediate occupancy.

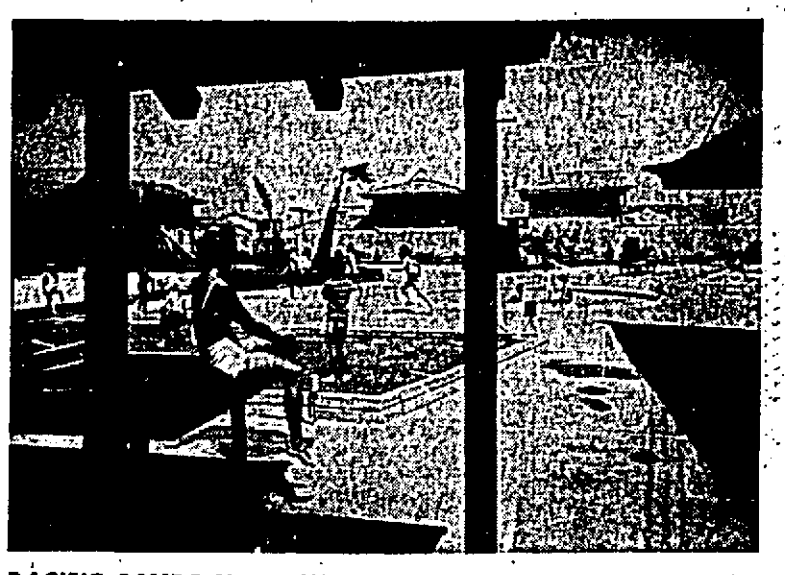

The builders chose to call these homes their "Diamond Series" because each home was custom-built and tastefully blended into an established neighborhood in an exclusive residential area.

The Diamond Series of Tiara Estates is located just north of Chapman on Loara in Anaheim. There are just 19 homes, all with true family rooms and all with two or three baths. Three, four and five-bedroom homes are offered.

The finest wall-to-wall carpeting has been used throughout. Color coordination and decorating was done by Margaret Hargreaves, nationally known color consultant.

Priced from $29,900, these homes offer such glittering extras as decorator planned kitchens with built-in range, oven, dishwasher, Nutone food center, Radiocall AM-FM clock-controlled intercom, and modern mixing valves.

Financing is extraordinary with a down payment of just $1,900 which is less than 10 per cent of the sales price. They are the easiest luxury homes to buy in all of Orange County.

Close-in Location for Sun Ray Homes

Home buyers who place location high on the list of features they desire in a new home, have found the answer at Sun Ray Homes, a spokesman says.

One of the last economy new home developments that can be truly classed as "close-in," Sun Ray Homes is located just off Pacific Coast Hwy., mid-way between the newly completed Long Beach and Harbor Freeways. Now, all major work areas are within 25 minutes actual driving time with beaches and marinas a mere 15 minutes away.

According to Reed Clark, sales manager of the development, 105 families are already in and the final unit is moving rapidly.

• • • •

HOWEVER, THERE is a wide selection of floor plans yet available. All offer three bedrooms, two baths, and completely separate family rooms. Among the luxury extras, almost unheard of in homes in the $18,000 to $20,000 price range, are five speaker AM-FM intercoms throughout each home, a choice of electric or gas built-in kitchens, oak parquet flooring in the family rooms, wall-to-wall carpeting through the other rooms (including closets) and fully landscaped front yards.

Standard features include forced air heating, sliding glass windows and doors, tile showers, and guilt-in TV antenna. Street lights, sidewalks and sewers are in and paid for. No extra assessments. Furnished Model Homes are open daily until 6:30 p.m.

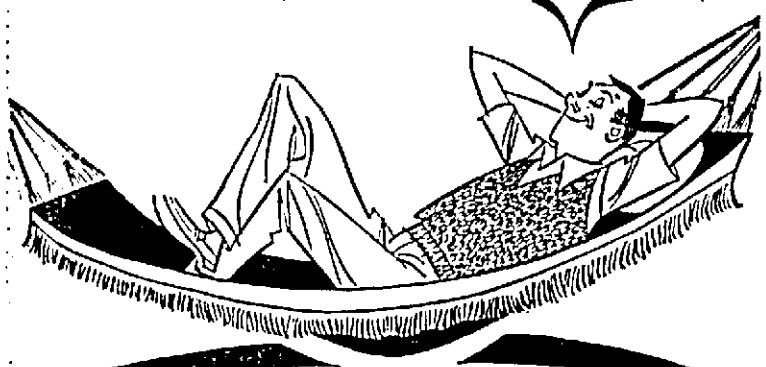

Flexible financing has been a major sales factor. All models are available to veterans with no down payment and lowest costs and impounds. Immediate occupancy as qualified. Conventional financing is available to non-veterans. Clark states, "no more homes can be built on this the last of our close-in sites. Sun Ray is the final opportunity to buy an economy home in a prime location."

This is the 40th consecutive month in which sales of Butler Brothers merchandising operation exceeded those of the corresponding month of the previous year.

'Master Forger' Film Rights Sold

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Writer and director Arthur Dreifuss has purchased the screen rights to the best selling novel, "The Master Forger."

John Godley's novel is scheduled to go before the cameras as the second film on Dreifuss' 1962 Screen Arts Production schedule. Dreifuss at present is in Ireland filming the Brendan Behan play, "The Quare Fellow."

Mr. D. N. Pender and Mr. H. M. Ferguson, developers, Oaklands Highlands Corporation, Ventura County

"WE BUILD ALL KINDS, BUT WE PREFER MEDALLION HOMES"

"I've seen the trend to electric living steadily increasing every year," says Mr. Pender. "But it wasn't until I built a Medallion Home for myself that I fully realized the many wonderful benefits you get from electricity."

"As a builder, I was impressed by the quality of the wiring; and my wife says cooking is a pleasure in the cleanliness and coolness of our electric kitchen—especially in the summer months."

"The next home I build for myself will definitely be a Medallion Home," declares Mr. Ferguson.

The confidence of these veteran builders shouldn't be ignored. If you are in the market for a new home now, make sure it bears the Medallion Home Award.

Only one new home in four earns this distinction. These are the qualifications:

1. A flameless electric kitchen—cool, clean, modern. It comes equipped with major electric appliances, including automatic flameless electric range and oven.

2. Full "Housepower" wiring—only a home built to rigid Medallion Home standards has the overall electrical capacity necessary for truly modern living.

3. Abundant lighting—planned for comfort, convenience and beauty throughout the home.

A total electric Gold Medallion Home gives you all these benefits plus:

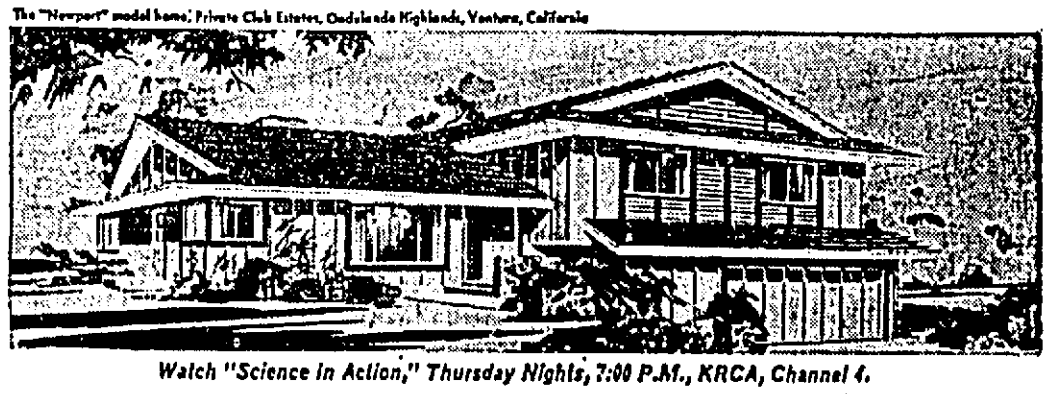

4. Flameless electric home and water heating.

FHA Terms Offered on Lake Park Homes

A LAKE PARK MODEL

Pictured is one of four model homes at Lake Park, new 2,000-home community near Lakewood which has drawn more than 3,000 visitors during two special preview weekends. VA and FHA financing terms are offered.

More than 3000 people have visited Orange County's newest residential community, 2,000-home, $40-million Lake Park, near Lakewood, during the development's two special preview weekends, Don Hermanson, sales manager, announced.

"The unprecedented acceptance of Lake Park homes—and the resultant exceptional sales—have forced us to begin work on our second unit of homes 30 days ahead of schedule," Mermanson said.

The sales manager added he expected more than 1800 people to visit Lake Park this week end.

• • • •

THIS IS THE NEWEST planned community of Larwin Co., affiliate of Larwin Group companies, nation's largest builders and developers of homes and shopping centers.

Hermanson said the record crowds and sales at Lake Park have been stimulated by the community's location—near Lakewood—and inclusion of FHA financing.

"Many people have been unable to purchase homes this close-in due to lack of FHA financing at developments," Hermanson said. "At Lake Park, FHA terms, with low down payments and low monthly payments, are available, as is VA financing of $1 total move-in cost.

The development is on Lincoln Blvd. near Moody, just east of Lakewood, less than 20 minutes from major employment centers in southeastern Los Angeles County including Long Beach, Compton, Gardena and Torrance.

FOUR MODELS are on display, Hermanson added, and 20 elevations are available in California ranch, contemporary, traditional and Far East stylings. Many have decorative stone and masonry work.

The Lake Park homes have three and four bedrooms, family room, two baths and each has a separate central entry hall.

Kitchens, he said, are highlighted with hardwood natural finish raised panel cabinets, ceramic tile counters and built-in range and oven.

Baths contain marble-grained Pullmans with oval basins and oversized Mr. and Mrs. medicine cabinets.

• • • •

OTHER FEATURES are forced-air heat, built-in TV antennas, vinyl asbestos floor tile, double sinks, spacious bedroom wardrobes, custom wallpaper and aluminum sliding glass doors.

Also included are buttress-wall room dividers, custom lighting fixtures, termite-proof foundations, acoustical-type ceilings, hardwood doors, weatherstripping and 100-amp. electrical service.

To reach Lake Park from Long Beach, drive east on Carson (which becomes Lincoln) to the model home area east of Moody.

Charm in Garden Park Estates

HOMES SELLING RAPIDLY

In reporting that "traffic" through the beautifully furnished models in the all-new unit at Garden Park Estates, Knott Avenue and Garden Grove Freway, had reached an all-time high, officials said that, while the magnificent two-story luxury homes with their two fireplaces (one in the living room and the other in the second-floor master bedroom) were the focal point of much attention, the luxurious one-story homes were also selling rapidly.

With the record throngs each weekend at Garden Park Estates and the greatly increased number of visitors and home buyers on week days, "traffic" through the beautifully furnished models has reached an all-time high, officials say.

While there is no doubt that the all-new unit's magnificent, prize-winning two-story residences are not only in great demand, but have captured the lion's share of attention, these homes are actually receiving a great deal of competition from the handsome, one-story luxury residences.

Both the one-story and two-story elevations are designed by noted Southland architects, and the spacious three, four and five-bedroom plans are keyed to the requirements of discriminating families of almost every size.

• • • •

AMONG THE MOST attractive of the two-story homes many custom-type features is the inclusion of a second handsome fireplace in the second floor master bedroom. The other is in the large living room which faces the garden area at the rear of the house.

Highly important from the home buyers' view point is the flexible fianancing which, coupled with the moderate prices, makes Garden Park Estates' residences "easy to own," officials pointed out. Veterans buying on VA loans have terms of nothing down, and terms for "everyone" afford choice of 30 or 35-year FHA loans. Buyers also have choice of Cal-Vet as well as excellent conventional loans. Full prices are from $17,800.

Furnished model display, open daily, is reached from Long Beach, by driving east on 7th St. past Long Beach State College, straight to Garden Park Estates at Knott Ave.

Artesia Wonderland Homes Closing Out

IN ARTESIA WONDERLAND

Buyer's close-out, announced for this weekend at Artesia Wonderland, offers an excellent opportunity for choice selection of the moderately-priced residences. Full prices are from just $11,750 for the house and lot; there is a total "move-in" of $295 and monthly payments, officials say, from $78 include principal and interest which makes them "less-than-rent."

This weekend marks the special builder's close-out at Artesia Wonderland, offering a final opportunity to purchase one of this close-in community's attractive, modestly priced residences on residences on less-than-rent financing terms, according to Koblentz & DeLancy, sales agents.

"Easy to own", Koblentz said, Artesia Wonderland's residences are available on good conventional loans with a total "move-in" of $295 that includes all costs. Full prices for the house and the lot are from $11,750, he explained, and monthly payments from $78 include principal and interest.

AMONG THE CHOICE remaining homes are two homes from the model display; one of them furnished.

Artesia Wonderland homes have hardwood "stretchwood" floors and the floor coverings in kitchens and baths are sturdy vinyl. Kitchens all have double sinks with sink-installed disposers, lots of kitchen cabinets, range hood with exhaust fan and light, and counters topped with ceramic tile.

Artesia Wonderland is reached from Long Beach by East on Seventh St. to Los Alamitos Ave., turn north on Los Alamitos which becomes Norwalk Blvd., and then turn left on 166th St. to the development.

WHICH ONE WILL LAST FOREVER?

Not the appliances. Not the boat. Not the furniture. Not the car. Not any of these. Only the land they're on will last forever. That's why land is called "real" property—it's real, immovable, indestructible. That's also why the buying and selling of real estate is at the heart of our free enterprise system.

Many people are engaged in real estate transactions. Real estate brokers, loan specialists and escrow officers make property easier to sell or buy. And the people at Title Insurance and Trust Company make it safer. The low-cost title policy they issue is your best assurance that the property you buy is really yours.

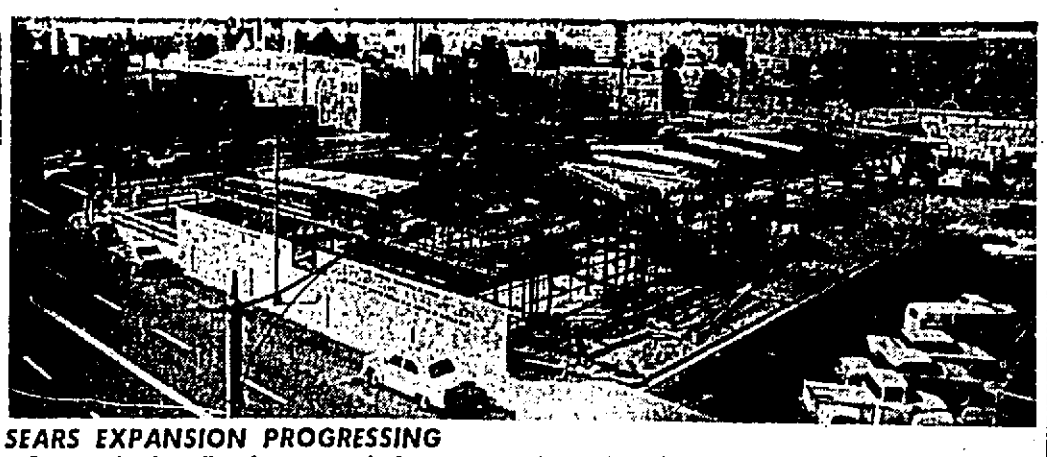

So when you purchase something that lasts forever, insist on a title policy from T.I.—the company with America's largest staff of title experts and California's most complete title plants.

THIS IS Huntington Village's 10th unit," the executive continued, "and this unit has proved to be our most popular with many new features such as modern slate entrays, interior planters, RCA Whirlpool dishwashers, new exteriors. All of these in addition to color-coordinated wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, hallways, and master bedroom, RCA Whirlpool built-in range and oven, central forced-air heating and woodburning fireplace with gas log lighter."

Huntington Village is ideally located: five minutes from the Southland's finest small boat harbors and beaches, across the street from the Meadowlark Country Club, a mile from the site of Douglas' $78 million Space and Missile plant, one mile from the soon-to-be-started Broadway-Hale shopping center, and less than a mile from the San Diego Freeway, now under construction.

Furnished models are open daily from 9 a.m. to dark. From the Long Beach area, drive east on Seventh Street to Golden West Street, turn south to Edinger, then right to Springdale, then left a short distance to Huntington Village.

Ideal Palos Verdes Homesites Offered

OCEAN VIEW SITES

The natural contour of Palos Verdes is retained in the ocean-view homesites offered for sale in MonteVerde, a development which is previewing today.

Preview showing of what is perhaps the choicest remaining property on the Palos Verdes Peninsula will take place this weekend.

Called MonteVerde, the development is situated on the sunny southern slopes of the Palos Verdes Peninsula overlooking the Los Verdes Golf Course site. In the heart of the once prized Spanish land grant, Rancho Palos Verdes, MonteVerde offers prestige homesites with panoramic views that stretch from Catalina Island to the Malibu coast.

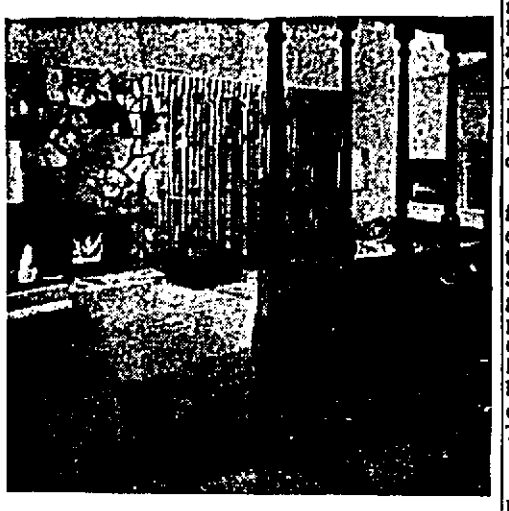

Palos Verdes Properties, the developers, state that meticulous attention has been given to every detail in the development of MonteVerde. In all cases the "natural contour" of the land has been maintained. Telephone, Edison and television lines are piped underground to each site and all other improvements, including sewers, are in and paid for. Homesites average 15,000 sq. ft. and start at $15,000.

Another DC8 Is Delivered

The fourth DC8 jetliner delivered to Iberia Air Lines of Spain landed in Madrid after a 6,000-mile, 10-hour nonstop flight from Long Beach's Douglas plant last week.

Aboard the big jet were about 35 officials of both firms, including Donald Douglas Jr., company president, and Lt. Gen. Julian Rubio, president of the air line.

BOLSA PARK HOME

A massive fireplace highlights the living room of this Bolsa Park Home where special closing-out prices now prevail.

Special close-out terms, $1000 below market prices, are being offered this weekend on the few remaining homes in the second unit of Bolsa Park, the new community in Huntington Beach.

Among the homes are four models which are fully equipped with carpeting, drapes, landscaping, and sprinklers. Each of the other houses includes at least one of these feautres, of ten two or more. Sales director Ernie Merrill expalined, "We are making these special terms in an effort to complete sales on this unit before our third unit is officially opened."

Available in three, four, and 5-bedroom plans, Bolsa Park homes may be purchased with VA no-down-payment terms, 35-year FHA financing with 5¼% interest, and 6% conventional financing.

• • • •

DESCRIBING THE MANY features of the homes, Merrill continued, "Bolsa Park offers genuine lath and plaster construction, plus a lavish use of ceramic tile." A ceramic tile kitchen with breakfast bar, full ceramic tile bath with shower over tub, and a separate seramic tile shower with special decorator tiles.

From Long Beach, the homes may be visited via seventh Street (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) east of Bolsa Chica, turning right and continuing south two miles to models.

Lakewood Manor Park Area Planned

A proposed private park and playground is being planned for Lakewood Manor residents, the unique development designed for all-round family living and recreation, it was announced by Ray K. Cherry, president, Hadley-Cherry Inc., builders.

Proving so popular with home buyers, Lakewood Manor's fourth unit is almost near completion, he stated. "We have designed and developed these homes as an ideal setting for indoor and outdoor family living."

Many features are found in the homes, normally not found in moderately priced homes. These include family rooms, kitchen nooks, double hall plans, master bedroom suites, snack bars, ceramic tile counter tops and a protective block wall surrounding the entire development.

These spacious three and four - bedroom, two - bath homes are priced from $18,750 to $25,000, with monthly payments from $116 to $122.

Moore School Will Open

Golden opportunities for real estate salesmen to capitalize on Southern California's population boom will be outlined Wednesday when E. Tennyson Moore's second Fall session of his "Real Estate License School" gets undayway.

An orientation program, free to the public, will kick off the four-week course. Entitled "How to Make Money Selling Real Estate," the program will commence at 7:30 p.m. in the main Moore Co. office at 4151 E. Carson Blvd. Lakewood. A color film will be shown through the courtesy of the Title Insurance and Trust Co.

• • • •

MOORE, whose combined Los Angeles-Orange County operation has grown to become one of the biggest in the Southland, has lined up real estate authority Ray Westcott as guest lecturer and consultant.

Westcott is a former assistant real estate commissioner of the State of California and the author of "Real Estate Primer."

Regular instructors for the Monday and Wednesday classes will be Jack B. Krueger, Moore Realty general sales manager and former owner and teacher of the Real Estate School of Los Angeles, and Bob Allen, manager of two Moore Realty offices.

Among the topics to be explained during the course is the recent action by the Federal Savings and Loan League to aassist agencies in trade-in sales.

• • • •

MOORE WAS ONE of 20 realty and savings and loan exeutives from across the nation to attend a recent conference in Chicago designed to acquaaint the public with the new ruling. The veteran realtor, whose firm in September set a new company monthly record for sales and dollar volume, was the only Californian at the conference.

Under the plan, a person wishing to trade in one house to buy another may have the first house taken off his hands immediately. The broker may borrow up to 80 per ent of the appraised value of the home from a savings and loan institution, sonsequently not tieing up his own funds.

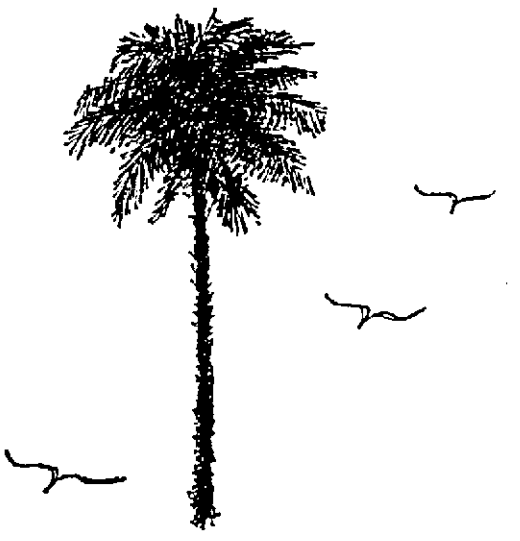

Previous regulations had not permitted lending institutions to loan more than 65 per cent of the appraised values.

Other subjects on the curriculum include fundamental real estate law, property ownership, financial real estate, methods of taxation, land description, and real estate practices.

The course will prepare students for the state examination required to obtain a real estate salesman's license.

YOU'RE INVITED TO ATTEND THE INTERIOR DECORATOR SHOW

SOPHISTICATION in fabric . . . contemporary draperies in bold design and bright color are shown by decorators Heinz Fischer and Aurora Fournier.

By Mary Neth

Elegance is in for fall—and for some time to come.

In home decor, it's an elegance that snaps with excitement: color explodes, furniture curves to sophistication.

Translating this trend toward lively luxury, 12 prominent Long Beach interior decorators will exhibit in a 1942 "Living in Elegance" Decorator Show here next week.

The show, a Long Beach first, will be open to the public Oct. 23 and 24 in Grand Ballroom, Lafayette Hotel, under sponsorship of Children's Benefit League.

HOW IS the trend being captured in color, fabric and furnishings?

Each decorator has a highly individual interpretation.

One underlines the new look with the liberal use of vibrant colors (cerise, yellow lime, orange) against neutral wall tones. He places emphasis on Mediterranean furnishings (graceful wrought iron, filigree detailing). He sees as smart the use of mirrors, small scatter rugs for color accent), also mixture of modern and antique.

Another decorator, who works primarily with contemporary furnishings, finds elegance in clean line and bold, true color. He believes Oriental will gain in popularity, that traditional styling is on the wane.

IT PAYS to be bold. The new look in elegance has a far from rigid framework.

But, many a homemaker may find herself wondering if her attempt at originality does what it purports to do in the best possible way.

Is her choice of color practical? Are her room accessories fitting, arranged to advantage?

The Interior Decorator Show is the place to answer such questions—the place to capture new courage, fresh ideas.

THE EXHIBITING decorator-dozen, their stores and themes, are: Aurora Fournier, Lloyd's, "Simpatico;" Charlotte Centoz, Davis Furniture Co., "Country Elegance;" and Dale Fahrney, Carl's Furniture, "Continental Contemporary."

Lewis F. deMourer, Aaron Schultz, "Tempora;" Heinz Fischer, Frank Bros., "Terrace Room;" Joe Neiggemann, The Acorn, "Checkmate," Dorothy Hall, "Sleeping Beauty;" and Jenne Williams, Jenne Interiors "Hacienda De Felicidad."

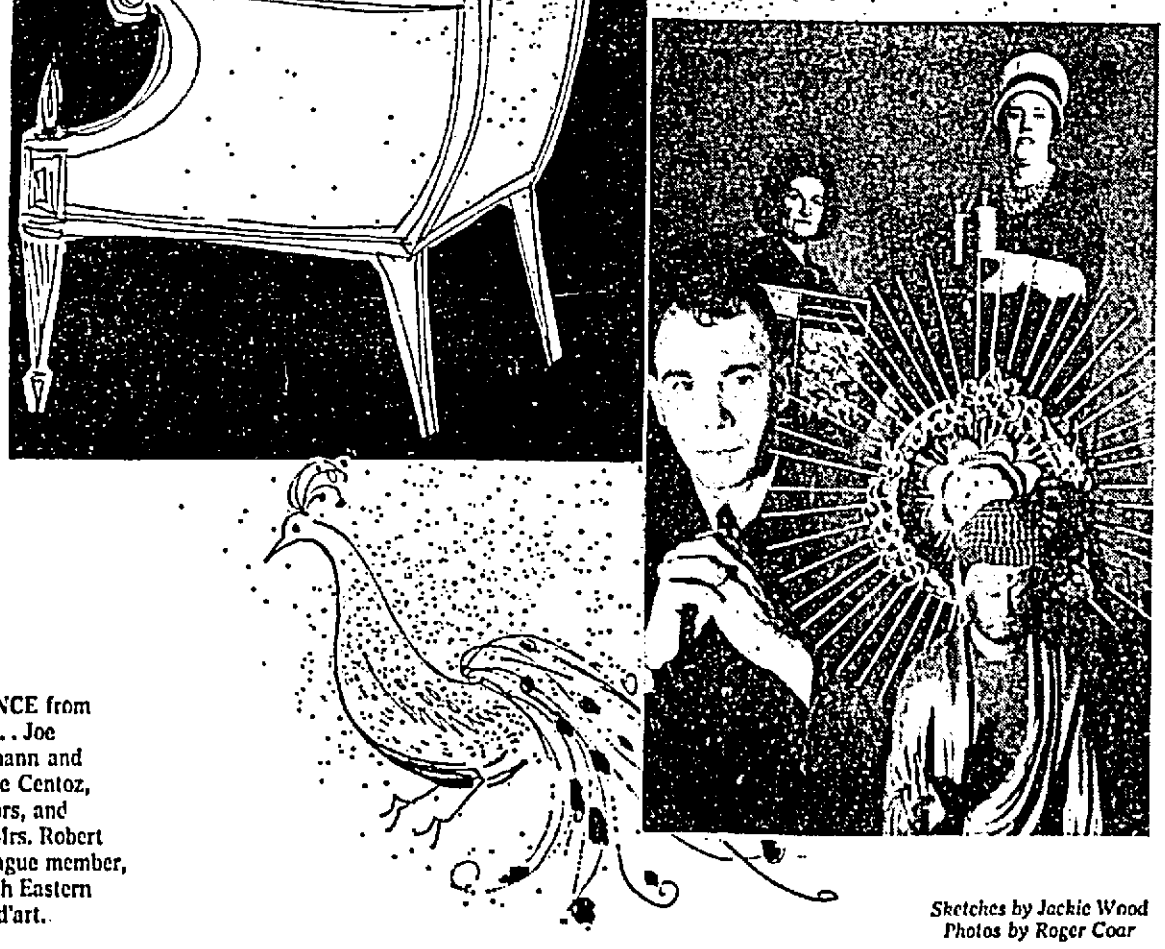

Eugene Charnoy, Sally's Lamps, "Lighting Gallaxy;" Betty Wood, Greenwood Interiors, "Losir Chez Soi;" Mae Belle Davis, Davis Interiors, "Three Periods Used Today;" and Katherine Hall, "Anglo-Nesian Game Room."

JOAN A. HAMILTON is landscape designer and Paul O. Neble, architect, for the show. Kenny Yueda will loan more than $500 worth of plants for the exhibits and paintings will appear through the courtesy of selected member artists of Long Beach Art Association. Ron Rainsford and John Scott will contribute prize-winning pieces of sculpture.

Exhibits will be open from 6 to 10 p. m. Tuesday (buffet dinner from 7 to 9) and from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and 6 to 10 p. m. Wednesday (luncheon from noon to 2:30).

Donation tickets will be available at the hotel.

WILD WAVES SAY . . .

By Iola Masterson • I, P-T Women's Editor

(Editor's Note: While Women's Page Editor Iola Masterson is on vacation, this column is being written by members of the staff.)

MANY A freezer in College Park Estates is resting more comfortably today since Gloria and Max Negri removed the jillion homemade tamales served during their delightfully planned Mexican fiesta last night.

Invitations to some 100 friends went out several weeks ago in Spanish, causing consternation to some until they could latch onto a translator.

"What's Going On?"

But, oh yes, they got the idea muy pronto and came decked out in serapes, ponchos, sombreros, rebozos, glittering sequinned skirts and embroidered shirts to mingle in the garden as a band of mariachis sent strident and sentimental music through the evening air.

Day before the fiesta a beef went into a pit, laboriously dug by Max and played in by the little Negris prior to the party, and barbecued slowly all day to brown, juicy perfection.

A gay and wild pinata swung overhead until he was shattered in approved Mexican tradition. Favors were handwoven cocktail napkins.

Si, it was a fiesta magnifico, and the reason the Negris had it in October was because the "Night of October" theme was taken from one of their favorite Mexican songs, "Moon of October."

THEY'RE STONED. Tut now, let's get it straight. It's rock hounding under discussion, and it's a family affair for gem and mineral enthusiasts Edith and Lew Hindley, with Norton, Kirk and Frosty, plus the families of Kay and Elmer Lenz, and Dorothy and Rollie Urbanek. They're in Trona this weekend with other members of their club happily chipping and digging on some salt flats for onyx and halite. If results are successful, there may be more handsomely turned out jewelry for Christmas gifts.

The Hindleys were swept into rock hunting four years ago when Kirk was a Scout and are now embedded so deeply in the hobby that on their 6,000 mile vacation trip this summer they joined a couple of expeditions, one in Utah, another in Wyoming.

"What's Dick doing now?"

Veda and Fred Riedman have been badgered with questions about their son, causing us to wonder just how faithful a letter writer Dick has been with his local buddies in recent years. Well friends, Dick, along with Ann Louise and sons Richard and Tom, just hoppens to be living in San Diego. Dick received his Ph.D. from Pittsburgh University, and is now on the faculty at San Diego State College teaching audiology.

LOTS OF BRATS will be on hand. With that kind of warning most people would carefully ignore the invitation. But it's all a matter of pronunciation. Friends of Shirley and Roger Slater say it to rhyme with tots, and two dozen of them beat it to their Rossmoor manse midweek for another of the Slater's informal fresco barbecue parties featuring bratwurst from the Midwest.

ALL THIS MODESTY! Here we just heard about Elaine Kirschke's and Jane Boyd's sailing prowess in a recent sailboat race to Catalina where the gals, sans Jack and Walt, came in among the first over the line out of 65 boats. Not bad for those two, for they competed against some big boats. Well, sure the "Vaquero" had a good crew in teenagers Doug Kirschke and Steve Boyd, but by barnacles, Elaine and Jane were the only female skippers. Decorative adornment was Karen Lagerwerf, a native of Holland until three years ago, who had never been on a sailboat before Doug asked her to join the race.

"AND what's your name, little girl?"

"Diane Elizabeth."

"And where were you born?"

"Honolulu, Hawaii."

Diane can't really begin to say those long words, but won't they sound impressive when she can? She's only 12 days old and is Number One hairn for Mary Alice and Dick Donovan. It may be hard to spoil the little wahini from stateside, but don't think grandparents Florence and Nell Donovan of Long Beach and Marian and Frank Wynne of Sunnyvale aren't going to try.

He's in Air Force; She Flies High, Too

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My father travels a lot but he can't help it—he's in the Air Force.

My mother gets lonely when he's gone and she goes out with men. I'm 14 years old and when she goes out (every night) I have to stay home and baby-sit.

Mama works on the base and meets lots of men there. But she promised me a long time ago I could go out with boys when I was 14. Well, I am 14 and you see what I mean.

I have three smaller sisters and Mother is not paying any attention to any of us. Couldn't she mind them for once and let me go out? I have a friend here on the base who wants to take me out. Is she being fair to keep me in like this?—NANCY

DEAR NANCY:

I don't think 14 is old enough to go out, I really don't. But I certainly think your mom is being unfair all the same. She has so much more to occupy her at home than running around everywhere with men. You and your sisters, all by yourselves, could keep her from being lonely.

Why don't you sit her down and tell her how very much you miss her night after night?—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

You gave me very good advice when I asked you about my baby. As a result, I'm not going to marry the boy but now my problem concerns what to do with the child when it arrives. Is it wise to keep the baby in the family?

My brother and his wife want to adopt it. They have two boys and she doesn't want to have another child herself but she would like to have mine.

My mother wants me to go to school so I can make something of myself. I want to do this, too. I would like to have fun and go places again after the baby comes. But I know I shouldn't think of fun when my thoughts and heart should go to the baby.

My questions are: Is it fair to the child? Will I want it back when I get older? Have any of your readers adopted their children out to relatives and has it been a satisfactory situation?—TRULY YOURS

DEAR TRULY YOURS:

The usual advice when considering adopting a child out is to have the adoption handled by a proper agency which will match the child with someone you do not know and cannot get in touch with. Many emotional hazards are offset this way.

I would advise you to do this. For this is a matter you will not want to remember or be reminded of as you make a new and better life ahead.—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What is your opinion of a sponger? This man is married and still sponges off his mother.

He goes home to her to dinner. She is satisfied to prepare a snack for herself and the widowed aunt she supports, but when he appears out come complete dinner plans.

His mother is a widow with a job that is underpaid. The aunt is old and food costs like crazy. But do you think he'd think of this? He never offers a penny, and half the time on week ends he leaves his brat with her.

I think having a dinner with Mother is fine once in a while, but every day and every Sunday is sponging, don't you agree? — ANOTHER AUNT

DEAR ANOTHER AUNT:

I do, I do! In fact, sponging is too soft a word. He ought to be taking his mother and the aunt out to dinner. In fact, I think he ought to include you, too.—M.M.

The game was rubber bridge. The late Ely Culbertson sat South, the late P. Hal Sims North and I was West. East also was a well known player, but I will withhold his name for reasons that will soon become apparent.

• • • •

THE TIME was the early thirties but the bidding might well go the same way today. Hal and Ely were just about the best of the early contract experts.

I realized that our only chance to beat the hand would be with two club tricks. It also seemed certain that Sims would hold the king of clubs. Otherwise he would have let the hand play at five spades.

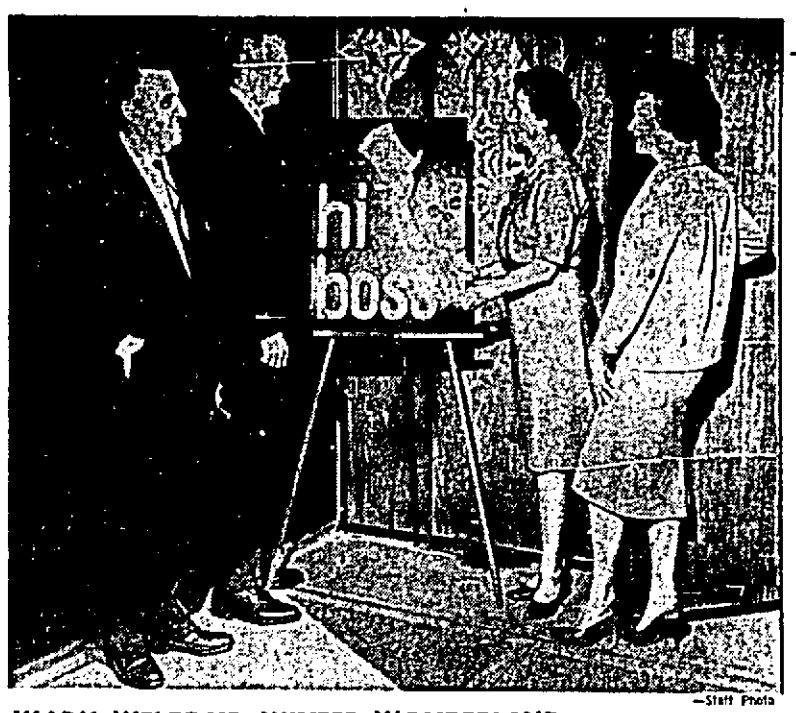

I dropped the three of clubs on the table as soon as the bidding was over.

Ely played the four from dummy just as quickly and my partner had a problem. After a lot of thought he solved it the wrong way. He played the eight whereupon Ely took his jack and promptly ran off 13 tricks.

TEACHER INSPIRED STUDENTS' GRATITUDE

By RACHEL MORTON
I.-P-T Music Critic

And so began my lessons with Jean de Reszke. Does one tell of the years of striving; of the hopeful march up the hill and the despairing plodding down; of the musical phrases begun so many times and never, never finished; of the handkerchiefs torn to bits in an agony of trying to do what the Master wanted; of Koko's screeching when the lessons were bad—Koko, that green monster of a parrot who loved only the Master and the Master's art, who sat upon his shoulder as he came down the staircase every morning at nine, and went back up again when the long teaching day ended?

No—one remembers only the miracles along the way: the days when a bit of blue showed through the darkness of unfolding understanding, the rapturous joy of the Master when the tone was right and the phrase artistically rendered; the rare "bravos" and the smile of pleasure when he was satisfied.

• • • •

DE RESZKE sang like a god in those last three years of his life, when I knew him. He sang with the basses, with the contraltos, with the sopranos, and, of course, with the tenors. There was no phrase too difficult, no cadenza too florid for his limpid tone. He sang high C's all day long and could spin them from a fortissimo to a pianissimo in a way that was uncanny. He allowed no falsettos with the tenor, adhering strictly to a natural, manly head quality. His singing was so beautiful, so controlled, so refined, so effortless, that one did not dare to defile the air with a vocal attempt afterwards. Often, after listening to him, I could not sing; I could only weep.

They had said to me: "You will worship the Master."

But I had replied, "We Americans do not worship."

• • • •

AH, I HAD NOT known de Reszke! How many times I found myself kissing his beloved hand, and my tears must have told him what my tongue could not. Jean de Reszek did not like sentimentality—he did not like tears of fawnings. He liked work well done, difficulties overcome, souls aflame with inspiration.

The first Christmas in Nice promised to be a lonely one. Far from home and friends, living in a small room without heat or comforts, it had been a pleasant diversion to look at furnished apartments from time to time. One in particular, on the Promenade Des Anglais looked out over the blue ocean, and its tiny kitchen, its balcony and the salon with piano, seemed a dream of happiness.

I had told the Master of it at one of those precious tea-times at the Villa, when Madame de Reszke came down in all her fragile, cameo-like beauty; when Chou, her pet dachshund, lay curled on the sofa before the fire; when the Master sipped his tea and chuckled over some event of the day, or discussed topics dear to his heart. Then one came close to the lovable personality of de Reszke, and the singing teacher was forgotten.

• • • •

THE PUPILS who were privileged to have a lesson just before tea-time were often invited to stay, and a "comfy," happy time it was. French was generally spoken, but if there were some present who knew no French, then English was spoken, although the Master was disinclined to speak English.

So the Master knew of my longing for a little home, with cooking privileges. On the day before Christmas I was summoned for an extra lesson. I remember it well. It was from "Faust" and I had made the Master laugh uproariously when I sang instead of "Le vent murmure," which means the wind murmurs, "Le ventre murmure," which means "the stomach murmurs."

• • • •

AT THE END OF the lesson, he pushed me to the door after wishing me "joyeux Noel" and in my hand he left something. In the hall I opened my hand and found three one thousand franc notes. I rushed back into the studio exclaiming, "Master, what does this mean?"

"It is for your Christmas," he said.

"Allez-vous-en! Rent that apartment you liked so well." And he would hear no more from me, but went slowly back into the twilight to the piano. I rushed to the apartment, praying it would still be for rent. It was, and I moved in, and for many months it was my home. It was the last place in which I saw my father alive.

Also on display will be a pinhole camera made from a coffee can, and one of the first rapid sequence box cameras. Hours are noon to 9 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays; closed Fridays; 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays.

• • • •

MASTER WORK of the month at Long Beach Museum of Art is a small black cat which is attracting attention from cat lovers and art patrons.

The feline comes from Egypt, the 26th dynasty, dating back to 500 B.C., and is probably a representation of the goddess, Bast, who was then highly regarded. Made of bronze, it is believed to have served as a mummy case for a treasured cat. The sculpture was borrowed from the J. Paul Getty Museum in Malibu, and may be seen through Nov. 11.

"PEACE" has been chosen as theme of the next art exhibition at Westside Jewish Community Center, 5870 W. Olympic Blvd., Los Angeles. It will open Oct. 23 at 7:30 p.m., with more than 50 outstanding artists of Southern California presenting works in varied media depicting "Art — A Force for Peace."

The exhibit will open at 7:30 p.m. At 8 o'clock Dr. Martin Grotjahn of Beverly Hills will speak on "Art and Peace."

TWO SYMPOSIA on American art of the last 20 years are scheduled for Nov. 7 and 14 at the University of California at Los Angeles. Topic will be "Abstract Art: Action or Reaction."

Background for the symposia will be the Gifford and Joann Phillips Collection of Modern American Art which will be shown in the UCLA art galleries in Dickson Center Nov. 5 to Dec. 9. It includes works by the most discussed, and frequently most controversial, of painters and sculptors who have gained prominence since World War II.

Henry Hopkins, assistant curator of modern art at L.A. County Museum, will moderate the Nov. 7 program. Gerald Nordlund, dean of faculty at Chouinard Art Institute, and Frederick Wright, director of UCLA art galleries, will be speakers.

Collector E. Gifford Phillips will moderate the Nov. 14 symposium. Painters Richard Diebenkorn, Lee Mullican and Emerson Woelffer, will make up the panel. Fee for the two programs is $5.

Extraordinary Talent Marks '6 of Us' Show

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

A bold, original affirmation of individuality by some extraordinary talents makes "6 of Us" an exciting, challenging show, At Atelier 7, 3316 E. Seventh St., the exhibiting artists are Long Beach State College students, many of them graduates, whose works can be seen through this month.

Most immediately impressive are the large carpentered constructions by Robert Wilson along with his polychromed (in neon hues) papier-mache sculptures, a crucifix and a "rock." Commentary on patriotic themes recurs in Wilson's work. Another construction ("a chair, of course") by David Isakson and Mike Pierce is made of parts washed up on the beach.

In contrast are the exquisitely fine and tiny drawings by Glenda Wittington. While some of the sentiments written thereon are classically those of youth protesting against materialism, the approach and techniques are sophisticated, elegant, and unique.

• • • •

CARRIE VAN DEMAN'S paintings on muslin, a combination of paraffin and analine dye which she developed herself, are already collectors' items. Like Bonnie Gottlieb, her pencil hovers around and caresses contours to produce monumental portrait drawings. Gottlieb also works in the batik method, but finds her best expression in huge oils of grand simplicity and subtle color nuances.

Isakson and Pierce have numerous small drawings in the show. However, Isakson's most arresting works are small collages built of photo cutouts. Pierce has a ceramic piece, "The Fall of Icarus," which is marvelous, as well as jewelry and carved chessmen in the exhibit.

• • • •

THE MORE than 100 works glow with talent which has led these artists to experiment in forms and media beyond academic discipline. While the overall effect is impious, close examination of the works reveals a wealth of cerebral activity and poignant sincerity. It is a provacative insight into a generation so often accused of security-seeking and conformity. There is, I believe, every reason to expect from this group great accomplishment which will enhance the already-respected reputation of the art department of our local college.

Symphony Days Underway, Prelude to Concert Season

The legend of a Long Beach that doesn't understand or like the fine arts died suddenly last summer on July 24 when Long Beach Symphony played its first summer concert in Bixby Park.

Any doubts that might have remained were removed by the vast crowd at the second concert on August 21st. Thousands of people, young and old, stood enthralled as operatic arias and exquisite phrases of a Tschaikowsky Symphony filled the evening air. Crowded bleachers, park benches, lawns and nearby parked cars were filled with attentive listeners, some of whom were hearing live symphonic music for the first time and finding that great music well-performed is beautiful, exciting and enjoyable.

Perhaps for many of them the great discovery was that Long Beach has an orchestra — its own community orchestra — capable of presenting concerts with style and artistic success. For the first time many met Lauris Jones, energetic conductor of the orchestra, who has brought his group of ninety musicians to a high pitch of musical excellence.

• • • •

SUCCESS of all summer concerts, past and in the future, depends entirely on the success of the regular concert season, which this years begins on Oct. 27 at Long Beach City College Auditorium. For the next two weeks, in preparation for the new season, the City of Long Beach will share in Long Beach Symphony Days. On Oct. 5 Mayor Edwin Wade proclaimed the interest of the City Council and the people of this community in the orchestra's welfare.

The public is urged to support their Symphony by buying tickets for the concert series, by becoming contributing members of the Symphony Association, and by offering their services to help the orchestra. During Symphony Days the public is invited to stop in at the rehearsal hall, Municipal Recreation Center, 350 E. Ocean Blvd., Monday, October 22 at 8 p.m., to watch the orchestra at work.

• • • •

THE MOST important innovation in the new season is a series of concerts specially planned for families to enjoy together. There are four concerts in the series. Three of them are on Saturday evenings — Oct. 27, Dec. 15, Jan. 26. One is on Sunday evening, May 19. The most unusual feature of the concerts is that Lauris Jones, conductor, will introduce the audience to the music to be played through program notes which he will give from the podium.

Guest artists to be presented as soloists include Frederick Seykora, cellist, who will be featured on the first concert and Chris Lachona, tenor, who will sing on Jan. 26. The Christmas concert Dec. 15 will be a gala holiday event, including the presentation by a professional cast of Elizabeth Caldwell's Christmas opera "A Gift of Song."

THE FESTIVAL concert is the major event of the Symphony season and will be presented in Municipal Auditorium. It will include a performance of one of Aaron Copland's ballets, possibly "Rodeo."

Tickets for the series of four concerts are priced very inexpensively with a special price for full time students. Seats are unreserved. Season tickets represent a saving of 30 per cent and may be obtained by calling the Long Beach Symphony Association or Mrs. Charles A. Mason, 214 6th St., Seal Beach.

• • • •

TODAY, teachers and representatives of Parent Teacher Associations are invited to meet at 3 p.m. in the choral room of Long Beach State College to discuss the series of Youth Concerts to be presented during the season and to meet Elizabeth Caldwell, composer of "A Gift of Song."

A few tickets are still available for the regular series of five concerts that will be given Sunday evenings — Nov. 18, Jan. 27, Feb. 24, March 31 and May 19. All seats for this series are reserved. Artists to be presented include Malcolm Frager, pianist; Chris Lachona, tenor; the winner of the annual Young Artists Competition; and Margaret Main, violist and soloist for the all-orchestra concert performance of Berlioz "Harold in Italy." The Festival Concert concludes this series.

LONG BEACH SYMPHONY Orchestra will play 18 to 20 concerts during the 1962-63 season. When Lauris Jones, conductor, raises his baton Oct. 27 for the first Family Concert at City College Auditorium he will share the spotlight with a beautiful, blonde violinist seated at his left, Edwina Smith. She has just been appointed to serve as concertmaster for the season.

Opera Opens in L.A. Oct. 26

When San Francisco Opera opens its 26th season in Los Angeles in Shrine Auditorium, Marilyn Horne, former Long Beach resident, will appear in one of the principal roles in "La Boheme" on opening night, Oct. 26.

Operas to be heard this month include:

Oct. 26 — "La Boheme" (Puccini), Victoria de Los Angeles, Marilyn Horne, Sandor Konya, Ettore Bastianini, Geraint Evans, Giorgio Tozzi, Salvatore Baccaloni. Conductor, Francesco Molinari-Pradelli.

Oct. 29—"The Rake's Progress" (Stravinsky), Mary Costa, Kerstin Meyer, Cervena, Lewis, Thomas Tipton and others. Ludwig conducting.

Bergman's 'Secrets' on Film Series

The mood will be early-Bergman when "Secrets of Women" is shown at 5 and 7:30 p.m. today in Long Beach State College Little Theater.

The film, third in Long Beach Film Society's fall series, is a 1952 work of the Swedish master when he was in a "light-hearted mood" with a "modesty of intention."

"Secrets of Women," although different from Bergman's more recent analytical productions, still has many of his trademarks: his favorite cameraman, Gunner Fischer; his "beautiful people;" his mixture of method and manner; and his flashbacks.

The latter serves to unroll the plot as four sisters-in-law reveal their confidences.

Unusual short subjects will proceed both showings of the feature film.

Theaters Receive Aid From Ford Foundation

NEW YORK — A major step to strengthen repertory theater in the United States has been announced by the Ford Foundation with grants totaling $6.1 million to nine theater companies in several regions of the country.

The grants also mark the opening of a new phase of the foundation's support to the arts, namely, to help select professional groups to reach and maintain new levels of artistic achievement and financial stability.

Participating theaters and the amounts of their grants are:

Actors Studio, New York, $250,000.

Actor's Workshop, San Francisco, $197,000.

Alley Theatre, Houston, $2,100,000.

American Shakespeare Festival Theatre and Academy, Stratford, Conn., $503,000.

Arena Stage, Washington, D. C., $563,000.

Fred Miller Theatre, Milwaukee, $100,000.

Mummers Theatre, Oklahoma City, $1,250,000.

Theatre Group, University of California Extension, Los Angeles, $500,000.

Tyrone Guthrie Theatre, Minneapolis, $337,000.

• • • •

The LARGER sums were granted to theaters that the Foundation believes are now in a position to reach significant new levels in their development, but require enlarged seating capacity to maintain them.

"Since its initial venture into the arts in 1957," said Henry T. Heald, president of the foundation, "the foundation's assistance has been limited to talented individual artists and to experiments and demonstrations seeking new avenues and standards.

"We are now carrying our program to a new dimension. In preparing for this, the foundation has made efforts to identify professional groups capable first of steady artistic development and second of achieving a sustaining level of income from other sources within a reasonable period.

"Meanwhile, we shall continue to assist selected individual artists, experiments and demonstrations.

Pins — for That Sharp Touch

...wear them in your hair — or anywhere

By MARY ELLIS
I, P-T Fashion Editor

Costume jewelry designer Robert (with the French "Robair" pronounciation, please) is sharp of the tongue when it comes to pins and pearls.

The standard, and safe, jewel accessory of two or three-strand pearls he finds "dull, most boring. If you're going to wear jewelry, wear jewelry."

He was in town, appearing at Buffums' the past week, to encourage Long Beach women to do just that.

And he had a few things to say about how it's worn.

TAKE PINS, for instance.

"As clothes become more simple, the big splash comes via the excitement of dazzling pins—frankly fake, boldly placed," he said.

"Wear them dead center, lavaliere length . . . let them peek halfway from under a suit lapel . . . place them importantly on a sleeve, a pocket or dangle them to the back on a chain as important accessory for a low-cut evening dress."

ROBERT'S NECKLACES, bold and different, have one thing in common: Huge clasps, three-dimensional and decorative, appear to be pins embeded in the necklace.

Worn to the side, they're added glamor for evening . . . worn to the back, they go daytime with suits and dresses.

Of French-Russian extraction, Robert is also a talented violinist, sculptor and painter (in earlier years he had street showings in Greenwich Village).

He gained his background in metalwork while a student at Cooper Union Art in New York City.

His first big chance came when he was commissioned to do jewelry for the Broadway hit, "Panama Hattie," starring Ethel Merman.

Since then, he's done other Mroadway shows, has fashioned jewelry for such stars as Marilyn Monroe and has designed match-the-costume jewelry for such couturiers as Ceil Chapman.

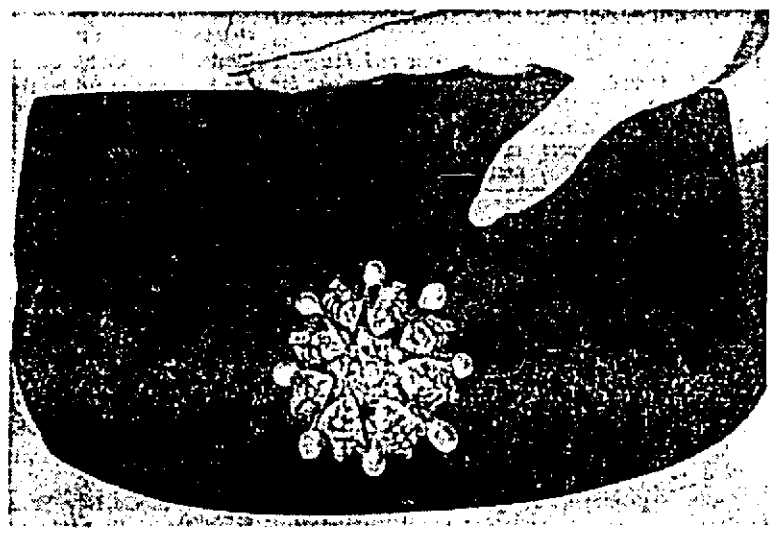

Now, he's so busy turning out jewelry for leading department stores across the nation, he has little time for custom work.

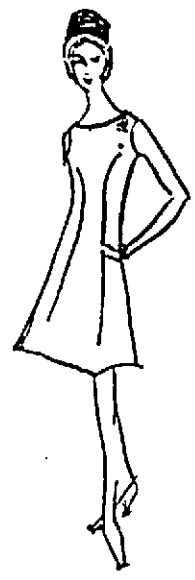

CLASP GIVES DAZZLE to Robert Original necklace, a four strand design combining olive and fuschia beads with simulated pearls. Clasp can be worn forward for added glamor after-five, or to back with suits, daytime dresses.

New Needs to Meet

The tragedy of Thalidnmide, the drug which has caused deformities in thousands of newborn infants, emphasized the need for public support of the March of Dimes fight against birth defects, according to Mrs. John T. Bohan, chapter chairman and Mrs. Mark Day Miner, campaign director.

They have just returned from a pre-campaign meeting of volunteer leaders in Sacramento planning this January's 25th Anniversary March of Dimes.

Mrs. Miner and Mrs. Bohan said Dr. Herbert T. Wagner, medical consultant for the National Foundation March of Dimes and a principal speaker at the meeting, reported that headquarters and local chapters are now supporting more than 50 treatment centers for birth defects, arthritis and polio in various sections of the country. The program involves about half the nation's medical schools as affiliates.

"This means," said Mrs. Bohan, "that more and more children with these crippling diseases can now receive complete medical care right in their home communities. I'm sure the American people will help us expand this vital program by supporting the March of Dimes in January."

In each center, Mrs. Miner explained, teams of medical and other specialists provide comprehensive medical care and treatment to correct or limit crippling and disability caused by birth defects, arthritis and polio.

• • • •

HIGHLIGHING the Sacramento meeting they said were illustrated lectures showing improvement of children treated at March of Dimes financed headquarter centers.

Mrs. Miner said that, in addition to providing medical care, contributions to the 25th anniversary March of Dimes will also support the National Foundation research program to find the causes and preventives for birth defects and arthritis. She said the slogan for the January campaign is "Give for the Life of a Child."

OUR SPY in Delta Delta Delta tells us that (1) Tri-Delt alums will honor actives at the annual party Monday night at the sorority house; (2) the gals will host the LBSC football team at a coffee hour, Oct. 22; and (3) the group has its own built-in musical appreciation course with recent serenades by Tau Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Pi, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternities.

If there is any one person at State who is directly concerned with the fortunes of all the 13,000-plus students, it is Dean of Admissions Clarence Bergland so we are sure that our readers will be interested in knowing he was honored last week as radio KLFM's Citizen-of-the-Week.

Dean Bergland recently added to the long list of organizations of which he is a busy member by taking over the chairmanship of all Circle-K clubs in the California - Nevada - Hawaii area and being named one of the three members on the Alcoa Scholarship Committee.

• • • •

AND THIS news from Delta Zeta: Monday night in the cafeteria, its the traditional all-pledge dance . . . DZs are making plans for their Oct. 24 Founders Day fete at Virginia Country Club . . . 22 pledges have brought Delta Zeta rosters up to full strength . . . also on the sorority's futures list is a Nov. 3 fashion show for the alums and a Daughter - Dad night at the Nov. 16 football game.

And a word to the wise: Tonight's foreign films at 5 and 7:30 in the Little Theater is Ingmar Bergman's "Secrets of Women." Better come early: the first two films had turn-away crowds.

PARENTS' CORNER

Flaunted Immorality Leads to Confusion

By RICHMOND BARBOUR

Sex comes naturally. The reproductive drive is one of the strongest drives we have. Unless we teach our children to live according to a strict moral code they'll become promiscuous. We simpy can't let them carry out their biological urges. That's obvious, isn't it?

Then why do we throw sex in their faces all the time? Why do we glamorize immorality? Why do we make sin and depravity seem attractive.

Have you seen any of the "modern movies? They glorify prostitutes and poke fun at decent people. They describe horrid perversions. They present illicit sex as the normal way of life.

Or have you read the novels on the best-seller lists—"Tropic of Cancer," "Lolita" or "Lady Chatterly's Lover?" These books are pornographic. They are sold legally now, all over the country. They are being read by impressionable, literate, questioning teen-agers. I can testify that in one city they are turning up as new contributing factors in teen-agers sex delinquency. Probably the same thing is happening in other places. Read one of these books. Be shocked.

EVEN under the best of circumstances it isn't easy for teen-agers to remain decent. Our young people are struggling to control themselves, just as we struggled. Can you remember how you felt about sex when you were 16?

Our parents were wiser than we are. They didn't let books and movies undermine our ideals. They spared us the temptations our children receive. I think we should be ashamed.

Hostess culottes have given way to the floor length wrapped skirt with bared midriff. Italian designer Pucci has inspired several California houses to create adaptions.

Liberal Arts

Four recent members of the LBCC Liberal Arts Division choir and the Schola Cantorum have sung their way to renown and are currently preparing for an American tour with the Greg Smith Singers, a professional chorus limited to 20 members. They are Ned Bertsch, 1961-62 College Choir president, Phillip Carey, Tom Westerman and Sharon LaNobs.

This year's Homecoming theme, "Ole Goes Disneyland," will blossom forth Friday, when the traditional Old Clothes Day takes on a new look. Prizes will be awarded to individuals and clubs best exemplifying the Disney theme. Additional Homecoming Week activities, to be discussed here in more detail next week, will include the Homecoming Queen election, variety show, rally dance, and the building of elaborate displays on the Carson Street lawn.

Events of the 35th annual Homecoming Week will come to a climax in the Oct. 26 "big game" between the LBCC Vikings and the El Camino Warriors.

LBCC's chapter of Alpha Gamma Sigma, national honorary scholarship society, has selected the following new officers: Gerry Anderson (president), Bob Lavery and Linda Boutwell. Anderson, a member of the varsity football team, has also been named president of the Student Forum.

Preparations are well underway for the 1962-63 Student Directory, to include the name, address and telephone number of each ASB card holder. It is hoped that the book will be ready for sale in mid-November.

The newly-organized club for handicapped students is known as Las Ruedas ("The Wheels"). Temporary officers are George Thompson, Jon May and Trudy Latham. —Pat Estelle.

His Many Medals Prove His Mettle

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L. P-T Food Editor

He's as much at home in a cockpit as a duck is in water. And, speaking of ducks, today's Chef of the Week, Col. Glenn T. Eagleston, has taken some dives of his own.

He's credited with 25 enemy planes destroyed, and 14 damaged, while flying 96 combat missions in P-51 and P-47 type aircraft. Currently he commands the 2478th Air Force Reserve Sector, headquartered at Long Beach. He is a rated command pilot with more than 3,600 flying hours and 1,200 jet fighter hours to his credit.

Born in Farmington, Utah, he came to our state in time to graduate from Alhambra High School. He attended Pasadena City College for one year before enlisting in the U.S. Army in August of 1940. Upon completion of the Army Air Force basic and advanced pilot training course at Luke Air Force Base, Arizona, he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in September of '42.

• • • •

SINCE that time he's been suspended in midair about 90% of the time. From the 354th Fighter Group in the European Theater, he went to the 109th Air Force Base Unit at Dover, Del., and then on to Newark, N. J., where he served as director of operations and subsequently as executive officer.

His "altitude" itinerary continued on, each stop, adding knowledge to his already vast store. Eagleston's advanced training included air tactical school, jet fighter pilot training, and graduation from Air Command Staff School, Air University at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., in 1949.

Col. Glenn T. Eagleston

Col. Eagleston began his second tour of overseas duty at Korea in November of 1950, where many of his aforementioned dives were made. One year later he was returned to the States (New York, specifically) where he remained until completing the Manpower and Management Course at George Washington University, Washington, D. C.

• • • •

MORE BASES and more promotions followed until he eventually came-down-for-a landing in Okinawa in 1958. He received the Legion of Merit for his outstanding people-to-people activities while serving in this capacity.

Among his other decorations are the Distinguished Service Cross, Distinguished Flying Cross with three oak leaf clusters, and the Air Medal with 26 oak leaf clusters. He was given the Croix De Guerre de Vermeil Dicision and The American, European, African and Middle East Ribbons. The United Nations Service Medal, the Legion of Merit, and many other decorations, are included among Col. Eagleston's rewards for a job well done.

That Eagleston is the man-for-the job is evidenced by the fact that he participated in the air offensive in Europe, Normandy, Northern and Southern France, Rhineland, Ardennes-Als, and in Central Europe.

It was in July of '62 that he became commander of the 2478th Air Force Reserve Sector, Long Beach.

• • • •

COL. and Mrs. Eagleston, the former Louise Fahey of Holyoke, Mass., have five children ranging in ages from 17 years to six months. There's Susan, 17, Billy, 15, Sandra, 13, Noel Page, 3, and Lisa MacMurray, 6 months.

While "the colonel" usually goes hunting in Arizona, he is rated as having chalked up one at the shortest hunting seasons in history. It all happened on the base at Okinawa . . . one lone deer got lost on the runway. He "bagged" it in nothing flat.

Eagleston cooks with the same casual flair with which he flies, always taking over the preparation of the entree at family dinner parties.

His entree today is for Dove, a la Eagleston.

Dove, a la Eagleston
1 dozen dove
½ lb. margarine
2 tblsp. flour
½ cup dry sherry salt pepper
garlic
bay leaves

Salt and pepper dove. Use garlic salt with light touch.

Melt margarine in frying pan; brown dove in margarine, turning rapidly.

Remove dove; add flour and stir in sherry.

Return dove to frying pan and simmer for 20 minutes. Serve on buttered toast.

Serves one hungry man.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Stands Pat Against Nudism

DEAR ABBY: The lady who lets her children run around naked is doing them and her community a favor. Nudist children are never juvenile delinquents. No, the world isn't going crazy. It is slowly awakening to the fact that morality does not come from the clothing store.—A NUDIST FAMILY IN NASHUA, IOWA.

ABBY

DEAR FAMILY: Aren't there Laws? And those who break them might risk having the book thrown at them. Including the Good Book:

"When thou seest the naked cover him." Isaiah, LVIII, 7.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: I am very puzzled over your attitude towards people who let their small children run naked in their yards. You are fair in most respects but so unfair in this one. A naked child is a beautiful thing. Your thinking reveals either a sick or nasty mind.—DISAPPOINTED

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: My reason for objecting to small children playing naked in their yards is that child molesters and sex maniacs always seem to turn up where they are least expected. Parents who allow their children to romp unclothed should build high fences.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: I met an artist about six months ago and fell for him brush, palette and easel. I started taking painting lessons from him but he told me to save my money because I had no imagination and was wasting my time and his. (I knew this, but took the lessons to get to know him better.) He is not married and doesn't appear to have any inclination in that direction. I have bought more of his paintings than I have room for, but I can't seem to get anywhere with him. Tell me how to get this man to realize how I feel about him—NO ARTIST

DEAR NO: You don't have to be an artist to draw conclusions. This man is in love with his art. All you will ever get from him is the brush.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Regarding OLD-FASHIONED MOTHER who reported the children's misbehavior to Father at the end of the day so that he could do the punishing:

My mother did that, and half the time we didn't know what we were being punished for. We grew to fear our father, and instead of running to greet him, we'd hide. Then Father passed away when we were in our teens. Our mother had no control over us because she had no one to do the disciplining for her. All she could say was, "If your father were only alive!" She was fortunate because we never got into any real trouble. So, I want to agree with you, Abby. Tell parents again that disciplining children is a joint effort, and should take place the moment a child needs it and not "when Daddy comes home."—WITH ABBY ALL THE WAY

• • • •

Children's Theater works closely with the Long Beach Unified School District. Tickets are sold in the public schools. COVER

Ranging along Seventh Street just east of Long Beach State College, the Bixby place—"The Ranch of the Big Red Barn"—has stood forth as a familiar landmark for over half a century. "Big Red," along with attending buildings and the picturesque old ranch house it served, once sat proudly in the middle of a 50-square-mile spread. But time moves on, and demanding inroads of civilization have now slashed that vast area to a mere 1,500 acres, with still further cuts in prospect next year. Our cover, as drawn by staff artist Clyde Winslow, catches a view of the old barn framed beneath lacy foliage of an ancient pepper tree.

NEXT WEEK

One hundred years ago the woman who worked in a gambling hall was doomed to the life of a virtual outcast. Not any more. For instance, in the casinos at Reno, Nev., are 1,900 girl dealers. Most of them are married, and some are grandmothers. Many of them are active in church, P-T.A. and club circles. Southland has more to say about them next week, in words and pictures, in a story called "The Girl Dealers."

Little Boy, Big Jump

Mike Day, 11, poises at the top of straw-covered ski jump preliminary to fast down-run to become air borne.

By Rosemary Beck

A LONG BEACH youngster who is up in the air about physical fitness, is Mike Day, 11-year-old son of Mrs. Marylee Day, 2024 Locust St., Long Beach, and a 6th grade student at Lafayette School.

Mike, who spends his weekends at Mt. Baldy in the Angeles National Forest, is undaunted by the lack of snow during the summer and fall. A 15-minute ride on the chair lift carries him to an elevation of 7,800 feet, where, along with scores of other enthusiasts, he skis on straw-covered slopes and ski-jumps on a chemical compound similar to cornstarch. (Straw skiing continues until snow skiing starts).

Mike began skiing on straw a year ago and proved himself a natural on the snow slopes last winter by winning trophies and ribbons in junior competition. He is now jumping almost 70 feet off Mt. Baldy's 30-meter jump which has a vertical rise of 100 feet from the floor of the ski jump. Mike, along with several other youthful jumpers, also serves as a junior instructor at the Mt. Baldy ski school.

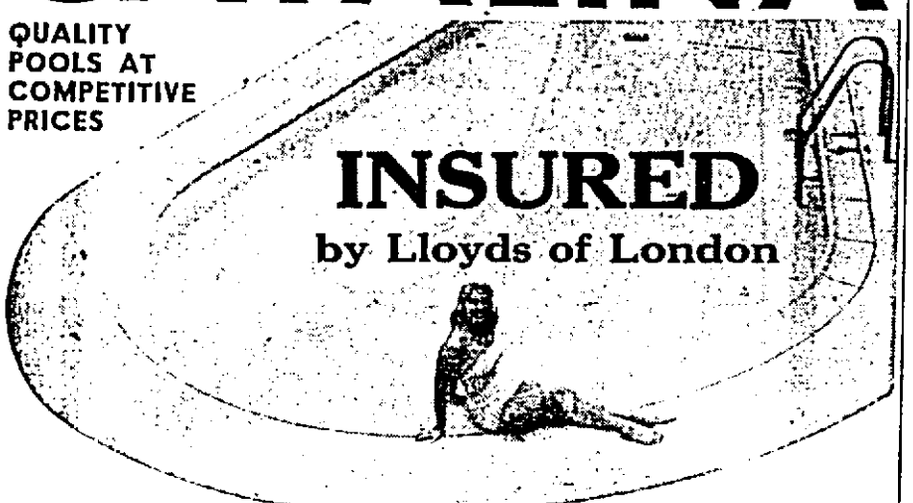

Soon Mike and his mother will be learning German in preparation for a trip to Kitszbuehl, Austria, next September, where they plan to live for two years, and where Mike hopes to meet the challenge of Austrian ski slopes.

Here's Mike, wearing padded helmet, at the top of the 30-meter Mt. Baldy ski jump.

Las Vegas visitors marvel at the beauty and lavish costumes of shows at the Nevada resort. This bit from a Moro-Landis routine is example.

Beauty on the Line

By Aubrey B. Haines

FROM the 10900 block on North Hollywood's Ventura Boulevard nowadays comes a conglomeration of seemingly unrelated sounds. The din of a tap-dance routine is sometimes heard above the racket of a battery of sewing machines, the twang of Oriental music, a cobbler's hammer, and the whir of a movie projector.

Out of it all come Moro-Landis Productions, pioneers of Las Vegas spectaculars. Heading the company is George Moro, producer, choreographer, and stager of the productions. His wife, Ruth Landis, concentrates on the myriad problems of the business end, including maintenance of the massive record file of Moro-Landis-trained dancers and showgirls scattered throughout the nation. Miss Landis also supervises creation of the elaborate production costumes turned out by the hundreds in the costume studio on the premises, where a single showgirl's costume may cost as much as $1,000.

BEGINNING 13 years ago, Moro and Landis were so successful that they almost found no time to marry. "I was working at El Rancho in Las Vegas then," Ruth recalls. "I'm a private from the ranks—an ex-chorus girl. The manager liked the girls in the line but not the costumes or the routines."

"He asked us, 'Can you do better?'" says George, a former stage and film director. "He offered us a deal for four weeks. We stayed three years." During that time they changed two routines every two weeks. "Finally," George says, "Ruth asked me if I had a blue suit. I said yes. She said, 'Wear it this afternoon.' I knew what was coming."

Today, some 200 dance numbers later, Moro-Landis Productions places acts in night clubs from Las Vegas to Boston.

"We have all our routines on film," Ruth

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to LaReina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif. for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give brief genealogy on McCLAIN.—A. B., Lakewood.

A. B.: McCLAIN is a variation of MacLean, one of the most prominent Scotch Highland clans. The ancient source name was Mac-Gilla-Eain, meaning "Sons of the adherent of St. John." The hero clan founder "Gilla-Eain of the Battleaxe" lived in the 1200s. The clan armorial crest consists of this battleaxe, symbolizing the ancestor's prowess in war. Duart Castle was the clan home for many centuries. Located on a cliff of the Island of Mull, across a channel from the west Scotch county of Argyll, it is still formidable and impressive. The MacLean coat-of-arms is a shield divided into four sections. The upper left section has a red rock on a silver background; the upper right has a hand holding a blue cross on silver; the lower left has a black galley-ship on gold; the lower right section has a salmon below two red eagles on a silver backing.

DEAR MISS RULE: I will appreciate the background of HUBERT. Mrs. H. H., Lakewood.

H. H.: HUBERT'S French progenitor was baptized with this name in honor of St. Hubert an 8th century Dutch bishop who became patron saint of hunters. Hubert meant "With brilliant Intelligence." The Hubert shield granted in medieval Normandy has three red lions on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like brief history on HURT. Mrs. G. C., Long Beach.

G. C.: HURT an English personality descriptive surname, was first used for a man known to his relatives and friends as quick and brave as a "Hart" or stag deer. Centuries of name evolution resulted in the change from Hart to Hurt. Thomas Le Hurt was an English land owner in the late 13th century. Five generations of the Hart family lived at Ashborne, Derbyshire up to the year 1611. Their shield has a golden stripe between three gold rosettes on a black background.

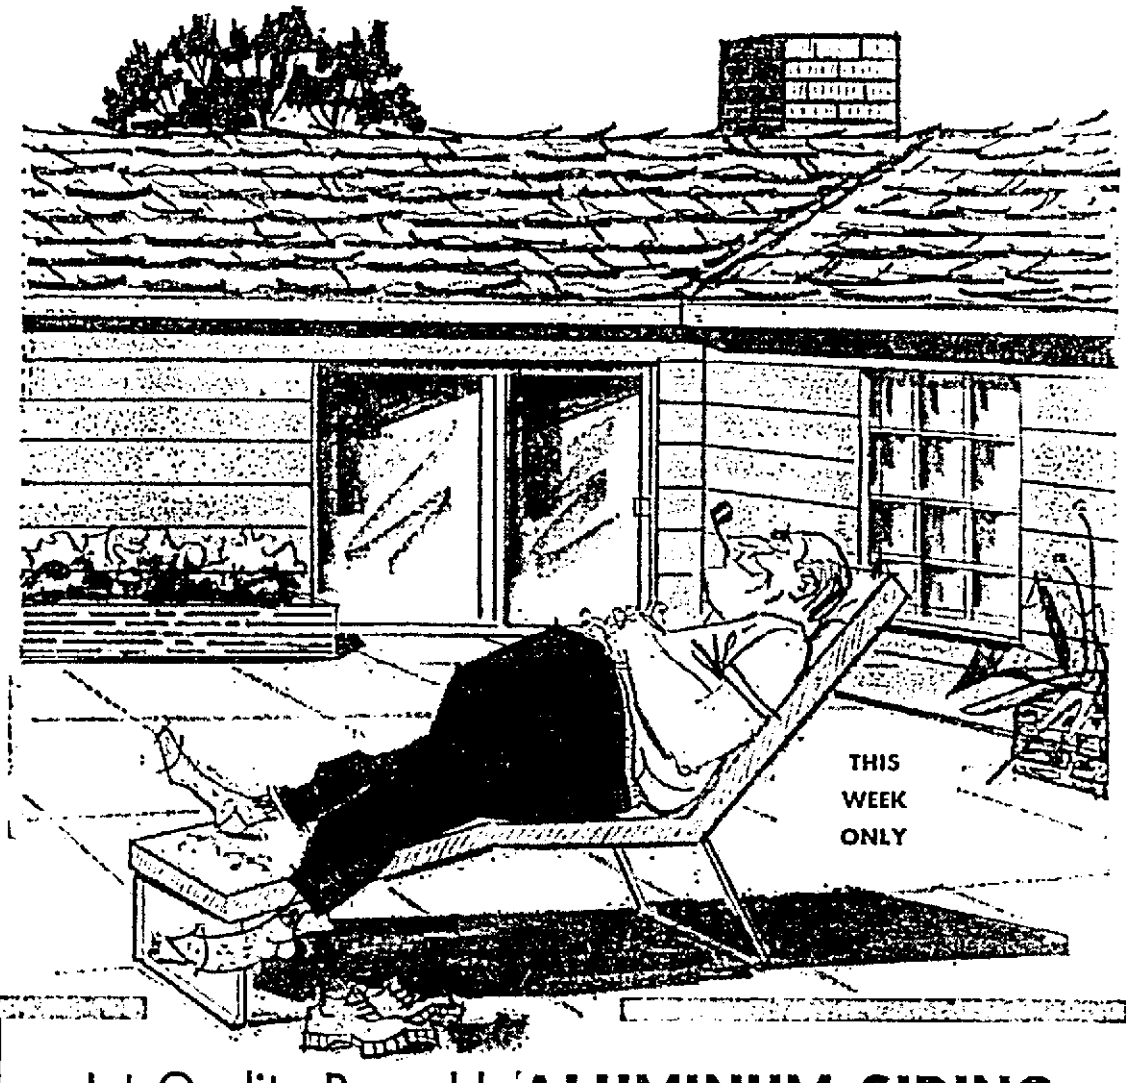

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background of HARBORD. M. W., Long Beach.

M. W.: HARBORD is derived from the Teutonic "Heri-bord" meaning "Warrior's-shield." Your ancestors were living in England before the French invasion in 1066. The Harbord lineage were titled Barons Suffield. Their shield has a golden imperial crown between four rampant golden lions on a background divided into four sections colored alternating blue and red.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on THOMAS. T. T., Long Beach; J. T., Lakewood.

T. T., J. T.: THOMAS was at first an English given-name honoring the Apostle St. Thomas whose name signified "a twin." By the 1200s Thomas became a surname, recorded in many parts of Britain. Welsh Thomases decended from Thomas Ap (son of) Llewellyn, last king of south Wales. They used the Welsh royal shield,a gold rampant lion on a red, gold-bordered background. Capt. Nathaniel Thomas, born in Wales in 1606, migrated to Massachusetts where he married Jennie Briggs whose father arrived on the Mayflower in 1620.

Judo, the 'Gentle Way,' permits followers to develop mind, body

'Hajime!'

By William Jones

NINETY-FIVE pound Roxanne Mealer walks onto the tatami, bows to her sensai and then stands patiently awaiting his orders. "Some nagewaza," barrel-chested John Ogden orders.

The slenderly built girl walks up to a youth. With a purposeful shriek, she flips the youth over her shoulder and onto the mat with a thud.

The young man is 17. Roxanne is 10. He outweighs her by 70 pounds.

But Roxanne is not unique as a judoka (Judo participant). There are students as young as 6 at Ogden's Judo School in Long Beach, one of 24 recognized Judo schools in Southern California. Other schools in the area include the Long Beach Judo School, 1677 Seabright Ave., operated by Mas Nakaoko, and the Kodokan Judo Dojo School at Garden Grove, run by Shag Okada, and belonging to the Judo Black Belt Federation and the Amateur Athletic Union. Both Nakaoko and Okada have Fifth Degree Black Belt rating.

OGDEN, WHO OPERATES his school on East Anaheim Street, says the popularity of the sport was given impetus by service men stationed in Japan during World War II and the Korean conflict.

"It was then they cleared up some misconceptions they had about Judo," Ogden said. "They had thought of Judo as a bloody sport in which persons poked fingers in eyes or delivered a rabbit punch to the back of the neck. In Japan, these service men saw Judo in a new perspective."

Judo, meaning "the gentle way" in Japanese, is described by its followers as a way of life in which the student develops both mind and body, emphazing mental relaxation and physical coordination. The physical emphasis is on leverage and balance. Weight, strength, age, sex are of little importance.

Inside a typical Judo school there is silence except for the soft scuffling of bare feet on the mat—the tatami. The instructor, the sensai, directs the students to sit quietly on the mat. All wear the traditional Judo-gi, a costume composed of a white cotton jacket, trousers and cloth belt.

"HAJIME" (begin) shouts the sensai. Contestants square off in pairs, bow to each other and flip their opponents to the canvas with whacks that resound like artillery fire. A

Judo student shows how to prepare for a hard fall and escape injury as he is tossed with a one-arm shoulder throw by his instructor, John Ogden.

Roxanne Mealer, 10, uses the science learned as a judoka to send a youth of 17 and 70 pounds weight advantage over her shoulder in demonstration fall.

Confidence is a factor gained in studying judo, according to Police Officer J. R. Taylor, shown demonstrating a loin throw against an adversary.

Los Alamitos–reduced in two centuries from 50 square miles to a mere 1,500 acres . . .

The Ranch With the Big Red Barn

By Vera Williams

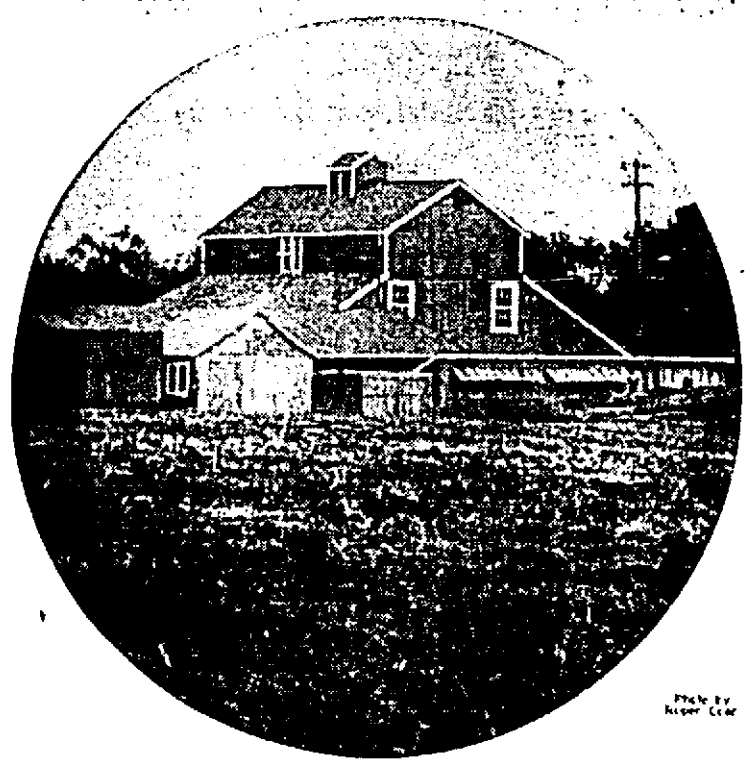

Photo by Keiser Color

Southland residents often refer to Los Alamitos Rancho, east of Long Beach State College on E. Seventh Street, as the "Ranch With the Big Red Barn."

A 'POSSUM, not particularly afraid, crouched on top of the fence around the tennis court at the Fred H. Bixby ranch in the moonlight the other night, looking down with some superiority on a couple of leaping, barking ranch dogs.

They couldn't reach him, and he and they knew it, but the encounter provided excitement for a half-hour or so—the first excitement for months at La Casa de Rancho Los Alamitos.

The first excitement, that is, if one doesn't count the rabbits—sometimes 30 at a time—that hop in from the nearby brush under cover of darkness to feed on the lush lawns.

Or the mocking birds that raise their families in the century-old pepper trees and occasionally fly down to battle with the dogs.

ALL IS SILENCE and serenity at Los Alamitos Rancho, in less than two centuries cut down from 50 square miles to 1,500 acres—100 acres at the "home place" with the big red barn, at the top of E. Seventh Street in Long Beach, held in lifetime trust for the Bixby son and daughters, and 1,400 acres controlled by the Fred H. Bixby Ranch Co. east of 101 Highway overlooking the Marina.

There will be much excitement, beginning next year, when an $18 million development, deluxe multi-units, rises on the ranch land.

"They'll be on the hills, with a view of the ocean and the Marina; they'll be two stories high, with a feeling of space—gardens, patios," explains George J. Salzer of the Ranch Co. (If he had a title, it would be "manager," but in that casual way of the Bixbys, beloved by employes and friends, nobody ever bothered to give him a title.)

Los Alamitos Rancho is part of the Los Nietos land grant which Pedro Fages, Spanish governor of California, gave in 1784 to Manuel Nieto, a Spanish soldier who had served under him. The grant, "bounded on the north by the foothills and on the south by the ocean," was 50 miles square, lying from the San Gabriel foothills to the ocean, between the Santa Ana River and the San Gabriel River which at that time emptied into the ocean near Wilmington.

AT FIRST IT was 300,000 acres, but because it encroached on the property of the San Gabriel Mission, it was reduced by half—to 150,000 acres.

In 1804, Don Manuel Nieto died. After his estate was settled, the part of his land known as Rancho Los Alamitos, comprising some 29,000 acres, went to his son Don Juan Jose. The part known as Rancho Los Cerritos, of approximately the same number of acres, went to his married daughter, Dona Manuela Nieto de Cota.

(Los Cerritos Ranch House, 4600 Virginia Road, now is a Long Beach historical museum. It is open to the public; visit it some day.)

Alamitos Avenue and its extension divided the two ranches. In the park west of the Villa Riviera stands a marker that shows the division of the two ranches at the beach.

In 1834 Don Juan Jose sold Rancho Los Alamitos to Jose Figueroa, Mexican governor of California, for $500—$500, scarcely a down payment on one of the thousands of pleasant homes now on the rancho property!

DON ABEL STEARNS, a Yankee from Massachusetts who had taken out Mexican citizenship, married Arcadia Bandini, daughter of his friend, Don Juan Bandini of Los Angeles, in 1841. At that time Stearns was 42 and his bride was 14.

The following year Stearns bought Rancho Los Alamitos from Francisco Figueroa, brother of the late governor, for $6,000, of which $1,500 was paid in cash and the rest in hides and tallow laid down in San Pedro and Mazatlan.

At the time of the sale, the official list of improvements on the property besides 2,043 cattle, 182 horses, mules, sheep and hogs, included three adobe houses, one covered with pitch and two with rushes. These houses, the walls four feet thick, had been built, it was said, by Don Manuel Nieto, himself. That makes the dates between 1784 and 1804.

Stearns combined the adobes into one house and for the next 24 years he and Arcadia spent their summers there. The adobe, the oldest landmark in Long Beach, is the center of the Los Alamitos hacienda. Rooms and wings have been added, making it a 19-room house—but in the attic one still may see and touch the original bare adobe.

DARK-EYED, spirited Arcadia presided over Los Alamitos and "El Palacio" in Los Angeles. Celebrities who visited California stayed at the Stearns home where aristocratic dons and their families attended banquets and balls given in their honor.

Meanwhile, the companion Los Cerritos Rancho also had fallen into Yankee-become-Mexican hands. Don Juan Temple, who had cruised around the Horn in a windjammer, married Dona Rafaela Cota, one of the 12 children of Dona Manuela Nieto de Cota, and he bought Los Cerritos in 1843. His wife and her 11 brothers and sisters had bought the rancho from their mother. Don Juan paid each owner $275.75. For an additional $25 he bought the ranch branding iron and the right to use it.

Temple built his two-story adobe house in 1845. This house, after having been restored by the Llewellyn Bixby family in 1930, was taken over by the City of Long Beach in 1956 to be preserved as a historical monument.

Horses bearing the colors of Los Alamitos and Los Cerritos annually ran a four-mile race starting from the south side of El Cerrito (Signal Hill) straight to the ocean where they circled a stake and raced back to the starting point.

BAD TIMES came to the master of Los Alamitos. In 1859 he started to build the Arcadia block in Los Angeles, behind his fancy residence, "El Palacio." In 1861 in order to finish building the Arcadia block, named for his wife, he mortgaged Rancho Los Alamitos to Michael Reese of San Francisco for $20,000 with interest at 1½ per cent a month.

Came 1862 and 1863, the years of the "big drought." Cattle died by the thousands. Rancho Los Alamitos was advertised for sale for $153, the amount of unpaid taxes on the property. No one offered to buy it.

In 1866, unable to pay off the mortgage, Don Abel Stearns lost Rancho Los Alamitos to Michael Reese by foreclosure.

Also in 1866, Don Juan Temple sold Rancho Los Cerritos, 27,000 acres, for $20,000 to Flint-Bixby & Co., made up of Dr. Thomas Flint, his brother Benjamin, and Llewellyn Bixby. Jotham Bixby, a younger brother of Llewellyn, was made manager. In 1869 Jotham Bixby bought a half interest in Los Cerritos, which then was principally a sheep ranch.

John W. Bixby, cousin of Jotham and Llewellyn, came out from Maine to help out with the ranch. Also from Maine came Susan Patterson Hathaway, sister of Jotham's wife, Margaret Hathaway Bixby, to help with the children.

SOON JOHN and Susan were married. Their son, Fred Hathaway Bixby, was born in Wilmington in 1875.

In 1873 John W. Bixby subleased a portion of Rancho Los Alamitos and with his wife and small son moved into the neglected old adobe, which had a dirt floor and sagging roof. Their first night Mrs. Bixby cooked in kettles over an open fire. Her husband nailed slats across a window to keep cattle from hooking their way into the house. That window now can be pointed out in the heart of the Bixby home.

In 1881 John W. Bixby persuaded I. W. Hellman, a Los Angeles banker, to come in for a third interest. Rancho Los Alamitos was bought by John W. Bixby, I. W. Hellman and the Bixby Co.—with John as the manager.

John W. Bixby and Hellman visualized great expansion, with Alamitos Bay as the harbor for Long Beach. It was a natural harbor. (The present harbor on the west side is man-made.)

Unfortunately, in 1887 when he was only 38 years old, John W. Bixby died. His third of Rancho Los Alamitos went to his widow, Susan, and their two children, Fred, 12, and Susanna, 7.

Fred H. Bixby and Florence Elizabeth Green were married in 1898 shortly after they were graduated from the University of California at Berkeley.

From then until 1906 Fred H. Bixby leased the property from his mother and sister. Mrs. John W. Bixby died in 1906. That year, Fred H. Bixby and his wife moved into the old adobe with their three children (soon to be four, and later five).

FRED H. BIXBY was a "working rancher" and the ranch under his management was a "working ranch," blooded horses, blooded cattle, up-to-date farming and ranching methods. Employes called him "Boss." He broke mules when he was in his 60s, he roped horses for exercise when he was in his 70s.

Bixby's Shire horses and Polled (without horns) Herefords brought prizes wherever they were shown. He crossed Shire stallions and donkeys and raised the biggest, strongest mules in the country.

He was president of the National Livestock Assn., president of the California State Fair Board. He gave a large grant to the University of

The Man Who Bought His School

By Sterling Bemis

HAROLD WARP liked school so well he bought it. As a result the doorway to the rustic past opens daily at Warp's Pioneer Village on the flatlands of Nebraska at Minden.

Minden is on U. S. Highway 6, but it's only a piece down the road from Highway 30. Either way, once you've entered Pioneer Village you'll find arrayed in 22 buildings 30,000 items tracing the history of the plains country from Kit Carson's moccasin paths to the vapor trails of the jet airplane. It is an orderly record of America's progress since 1830.

Now back to school with Harold Warp. The 50-year-old Minden native was a prosperous Chicago manufacturer (Flex-O-Glass) with a longstanding love for the midlands when he learned a little over a decade ago that the country school he attended as a boy was for sale. His bid won the stocky little building and all its records.

NEXT HE ACQUIRED the first church built in his home town. Then he enlisted his sister, Mrs. T. C. Jensen of Minden, and her auctioneer husband in the chore of bringing true a dream of preserving farm and shop scenes of the past for posterity. In three years Warp and the Jensens traveled 140,000 miles and their collections were ready for chronological display.

The village opened in 1953. It has cost Harold Warp easily a million dollars of the fortune he has accumulated since as a 20-year-old he left Minden for Chicago with $500 and the patent for a plastic window covering. His reverence for his heritage as the son of hardy Norwegian immigrants pioneering on the new sod of Nebraska is shown at every turn. But the exhibition is more than regional. It reflects the ingenuity and enterprise that built America.

Viewing a kaleidoscopic range of industrial heirlooms, the visitor sees a complete panorama of transportation—wagons, horseless carriages, steam engines, firewagons, bicycles, velocipedes, boats and airplanes. The gulf in time and invention between the first internal combustion engine and the first jet airplane is spanned.

AN ERSTWHILE rustic lad will find at the village the farm machines that once geared his day's chores. He can push buttons and set the wheels of some exhibits turning, hear the clatter of a thresher, recall the smell of chaff under a burning sun.

The lathe of Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin, is one of many items that give the village the historic stature of the Smithsonian Institution. Some who have toured the old museum in Washington have found the Nebraska counterpart superior in its field in some respects. For one thing, its exhibitions are immaculately groomed. They are arranged for easy access.

In an original pony express station may be seen the saddle of Buffalo Bill. It became the galloping throne of the celluloid sheik, Rudolph Valentino. The village shows the most complete array of authentic pony express paintings existant. An "honest Injun" fort dating to the redskin wars, the government land office of pioneer Bloomington, Neb., and the railroad depot of the western terminus of the Burlington Railroad in the seventies are among historic structures.

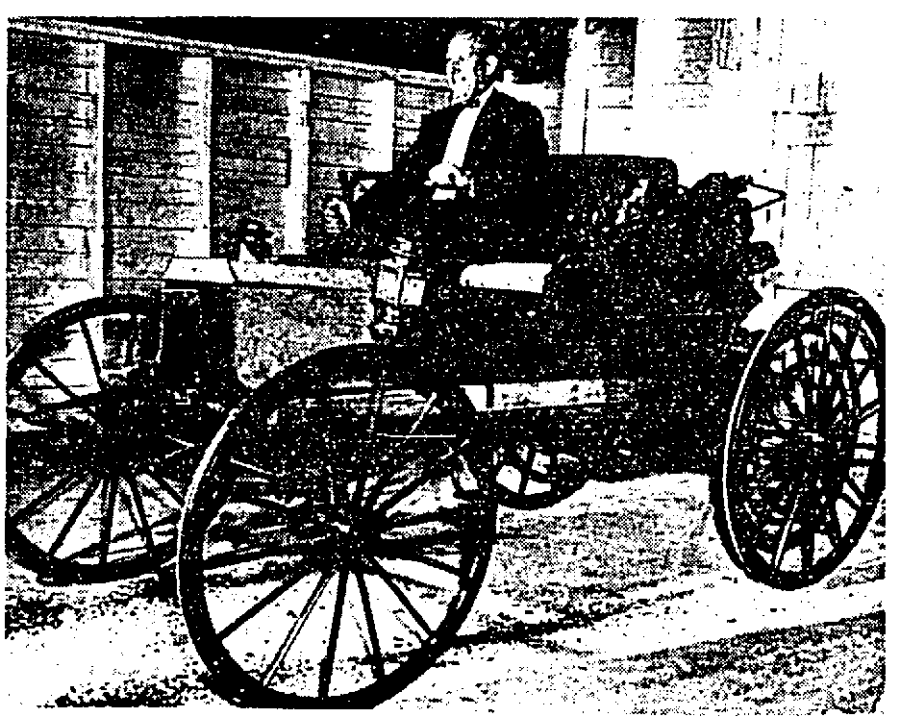

LEGEND SAYS that hard dollars were molded into the bell resting in the old church. It responds with a silvery clang to a finger-tap, but most visitors are gentle with it. A sign at the entrance to the church, still used for worship, reads:

QUIET PLEASE.
IF YOU MUST WHISPER,
WHISPER A PRAYER

The builders of Pioneer Village got a taste of prairie rigors when they wrought a replica of a sod house. Six men needed three weeks and stripped 11 acres of sod to copy a structure that cost the original sodbusters $39.50. Touring handymen find a bewitching array of levers and cogs, wheels and brakes, harness and tools. Women are enthralled by priceless china and silver antiques handed down in the Warp family. The Pioneer Village, with its 22 buildings and 30,000 items, has cost Harold Warp a million dollars. Warp is shown here in one of his horseless carriages, a Duryea.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

With a Method

Purposeful changes fitted this home to family wishes.

in the Make-Over

By Stella George

THERE was method in the make-over of the Oscar Leifers' home at 2355 San Anseline Ave. when the family decided upon alterations, and each change was made with purpose.

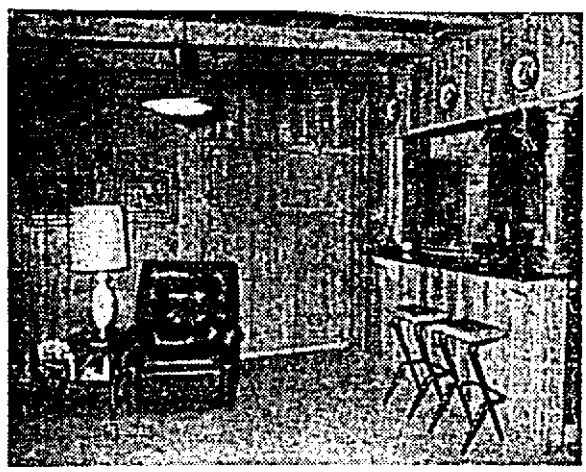

New or renewed in the scheme of alterations are living room, family room, kitchen, screened-in patio and playroom-dressing room adjoining the pool. Only the three bedrooms and two baths remain unchanged.

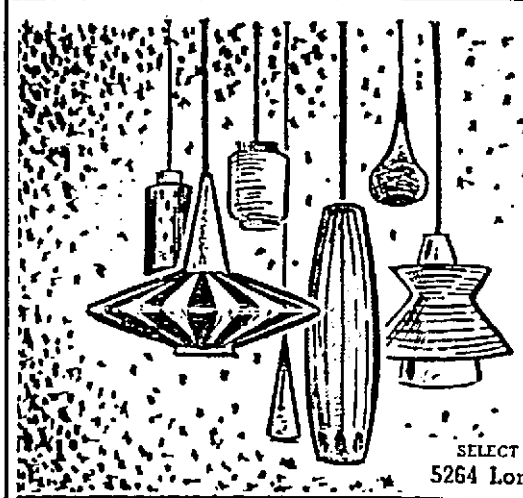

Lacking an entrance hall, the house makes up for this missing feature through the ingenuity of Mrs. Leifer who created an illusion of a large entry by use of floor coverings. Light vinyl curves into thick martini-colored carpeting which covers about two-thirds of the living room floor. The vinyl continues into the kitchen, the service porch, and the bath, and, to the left, into the family room. Thus, all traffic through the home is on the vinyl floor.

THE LIVING ROOM appears much larger than it actually is because of the decorating theme. Martini drapes run the full length of the room. The couch is the same rich, neutral color. A pleasing and colorful accent is the French blue chair and hassock in one corner and an artificial tree in another corner blossoming with French blue flowers.

The long blond mahogany coffee table is unique because the entire center section lifts up to form a desk if needed. In the dining end of the room, table and chairs are also blond mahogany.

One wall of the kitchen was opened and a bar set above the sink when the family room was added. Walls are knotty pine. Spacious cupboards, large enough to store a poker table, for example, line a portion of one wall. A comfortable white couch which makes into a guest bed appears to be upholstered in some type of silk fabric. Actually, it is washable and practical naugahyde. Nearby is a leather chair, Leifer's exclusive property. A portable TV can be moved wherever needed.

THE SPACE between the kitchen and family room on one side of the bar is large enough to hold a small table and chairs for breakfast dining. The kitchen is bright and cheerful with yellow Formica and yellow appliances. Wallpaper is yellow and white. Because the area above the stove so often becomes stained because of cooking, Mrs. Leifer had a large square of clear glass installed from the top of the stove to the ceiling.

The entire back yard of the home consists of swimming pool and deck area. The latter is large enough to accommodate a ping pong table, deck chairs pool slide, and other pool luxuries. The screened-in patio, with access from the service porch, is a very usable and handy all-season room. In the summer it eliminates the fly problem completely yet provides the feeling of being out of doors. Furnishings include a round table, chairs, two rattan chairs and end table, and a small, formica-topped service

IN THE REAR of the garage (the side of which faces the pool) the Leifers have built a combination play room and dressing room. It can also serve as a guest room. From the youngsters' point of view it is one of the favorite rooms of all since it is private—and has a telephone.

A mural of two mermaids on the garage wall facing the pool was done by young Miss Leifer a few years ago.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Dramatically modern and highly practical, this study center is easily and inexpensively built from a plan.

By Bill Meyerriecks

EVERY PARENT wants his child to make better grades in school, but many don't take the trouble to follow one of the first recommendations of every education expert: provide a good place for home study.

This week's Sketchbook project not only gives instructions on how to provide a youngster a good place for study, but shows how the study center can give a decorator lift to an entire room.

The main design elements in the desk units are the vertical posts dramatically running from floor to ceiling. The secret of easy installation of the posts is a spring-loaded device which makes it possible to snap the 2x3s firmly in place in minutes, without damaging ceiling.

DESK SURFACE is 22 inches deep by 29 inches wide. It's supported at the wall by a hidden wall cleat, and screwed to the posts at the sides. Pigeon-holes rest on shelf brackets and the recommended pegboard wall surface permits easy installation of all types of additional hanging hardware.

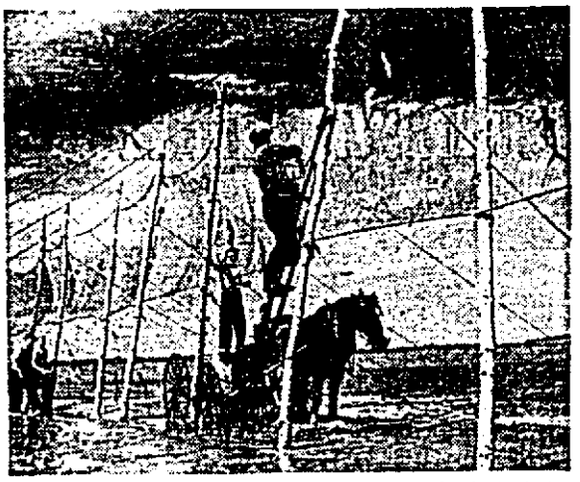

The special type of pegboard we show on the wall is V-grooved and perforated only on the upper two-thirds of the sheet, giving it an attractive wainscot effect.

TO OBTAIN Student's Desk Plan, specify S-75 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Mosaic Projects Are Fun

Activities make leisure hours interesting and making the colorful little picture plaque shown above with NBC-TV's actress Sandra Campbell is an easy project. Same design may be used on a tray, coffee table or other subject. To obtain the full-sized plaque pattern together with a 34-page book showing all phases of mosaic handicraft, patterns for other projects and 200 illustrations of mosaic methods, send name and address and $1 in check, currency or money order to: Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. Specify No. 193A, manual.

Nova Scotians take their fish in a unique method that uses vast tidal differences as a chief factor.

Drive-In Fishing

By Enola Chamberlin

FISHING supplies mankind around the world with food and sport, and the ways of the fisherman are varied. Anglers in the Long Beach-Orange County coastal area make most of their catches with rod and reel, but Nova Scotians in the Bay of Fundy area have a drive-in method that lets the tides do much of the work.

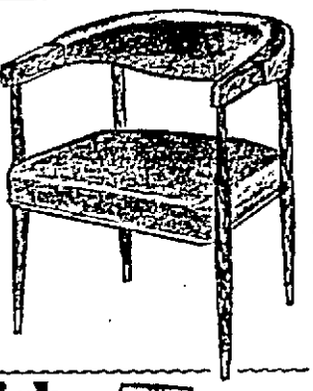

The difference between the high and the low tides in the Bay of Fundy is a matter of 20 to 25 feet. Water drains out swiftly in one hour. A few hours later it comes pushing back with a force not to be denied. And when it rolls in it brings shad by the thousands. Accordingly, the early fishermen set high, heavily-braced poles into the sand at low tide level, about three miles out from shore proper. Between these poles, using only about the top one third, the fishermen string their nets a "tennis court" in the sea.

THE INCOMING tide bellies the middle of the nets like wind-blown sails. The shad become tangled in the mesh and there they hang as the tide goes out and the fishermen come in.

Sturdy horses draw wagons with ladders and men. Arriving at the nets one man stays in the wagon, picks the fish that are within his reach and manages the horse. Other men use ladders set in the sand to reach the catch. The fish are tossed into the wagon to be taken to market.

Since one fisherman's nets may stretch for hundreds of yards, many hands are needed if the net-caught fish are all to be harvested before the swirling tide roars in again.

It's Time to Lift Dahlias

Dahlia enthusiasts would never think of letting their favorite bulbs overwinter in the soil. Indifferent gardeners, however, often treat them this way with only a slight decrease in the quality of bloom next year.

Dahlias cannot be left indefinitely, however, or the clumps will become impossibly crowded. Those left in the ground last winter should be lifted this year. The California Association of Nurserymen says this can be done any time the tops have dried, which could be now or December, according to when you planted your dahlias.

Breakfast Taste Surprise

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

FOR A taste surprise, try this delicious platter. It's a mouth watering selection of buttery raisin toast and jam swirled cream cheese spread, with sizzling meat accompaniment. It is especially appropriate to serve in late summer months, when sandwiches are most popular.

Americans eat more than 100 million sandwiches every day. For taste-surprising variety try several types of raisin bread available at your favorite bakery. This elegant orange spread is also excellent on raisin nut or raisin cinnamon bread.

Devonshire Raisin Breakfast Sandwich

- 2 (3-ounce) packages cream cheese
- ¼ teaspoon grated orange peel
- 2 tablespoons orange juice
- ¼ cup strawberry jam
- 12 slices raisin bread
- Butter

Soften cheese at room temperature. Beat in orange peel and juice until smooth. Swirl jam through cheese. Pile into serving dish. Toast and butter raisin bread. Arrange on large serving platter with cheese spread and any desired breakfast meat, such as link sausages. Makes 6 servings.

RAISIN BREAD SANDWICHES FOR SUMMER EATING: Rasin bread blends harmoniously with fillings for sandwich snacks indoors or out. Raisin nut bread is superb with Monterey Jack or Swiss cheese. For hearty meat sandwiches spread raisin bread with herb seasoned butter.

RAISIN CINNAMON BREAD LOVELY OFFERING: Spread it with softened cream cheese mixed with chopped salted pecans or sweet orange marmalade. For dainty tea sandwiches, butter raisin cinnamon bread generously, sprinkle with sugar and broil until bubbly. Cut in quarters to serve.

FREEZE AHEAD RAISIN SANDWICHES: These raisin bread sandwiches will stay fresh in your freezer for 2 to 3 weeks, ready for eating under the sun or stars. Spread bread with butter to the edges to prevent sogginess. Take your choice of cooked or canned chicken, turkey, seafood or meats, dried beef, cheeses and peanut butter fillings. Wrap well in transparent wrap or heavy waxed paper.

Devonshire Raisin Breakfast Sandwich and sizzling sausages make up this start-of-the-day food platter.

No two Lilly Kraus dolls are the same. This basket-maker group shows care that goes into making dolls.

Dolls of the Incas

By Dorothy Severns

LILLY KRAUS Ecuadorian dolls were recently introduced in California through Miss Ruth I. Mahood, historical Curator with the Los Angeles County Museum.

These hand-carved Indian dolls represent descendants of the Incas in the provinces of Ecuador from the capital city of Quito 15 miles from the equator, to majestic Chimborazo, the highest peak in the Andes.

Geographically interesting to children and adults, the dolls always will be a rarity because they are created and dressed by only one person—Lilly Kraus.

After beginning her career in London with original water-repellent artificial flowers, she opened a shop in Ecuador where she designed and sold handbags, belts, leather scrapbooks and albums.

AS A HOBBY, she made dolls — replicas of basket sellers of Guayaquil, dancers from the fiesta in Saquisili, poncho-clad men carrying flowers and produce to the fair — and Panama hats from Cuenca (More than 85 per cent of all Panama hats in the world are made in Ecuador). Doll-making was so fascinating that it continued to be her hobby after she married and retired from business.

Elsie Church, 2419 251st St., who is a member of the Southern California Hand Weavers, was the first in California to possess a pair of the Lilly Kraus dolls. Most interesting to the "Twenty-Five Weavers" of the local group are the hand-woven clothes on the dolls and the spindle and distaff carried by the "Chimborazo Woman."

Weaving is as old as civilization in Ecuador.

On the roads leading to Otavado, they carry woven goods, fruits, vegetables, or chickens in small coops strapped to their backs.

Dressed in bright-colored ponchos and mushroom-shaped hats, some Otavado Indians wear sandals, many are barefoot, and about their waists are belts — chumpis — decorated with symbols of their ancient religion.

GROUPS of women in swishing skirts trot along with their husbands. Babies are usually strapped on their backs, and they chatter in Quechua (the Incan language) while their busy hands spin thread. A distaff for the wool is placed under the arm and the wool is drawn from it by the thumb and index fingers, which are moistened in the mouth of the spinner. When the spindel is given a whirl, the strands twirl tightly.

From ponchos and hats and sandals and underclothes, Lilly has reproduced each detail of dress in the dolls. Her delicate carving portrays every facial expression—the quiescent face of the Quito woman carrying the flower-decorated candle to church; gray-haired Musico's mellowed beauty, and the serene Calderon with his cage of chickens. In this age of assembly-line-production, it is amazing to discover that no two of her dolls are alike.

Making dolls that are replicas of Ecuador Indians has become an absorbing avocation with Lilly Kraus, above.

Problems in Math

By Harry Karns
Education Research Associates

QUESTION: "My daughter knows her math and can work problems quickly in her head. Yet her school papers reveal all sorts of minor mistakes which cut her grade down. What's the trouble—and the remedy?"

ANSWER: The difficulty sounds familiar.

A father recently described to us his experience with this seventh-grader during the first days of this school term. The teacher had assigned review problems in addition, subtraction and multiplication—processes which the boy had mastered in fifth and sixth grade. The father spot-checked the boy's work and found the answers correct. But the boy brought home "D's."

The father's fust impulse was to write a brisk note to the teacher. But he decided instead to give the son's papers a second inspection.

True, the work had been done correctly, but problems had been copied incorrectly from the textbook. The child had gotten the right answers to the wrong problems. Naturally, his answers did not fit the key used by the teacher in grading papers.

IN SEVERAL CASES, the youngster, while doing accurate work on problems correctly copied, had not done the kind of work assigned. For example, he had added when the book called for multiplication. Another error resulted from writing numbers carelessly: a nine was written like a seven.

He had copied his work a second time for the sake of neatness and in doing so had put down wrong numbers—purely a mechanical error which did not reflect on his mathematical ability but which nevertheless cost him a grade point.

To describe such mistakes is to prescribe the remedy—greater care. Encourage your child to:

1. Double-check and make sure all numbers are copied correctly.
2. Write numbers clearly and distinctly and avoid making sevens like nines, zeroes like sixes, and sixes like ones.
3. Determine whether symbols require addition, subtraction or multiplication.
4. Do neat work the first time, thus avoiding the chances of error that go with copying work over.
5. Place each number where it belongs in relation to other numbers. Numbers out of line don't add up to the right answer.

Q. When did the U. S. Naval Academy first use a goat as mascot? E. J.

A. According to legend, the Naval Academy has had a goat as its mascot since 1890. On their march that year from the ferry station at Highland Falls up the steep hill to West Point to play the first Army-Navy game, the Naval Cadets (as they were then called) commandeered a goat from the non-com's quarters for their mascot. However, the official files do not record this incident but list 1893 as the year a goat mascot made his debut at the time of the fourth Army-Navy game.

Q. Please list some of the words used in the 1962 National Spelling Bee. C. H.

A. Some of the words on which spellers went down were: ensconce, bourgeois, debacle, corollary, posthumously, eviscerate, chryalis, erysipelas, amorphous, valetudinarian, cuirass, supererogation, prescient, solecism, logorrhea, dihiscent. The word esquamulose was misspelled by the two finalists, who were then declared national co-champions.

Q. How can one tell whether a child's shoes fit properly? V. S.

A. If shoes show signs of wear chiefly on the ball of the foot, it is likely they fit properly. Wear at the toe shows that shoes are too short, and wear on one edge means that the foot is off balance. If the heels are run-over it is a sign of poor posture which needs correction. Shoes which are too narrow will show wear around the edges of the sole.

Q. Does Alaska still produce gold in quantity? R. D.

A. Alaska still produces gold in appreciable quantities. In 1960, gold production from lode and placer mines was 180,000 troy ounces, valued at $6.3 million.

The Man Who Would Not Conform

Charles Lummis, wearing the corduroys for which he was famous at his arroyo home.

El Alisal, the Arroyo Seco home that Lummis built of native stones, is open to public daily from 1 to 4 p. m.

By Roberta Nichols

"SING FOR your own supper," shouted one of the guests who had been subjected to the mock indignity of singing "La Paloma" while flapping his arms and swooping in and out among other guests.

Charles Fletcher Lummis, a slight figure in doeskin charro costume and drawnwork shirt, picked up his guitar and leaned against one of the four trunks of the venerable sycamore tree around which he had built the house. There was a hush among the merrymakers, a group composed of actors and writers; a senator, the pretender to a throne, and a railroad magnate. All were bound together by one thing—being born in March, thus being eligible for Lummis' annual birthday party, the March Hare 'noises'.

Here in the patio of the house, at 200 E. Ave. 43, Los Angeles, and built of boulders from the Arroyo Seco, conversation was good, wine sparkling. Here under the sycamore a table groaned with food for which the host might demand that the guest sing or perform.

"What shall it be?" he asked.

"EL ZAPATERO," someone said. "Page 32, El Charro, The Kind Hearted Boss," suggested another.

Both were folk songs that Lummis had collected and published under the title, "Spanish Songs of Old California." He had even recorded them for posterity on the talking machine.

He was suddenly grave. "It will be—." He did not finish, but in a clear, resonant voice took up the strains of "Adios, Adios, Amores." Farewell, O Love, Forever.

When he had finished the only sound was a breeze rifling tender young leaves. Like a ghost, some thought, remembering the son Amado, who had died in 1900.

Charles F. Lummis came upon the California scene in 1885, having walked 3,507 miles from Ohio to Los Angeles to take up editorship of the Times. During the 143-day tramp he sent weekly dispatches ahead to the paper, recounting his experiences en route, in typical Lummis vein—dramatic, often lurid, not always credible.

AND THIS was an incongruity. Because the man came from a strict New England background where right was right, wrong was wrong, and a fact in fancy dress was suspect. And he was a minister's son.

From the time that his mother died when he was 3, Charles lived in a predominately feminine world, first with relatives and later in a female seminary where his father taught after giving up the ministry. The boy was willful and spoiled from the undivided attention of so many young women.

Here began a life of nonconformity and studied showmanship upon which his Puritan conscience never ceased to exact payment, if we are to believe that conflict between standards and actual ways of life can affect man physically.

Guilt created by two marriages and an illegitimate daughter who as a young woman came to live in the Lummis household may have been contributing factors to his dramatic illnesses — paralysis before the age of 30, from which he recovered; blindness from which he just as miraculously recovered.

But showmanship was as much a part of Charles Lummis as the rarified California air that he wrote about when he became editor of the magazine, "Land of Sunshine." For the magazine he developed and published some of the best western talent of the day and El Alisal became famous as a salon for which artists and millionaire alike vied for invitations.

DON CARLOS, as Lummis called himself after he had made final rejection of the east, was an author of many books. Without formal training he was an excellent archeologist. He championed four California Missions. The King of Spain knighted him for writings on Spain in America. He founded the Southwest Museum. And he was a librarian.

As city librarian for Los Angeles, he built one of the best reference departments in the Far West.

That he worked hard at rebellion cannot be denied. However some of his hi-jinks point more to an inordinate need for attention. But the stories made good telling — spreading mustard on pie, preferring flint and steel to matches, bursting into a roomful of guests clad only in loosely knit white underwear.

By 1928, time was running out for the land of sunshine's prime booster. Although dying of cancer, he set himself the task of getting three books ready for publication. The day after receiving confirmation of the acceptance of the last one, he died.

Fittingly, funeral services were conducted in the patio and his ashes are sealed in a wall facing the venerable four-trunked sycamore that he loved. His favorite band of Spanish musicians played his favorite song, "Adios, Adios, Amores." Page 34 in his collection of music, "Spanish Songs of California."

"Farewell, O Love Forever." Page 34. That is the last page in the book.

The Willbanks Story

The Willbanks Carpet Co. is a departure from the usual carpet specialty shop. It was founded on the premise that quality carpet, backed by expert installation, could be sold at a minimum mark up, in sufficient volume to be profitable.

The extension of this premise was to operate without frills and costly fixtures from a low rent and thus low overhead location in a factory warehouse on a side street in Signal Hill.

By eliminating high rent and other cost raising features, the company decided it could afford to pass on to its customers the substantial savings by giving more carpet value at less cost.

Here Is Our Realistic Pricing Policy. Our Expert installation is $1.25 per yd., and the finest 50-oz. rubberized felt pad is 75c yd. The red Cushionaire pad is $1.75 per yd.

Go Spectacular With Infrared

By The Shutterbug

SCENIC views certainly rank high as favorite summertime photo subject matter, but if you think color is the only way to shoot eye-catching landscapes it's only because you haven't tried a very special type of black-and-white film that can give you some of the most spectacular scenics you can imagine. The film is Kodak Infrared.

With Infrared film in your camera, the only extra item of equipment you'll need for exciting landscape photography is a dark red (Wratten A or equivalent) filter over your lens. With this setup, shooting is done in the same manner as with conventional black-and-white materials. But the resulting pictures are far from conventional. Blue skies are rendered so dark they look almost black; clouds pop out with their whiteness. Over-all contrast within the scene is increased noticeably over normal. Green grass and leaves appear white, as if covered by snow. Details in the far distance of the scene show with remarkable clarity. The over-all effect of such an infrared photograph is unlike anything possible with other available films, color or black-and-white.

Shooting scenics with Infrared film, as described in accompanying article, brings unconventional results.

KODAK INFRARED film is available in three different types for still photography: Infrared film in sheets, available in all regular sizes; 20-exposure 35mm cartridges (IR 135); and Kodak High Speed Infrared film in 100-foot rolls for bulk loading.

Unlike conventional panchromatic films which are "blind" to the radiation of infrared light, Kodak Infrared materials are treated during manufacture with special dyes that impart sensitivity to this otherwise invisible wave length of light. Infrared films are also sensitive to blue light, hence the need for heavy red filtration to block all but infrared light from the film during exposure.

Because they have a longer wave length than visible light, infrared rays do not focus in the same plane as do visible rays. To insure picture sharpness when shooting infrared pictures, you'll have to increase the lens-to-film distance slightly to properly focus these longer rays. Many cameras, particularly 35mm types, have a special infrared focusing mark engraved right on the lens distance scale. Visual focus is made in the conventional manner, then the distance reading is set opposite the infrared mark, rather than the regular index. Focus extension required for infrared work is often listed in lens data sheets; if no such information is at hand for your camera, a basis for trial is the extension of the lens by ¼ of one per cent of its focal length.

KODAK recommends an exposure of 1/25 at f/8 for distant subjects in bright sun; 1 second at f/22 for nearby subjects. This data applies to the use of 35mm Infrared film; for High Speed Infrared, correct exposure will be obtained at 1/25, f/16. Because most exposure meters will not register in the infrared region, an actual daylight exposure index cannot be assigned to the slower film. High Speed Infrared film carries a daylight rating of A.S.A. 50 when used with a dark red filter.

As additional insurance for critical image definition, always use the smallest lens opening possible under whatever shooting conditions are present. A steady tripod is a virtual necessity when following this rule.

Is Woman's Place in the Home?

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

PROBLEMS of the married woman who seeks a career is the theme of a gripping first novel, "A WOMAN'S PLACE," by Ann Helming (Coward McCann, $4.95). In a way, it is three tales in one: three women go their separate ways into the business world of the city, yet meet frequently for gay chatter, discussions of their marital problems and affairs, and to find comfort in the understanding of friends—women friends.

Ellen Devore, although comfortably housed with her successful engineer husband, Ted, and their child, craves a return to the theatre, a career that was just beginning to show promise when love, marriage and motherhood drove her from her first love.

Marty Blake, Ellen's friend, has an even more energetic drive to succeed in business; her success as executive chief in a large department store places her, career-wise, ahead of her husband, Don. She and Ellen fight for their goals, and they fight to preserve their marriages, at times poignantly. Other men in their lives increase tensions and desires.

Leigh Willoughby, more complex than her two companions, tries sex on men's terms. As a feature writer for a metropolitan daily, she battles for a position of importance; when she wins the post desired by her lover, she suffers loss in victory. Driven both by carnal desires and by an inner force never at rest, Leigh touches deeply the lives of men married and unmarried. She gives the story its earthy and exciting honesty.

Ann Helming, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of UCLA, served 10 years as newspaper reporter in the Southland; as critic and columnist, she perfected a professional, reportorial style so evident in this highly successful first novel. Her dialogue (she's an expert with speech) has the warmth of a kiss and the drama of a slap. The young and knowledgeable Miss Helming is at the beginning of a successful career—she already is the finished "pro." "A Woman's Place" is wholeheartedly recommended.

THE FACTUAL history of the uphill struggle of the American submarine to her present dominance and the deeds of her intrepid crews and rescue-divers is a saga of adventure and heroism superior to most fiction.

Vice Adm. Charles A. Lockwood, a submariner most of his 39 years, and his writing partner, Col. Hans Christian Adamson, Air Force historian, both retired, add to their list of literary achievements "HELL AT 50 FATHOMS" (Chilton, $5).

Accurate information and spellbinding anecdote tell the story of the Navy's dedicated efforts to eliminate danger from undersea duty. There were the tragic losses of the crude pioneer pigboats; the sinking of the S51 off Long Island in 1925 with 33 men; the loss of the S4 with all hands, and divers tapping messages to dying men inside; and the Squalus disaster off New London in 1939. The Navy met this challenge with the Momsen lung, rescue chambers, escape hatches and other devices on the way.

This is a well written book of quality, ably compiled, with an appendix of world submarine disasters from 1864 to 1960.

JERRY D. LEWIS of Pacific Palisades, author of "CRUSADES AGAINST CRIME" is constributing all royalties on autographed copies of his book to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

Persons who wish autographed copies may send $4.95 to Jerry D. Lewis, 1350 Marinette Road, Pacific Palisades.

"Crusade Against Crime" is an anthology of true crime stories about key cases of the FBI, T-Men and other law enforcement agencies, with case histories by J. Edgar Hoover, Robert F. Kennedy, Quentin Reynolds and Don Whitehead.

SOME WRITERS, like Tolstoy, achieve greatness in long epics like "War and Peace." Argentina's Jorge Luis Borges has reached the pinnacle via the little essay and the very short short story.

"LABYRINTHS" (New Directions $5.50) is the first of Borges' writing to be translated into English, except for fugitive pieces in literary magazines. There are 21 "fictions," as Borges likes to call his Kafka-esque stories, each with a deep meaning imbedded. There are 10 essays, on such subjects as Argentine writing, Pascal and Paul Valery, on "Kafka and His Precursors" (Borges obviously owes a debt to Kafka) and on Shaw. There are some wonderful parables too.

The stories—the best are "Lottery in Babylon," "Deutsches Requiem" and "Funes the Memorious"—are not stories in the usual sense; they are actually essay-stories. The translations are by the best interpreters of Latin American literature—Dudley Fitts and Harriet De Onis among them.

ISAAC Basheves Singer, who writes, we are told, marvelously in Yiddish, has himself helped to translate his novel "THE SLAVE" (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, $4.95). So we are assured of a good share of the rich, old world imagery in his style.

"The Slave" is of epic sweep—the story of the obliteration of a Jewish community by Ukranian Cossacks in the 17th century; of how Jacob, fleeing the massacre, is sold into slavery to a farmer by bandits. In the isolated village he finds himself among half-pagans. Jacob, learned in the Talmud, falls in love with his master's daughter Wanda. The law makes marriage impossible. But Jacob learns, and this is the point of the novel, that religion is more than ritual; his love teaches him that reality, too, constitutes true religion.

California at Davis so that "theoretical" farmers could be turned into "practical" farmers by actual farm work in the summer time.

Barbecues with Bixby himself barbecuing the beef were institutions.

His was the era that a man's word was as good as his bond. He closed many deals with a handshake—nothing on paper. Never was he known to renege on his word.

Even before Fred Bixby died in 1952, Progress—with a capital P—began cutting in on his property. The Navy selected 104 acres of Rancho Los Alamitos in 1941 for a naval hospital, which later became the Veterans Administration Hospital. Bixby made available 300 additional acres for Long Beach State College.

Subdivisions shot up like mushrooms. Naples, Belmont Shore, Belmont Heights, Los Alamitos, Los Altos, Rossmoor, College Estates and College Park Estates all are on original Los Alamitos Rancho land.

"The property keeps raising buildings—instead of crops," sums up Salzer.

MRS. BIXBY, active in the Day Nursery, Tichenor Orthopedic Clinic and a multitude of kindred organizations, died in 1961 after a long illness that apparently dated from her husband's death.

Bixby is included in the Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City. His biography, his hat, chaps and lariat are displayed there. It isn't a television sombrero—it's a rancher's hat, battered, sweat-stained. Always it should be remembered that Fred H. Bixby was a "working rancher," and his possessions showed that he used them.

There are no barbecues, no social activities at Los Alamitos now. Years ago Bixby put the house and gardens in a trust so that his children always would have a home to which they could return if they wished.

They come home sometimes, to stay overnight: Katharine Bixby Hotchkis of San Marino, Elizabeth Bixby Janeway of Santa Ynez, Fred H. Bixby of Los Angeles. (John Bixby died when he was 23, Deborah Bixby Green of Oakland died in 1959.)

On the place are two women, Ann Livoni, the housekeeper, and Helen Morrill, the cook, and four men, Joe Sisneros who was born 46 years ago on the rancho and never has lived anywhere else, Miguel Hernandez, Jesus Vasquez, Peter Nissen. And the two dogs, Barney and Duke. No horses, no cattle, no sheep.

THE HERB garden is redolent with rosemary—Mrs. Bixby always wanted rosemary in the carrots!—mint and sage. Roses bloom in neglected profusion in the rose garden and a variety of flowers in Mrs. Bixby's "Friendship Garden," where she planted slips and seeds given her by friends.

Rubber trees planted by John W. Bixby spread wide across the front lawn.

In a niche in the garden stands a statue, a shining black horse, given by the ranch hands in memory of "Boss."

Traffic thunders past on Seventh Street, just out of sight, just out of hearing. Many of them refer to the layout as "the ranch with the big red barn."

THERE ISN'T even a vegetable garden. The theory is that it is cheaper to buy vegetables than to raise them for six employes.

This is the first year there has been no farming on the land above the Marina. Crops were poor during the dry years, and last year the tenant farmers did not get their seed back. The tenants, who also called Fred Bixby "Boss," are scattered now, with their families.

If the ghost of Don Manuel Nieto hovers over quiet Los Alamitos, it will be surprised when those apartments go up next year!

Judo, the 'Gentle' Art of Self Defense

visitor is taken aback by the devotees slapping the canvas like seals after each fall.

In falling, the trainee slaps his hand on the mat to take weight away from head and spine and avoid injury.

A great pyschological weapon in Judo is the Kiai, an offensive shout in a match. The startling scream is done to put fear into the opponent and tighten the stomach muscles for a throw.

Ogden recalls that when he once asked a woman student to practice some Judo with him, she collapsed from fright at his shout and thus ended the match without any actual Judo throws.

Learning Judo is made easy because instructors first insist on teaching students how to break various falls. A Judo expert throwing another person will hang onto his victim as he drops, easing the fall. There are physical exercises and lessons in tumbling before the student actually is taught how to throw opponents.

JUDO STUDENTS, who remain silent while on the mat, express courtesy by bowing both to their instructor and opponent. Showoffs are quickly banished from the dojo, or exercise hall.

Ogden recalls that while walking through a park one night, three doped-up hoodlums demanded his wallet. The 40-year-old, 5-foot 7½-inch tall Judo expert neatly cast all three into a nearby lake.

After the three hoodlums got out of jail, the toughest one visited Ogden's Judo School and tried to sign up for a course. He was turned down.

Judo enthusiasts claim that their newly gained knowledge helps them avoid outside brawls. A Long Beach police officer, J. R. Taylor, (Brown Belt, 2nd class) said Judo does much toward gaining confidence.

LOCAL JUDO instructors have gone out of their way to help the handicapped learn the sport. Ogden, for example, teaches several blind boys. "It is important to them two-fold; because it teaches them self-confidence and good balance," Ogden, a Navy Judo instructor during World War II, said.

Advancement cycles for the beginner in Judo depend on his skills and mental outlook toward mastering the varying requirements. Achievements are classified by colored belts.

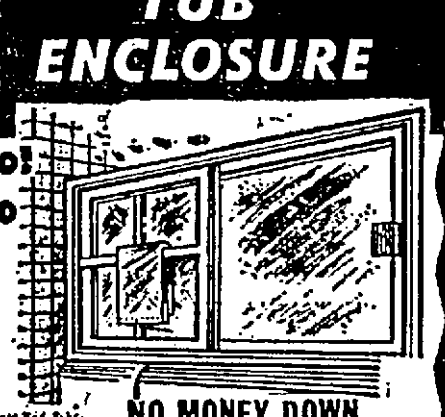

Depending on his ability, technique, knowledge of the sport, attitude and results in competition, the student may climb from a White Belt rating to a Black Belt. In between are the Green and Brown Belts. Within these Belt ratings are various degrees awarded for proficiency. At present there are only two living Tenth Degree Black Belts in the United States. Ogden holds Black Belt rating, 3rd degree. Air Force Generals Curt Le May and Thomas Powers are also Black Belts. Official certification of the Belt awards is made by Black Belt Federation of America.

SPORT JUDO as we know it in the United States is derived from the method developed by Dr. Jigoro Kano, who founded the Kodokan Judo. Dr. Kano, a small, timid Japanese boy at the time had grown tired of being bullied by stronger classmates. He developed his own system after-learning in a Jujitsu school that strength is not an important factor in protecting oneself.

Jujitsu, still practiced throughout the world and from which much of Judo's techniques are borrowed, is an older form of Japanese self defense. Kano observed that injuries were frequent in Jujitsu because of malicious throwings, poking, twisting and jabbing. By combining Jujitsu's method of attack and defense with his own higher aims and techniques, Kano created Judo.

Thus allowing the boys to flip over pretty Roxanne Mealer.

They Lead Two Lives

By Eleanor Avery Price

IF YOU have a youngster, don't be surprised if he walks in one day with a small four-legged animal that resembles a lizard but is smooth slippery, and without scales. He has probably found one of the various salamanders. Many children, and adults too, like to collect amphibians (a Greek word meaning a double life), and your child may be a budding naturalist.

Let him keep this fascinating creature related to frogs and toads. A semi-aquatic terrarium will make a fine home for it. In other words, there should be both water and a "bank." Put water in a dish and then sand all around it level with dish edge. Cover the sand with fresh green moss and keep it damp. If this is too difficult to make, put water in an aquarium and a floating object onto which the pet can crawl. Do not put fish in the same tank, but a frog will be happy there provided there are a few rocks near the "bank" to create a shallow bathing place. Cover the home with a piece of strong glass with a small open space at one end.

Handle the salamander preferably only with wet hands.

THE PET will sleep days and stay awake nights unless you feed it during the day. It eats insects, plant lice, worms, caterpillars, ground fish, slivers of raw meat.

The common newt, pictured with this article, is an easy-to-keep salamander. After a tadpole stage, it becomes a reddish eft and spends two or three years on land. When it starts to turn yellowish-green, it returns to water and develops a broad tail for swimming purposes. Both the eft and grown newt have black-rimmed red dots along the sides. Length is three to four inches.

The spotted salamander has large yellow or orange spots on a black back. It attains seven inches and prefers land so it can be found under stones and fallen logs and easily carried home in a screw-top jar with air holes punched in the top and wet moss on the bottom. The yellow-striped tiger salamander never leaves water. The red salamander, marked with brown spots when young, enjoys both water and air. The giant land salamander of the west lives in damp wooded areas but is shy and nocturnal so seldom seen. The newest salamander, obtainable from dealers, is the Japanese newt.

SALAMANDER eggs may be collected in the spring. They are jelly-like and resemble frog eggs. The newt's eggs are separate and are found on leaves of underwater plants. When removing eggs, take the whole plant home in a bucket and water and put it in an aquarium without fish.

Land-living salamander eggs are laid in a mass in lakes and ponds and have a dark spot on each egg. These can be carried home in a jar with water.

Children enjoy watching the eggs turn into tadpoles. Tadpoles will eat slivers of liver and crumbled hard-boiled yolk. If rocks with moss on them are placed in the tadpole's home, the tiny creature may nibble on the moss.

says. "We also keep our musical arrangements and all the costumes and number them to correspond with the film.

"We can send the films—all in color and with sound—to our line captains in other cities so that they can see what a routine looks like. They adapt them, but I always check any changes."

MORO-LANDIS requirements are equally firm about the kind of routines they produce. When the French nude shows first came to Las Vegas, the Sahara Hotel—where the Moros were working—asked them to produce one. The Moros refused. "We don't do that kind of thing," they affirmed. "We're back at the Sahara now. The management wasn't satisfied with the other kind of show."

Disbud Camellias

Camellias are prone to setting more buds than are good for them with the result that individual blooms have less quality than they should. The California Association of Nurserymen recommends disbudding this month or next, before the plants come into bloom and waste their energies on too many buds.

Never leave two buds together, thinning them out to some three or four inches apart along the branches. When forced to choose between two buds, pinch off the one that faces up into the disfiguring elements of sun and rain.

All tourist hotels serve a bottle of purified water in your room. (Use it for brushing your teeth, too.) Also, when you check in, have the maid change the water in the bottle. TRAVELING LIGHT by the Sloanes

"I'VE HEARD THIS STORY BEFORE!"

GOING PLACES —
—with the Sloanes

QUESTION: "We are expecting some overseas visitors who plan to do some sightseeing in the United States and Canada. What do you consider the ten most important places to visit?"— S. H., Columbus, O.

A—That's backing us into a corner. But if we had to choose, the list would include (not necessarily in any order):

1. New York, the most cosmopolitan city in the world and the commercial and cultural fountainhead of the United States.

2. Washington. In few capitals do the government buildings so dominate the appearance and character of the city, and impart a sense of the majesty of the nation.

3. Florida, particularly the glittering eastern Gold Coast which so typifies a particular brand of American sophistication, and is so unlike any other resort in the world.

4. The majestic Pacific Northwest, a man's country of waterways, forests, rugged peaks and splendid green valleys, where wildlife is still taken for granted.

5. The awesome Rockies in Colorado and Wyoming.

6. The equally awesome and comparatively unappreciated deserts of Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada and Utah.

7. Niagara Falls. There are higher and larger waterfalls, but few to which you can get so close with ease, and in comfort and safety.

8. The Daniel Boone-Davy Crockett country of the Appalachians—the Cumberland, Great Smoky, and Blue Ridge Mountains.

9. The Alpine beauties of Alberta's Banff National Park, a refuge of glacial streams, mountain grandeur and wildlife.

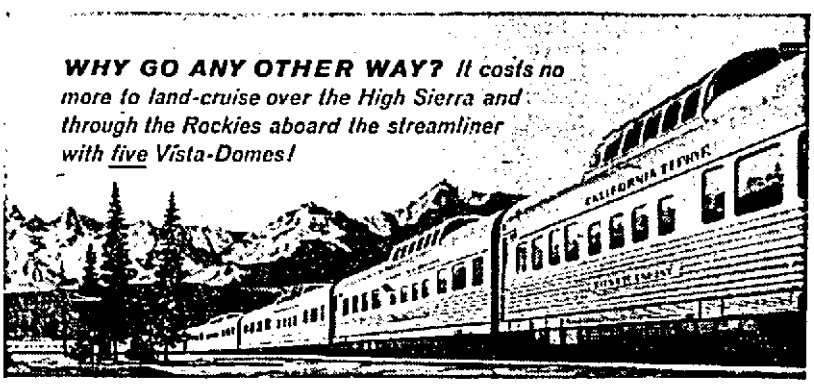

10. San Francisco, not only the most beautiful of cities but in many ways the most typical of what is best in America.

Even the Burros Will Be There!

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

Famed 20-mule team of the 1880s in Death Valley is being reassembled for Death Valley Encampment.

DESERT LOVERS wouldn't miss it for the world!

And that, most of all, includes old-time prospectors—with their burros—who'll be on hand for the annual Death Valley Encampment Nov. 8-11 in Death Valley National Monument. A crowd of 15,000 is expected.

One interesting event will follow another for four days and three nights—talks by naturalists, campfires, conducted tours, dancing, concerts and tall stories by desert rats. And there'll be exhibits of firearms, mineral, art and Indian artifacts.

One of the highlights of the encampment will be the appearance of the famed 20-mule team, now being reassembled for the first time in 12 years. During the four days, this famous team will move throughout Death Valley, pulling wagons used in 1882 and 1889 to haul borax from the valley to the nearest railhead 165 miles distant to Mojave.

HONORING the 20-mule team and its original route will be a group of Equestrian Trails, Inc. members who'll undertake a six-day ride covering 142 miles from Boron—31 miles west of Barstow—to Death Valley over the old 20-mule team route, arriving Nov. 9.

Dedication of two historical markers, both honoring the borax industry, will be an important part of the encampment activities. The first ceremony takes place at 11 a.m. Nov. 8 at Searles Lake, near Trona, marking the 100th anniversary of the discovery of borax at the dry lake by John Searles; the second, at 10 a.m. Nov. 10 at the site of the Harmony Borax Works, which served as the starting point for the 20-mule team trip to Mojave.

Conducted tours (you drive) the last three mornings will include Ubehebe Crater, Scotty's Castle and other historical and scenic attractions in Death Valley.

Things get going in a big way Nov. 9 with an author's breakfast ($1.55) opening the fireworks at the Furnace Creek golf course. Some of the West's outstanding authors will appear on the program. Photographers hold a similar breakfast Nov. 10, same place; and Protestant and Catholics alike will open the Nov. 10 program with services, followed by an artists' breakfast and entertainment by top-flight western artists.

SATURDAY'S PROGRAM (Nov. 10) includes two traditional events of the encampment, a chuck wagon lunch at Stove Pipe Wells Hotel and a Burro Flapjack Sweepstakes.

The Burro Sweepstakes is a contest in which colorful desert characters race to see who can first prepare a flapjack and then feed it to his burro. Can-can dancers from the Las Vegas Strip will be on hand to furnish additional entertainment.

Evening programs also will add up to fun. The opening night calls for a campfire across from Stove Pipe Wells Hotel, with community singing; the second evening, dancing—old time and modern—at Furnace Creek Ranch; the third evening, a photographic show, concert and dancing.

MOST VISITORS will go prepared for the fun of overnight camping, with trailers or lean-to tents and sleeping bags. Since desert nights are cool in November, these visitors are urged to bring their own duffel, with ample bedding, as well as wood for camping out. They should also bring folding chairs or camp stools for the various evening programs.

Rooms are available at Furnace Creek Inn and Ranch (MAdison 7-8048); Stove Pipe Wells Hotel (MAdison 2-293 Wells Hotel (MAdison 2-2937); and at Scotty's Castle (HOllywood 5-1223). But it must be realized that these facilities are limited and that first come will be first served unless reservations are made.

Death Valley '49ers, the sponsoring group, was formed in 1949 at the centennial commemoration marking the successful exodus of the Jayhawker-Manly party from Death Valley after being separated from their wagon train. But, of course, the main objectives of the encampment are to publicize the beauty of the area and to preserve the memories of California's pioneers.

bra" — meaning the shady side. And I would recommend asking for "primer tendido."

This is the section not too high up, not so close that you are sitting at ringside. (If you are not squeamish and want to get right on top of the kill ask for "barrera."

"Where is the place in Mexico where they have Gypsy music and drink wine out of goat skins?"

YOU must mean Rincon de Goya. They drink the wine out of a sort of glass pitcher called a porron. You drink it out of the spout — at arm's length if you're good. (Add up your check carefully here. The waiters seem to be careless.) Another place for flamenco music and dancing: Gitanerias.

"What kind of money is used in Jamaica?"

A Jamaican pound, equivalent to the English pound—with all the breakdown of shillings and pence.

Grow a Backdrop of Blue

By Joe Littlefield

Delphiniums may be planted now for a background of blue in a variety of shades for a spring flower bed.

PLANT small-size Pacific hybrid delphiniums about now or even a bit later, at the back part of a sunny flower bed. Fertilize them at least twice, water well, and you will have gorgeous, 5-foot spikes of blue flowers in various shades come spring

Space the plants about 15 inches apart in a staggered row, at least five plants to a group. This provides a showy backdrop of blue for lower growing, winter-spring blooming annuals and bulbs in the foreground.

Other annuals, biennials and bulbs should be set out now. Depending upon size of the flower bed, set out small or large masses of flowers and bulbs.

MASS calendulas for orange and yellow color in the mid-section of a sunny flower bed. Place lighter-toned stocks beside them, then a group of gay snapdragons, and a clump of Iceland poppies.

Tuck in some groups of tulips, daffodils, Dutch iris, and ranunculus and plant small masses of anemones back of pansy or viola edging planting for additional color.

As you look at the bed from the side, it is as if you're looking at a flight of steps, from the low growing plants in front, progressively increasing in height up to the tall delphiniums at the back of the flower bed.

TWO BIENNIALS planted now, blossom next spring. They are foxgloves and cup-and-saucer Canterbury bells. Plant them in sun, or more sun than shade.

Unless the flower bed has been prepared in advance with manure and leaf mold or premoistened peat moss has been worked in, you'd get much better results by preparing the soil before planting.

Most practical and effective soil preparation is to spread a two-inch layer of manure and two-inch layer of either leaf mold, premoistened peat moss, or an already processed mulch material. Dig these in shovel depth and soak down thoroughly. Extra heavy, packed soil should be treated with a fast action liquid soil conditioner that combats alkali, and prevents packing.

A few days later dig over the bed and soak it down again. A week or so later, rake the soil to level it and it is ready for planting.

Where the time element is limited and the soil cannot be prepared as recommended, work a generous handful of leaf mold, or premoistened peat moss, or an already prepared mulch material into each hole for the small plants.

Plants set in prepared soil start to grow quicker, develop into huskier plants, and flower much better.

New Hybrid Lilies

WONDERFUL things have been happening to lilies in recent years. Older standbys like the Auratum, or Gold Banded, lilies are now widely enjoyed by home gardeners. But their late blooming habit often tantalizes their admirers.

New hope is seen for impatient lily fanciers, however, since many new hybrid types, with sparkling color and form variations, are now being offered. Today these hybrid lilies may be enjoyed for five full months in your garden, from May through September in most areas. Here, to prove it, are four of the newer groups of lilies currently being marketed by Walter Marx Gardens from the Northwest's most outstanding lily hybridizers.

Earliest to flower are the May-blooming Golden Chalice hybrids followed by Bellingham hybrids in June-July, Olympic hybrids in July and the Auratum in August-September.

The Marx Gardens (Box 38, Boring, Ore.) show the flowers in full color in the brochure, "New Hybrid Lilies."

Golden Chalice hybrid lilies open with chalice-type, yellow to apricot-orange blooms.

Living Up to Its Name

PASSERSBY look with surprise at the huge size of the elephant's-ear plant growing in the yard of the home of Mrs. Evelyn Weinberg, 262½ Loma Ave.

The plant takes up a third of the rear yard and can be seen from the street.

"A year and a half ago a friend, pulling up elephant's-ears from her yard, gave me a shoot — this is the result," explains Mrs. Weinberg.

THE PLANT stands 12 feet high, and stretches 15 feet wide. Individual ears measure 40 inches long, 33 inches wide.

How did she do it?

"All I did was put it in the ground, fertilize it well after it took hold, and give it lots of water," says Mrs. Weinberg. "I still water it three or four times a day. It has a lot of 'babies' coming up around it. Some of these are four feet tall, and they're going to be big, too."

—VERA WILLIAMS

Gigantic leaves of the elephant's-ear plant at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Weinberg evoke viewers' surprise.

I HAVE had many opportunities to observe the beautiful St. Augustine grass lawns throughout the Southern states and I cannot recommend them strongly enough for keeping their thick, green carpet intact, even in cases where children play on the lawn or other conditions have a tendency to break them down. I know of many St. Augustine lawns growing beautifully in Southern California and, unless you object to their thick, shaggy appearance, you cannot have a lawn that is less trouble to keep healthy and beautiful.

A St. Augustine lawn should be started from flats in the spring; however, if you prefer blue grass or clover, the best time to put them in is between Oct. 1 and Oct. 15.

Remember that proper preparation of the soil prior to planting any lawn is ultra important. Bone meal (50 lbs. per 1,000 sq. ft.), soil sulphur (30 lbs. per 1,000 sq. ft.) and iron sulphate (copperas ferrous) (10 lbs. to 1,000 sq. ft.) should be worked into the soil before the lawn is planted.

Dress Up Blank Walls

BLANK walls can be dressed up with climbing vines or espaliered shrubs. Vines require an open frame trellis with light members. One-inch redwood strips are recommended, because redwood resists termites and rotting and shrinks and swells less than other woods. The strips can be placed in an interesting pattern to add interest to the wall even before the vine has its growth.

Nail holes should be prebored. Trellises against walls may be hinged at bottom, and hooked to wall at top, to permit painting the wall.

The heartwood grades of redwood contain the natural substances which resist decay. These natural rot and termite resistant substances are harmless to plants; some chemicals used to preserve non-durable woods are harmful to young roots and tendrils.

An espalier for trees and shrubs must be more sturdy than the simple trellis for vines, especially if fruit-bearing trees are planted. Size of members will depend on the shrub.

An arbor can carry the vine overhead as a colorful sun shade. It can be of the same design as the vertical plant support, and both should blend with the architecture of the home.

Away from the house wall, a vine-covered trellis can be used to set garden areas apart, or a pleasant bower can be a combination of trellis and arbor.

For Bulb Growers

Compiled for gardeners who want to know more about bulbs, "How to Grow and Use Bulbs" (Lane Book Co., Menlo Park, Calif., $1.95) digs thoroughly into its theme with photos, text and diagrams. Featured is a bulb encyclopedia, listing, illustrating and describing many varieties.

Eight pages of color illustrate landscaping ideas and give close-up photos of individual flowers. Techniques of growing bulbs in the ground and in containers are given and 10 of the most popular bulbs get full-chapter treatment.

Seasonal calendar and a planting depth chart are among other features of the 118 indexed pages.

Landscaping Talk

Landscaping will be the subject of J. Paul Walker, former teacher of agriculture in the Long Beach public schools, at a meeting of the Long Beach Parent Chapter, American Begonia Society, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Linden Hall, 208 Linden Ave. A question and answer period will follow. Refreshments will be served and visitors are welcome.

Tips on Gardening

GARDEN TIPS for the week . . . . Study the rose garden this month and uproot any bushes that have not given satisfaction. Turn the soil and let it air out until new varieties arrive on the market in December.

Start planting daffodils, bulbous iris and lilies as they arrive in nurseries.

Scatter snail bait pellets around newly planted winter annuals.

Many spring and summer perennials are available as seedlings this month.

Check nurseries for varieties of the early flowering Sasanqua camellias. They start showing color in October.

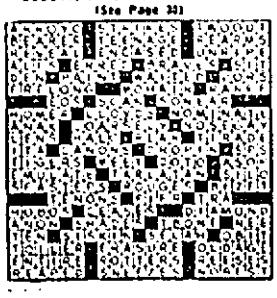

Many vegetables can be planted for winter harvest. Beets, carrots, lettuce, Swiss chard, peas, parsley, cabbage, Brussels sprouts are included.

Geraniums should be pruned back this month to keep plants from getting too leggy.

Continue spraying roses and later tuberous begonias for mildew. Add an insecticide to the rose spray to catch such late season pests as thrips, leafhopper.

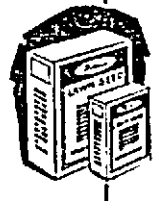

Select shubs for fall color. Many are beginning to show autumn tones in nurseries now.

ladies are also guided into reveries by five period kitchens, ranging from 1830 to 1930, all with original equipment. A pioneer doctor's office, equipped with frightening instruments, shares the nostalgia with barbershop, drugstore, harness shop, blacksmith shop, general store and printing plant of the plains country.

CHILDREN CAN RIDE on a steam merry-go-round or play engineer in an 1889 locomotive or signal from a caboose that still faintly suggests the leathery aroma of cattlemen bound for the stockyards behind sixty cars of longhorns.

The sculpture of John Rogers, recently celebrated in an art circle revival, is exhibited. Rogers did with plaster and clay what Norman Rockwell does with pen and brush. Eighty of his creations have been catalogued. A total of 55, including his first, "Checkers Up at the Farm," are shown at the village.

The sculptor's "Council of War" presents a likeness of Lincoln considered by his son Todd the most exact ever produced.

A single fee brings admission to all buildings, which are arranged in a circle like wagons mustered against an Indian attack. The nostalgia-packed structures are the ramparts of Harold Warp's war against time's inroads on the prairie past.

Live a

"regular life" without laxatives

Now, stop fighting constipation with laxatives or "bulks" that work unnaturally, uncomfortably! Stay "regular" with REGUTOL®. It's not a laxative, yet helps restore regularity as no laxative can. REGUTOL tablets simply make the moisture in your colon keep waste soft for easy, normal elimination.

Hospital-proved... safe, not habit-forming

Once a month almost

1 out of 2 women suffer from P.M.T.*

...but don't know what's wrong

*Pre-Menstrual Tension may be an unfamiliar term to many women, but its symptoms are very familiar. In the week before periods, the body accumulates excessive water, then bloating, pressure on nerves and organs result, causing tension and discomfort. You become headachy and irritable—even gain weight.

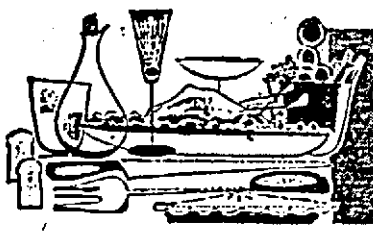

Now, in Pamprin Tablets medical science offers an effective, yet simple and inexpensive relief. Pamprin safely removes the excess water from the body, thus easing tension . . . easing it as no aspirin or simple pain-reliever can.

At the same time, doctors find, Pamprin has a wonderfully calming, soothing effect on the irritability, "nerves", and emotional upsets common to pre-menstrual time.

What's more, many women who ordinarily suffered cramps and backaches once their periods began, found surprising relief, too. Pamprin will not disturb your normal period—contains no hormones, narcotics or harmful sedatives.

Get Pamprin at your druggist . . . before your next period. Or for a generous free trial supply of Pamprin Tablets, send your name and address today to Chattem Laboratories, Dept. 5, Chattanooga 9, Tennessee.

REX WELCH
Back From Tahiti Again
Caricature by Bob Axell

YES, THAT honored guest who dropped in for dinner the other night at Welch's was none other than Mr. Rex Welch himself.

His large staff was so glad to see him they gave him the full red carpet treatment. Rex and Mrs. W. ordered one of their favorite dishes, grilled swordfish steak with lemon parsley butter, and complimented chef Larry Contaoi for doing his usual fine job.

The owner of Welch's had been away for six weeks on another of his journeys to Tahiti, where he is co-owner of the Bel Air Hotel and restaurant. A large construction and enlargement project is currently under way on the hotel and Rex's presence was required for decisions on many details. He will return to the tropical island again after Christmas to continue work on the project.

During his absences, Welch's fine Long Beach restaurants are in the efficient hands of Bill Welch, his brother, who manages The Tenderloin, 4363 Atlantic Ave., and Arnold Vann, who manages Welch's, Atlantic at San Antonio Drive.

Welch's, one of the prime sea food houses in Southern California, serves a dozen outstanding ocean and stream delicacies, plus beef and fowl selections. Among the sea foods, priced from $2.50 to $3.50, are jumbo shrimps with hot sauce; Long Island oysters, grilled sea bass, grilled northern halibut, Columbia River salmon, abalone, shrimp or crab Newburgs, shad roe pan-fried in butter, lobster and frog legs. One of the most popular items is the sea food grill dinner, including shrimp, filet of sole, scallops and oysters' all breaded lightly and deep fried.

All entrees are served with soup or delectable salad, marvelous hot rolls, potato and beverage. — TEDD THOMEY

'Wide Country' Concentrates on Stories

SID CAESAR is joined by Jane Connell (left) and Norma Douglas when "As Caesar Sees It" debuts 10:30 p. m. Tuesday on channel 7. The half-hour series will air once a month for nine months. This week's opener will feature three skits.

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — Big name guest stars? "Wide Country" is turning up its wide nose at them, says the series co-star, Andrew Prine. (The series airs 7:30 p.m. Thursdays, channel 4.)

"We're concentrating on stories," says the tall, slender, intense young actor. "And we're not even thinking about name stars. I feel guest stars are overrated. The audience doesn't tune in to see a particular guest; they tune in to watch a program they like.

"Take a show like 'Frontier Circus' last year. They had the best guests money could buy, but the show laid a great big egg. That's because they didn't have one decent story."

While name value means less to Hollywood today than it ever has, Prine says it has become important on Broadway.

"Broadway copped out," is the colorful way he puts it.

"THEY SOLD OUT to the big name stars. Broadway is scared. They figure they have to have big names or big musicals to get anybody to buy tickets."

This is one reason why Prine left Broadway and took the "Wide Country" part. He didn't have the name value for a Broadway drama. As for musicals—"I'm not about to sing and dance."

He figures that working in a popular television series will make him a name. "If the name becomes big enough, I can come back to Broadway."

With this fond hope, he has kept his New York apartment.

"Maybe I did that," he says, "so I can tell myself I'm coming back some day. I don't know if I ever will, but I can keep saying I will. That's important.

Sex, at long last, has come to the westerns—well, one of them anyway.

Come 8:30 p. m. Monday, green-eyed, red-haired Pat Blair will ride onto "The Rifleman's" range via channel 7.

"I'm no gingham girl," said Pat. "I was put in to add sex. My blouses are like cut down to the navel."

And it's alright with Pat, as well as most everybody else.

"Lou Mallory (the role she plays) is not the cliche western heroine, the soft, clinging-vine type," she said.

"Lou is Irish, independent, self-sufficient and out-spoken. She used to own a saloon and now she runs a hotel.

"I love Lou."

And so will, as the scripts develop, Lucas McCain, "The Rifleman," as played by Chuck Connors.

But there's no marriage in the offing—at least not this TV season.

There's a kiss or two, but mostly there is conflict between the pair.

"FOR EXAMPLE," said Pat, "I am rescued one time by Lucas. Am I grateful? I am not. I'm so mad, I could just kill him."

Pat, in real life, almost succeeded in killing herself a few years back.

In New York at the time, Pat decided she wanted to be a high-fashion model. She weighed 125 pounds proportioned quite attractively along a 5-feet, 7-inch-tall frame.

But high-fashion models aren't supposed to be "quite attractive," at least not 125 pounds quite attractive.

So Pat decided to lose weight and did a "particularly stupid" thing.

"I just kind of quit eating," she said. "I got emaciated, thin, gaunt. I couldn't get out of bed."

Fortunately, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Blake, came for a visit. They took one look—then another to make sure it was their daughter—and sent for a doctor.

"HE TOLD ME I could have died," said Pat. "I had reversed my body chemistry and had kept going down.

"He made me eat every three hours, protein and healthy things, cheese, meats, apples."

When Pat recoverd, she went to New York's fashion center and took a good look at the high-fashion models.

"They looked to me," she said, "like walking death."

So Pat reversed her decision and walked away from death.

Since then, oddly enough, she has appeared in several fashion shows, including one in Long Beach for the benefit of the City of Hope.

"I wear a simple sheath or full skirts," she said, "which is just fine with me.

"I think most other women's dresses are made by designers who don't want women to look attractive."

And besides, who ever heard of a high-fashion model looking sexy, especially in a western?

ANDY CLYDE runs for commander of a veterans post during "The Real McCoys" at 9 p. m. Sunday, channel 2.

Veteran Scene Stealer on Receiving End

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jackie Coogan, first of the child stars, finds himself on the receiving end of scene-stealing gambits by a passel of kid actors in a new television series.

As costar of "McKeever and the Colonel" (6:30 p.m. Sundays, channel 4), the bald, heavy-set Coogan is surrounded by juvenile hams.

(Jackie also guest stars 8:30 p.m. Tuesday on "The Red Skelton Show," channel 2).

Over in Switzerland Charlie Chaplin must surely be enjoying Jackie's plight. For it was the Chaplin picture, "The Kid," that exploded Coogan to international fame.

Coogan's memory reached back 43 years to 1919 when as a moppet he swiped scenes from Chaplin.

• • • •

"CHAPLIN himself was the greatest scene stealer of all time," he recalled. "No matter what was happening Charlie could draw attention to himself—if he wanted to.

"But after working with me in 'The Kid' he said, 'If a child actor is an extrovert God help anyone else in the picture.' And those were the silent days, too."

W. C. Fields, a felonious

JACKIE COOGAN

rascal himself at filching scenes, once slipped a few ounces of gin into Baby Leroy's orange juice (inadvertently inventing the forerunner of screwdriver cocktails) to insure quiet repose of the infant during a big Fields' monologue.

• • • •

"KIDS HAVEN'T changed since my day, except they are more hip," said Coogan.

"Chaplin taught me how to upstage him and a million other little tricks that I find handy now that I'm working with a pack of children. If one of them steps on my lines I'll kill him."

Coogan portrays a rotund Army sergeant reduced to playing den mother for the inmates of a military school.

"The youngsters on the show are aware that I was a child star and want to know what it was like in the old days. Sometimes I give them straight answers and sometimes I kid them.

"But they have it a lot easier than I did. The law forbids them to work more than four hours a day, with another four hours devoted to school work. I used to work eight hours a day and squeeze studies in whenever I could.

• • • •

"AND THERE'S a disparity in salary, too.

"When I was making the 'Kid' my salary was $75 a week. Chaplin gave me a $5,000 bonus at the end of the picture. Today the kids on the show start out at $500 a week and go up from there."

Coogan followed "The Kid" with such enormous hits as "Oliver Twist," "Circus Days," "Trouble" and "A Boy of Flanders." He admits he earned more than $8 million before he left his teens.

And thanks to Coogan, today's youthful actors need not worry that their assets will be dissipated as were his.

By the time Jackie reached his 20s he was flat broke.

"I was responsible for the so-called 'Coogan Law,'" he said. "It gives most of the child's salary to a court trust fund so parents and guardians can't get at it."

Such little shavers as Shirley Temple and Margaret O'Brien grew up to collect large fortunes as a result of Coogan's misfortunes.

SOUTH AFRICA PONDERS

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

To TV or Not TV

By WILBUR C. LANDREY

JOHANNESBURG (UPI)—South Africa is one of the few civilized places in the world without television.

There isn't any—a fact striking to Americans and Europeans used to their livingroom television. Most other things in South Africa are mighty like home here in contrast to the newly independent and under-developed states to the North.

Television is coming here, too—but WHEN is an explosive question both politically and technically.

While the black African states to the north are in a hurry to acquire television stations as status symbols and as a means to reach largely illiterate populations, South Africa is in no hurry.

ONE NEWSPAPER earlier this year predicted it would come in 18 months. The minister of posts and telegraphs, Dr. Albert Hertzog, reported in parliament that as far as he could see South Africa would never have television at all.

The best guessers would guess "never at all" means 1965 or 1966.

The launching of Telstar — with its promise of eevntual international television — brought the question back into the political areana again. As the anti-government "Rand Daily Mail" commented then:

"Before many years are out, television will be worldwide and the efforts of our government to isolate us from its effects will seem even more ridiculous than they are now."

RADIO IN SOUTH AFRICA is run by a public corporation—the South African Broadcasting Corp. (SABC). The act under which it operates left the decision on television squarely up to the government.

Critics have sometimes charged that the go-slow on television is another attempt to "isolate" South Africans from a hostile outside world.

The question is complicated. Like most things in this country, it is bedeviled by the fact that white South Africans are divided into those whose first language is English and those whose first language is Afrikaans.

To start television, there would be a ready-made supply of programs in English from America and Britain. But Afrikaans is spoken nowhere outside of South Africa, although Dutch and Flemish are similar. The government, an Afrikaner nationalist government, is sensitive to the problem.

ANOTHER PROBLEM is how many channels to allot. Will there be separate English and Afrikaans language channels as in sound broadcasting, or will there be only one channel for the whites which will help familiarize each group with the other's language?

And what about channels for the black Africans who outnumber the whites by three to one?

Finally, there is some concern over the moral effect of television on South African youth. Dr. Hertzog already has pointed out that a British commission of inquiry has found TV a major cause of teen-age crime.

In all this, the South African press has been torn between the desire to chide the government for heel-dragging and the fear of possible competition when television comes.

Pan and Fan Mail

I understand TV doesn't guarantee programs as scheduled, but when I sit up late to watch a program as important as I felt that one might be, entitled "Argument—Ben Hunter—What to Do About Cuba," I'd like to know what caused the cancellation.

Frank A. Winslow,
Long Beach.

An important baseball game between the Cardinals and the Dodgers sidetracked Cuba, Frank.

Hunter's program was delayed in the airing. He felt, because of the delay and a time curtailment, he shouldn't "waste" the Cuba program. It was aired the following week, instead.

• • • •

All TV commercials are not bad. In fact, some of them are pretty good.

Among the better is the one for a tomato sauce. The little old winemaker is good. Some of the cartoon commercials are more entertaining than certain TV programs.

J. Paul Gleason, Long Beach.

Sounds to me like you've been brain-washed, J. Paul, but each man to his own poison.

• • • •

Channel 9 has a fine commentator, Joe Dolan, who appears nightly.

I have heard him speak out for "peace," which is, of late, a bad word. Recently he spoke on the Bill of Rights, the fundamental rights of the people and how almost nonexistent they are these days.

It is so wonderful to have a man speak out with frankness and honesty and to be concerned about a person's right to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

Silvia Donnenfield, Lakewood.

Early or late, Sylvia, "peace" has never been a bad word. Incidentally, Dolan is about as controversial a commentator as you can find. Sooner or later—and I'll make you a bet on this—he's going to say something with which you thoroughly disagree.

Just remember he's only trying to speak out with "frankness and honesty."

• • • •

In a recent article, someone wrote in and commented on a certain headache-pill product and how the commercials were so nerve-racking that she would never buy the product because of the silly commercials that advertise it.

Well, I would like to say that they are stupid commercials also, but that we don't judge the product by its commercials and I'm sure anyone who has any sense will not judge a product without even trying it.

As for the commercials, everytime I see them on television I have to laugh.

They aren't nerve-racking, but are the cutest things I have ever seen.

My girl frinds and I have a blast acting them out and cracking jokes at them.

I'm not saying this lady is a nut because she doesn't like them, but I hope the makers of this product don't take the commercials off the air.

In the school talent show we put on for the school, my girl friend and I are going to act them out.

Beverly Rosamond Smith,
Seal Beach

Nice of you to warn your fellow students.

Japanese TV Cartoons Show How to Woo and Not Win

By ROBERT CRABBE

TOKYO (UPI)—Japanese television viewers this winter may have a chance to take lessons in the art of courtship with the aid of animated cartoons.

"I'm trying to teach men how to get girls," says the show's producer and author, Choken Maruo.

It will be frisky entertainment, even by the standards of Japan, a nation that takes a matter-of-fact approach to sex.

Entitled "The Various Chapters of Love," the new show will present 12 animated cartoon episodes drawn by Japanese artist Yoji Kuri.

They will be offered a major Tokyo television station shortly.

IN EACH EPISODE, Maruo appears in caricature, cast as a scholarly professor of the art of courtship. Each show deals with the fortunes—and misfortunes—of his pupils in their pursuit of the opposite sex.

Maruo is director of Tokyo's Music Hall Theater, where handsome young Japanese girls appear bare to the waists.

Besides his job as director at the Music Hall, Maruo is the author of a number of books, including "A Practical Guide to Making Love." Maruo professes to dislike the title, calling it "dry and unpoetic."

Boy does not get girl in any of the 12 cartoon shows. One Tokyo newspaper calls this "a concession to current morality."

MARUO, MORE LOFTILY, says he insisted on these endings, "because the men don't deserve to get the women. They are not really in love with them."

In each show, some humorous mishap befalls the ardent pursuer just as he stands at the brink of success.

One of Maruo's previous television shows was denounced in the Japanese parliament.

Entitled "Pink Mood," it depicted young women relaxing in the privacy of their homes and apartments.

Maruo solemnly insists that it promoted public morality.

"Men left the geisha houses to rush home and see my show on television," he explains.

Q. Is it true that Arnold Palmer, the great golfer, flies his own plane to golf tournaments? Also how much will he earn this year and from what?—Laverne Mitchell, Helena, Mont.

A. Palmer flies his own plane, a two-engine, seven-seat job, to most tournaments. His income this year from all sources will approximate $350,000. He receives a $6,500 guarantee from Wilson Sporting Goods plus royalties on clubs bearing his endorsement. His syndicated newspaper column brings in another $20,000. His minimum fee for golf exhibitions is $3,000 plus a percentage of the gate. At this summer's end he had already won approximately $100,000 from golf victories. Further fees come from his endorsement of shoes, shirts, slacks, socks, windbreakers, golf clothes of all types.

Q. I heard that Anita Ekberg has gained 70 pounds, now weighs 200. Is that really true?—T. Dolci, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

LONG LIFE RECIPE. Want to live a long life? Be born a Swedish girl and get yourself married. A special mortality study compiled by the United Nations reveals that married men and women live longer than the unmarried and that married Swedish women have the longest life expectancy in the world -- 75.

FALLOUT ANTIDOTE. The most common and dangerous component of radioactive fallout is Strontium 90. A Finnish scientist, Dr. Kai Setala of Helsinki University, claims he has devised a simple means of eliminating Strontium 90 from the human body, removing it from the sweat and saliva where it concentrates. The antidote is a soapy white substance trade-named Beronium. It is being manufactured in three forms — a pill, a skin lotion, and a toothpaste -- by the Finnish drug firm of Berner & Co., which has applied for provisional patents in 42 countries. Experiments are currently underway on animals.

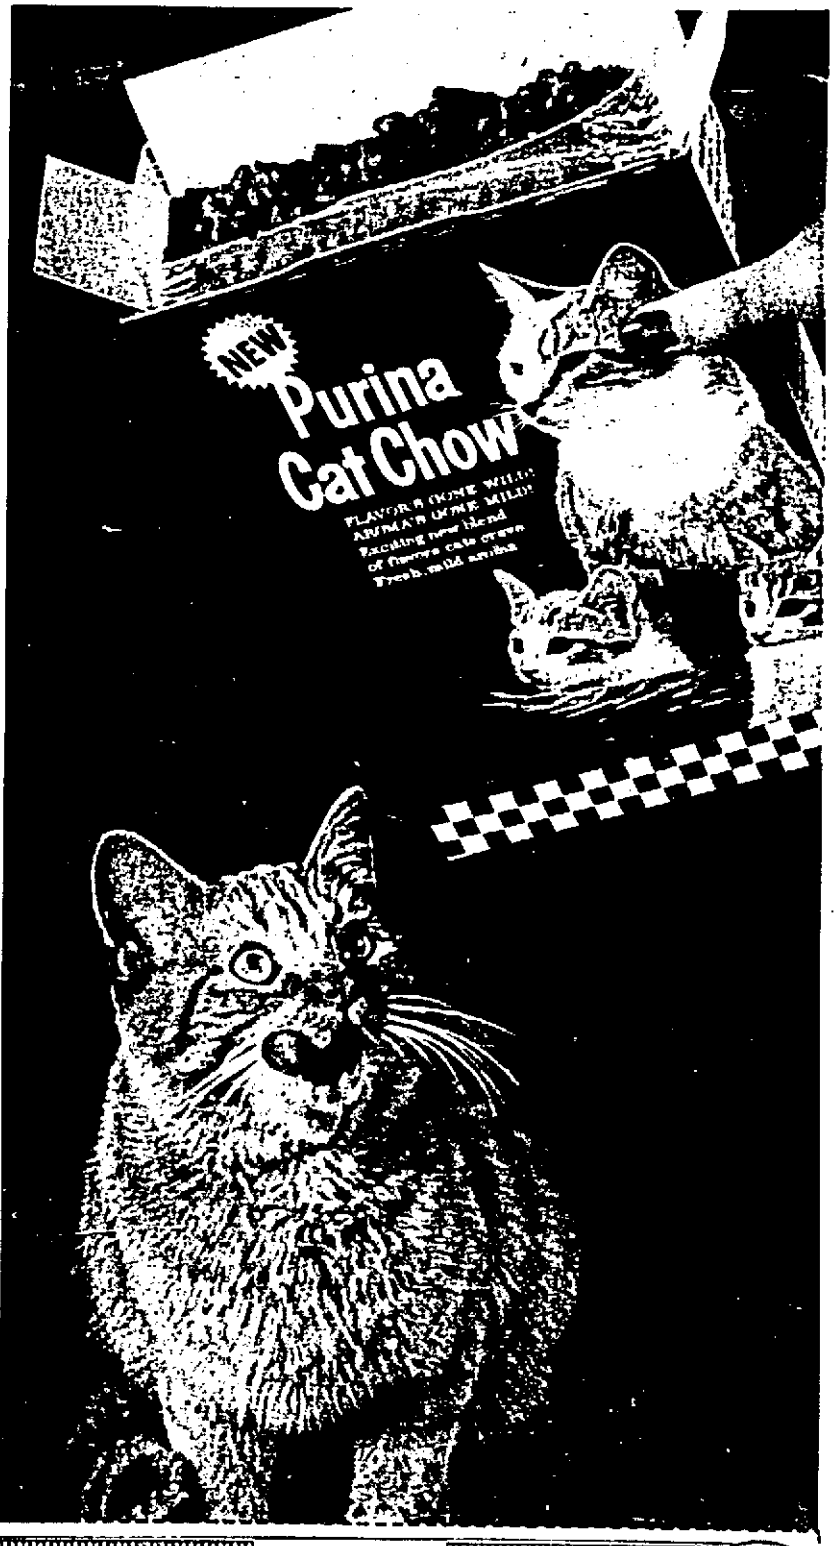

HORSE SALES UP. TV westerns have not only helped boom the gun business but also the sale of horses on the installment plan -- especially in Canada. So many persons have been infected by the Wild West bug that they are buying the whole western regalia, horse included. Price and Palme, horse dealers in Ontario, sell their animals for $4 down and $4 weekly. The horses range in price from $150 to $550.

MARRIAGE AND GRADES. Do married college students make better grades than the unmarried? Yes was the immediate post World War II answer when returning GIs thronged the college campuses. But no more. Nowadays the unmarried male student is doing slightly better than his married counterpart. The report comes from Dr. Anthony Samenfink, a University of Vermont sociologist, and Dr. Robert L. Milliken. They point out, after comparing the grades of married and unmarried male students, that marriage is no remedy for poor grades. Husbands just don't do as well as bachelors in scholarship.

WHO TRAVELS? Perhaps you've always known it, but now surveys prove that people 60 and over comprise the largest segment, at least 40 per cent, of the travel market. Thomas Cook & Son and other travel agents report their average customer is 60, and the U.S. Passport Agency reports that the number of passports issued to persons 60 and over has almost doubled in the past five years. It's the old folks who have the time, and in many cases the do-re-mi, for present travel.

Now for the first time . . . together in one new cat food discovery . . .

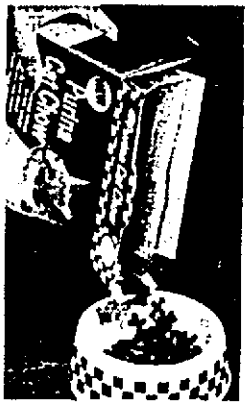

FLAVOR'S GONE WILD! AROMA'S GONE MILD!

NEW Purina Cat Chow

Exciting New Blend of Flavors Cats Crave

BUT, AH, THE AROMA! MILD! Think of it. No more high odor invading your kitchen, lingering in your refrigerator. No more mess and fuss to get flavor cats crave.

Vatican spectacles are stage-managed by Msgr. Enrico Dante, shown at side of Pope John XXIII.

the Vatican's magnificent showman

by MELTON S. DAVIS

VATICAN CITY.

FEW OF THE THOUSANDS at the Ecumenical Council now meeting here may notice a slim figure who always seems to be at the side of Pope John XXIII.

Yet the awe-inspiring proceedings of the first such world assembly of the Roman Catholic Church in 92 years owe their flawless functioning to him: Msgr. Enrico Dante, 78-year-old Prefect of the Masters of Pontifical Ceremonies. Other faiths are present as observers.

Once described by a newsman as "ringmaster of the most magnificent show on earth," he is responsible for staging all rituals taking place in the Vatican and all functions anywhere involving the Pope. The meeting now under way in the gold and scarlet-trapped Council Hall represents Msgr. Dante's greatest test.

Long years of service at the Vatican, including 15 years in his present post, have prepared him for this challenge. Up to this week, his masterpiece of spectacle-staging is generally considered to have been Pope John's coronation. In fact, it was Msgr. Dante who, on that eventful day of November 4, 1958, placed the golden tiara on the head of Cardinal Roncalli, thus officially making him the new Pontiff.

Msgr. Dante's coolness and calm have been strongly tested since then. For the present Pontiff's informality, his disregard of protocol and his dislike of schedules have kept his prefect on a continuous alert. The Pope can order a last-minute change in itinerary, suddenly decide to visit an old friend or a church he had seen years before. Frequently he has stopped to talk with someone and thrown a carefully arranged program out of kilter.

During the Pope's 1958 visit to Rome's city jail, an employe, instead of kneeling when being presented, ran forward and extended his hand. Some of the prelates gasped in horror, but Msgr. Dante only smiled and imperceptibly edged the over-friendly employe to one side.

Msgr. Dante isn't always able to avoid situations. Sometimes he has had no choice but to close his eyes. In 1959 the Pope went to Trastevere, the workers' district of Rome, where he gave communion to 40 boys. During the reception one of the mothers offered him a cup of coffee and a bun. Without a moment's hesitation John said, "I accept with thanks," and started eating heartily.

The advent of television has brought some new and disturbing elements into Msgr. Dante's work. This year the Pope resumed visiting the Lenten Stations after a lapse of 200 years. While he was delivering a church sermon, huge spotlights set up for televising the ceremony flashed around the interior, blinding spectators. In the middle of a sentence the Pope abruptly stopped and said to Msgr. Dante, "Take those bothersome things away." The prefect made a quick gesture and the lights immediately went off. Then he was seen to disappear from the Pope's side for a few minutes. When the lights came on again, they were softer and stationary.

Audience Manager

Msgr. Dante's day-to-day task is the directing of papal audiences. Endless visitors want to meet the Pope, who every day devotes five hours to receiving individuals and groups. These can be anything from a team of bicycle racers to heads of governments.

Recently members of an Italian circus performed their acts in the Hall of Audiences. The event recalled medieval times, when jugglers and acrobats were in constant attendance upon the popes. Msgr. Dante handled this with the same aplomb with which he smoothed the way for General Eisenhower and members of the Kennedy family.

Showmen from many countries have watched with admiration as Msgr. Dante's long, ivory-toned fingers move constantly but without haste, as he subtly orders or reminds participants where and when to stand, sit or kneel, to speak or remain silent.

His flair for coordination, as he keeps things moving with unobtrusive gestures and whispered instructions, stems from a unique combination of athlete and organizer. When young he was an enthusiastic football and tennis player, went in for long-distance swimming and mountain climbing. As a young priest he helped develop the Pro Roma athletic organization, later to become the Rome professional football team, one of the most important in Italy.

Msgr. Dante almost had a diplomatic career. But, he says, "I failed as a diplomat before I began." This happened in 1923 when Pope Benedict XV wanted him to reopen—after World War I—the Apostolic Nunciature in Paris. Filling this office would almost automatically have given him the rank of cardinal, but Msgr. Dante declined the offer rather than leave his two sisters behind in Rome.

One of the dramas of his life has been the desire of two popes to make him a cardinal, and his pious refusal of the honor. Despite this, there are many in the Vatican who think that when, in 1960, Pope John chose three secret cardinals in pectore ("within the breast") Msgr. Dante was one of these and that his name will be revealed at the Pope's pleasure.

No matter what his rank, though, Enrico Dante will continue to play a key role in the current assembly, which Pope John has called "the most moving and most solemn spectacle ever offered to the world, to the angels and to men." ■

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

EVER SINCE MARILYN MONROE overdosed herself to death, the one tangential question raised most frequently here is: Who will take her place?

Talent agents, studio executives, casting directors have all eagerly studied their player lists and selfishly offered such possibilities as Jayne Mansfield, Ziva Rodan, Stella Stevens, Yvette Mimeaux and Fay Spain—but for the most part such girls, while bountifully endowed in the physical sense, lack the rare, almost ineffable personality ingredients which go into the making of a universal sex symbol. They lack the "it" of Clara Bow, the "oomph" of Betty Grable, the seemingly natural sex innocence generated by Marilyn.

They are either too ruttty, too obvious, too specialized in their appeal, or deficient in the art of simultaneously arousing the libido in men and empathy in women.

"To become a sex goddess in motion pictures," says ace cameraman Leon Shamroy who recently finished photographing Elizabeth Taylor in Cleopatra, "a girl must first of all be photogenically revealing. Second, she has to stimulate the men in the audience without antagonizing the women. I think Liz did that very well until the breakup with Eddie Fisher. Then she antagonized the women, so that now men are afraid of expressing their desire for her in front of their wives. For my money the next Hollywood sex goddess might very well be Tuesday Weld.

"Tuesday," Shamroy continues, "has all the necessary attributes. She's young, only 19, much smarter than Marilyn ever was. She's got as many curves as a scenic railway, and most important of all, she comes across on film.

"A lot of these actresses—they look great in the flesh, but put them in front of a camera and right away their sex appeal evaporates."

One executive at 20th Century-Fox, which has Tuesday Weld under contract at $35,000 per film, says: "I hope this kid makes it as a replacement for Marilyn Monroe; if she doesn't, I don't know anyone else in this town who can. And the truth is if Hollywood can't come up with a sex goddess, we might as well junk this whole business, because that's the one thing we can offer which television cannot."

Whether the public realizes it or not, the fact is that television has become primarily a medium which exploits and popularizes men, not women. Female sex appeal on TV is practically non-existent. Let one actress show a little too much cleavage, and the sponsor howls. Let another get involved in a domestic scandal, and the network drops her like a radioactive tomato. This is why TV personalities generally make such dull copy. Circumstance compels them to lead colorless, circumspect private lives. The result is that most of them become as interesting as laundry lists.

Motion picture personalities, on the other hand, can live recklessly without too much fear of public or studio retribution. Elizabeth Taylor may romance Richard Burton. Ingrid Bergman may elope with Roberto Rossellini. Jayne Mansfield may remove her husband from her payroll. But the careers of these film personalities endure.

The public demands a sex symbol and only the motion picture medium, it appears, can discover, project, and promote one.

The most qualified candidate for such promotion is the aforementioned Tuesday Weld, who has appeared in 10 movies and more than 100 TV programs.

Here is a lovely, young, chameleon-eyed blonde, 5-feet-4, 110 lbs., with a 36-23-34 figure, firm, well-toned, beautifully shaped.

She boasts Freudian allure and an ample bosom, two of the prime requisites of the typical American sex symbol. As a bonus, Tuesday can act. She's been working ever since she was 3½ and, unlike Marilyn Monroe, takes direction quickly, easily, and perceptively.

Says veteran director Leo McCarey: "She's a bright young thing, quick to grasp, quick to absorb, and capable of self-discipline."

"My real name," said Tuesday, "is Benjamin"

Like Marilyn, however, Tuesday Weld is moody and, for someone only 19, inordinately suspicious of people, especially men, "because they've hurt me."

Her mother claims: "This is nonsense. Tuesday makes up stories for newspaper reporters, because the truth bores her. She doesn't like telling the same thing over and over again. One time, for example, she told a reporter she had spent most of her youth in pool rooms. Another time she described herself as 'young with an old soul.'

"On another occasion when she was asked for the hundreth time whether her name was really Tuesday, she said, 'No, my real name is Benjamin.' She has an impish desire to shock, but she's actually a perfectly normal young woman."

Dwayne Hickman, who's played opposite her in the Dobie Gillis TV series, describes her somewhat differently: "Tuesday's not a very outgoing girl," he declares. "She takes knowing. She doesn't give her

Sexy quality of Tuesday Weld is apparent in this pose from recent TV series. Now 19, Tuesday may become top film box-office draw.

Is she Marilyn Monroe's successor?

friendship easily. On certain things she's outspoken, but basically she's reticent. She's hard to know."

Says Elvis Presley, her leading man in Wild in the Country: "That girl's not only got a good figure but a good mind. She gives a man the feeling that inside, she seethes."

The truth about Tuesday Weld is that she is the creature of an incredible background. Her father, Lothrop Motley Weld, Harvard '20, was the playboy scion of an old, prominent, wealthy New England family. Her mother, Aileen, daughter of famed illustrator Balfour Ker, was Lothrop Weld's fourth wife.

When Weld died of a coronary at 49 in 1946, he left no money. (His heart was so bad no company would insure him.) What he did leave was a widow and five children—two sons by a previous marriage and three children by his marriage to Aileen.

Tuesday was the last of these. She was born of a distinguished family tree in the Salvation Army Hospital in New York on August 27, 1943. She was born into an incongruous world of impeccable social background and almost absolute poverty.

Her mother named her Susan "because," she explains, "they wouldn't let me take her out of the hospital unless I named her something. But two months after she was born, I named her Tuesday, and she's been Tuesday ever since."

They lived in a coldwater flat in Manhattan's slums

Tuesday and her sister Sally, eight years her senior, and a brother David, six years older, were raised in the heart of Manhattan. They lived with their mother in a slum tenement, a ground-floor coldwater flat on First Avenue and 53rd Street for which they paid $20 per month rent. The flat had no bathroom, and the lavatory was a community project located in the hall.

Mrs. Weld worked occasionally as a sales clerk in department stores, managed to keep her brood together and survive on her pitiful earnings plus a small allowance from her mother-in-law.

When Tuesday was 3½, the child began to work as a fashion model; she earned $33 for her first job, gradually became the family breadwinner.

As a youngster, she hated to pose. "I didn't like photographers treating me like a piece of furniture. 'Stand here. Move there. Sit down.' It got so that I became petulant and rarely smiled. And I remember the photographers trying every trick to make me smile, but I just wouldn't. I guess maybe I didn't really like modeling. But I did it for years. First, the Conover Agency got me jobs, then the Huntington Hartford Agency.

"When business was slack and I didn't get jobs, mother used to work. Then she'd quit to take me around. Somehow we managed, but I remember during my whole childhood we were always short of money. And naturally my schooling was very irregular. Eventually, because of my hours, I had to go to the children's Professional School."

By the time Tuesday was 8½ she was so fed up with modeling that her mother took all the money they could scrape together, $900, and moved the family to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

"For two years," she says, "Tuesday lived a natural life without a single day's posing of any kind. During this period I catered my favorite chili con carne to restaurants as far down as Miami. The children went to school; we lived in a community of fine and thoughtful neighbors; life was more slow and peaceful. Then we started to run out of money and Tuesday became restless. I left the two older children with friends, and Tuesday and I went back to New York."

Mrs. Weld was prudent enough to refrain from suggesting to her extremely photogenic daughter that she return to modeling. But by this time some of Tuesday's girl friends, "Kids I'd gone to Professional School with," had developed into top New York models and minor TV actresses. Tuesday spoke with them, then one day went to her mother and said she'd like to start working again.

Her mother warned her that she would have to give up parties and proms, all the social activities most teenagers looked forward to if she were serious about becoming a top-flight actress. She explained that she would use some of Tuesday's modeling money to send her to drama and dancing classes, and Tuesday agreed. The child was 11 when she resumed work. By 12 she was regularly appearing on the covers of half a dozen different magazines, had jobs playing child parts in a dozen different TV shows.

That same year the Huntington Hartford Agency sent her to the Bronx to audition for the lead role in Rock, Rock, Rock, a low-budget motion picture directed by the late Will Price, former husband of actress Maureen O'Hara. Price selected Tuesday from 300 applicants to play a 16-year-old, paid her $400 for the film which was shot in nine days.

Intensely serious about her acting career, Tuesday subsequently heard that famed director Elia Kazan was auditioning girls for a new play by William Inge, The Dark at the Top of the Stairs.

"I wore clothes to make me look real old," she says, "and makeup to match, and I honestly felt that I appeared very sophisticated. Mr. Kazan asked me how old I was. At the time I was only 14, but I lied. I told him 16. He said: 'Well, why've you made yourself up to look like 30? Go home and scrub up, then come back as you really are and read for me again.' " Tuesday did. She didn't get any of the lead roles, but Kazan hired her to understudy two of them.

The fate of the understudy even in a hit—is to sit

When the show opened in New Haven, Tuesday was dreadfully unhappy because the play was a hit and she had done nothing but sit forlornly in the below-stage dressing room, holding tightly the tiny corsage of baby roses her mother had sent to console her. She came out of the dressing room, and ran into a young agent, Dick Clayton, who used to represent the late Jimmy Dean.

Clayton says: "I took one look at her, and I knew this kid had it—sex appeal, talent, depth. I told her if she ever got to Hollywood I'd like to represent her. Several months later, her mother phoned me from New York and said I could become Tuesday's agent providing I got her some work. I got her a job on the Matinee Theatre TV program, and she and her mother flew out to Hollywood. They got here in April, 1958. A few days after she finished Matinee, I took her out to 20th Century-Fox to see Leo McCarey who was directing and producing Rally Round the Flag with Paul Newman and Joan Collins.

"McCarey took one look at her and signed her without a test, right on the spot, for the part of the sexy young baby sitter."

Tuesday was next signed by Paramount to play Danny Kaye's crippled daughter in Five Pennies, a film based on the life of band leader Red Nichols. And word soon began to spread that Tuesday Weld was a physically precocious teenager with a high sex-appeal quotient. Behind this word lay a rising mountain of fan mail, mostly from servicemen who'd seen her on the screen.

Unsolicited fan mail, particularly from young men, has always been an indicator of an actress' box-office potential. When 20th Century-Fox saw the mail flooding in, studio executives made inquiry concerning Tuesday. They were told that the studio had dropped her option but had been using her in the Dobie Gillis TV series, that she'd also been making other full-length motion pictures all over town.

Tuesday's goal is marriage —but never to an actor

In 1960 the studio re-signed her, cast her with Bing Crosby in High Time. Said Crosby: "Tuesday's got the right charms in the right places."

Celebrating her new contract, Tuesday moved out from under her mother's protective wing at 17, bought a new two-bedroom Hollywood hillside home complete with swimming pool, quickly furnished the pad with hi-fi, TV, and recording equipment. She also bought a Thunderbird, quickly traded it in for another model. She changes cars the way most girls change clothes. In the past year she's had six, now drives a white convertible Cadillac.

In addition to earning $126,000 last year—not bad for an 18-year-old—Tuesday inherited a sizeable estate in stocks and bonds from her paternal grandmother. "The inheritance," explains her mother, "will save her from becoming dependent on the whims of Hollywood, which no girl should ever be subjected to."

Restless by nature, Tuesday Weld today is ambitious for success and achievement. She says she would like to inherit Marilyn Monroe's mantle but does not want to devote her life to a motion picture career.

"It's terribly depressing," she says, "to spend your best years hanging around a sound stage. I'd like to get married and have children. That's the best career any woman can have, but an actress has to be extremely careful in choosing a man. Actresses usually choose such lousy husbands—they pick actors, I'd rather not."

Striking similarity is evident between Marilyn Monroe at 19 (above) and Tuesday Weld at 17 (below). Tuesday's advantage is she's a better actress than ill-fated Marilyn, who early in career was not taken seriously by producers.

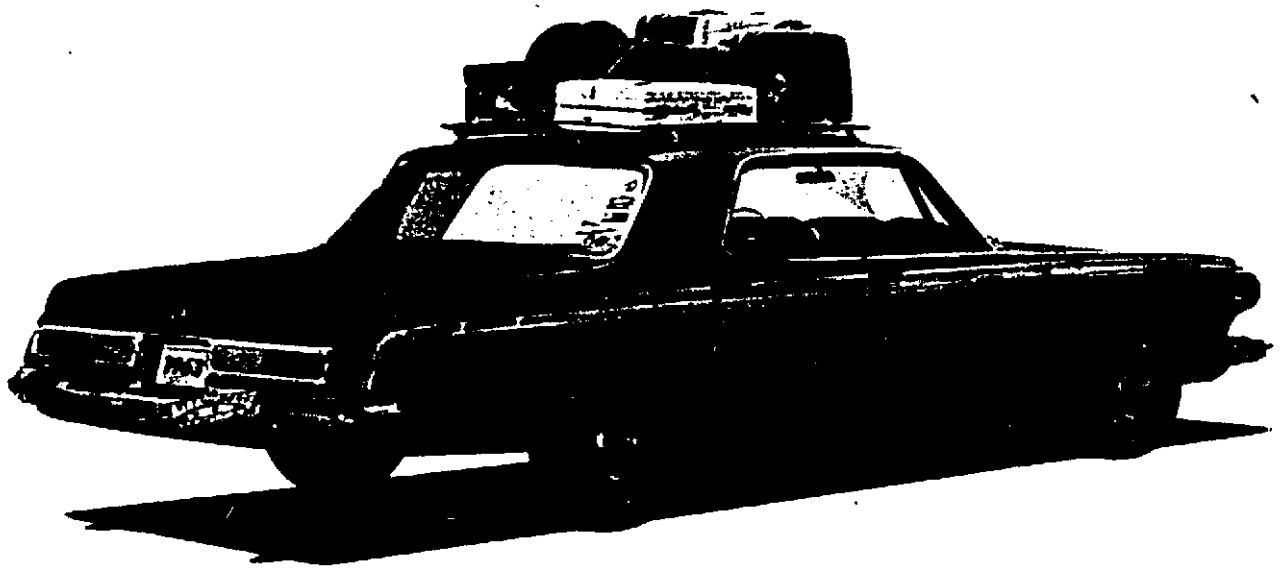

Tuesday's been playing the field for the past few years, but before marriage she wants to fulfill herself as an actress, to play memorable roles of meaning.

"I'm a good actress," she says. "I can play more than sex-bait or the girl who arouses wolf-whistles. I've been described as a kook and an oddball and an erupting volcano. But I'm none of those. I go to dancing school, I take singing lessons. I'm trying to improve myself all the time. I just don't want Hollywood to treat me the way it treated Marilyn Monroe. She hung around this town, wasting the best years of her life trying to get jobs.

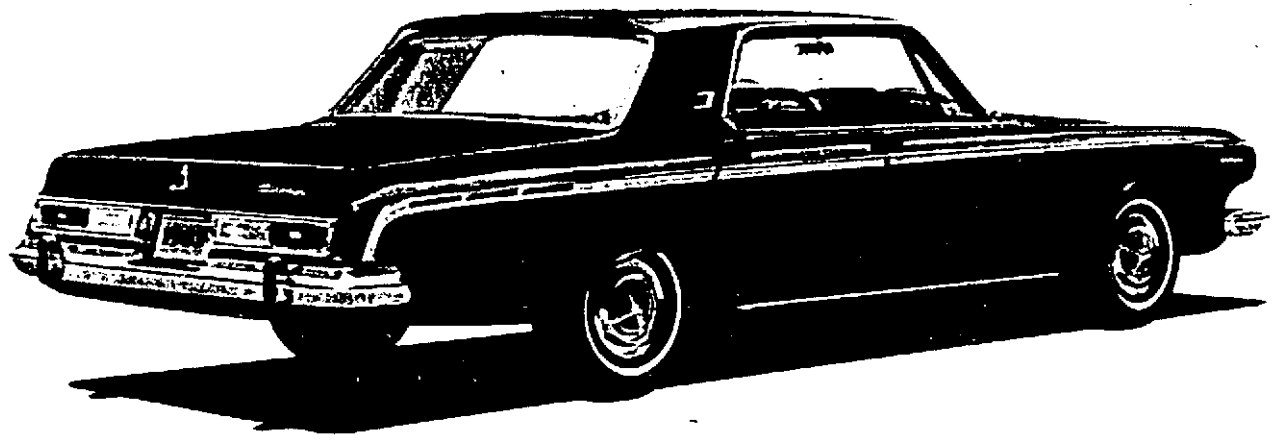

"She told everyone she was serious about her work, but producers would look at her figure and they just never would believe her. Somehow a girl who bulges in the right places is never considered a serious artist in Hollywood."

Tuesday Weld bulges in all the right places, but Hollywood considers her serious—in fact, too serious. Says one casting director: "If she would only smile more often, Tuesday would get more jobs. Sure, she's sexy, but she's also sullen. She gives one the feeling that she considers life a burden instead of a joy. No one had a more terrible youth than Marilyn Monroe. Yet, she always tried to smile. This kid doesn't. The minute she does, the sky for her is the limit—because in addition to sex appeal she's got real talent, and that's an unbeatable combination." ■

THE ROAD NEVER GOT...

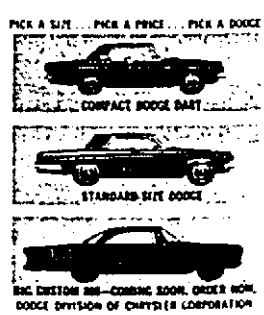

SUCH A BEAUTIFUL GOING OVER

INTRODUCING THE 1963 DODGE

The 1963 Dodge in the topmost picture has just come back from a good long run. It's been to the World's Fair in Seattle, to Mammoth Cave and to lots of other interesting places. It has carried backbreaking loads of people, luggage and camping equipment. It's been pelted by sand, gravel, snow, rain, sleet and hail. But take off that luggage rack, give Dodge a good hosing and rubdown, and it'll look, run and sound like a brand new car. That's the way this Dodge is. Dependable. Long-lasting. Tight. With a fully unitized body that is reluctant to rust, because we take care of that.

With Torsion-Bar suspension in front that won't let road bumps do any harm. With a stout-hearted engine (6 or V8) that gives and gives on regular gas. With a high-output alternator that helps the battery last a good long time.

But great as Dodge dependability is, it's not everything. The good looks of the '63 Dodge testify to that. If you want to give the road a good going over in a car that comes out of it looking great, see your dependable Dodge Dealer.

A NEW SHORT CUT TO MENTAL HEALTH

BY ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

Brief therapy: patient reveals problem—but not from the analytic couch.

THERE'S A NEW SHORT CUT to mental health. In more than a half-dozen American cities, patients with everyday, but distressing emotional disorders, tensions, depressions, family and job conflicts, are being helped—in 30-, 20-, and even 10-minute psychotherapy sessions by family doctors as well as psychiatrists.

It's part of an exciting development in American psychiatry. There are slightly more than 11,000 psychiatrists to serve the entire nation. Obviously, something has to be done to "stretch" psychiatric treatment and put it within financial reach of more people.

Make no mistake. The brief, 20-minute "hour" (as experts refer to sessions) is not replacing the 50-minute hour for patients in deep psychoanalysis. Short sessions are not geared to remake the patient's total personality, nor can they "carry" the patient for years.

Without delving into the patient's total life history, brief treatment deals with his acute, immediate problems, seeking to overcome urgent emotional difficulties.

"The short session," says Dr. William F. Sheeley, of the American Psychiatric Association, "is the only practical way to treat vast numbers of patients, many of whom cannot and should not be psychoanalyzed."

To these patients—there are thousands today in Chicago, Los Angeles, New York, New Orleans, Boston, Columbus (Ga.), and elsewhere—brief therapy means relief from emotional problems for a total cost of $100, $50, or even as little as $25.

"The brief treatment session is a trend of the future," declares a Columbus, Ga., psychiatrist, Dr. Leonard T. Maholick. "If you go about it correctly, you can accomplish a great deal in 10 or 15 minutes of treatment."

Even a single 20-minute session with a properly-trained and oriented doctor can help certain patients. What types of problems do they have?

Psychosomatic complaints are among the most com-

mon. Dr. Bertram B. Moss of Chicago, chairman of the Illinois Academy of General Practice mental health committee, tells of a 34-year-old divorcée who complained of stomach cramps.

She had no physical problems, so Dr. Moss asked her to discuss anything she deemed important. In a single session, the patient revealed that she was going out with two men. On dates with one of them, she disclosed, the stomach discomfort occurred. With the other, it did not.

Then she told why one of her suitors made her feel tense and jittery. The next day—after "ventilating" her problem (a vital process in any type of psychotherapy), the stomach pains disappeared. She made her choice and has been free of symptoms for several weeks.

Depressions, arising from death in the family, illness, or job difficulties, yield at times to brief therapy.

Dr. Francis Nicolle of New Orleans tells of a 33-year-old mother of three who became terribly depressed because she disliked her stepfather. In just six sessions, she came to understand the source of her depression. Her guilt feelings were alleviated and she happily returned to her duties as wife and mother.

Sudden but common stress periods bring countless candidates for brief therapy to the doctor's office.

A 55-year-old California woman used to break out in a rash every time her son and daughter-in-law had a marital spat. The rash covered her hands and caused her endless grief and pain. In just three brief sessions, she began to accept the fact that her son and daughter-in-law really loved each other and that their arguments were "normal." With this realization, her rash gradually disappeared. She has been symptom-free for months.

THIS WOMAN has a "fragile" personality and may need brief therapy again as other stressful situations arise, but therapy will always be available to help cushion her emotional upheaval. Hers is not an exceptional case. As Dr. William B. Terhune of the Silver Hill Foundation, New Canaan, Conn., points out, "Every individual experiences serious stress several times in life which may require treatment."

Where can the patient go for brief, low-cost psychotherapy? In a few cities around the U. S., psychiatrists offer it. Some outpatient psychiatric clinics do, too.

Perhaps the most heartening fact, though, is that an estimated 2,500 general practitioners, family doctors, now are trained to give brief psychotherapy, or will be in the near future.

To this end, the American Psychiatric Association and the American Academy of General Practice are stepping up training programs so that more GP's will be able to help their patients over tough emotional hurdles.

"It's a wonderful way to practice," says Dr. Moss, "a way in which the family doctor can shine again." ■

you will love this SPANISH DISH

The 17th anniversary of the United Nations will be celebrated on October 24 by 104 countries. Mark the event by serving a UN Day dinner of Spanish chicken and other foreign dishes.

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

U Thant, Acting Secretary-General of the UN, suggests the following menu for American tastes. In all but the main course he allows a choice of dishes, from which we made up the following menu:

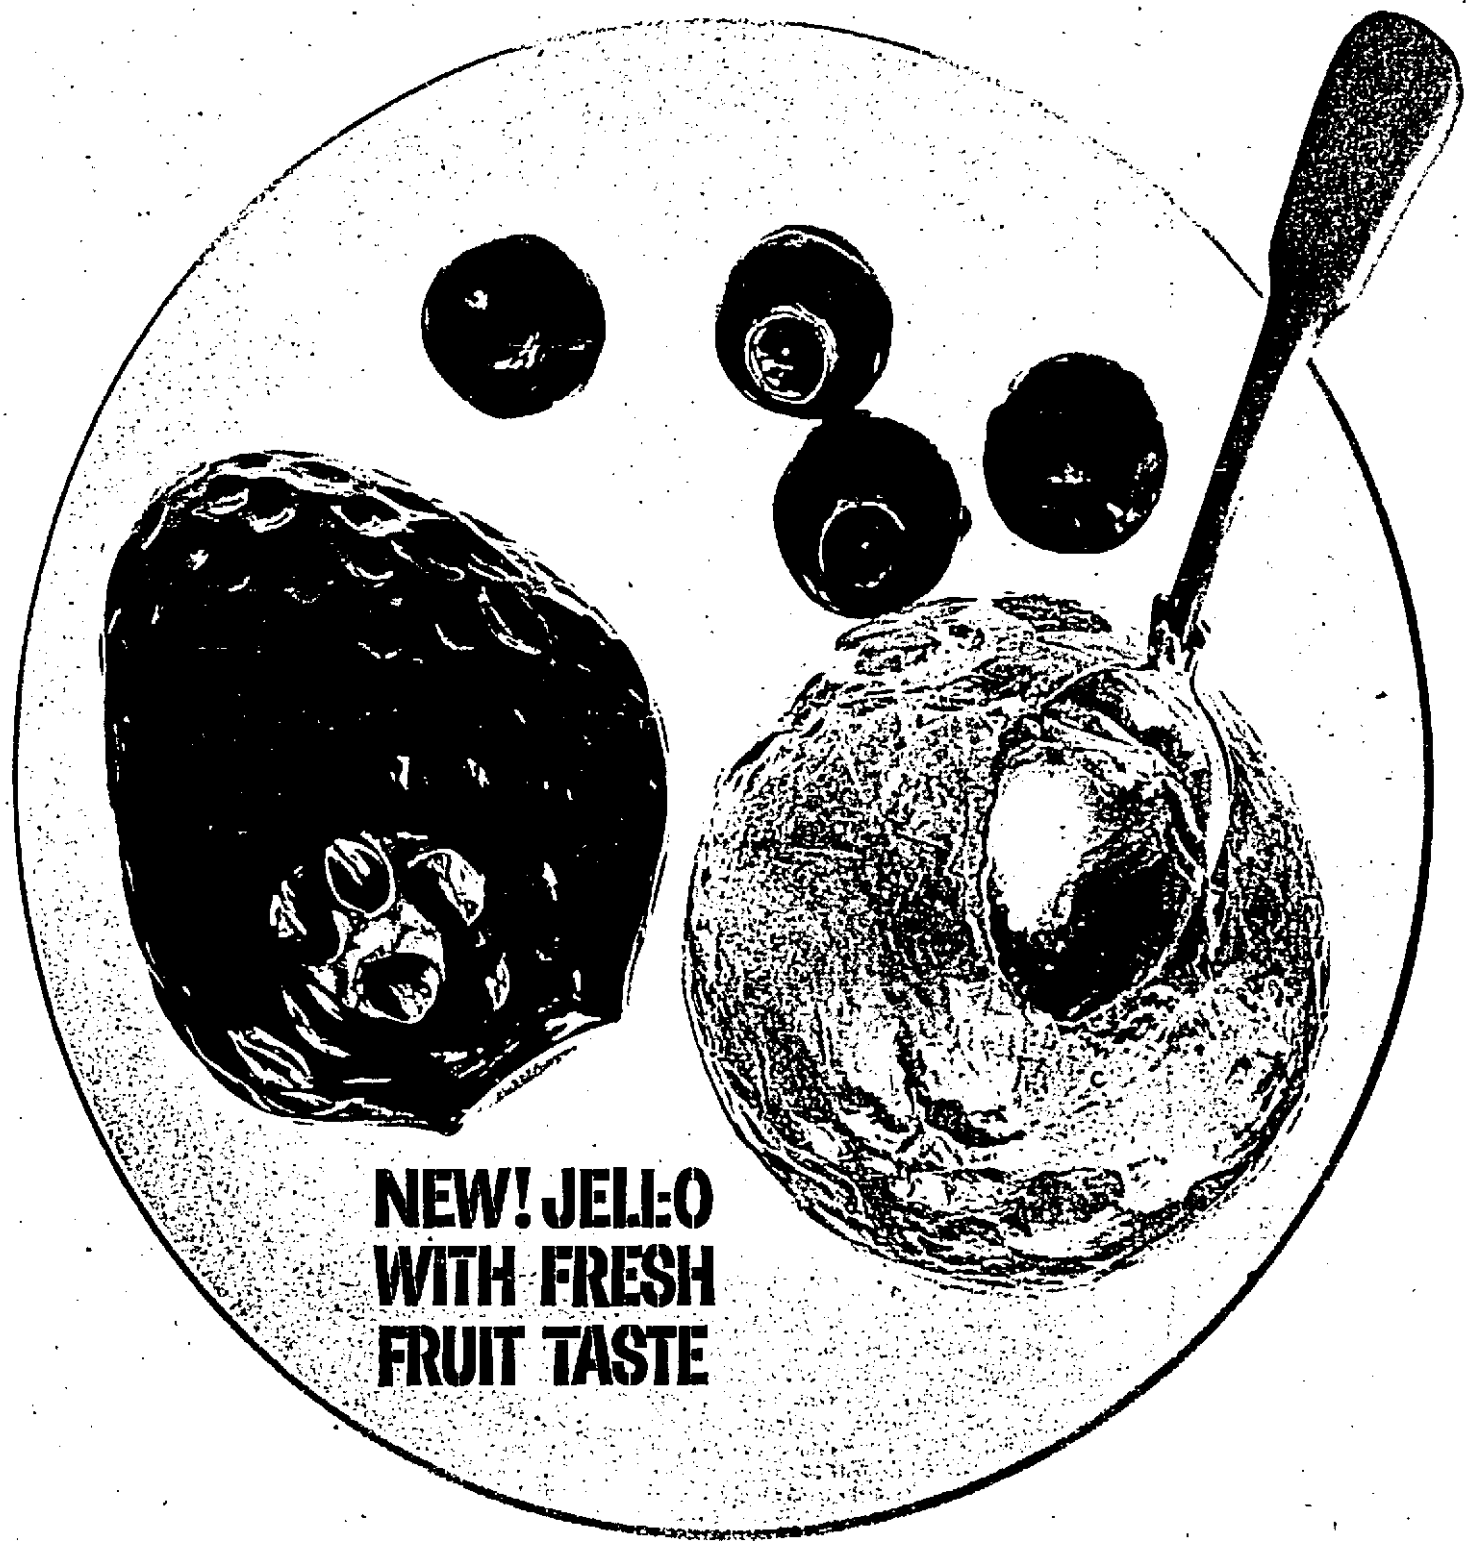

Borscht (U.S.S.R. and Middle Europe)
Paella Valenciana (Spain)*
Curried Green Beans with Almonds (India)
Tossed Green Salad
French Dressing (France)
Lemon Meringue Pie (U.S.A.)
Coffee (Latin America) Tea (India or Ceylon)

To make dinner preparations easier, buy canned borscht and serve hot or chilled, topped with dairy sour cream. Most of the Paella ingredients are canned, making the recipe much simpler than the usual Spanish recipe. Serve the green beans in a mild curry sauce, topped with canned slivered almonds. Make the pie with pie crust mix and packaged lemon pie filling. The Paella may be made the day before and reheated, if desired.

Paella Valenciana

- 2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut up
- ¼ cup salad oil
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
- 2 or 3 garlic cloves
- 1 Italian sausage, hot or sweet
- 2 medium onions, chopped
- 2 cups raw, long-grained rice
- 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes
- 1 can (10½ oz.) whole clams
- 2 cups water or giblet broth
- 1 envelope saffron
- 1 can (6 oz.) shrimp
- 1 large green pepper, diced
- 1 can (15 oz.) artichoke hearts
- 1 can (4 oz.) pimientoes, diced
- 1 cup fresh or frozen peas
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Brown chicken pieces in salad oil in large skillet until skin is crisp and brown. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. With garlic press squeeze garlic over chicken. Place chicken in 4-quart baking dish or Dutch oven. Slice sausage ½-inch thick; brown slices in oil left in skillet. Add slices to the baking dish. Cook onions in skillet until soft but not brown, adding more oil if necessary; add to the baking dish. Combine rice, tomatoes, juice from clams, water or giblet broth and saffron; mix well; turn into the baking dish. Cover; bake at 375° for 45 minutes. Remove cover. Halve clams; add with drained shrimp and green pepper. Slice artichoke hearts ¼-inch thick; add with pimientos and peas. Stir well. Add more giblet broth if necessary. Cover baking dish. Bake ½ hour longer. Serve on a platter, garnished with chopped parsley. Makes 8 servings. FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

IS THERE SUCH A THING AS A SPECIAL LAXATIVE FOR WOMEN?

So many women are asking this important question.

The answer is—yes. A remarkable new medical discovery called Dioctyl Sodium Sulfosuccinate has now made possible a special new laxative for a woman's sensitive system. We call it Correctol®.

Correctol works two ways. First, its miracle ingredient takes advantage of the natural moisture in your system. Second, its mild laxative acts gently but most effectively. Working together, Correctol's two active ingredients give a woman more natural relief than any ordinary laxative can.

Correctol is recommended any time in a woman's life, even during and after pregnancy.

Try gentle, hospital-tested Correctol . . . bearing the Good Housekeeping Seal. Ask your druggist for Correctol.

GOLDEN FLEECE FOR POTS AND PANS
Scours like a pad; handles like a cloth

Then and now: 5-year-old Dave Garroway of Schenectady, N.Y., tries out his first "car"—a home-made, boy-powered "dinky," built with grandfather's aid because Dave envied a neighbor's Chandler. Today Garroway owns five sports cars.

Everyone remembers one of life's great experiences

MY FIRST CAR

DETROIT, MICH.

NEXT SATURDAY, the giant National Automobile Show will open in Detroit — launching the 1963 models. An estimated seven million Americans will buy these new models. Of these, one buyer in five will be engaging in one of the most memorable experiences of American life. They will be buying their very first cars.

On page 22, you meet four Americans who have just taken this big step—reaching it only after much care and cogitation and sure to remember it all their lives. For almost as much as he remembers his first sweetheart, an American brought up in the Automobile Age recalls fondly his first car. Long after it has rusted away in the auto graveyard, he can tell you when he bought it, where he bought it, what good times he had in it, how many times and where it broke down. And he recounts each such anecdote with the far-off tremolo of the reminiscent lover.

How about you? Do you remember your first car?

TV celebrity DAVE GARROWAY does. It was a Model-T Ford with a brass radiator and he and a friend paid $10 apiece for it. However, the car Garroway remembers best is shown above. He built it, age 5, helped by his grandfather because he envied a neighbor's Chandler. "We made it out of wood, a wagon and four wheels from a grocery cart," Garroway recalls. "It had a top speed of about 6 mph if you fed the motor—me—two Eskimo pies."

WALTER CRONKITE, CBS news commentator, had his first car when he was 15. It was a hand-me-down from his father. "It was a great big black box of a Dodge," Cronkite says lovingly. "I could get more kids into that car than college kids today can cram into a telephone booth. There were usually about 12

'Mechanic' Walter Cronkite, 15, gazes under hood of his fondly-remembered first car—a 1926 Dodge. His bewilderment, today's CBS commentator says, was genuine. "No one told me to change the oil in the car's transmission," Cronkite says, "and one day it just ground to a stop."

THE WORLD'S BIGGEST AUTO SHOW

UNDER THE VAST ROOF of Detroit's Cobo Hall and Convention Arena, the 44th National Automobile Show, biggest of its kind in the world, will open next Saturday and run for eight days. On display will be every 1963 model of every car and truck made in America. The exhibit will cover 300,000 square feet, represents millions in investment. Highlights include an antique car rally, a special musical revue, special exhibits and open-houses. Admission: adults $1, children 35 cents.

Why people used to buy cars—and why they do today

passengers. I'll tell you, it made me the undisputed social leader of San Jacinto High School."

Astronaut JOHN GLENN also got his first car from his father, who was in the car business in New Concord, Ohio, at the time. "It was a 1929 Chevy convertible that was, you might say, permanently converted," Glenn remembers. "There was no top at all anymore. I used to carry half of an old Army pup tent to throw over it in case of rain. One day I took a brace and bit and bored holes through the floorboards so the water would run out. I had it three or four years and then one day I was skidding it around a mudflat and I straddled a half-submerged log. That tore the bottom out of it. My dad was so disgusted with me that he grounded me for 30 days."

Glenn's buddy in orbit, Astronaut SCOTT CARPENTER, also remembers his first car—a 1934 Ford. He financed it by selling his clarinet. Carpenter souped up the car and rebuilt the body to accommodate a home made rumble seat. "Why don't they build cars with rumble seats any more?" Carpenter asks nostalgically. "I think something wonderful went out of life when they stopped."

Like Garroway, many Americans bought their first car with someone else. MICKEY MANTLE of the Yankees, for instance, bought an antique Chevrolet with then fellow-Yanks DON LARSEN, TOM STURDIVANT and JOHN BLANCHARD to drive back and forth to the Stadium. It cost $100. "But that doesn't count oil," Mantle says. "You had to stop at every gas station and say, 'Check the gas and fill with oil.' "

SEN. HUBERT HUMPHREY of Minnesota bought his first car in 1933, with three classmates at Denver College of Pharmacy. They paid $3.25 each. For the rest of the year Humphrey scrimped and saved to buy the others out. Then he took the car back to Huron, S.D., and drove it a year. One day he needed a stake for a big weekend, so he sold the car for $9 and blew it all on a football game, dinner and an evening out.

Several Americans learned to drive in their first cars. Baseball comedian AL SCHACHT, driving his first car—a 1928 Will St. Clair—home from a Tampa, Fla., agency, was accompanied by TRIS SPEAKER. "Speaker knew I knew practically nothing about cars," Schacht recalls. "So when we were in the heaviest traffic, he knocked the gearshift into neutral. I hadn't the slightest idea why it wouldn't go. Finally a cop came over and he couldn't figure it out either. So we called a mechanic and he got it back in gear. A few blocks later, Speaker did it again. But this time he couldn't contain himself and he confessed."

The president of the American Medical Association, DR. GEORGE M. FISTER of Ogden, Utah, got his first car in 1919—a 1916 Dodge coupe. He was just out of medical school. He taught himself to drive and set out with his father for Salt Lake City.

Sideswiped Cow

"First thing we came upon was a herd of cows," Dr. Fister remembers. "They wouldn't move and I couldn't stop, so I hit one. The car was damaged but it would still run, so we kept going. A few miles further on, we came on a place where the road was being repaired. I drove over it and tore out the crankcase. This time the car stopped for sure. I had it towed back to Ogden and sold it. So in one week I bought my first car, taught myself to drive, took my first trip, wrecked the car and bought my second car."

Attorney General ROBERT F. KENNEDY'S first car also ended up a wreck. It was, as Kennedy recalls, a 1946 black Chrysler. "I don't remember it too well because I seldom saw it," the President's brother says. "My friends drove the heck out of it. One day it just disappeared completely. Later I heard that Kenny O'Donnell's brother had borrowed it and smashed it into a concrete abutment."

SEN. PAT McNAMARA of Michigan says he bought his first car, an old Reo, when he not only had never driven a car but hadn't even ridden in one. He bought it second hand, closing the deal with the owner's mother, who didn't know how to drive it either. It took him all afternoon to figure out how the car started, and then the rest of the afternoon to get it home. "As I recall," says McNamara, "there was one pedal combining brake and clutch, which made things rather complicated.

"It's funny," he adds, "that all that first month, while I was learning to drive, my father always rode with me. But after I learned how, he said I drove too fast. He never would get in the car again."

Women remember their first cars, too. Actress ANN HARDING, for instance, had a "tenth-hand Buick roadster", which had a top speed of about 38 mph. "I always named my cars," she says, "and I named that one 'Hedgehog.' That was because it couldn't be a road hog, not at that speed. One rainy night I was crossing the Jersey meadows when suddenly I came upon a detour sign and a man signalling me to stop. Well, I wasn't stopping at night for anybody. So I zigzagged around him and kept going. I don't know who he was, but he fired a gun at me. Luckily, he was a bad shot and only winged the window. It's hard to make a getaway at 38 mph."

And JEAN CARNEY, wife of actor ART CARNEY, remembers well their first car, which was really hers. "It was a 1936 Chevy with a rumble seat," she says, "and it was a hand-me-down from my uncle. Not too long after that I met Art and married him.

"You know," she muses, "I often wonder if he married me for my car."

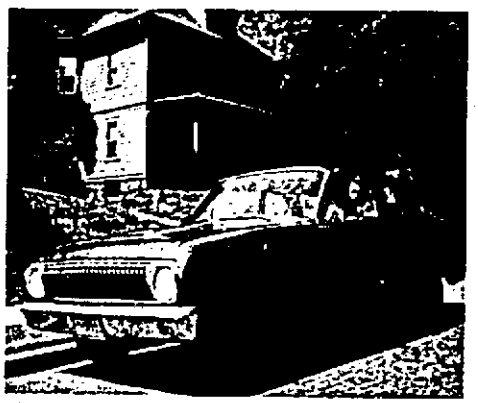

—ED KIESTER.

Family, the Bolognini's of Teaneck, N.J., selected Chevrolet Impala as their first car. "Jim offered me a mink stole," says Elsie Bolognini, a British war bride, "but I said, 'Let's buy a car.' I was shopping for an economy model, but then this sporty model caught our eye. It makes us both feel so good just to have it!"

Suburban housewife, Mrs. Robert Jurick of Hewlett Harbor, N.Y., picked Rambler station wagon. "We wanted a car that was economical, easy to handle, that had plenty of room for the children," Mrs. Jurick says. "And they love this one. And I'm certainly able to come and go more readily, keep up all my errands."

Nurse Claire Simoneau, 24, of Marlborough, Conn., decided Falcon sedan was best for driving back and forth to Hartford Hospital. "What it means to me is independence," Claire says. "Not having to depend on others, going where you want when you want. Truthfully, I don't know how I ever did without it."

Young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Tweedy of New York, decided on a Plymouth convertible. "It's something I've always wanted," Tweedy says. "As a kid I always loved cars and I always wanted to have one, and now I do. It means a lot to us—a chance to travel, to enjoy the country, and mostly a source of pride."

CAN A WANT AD in a newspaper bring a home, devoted parents, two brothers and a dog to a homeless child?

A classified ad brought all these things and more to a 10-year-old little girl named Irene. The child, once a ward of Ontario's Department of Public Welfare, is now the adopted daughter of Leo and Frieda Schell. (These names are, of course, fictitious.)

The youngster, who had been out on loan to foster parents more than half her young life, lives in a nice home in a suburban area here. She has her own room, a daddy who lets her climb onto his lap, a loving mother, two older brothers and a family dog. Irene now has the kind of life little girls in foster homes dream about.

Irene's new home and new family came about through an ad in the personal column of a newspaper. It's the unique method used by the Province of Ontario's Department of Welfare to place children out for adoption.

The advertising program, instituted in 1959, uses "parents wanted" ads weekly in 18 provincial newspapers. So far more than 500 children have been placed for adoption through these ads. This revolutionary method has been so successful here, that agencies in the U.S. are copying the technique.

What makes it necessary to advertise for parents when by common report there are more couples looking for children than there are children available for adoption?

Special Cases

Although the number of infants available for adoption is admittedly limited, the number of hard-to-place youngsters is far greater than the demand. That's why Ontario advertises for parents for youngsters who are older, who may have a handicap or two or perhaps who are the issue of a mixed union.

Irene was one of these hard-to-adopt youngsters. She was 8½ and nobody came along who was charmed by her peppy personality, her warm expressive eyes or her sweet smile. She lived in a shelter with 14 girls.

Frieda and Leo Schell, parents of two boys, answered one of the ads for a little girl. They didn't get the one they wrote for, but their name went on a waiting list. Then they heard about Irene.

"We were thrilled, excited but also a little frightened," Mrs. Schell says.

"I had no idea of how an 8-year-old girl would adjust to our home. We are no experts in child raising. We have muddled through with our own boys, but we figured that with God's help we could give this little girl the love and understanding that every child is entitled to."

The Children's Aid Society arranged a "preview." This permits the prospective parents to view a child without an actual meeting —to see if the child appeals to them.

The case worker may take the youngster to a playground or to the zoo or to a restaurant so that parents may see the child in action. The first time the Schells saw Irene was at a restaurant in a large shopping center.

"I'll never forget the day," said Frieda Schell. "Irene was seated at a table in a restaurant eating chips. She didn't know we were watching her, but she looked so cute as she chatted away with the social worker.

ADOPTION continued

With the older adopted child,

When they left to go walking we followed and when they stopped in front of a shoe store, our hearts went out to Irene. She was gazing fondly at a pair of high-heeled shoes."

There was no question about it, they wanted Irene. In the meanwhile, their intended daughter was told that a family was interested in adopting her. The case worker told Irene about the two boys, Ron, then 16, and David, 13, and about Ginger, the dog.

The day came for Irene to meet the family. Frieda Schell recalls, "I was so nervous I didn't know how to dress. I decided to wear a sweater and skirt because Irene was going to be dressed informally. Later Irene told me she didn't like what I wore."

A Room of Her Own

Irene arrived for dinner with the social worker. The first thing she inquired about was the dog, then she wanted to see "her" room. While Irene was only at the Schells for a visit, the family had already been preparing to take her in. Leo Schell had redone his son David's room in feminine colors, his wife had changed the draperies and bedspread to a more girlish pattern, and even David contributed something—a doll which he bought out of his savings. Irene came to live with the Schells many weeks later.

It was a probationary period. When the novelty of Irene's arrival wore off, problems started cropping up.

"I remember our first crisis," Mrs. Schell said. "My husband Leo is very musical and both our boys play instruments. Leo wanted to teach Irene the piano and she hated it. One day she said to me, 'I'm not going to play the piano anymore. And I want you to know,' the child added defiantly, 'I haven't signed the adoption papers yet.'"

While the child never has anything to do with adoption papers, the remarks were a cutting blow to Mrs. Schell. She was very upset, and the incident so disillusioned Mr. Schell that he was on the verge of sending her back.

A musical evening at home with Irene and father at the piano. David, 15, toots his saxophone.

With the experience of two boys behind her, Mrs. Schell took Irene aside and sternly told her she would have to obey her father.

"If you don't discipline an adopted child, as you would your own, she feels that she doesn't belong. If you scold her, she then takes it to mean that you really care for her and that she really is a member of the family," Mrs. Schell said.

Several hours after the spat, Irene apologized and agreed to take piano lessons.

No family, with adopted children or not, gets away with just one problem. The next crisis concerned David. He wanted a bicycle

Learning to ride a bicycle isn't hard if your brother holds the bike for you. David gives Irene a lesson on her first two-wheeler.

each problem may become a crisis

badly and he finally got it on his birthday. But Irene got a bicycle almost immediately after her arrival. David became sullen, petulant and disobedient.

One day, after being scolded by his mother, he blurted out, "Irene gets away with murder, and you always come after me for nothing."

"David and I had a long, hard talk which ended up with both of us crying," the mother said. "He thought I didn't love him anymore. After I explained how much Irene needed him as well as us, he started to understand. Now they're like a regular brother and sister, they fight like cats and dogs."

Six-month Probation

The family got along so well and adjusted so quickly that it took only a six-month probationary period for the Schells to legally adopt their daughter. She's been a member of the family for a year and half now.

The story of Irene is just one of many cases that have come through the Children's Aid Society. The Society currently has about 3,000 children in foster homes, waiting for someone to adopt them. In addition to the classified ad program, the department has also tried putting some of these hard-to-adopt children on television. For five minutes each Friday, several children are seen at play on a program called Pat's Place. Radio is also used to tell couples about available children.

Not everybody can adopt older or handicapped or interracial children, according to Laurie Charleson, adoption consultant to the Department of Public Welfare. Says Miss Charleson:

"People who adopt special children must know how to handle them, they must be mature, have a lot of experience with children and not give up when the sledding gets tough. Most important is that these people also be adjustable and appreciative of youngsters as they are—even if they are duller mentally, or disabled in some way."

Mrs. Schell supervises bedtime prayer—new to Irene who had no previous religious instruction.

Several months ago, in the same paper which carries classified ads for parents, there was a letter to the editor written by "Happy Parent." The letter read in part:

"Our little daughter has just celebrated two birthdays on the same day. First, her 10th birthday, and second, the first anniversary of her arrival as our adopted daughter.

"She is a happy, well-adjusted little girl, a ray of sunshine and we cannot imagine our home without her.

"We answered an ad in your paper placed by the Children's Aid Society and to anyone contemplating adopting an older child we can only say, 'DON'T be afraid.' " ■

His theatrical studies were interrupted by World War II, during which time he served with the Air Force. After the war, he went to Los Angeles where he studied drama at the Bliss-Hayden Theater and then with the Ben Bard Theater. Simmy began working in nightclubs in 1948. His most recent appearances have been in the Blue Angel, New York; the Tidelands, Houston; the Living Room, Chicago; Slate Brothers, Los Angeles; the Playboy Clubs in Miami, New Orleans, and Chicago. He has appeared on such TV shows as* The Untouchables, U.S. Marshal, and Sheriff of Cochise. Here are some of his best jokes:

My favorite jokes

by SIMMY BOW

A bum approached a lady on the street and asked, "Ma'am, would you please give me 15 cents for a sandwich?"

To which the lady replied, "Let me see the sandwich."

An exuberant agent took his client, a chicken, to see a theatrical manager and pointed out the chicken's various talents. Then he gave the chicken the go sign to show the manager what she could do. First the chicken recited excerpts from Shelley and Keats. Then she did a medley of songs from The Music Man in a clear soprano voice, a snappy dance, and a few card tricks. The agent beamed and asked, "Well, what do you think of that?"

"I don't know," said the manager. "Let me see her legs."

Foreign pictures are getting so popular, they're starting to make them in this country.

It is better to have loved and lost—and also cheaper.

A formation of birds was flying south for the winter, and one bird near the back asked another, "How come we always follow that same idiot leader?"

The other replied, "He's got the map."

A baby lion was chasing a hunter around a tree in Africa. Mama lion said to the baby lion, "Junior, don't play with your food!"

Two brother herrings entered a local pub and ordered two beers. The bartender set them up and then chatted with them for a while, after which the two herrings left. The next day the two herrings returned and again ordered two beers, and the bartender passed a pleasant few hours. The third day, only one herring showed up. The bartender asked, "Hey, where's your brother?"

"I don't know," replied the herring. "I'm not my brother's kipper."

A deep-sea diver got a message: "Come up quick—the ship is sinking!"

They have so many foreign cars today, it's been two years since anybody was hit above the knees.

A bum approached a fat lady on a corner and pleaded, "Ma'am, I haven't had anything to eat for five days!"

"I wish I had your will power," answered the admiring woman.

Two camels were walking across the desert. Said one to the other: "I don't care what anybody says—I'm thirsty!"

A tourist approached a New York native on Broadway and asked, "Could you tell me how to get to Carnegie Hall?"

"Practice!" answered the New Yorker.

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

In Hollywood recently actress Shirley MacLaine was explaining to a reporter how radically times had changed. "When I was a kid in high school," she said, "the longest word in the English language was antidisestablishmentarianism, and everyone knew it. Then a few years ago a new dictionary came out with a still longer word . . . pneumonsltramicroscopisillikavokaneonosis or something like that. But I can tell you that television has antiquated both of those words. The longest word today in the English language is "the brief word we will now have from our sponsor." ■
